SUPERINTENDENT RETIRING

Newcomb to Quit as Long Beach Schools Head

Superintendent of Schools Douglas A. Newcomb, architect of the modern Long Beach school system, will retire at the end of this month.

Newcomb said he officially will notify the Board of Education Monday of his decision to leave the $29,000-a-year post.

The "up-from-the-ranks" superintendent who started teaching in Long Beach in 1923 said he succumbed to the lure of retirement although his contract has another two years to run.

A successor is expected to be appointed by the board shortly, possibly at its June 25 meeting.

Dr. Walter H. Boyd, president of the Board of Education, said, "We all regret Mr. Newcomb's decision to retire. More than any other man he has kept the Long Beach Unified School District at the forefront of the nation's school systems for the past 15 years."

Newcomb, a leader in community affairs, guided the Long Beach District through the burgeoning postwar years which saw a doubling in attendance and in the number of schools.

Although he describes his educational policy as "progress with conservatism," he has brought to the system a nationwide reputation for successful innovations.

Among them are the remedial-reading program

with clinics, a special school for physically handicapped, the award-winning KLON noncommercial FM educational radio station, the free noon hour for grade-school teachers, the "very superior pupil" program, outdoor science, child-welfare services, dental-health emphasis.

However he points with greatest satisfaction to establishment a decade ago of the Nightingale School—the state's first school devoted exclusively to the mentally handicapped.

"We pride ourselves on providing a program for every child, no matter what his physical or mental endowments may be," Newcomb said.

To meet the attendance surge, the superintendent planned and directed a $100-million, school-construction program which saw an early end to postwar double sessions. He gives credit to "a responsive board, a responsive public."

"Four bond issues totaling $75 million were passed overwhelmingly. We bought land for $3,000 an acre which is worth 10 times that today. We built schools for half what they would cost us now."

To lure teachers for thousands of new pupils, Newcomb initiated nationwide recruitment in an effort to find the best.

Through the years, he has won a reputation among teachers, board members and public as being "hard but fair," kindly and considerate.

Newcomb obtained a law degree in his educational career but didn't take the bar examination and never wavered from his chosen profession.

Strike Blocks Construction

Long Beach area heavy construction Saturday was gripped by a strike of operating engineers against four major contractor groups.

Full effects of the strike will not be felt until Monday.

* * * *

THE STRIKE, by Operating Engineers Local 12 hit the entire Southland construction industry with 14,000 heavy-equipment operators off their jobs.

The Long Beach and Orange County areas are in District 7 of the Local 12's jurisdiction. The district has 4,000 operating engineers on its rolls.

The walkout was called when Local 12 negotiators walked out of a session with representatives of the contractors at 2 a.m. Saturday and said they would not continue to negotiate with what they termed "errand boys" for the contractors.

The contract with the operators of bulldozers, tractors and other heavy equipment expired 15 days ago but the men remained on the job under a truce which expired at midnight Friday.

Union Business Agent Joseph H. Seymour accused the employers of failing to bargain in good faith.

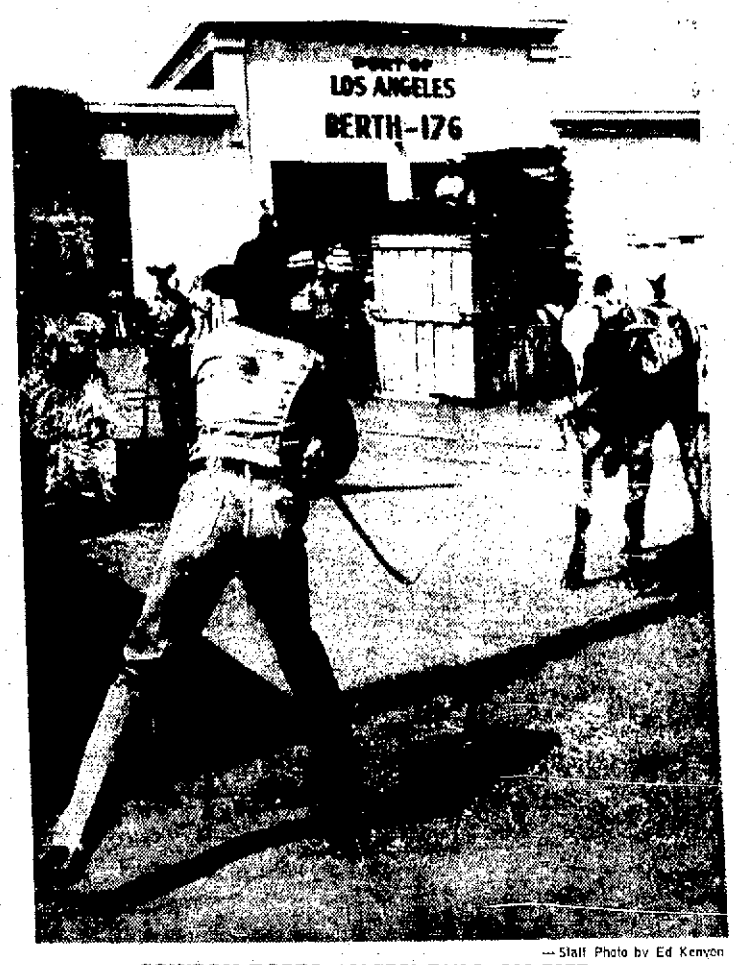

The walkout would paralyze an estimated $200 million in work on freeways, homes, dams, reservoirs, schools and other projects.

Bob Hoffmaster, chief harbor engineer said it would freeze about $30 million in construction. A spokesman for the engineers said Pier J construction would be shut down. Pier J, under construction in Long Beach Harbor is to be the site for the future Long Beach World's Fair.

Wranglers, Bull in Pier Rodeo

PERFORMER BALKS AT SEA TRIP

COWBOY ROPES ANGRY BULL ON PIER

A 1,200-pound bull broke loose as it was being loaded aboard the Japanese freighter Havana Maru in Wilmington Saturday and ran wild while longshoremen and seamen scattered from its path.

The bull was one of 21 animals loaded at berth 176 for shipment to Japan on a rodeo tour.

Wranglers for the rodeo, headed by Casey Tibbs, 32, two-time world champion cowboy, hobbled the bull after a half-hour battle and dragged it, bleeding profusely, into its pen.

The bull was the fourth to be loaded aboard the freighter.

Two of the others had battered their pens before they could be lashed down.

The fourth crashed through its pen as it was being transfererd from a trailer.

Tibbs said his rodeo is the first to tour Japan.

Men who watched termed the bulls he is taking to Japan, "Some of the meanest animals we have ever seen."

Union Defies JFK; Airline Walkout Set

Exact Hour Still Uncertain While Leaders Confer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The flight engineers union brushed off a warning by President Kennedy and announced Saturday it will strike in its wrangle with three of the nation's biggest airlines.

But the union left up in the air exactly when the walkout will begin and whether it will be directed against all or one of the airlines—Eastern Air Lines, Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines.

"We will not be able to tell you until late tonight or early tomorrow," said a union spokesman. "We still have several people to get in touch with. We are doing this as fast as possible."

* * * *

BUT JUST before midnight, the union headquarters here called it a night and said any announcement would have to wait until today.

It was indicated, also, that when the strike call does come there will be little, if any, advance warning.

The decision to strike—made in defiance of Kennedy's strong appeal — was taken after a meeting of 400 flight engineers in New York and a flurry of across-country telephone calls to union officers.

A strike on the three airlines would ground 40 per cent of the nation's commercial airline service, amounting to an average of 60,000 domestic and 20,000 international passengers daily.

* * * *

DON BYRNE, press representative of the Flight Engineers International Association, AFL-CIO, said union officials had not been in touch with any government officials during the day.

"We don't believe the government has any interest in this any more," he said.

The calls that poured in and out of the union office, hot and airless with the air conditioning turned off, connected President Ronald A. Brown with union officials in New York, Miami and Kansas City.

Castro Parades Might to Warn Underground

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The Castro regime sent troops and tanks to Cardenas Saturday in a display of force intended to crush what may be a rising tide of counterrevolutionary activity in the city 70 miles east of Havana.

It was the first time since Fidel Castro's seizure of power in January, 1959, that his government has taken such action. It appeared to indicate that underground opposition to his regime is gaining strength and now is regarded as a considerable threat.

Prime Minister Castro himself was not seen by television monitors here during the military parade and the other proceedings.

However, President Osvaldo Dorticos took the speaker's platform to deliver a fiery Castro-style speech in which he warned that from now on counterrevolutionaries will be given no rest nor truce.

It was clear from his words that a counterrevolutionary demonstration of some magnitude took place in Cardenas a few days ago. However, he gave no specific details as to its nature.

"To warn our enemies, we have staged this modest demonstration of the military force of a people in arms," Dorticos said.

"The enemy has once more made the error of underestimating the strength of our revolution and of our people."

The Cardenas show of force was televised to the nation and watched by monitors here.

A sizeable crowd applauded Dorticos and several times broke into shouts of "to the firing wall" as he lashed out at enemies of the revolution.

However, the throng failed earlier to respond to repeated appeals to display "revolutionary discipline" by clearing the way for the tanks to pass.

N.Y. Judge Guilty in Bribe Case

NEW YORK (UPI)—State Supreme Court Justice J. Vincent Keogh, a former William O'Dwyer aide who once aspired to his boss' job as mayor, was convicted Saturday night of trying to fix a federal court case.

A federal jury of nine men and three women debated three days to reach a verdict of guilty in a $35,000 bribery to lighten a bankruptcy fraud case sentence.

Convicted with the 56-year-old veteran of 12 years on the trial court bench were a former assistant U.S. attorney of Brooklyn, Elliott Kahaner, 36, and labor racketeer Antonio (Tony Ducks) Corallo, 47.

They face sentences of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine. Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld set July 17 for sentencing.

Algerian Terror End Rumored

ALGIERS (Sunday) (UPI)—Speculation ran high in Algiers today that the European Secret Army Organization might have reached an agreement with the Algerian provisional executive to end the terrorism in the territory.

There was no official confirmation that agreement had been reached or was near, and the SAO continued its scorched-earth attacks on public buildings Saturday night.

But reliable reports said Jacques Susini, a leading political theoretician of the secret army, was holding talks with Moslem leaders, including Dr. Chawki Mostefai, a member of the executive group governing Algeria until independence.

There was no SAO pirate broadcast Saturday night for the first time in a week. Observers said the silence could indicate the situation was too fluid to comment on.

200 Against 8 Million in 20-Year 'War'

TINY SOBOBA TRIBE WINS STRUGGLE WITH WATER DISTRICT

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The chief of the Soboba Indians is bent and sere. He wears the white man's glasses, and he walks with the white man's cane. His body is frail, his speech is slow.

For 65 years he has lived on the scrabbly land that is his tribe's reservation, and he has seen his ranks thin away to 200 persons, about 120 of them adults.

But he has led them to a smashing victory over 8,000,000 oppressors — in a contest as lopsided as the one that matched David with Goliath.

Last week the 8,000,000 oppressors—as represented by the Metropolitan Water District—meekly hauled down their colors and surrendered. For 20 years, Chief Anthony Mahajo had led his braves and squaws through a Twentieth Century Indian War, and now he has won.

The Metropolitan Water District, agreeing that the 13-mile tunnel it built under the San Jacinto Mountains hurt the Sobobas, has consented to pay $30,000 to the tribe, to admit the 5,000-acre reservation to the district without tax or charge, and to serve water to the Sobobas.

The Sobobas live on the unfertile southern slope of the San Jacinto, along the river by that name and near the town of the same.

Twenty-five years ago, when Colorado River water was ticketed for arid Southern California, engineers hacked that massive tunnel through the mountains.

As they did so, their boring operations tapped underground springs and reservoirs, draining them. As the springs were drained, the Soboba Indians began to find their wells drying up.

Twenty years ago Chief Mahajo, who speaks little but acts much, huddled with the Indian Bureau, then caused a suit to be filed against MWD.

The litigation dragged on. And on. Offers were made. The chief, though the numbers of his braves were thinning yearly, held his ranks together. Under his leadership, the tribal council turned down $10,000, and an offer to serve about half the parched reservation.

Last week the fortress of MWD capitulated.

For Chief Mahajo, the victory is Pyrrhic. Some of his musings:

"Once this was a large tribe. The Soboban (sic) had good land and good water, and he was something of a farmer. He raised what his family needed to eat . . .

"I remember, when I was a very little boy, hearing the older people talk about the tribe. It was large in numbers, many times what we have today."

The white man brought smallpox, Chief Mahajo recalls.

"After the smallpox, we were but a few."

The chief looks wistfully across the border of his reservation. On the other side, somehow, the white man managed to include the choicer lands in his share.

"After a while, the dry years came . . . and when this tunnel was built, our wells began to dry up . . .

"Now our tribesmen work in the cities and farms and factories around here, to earn the food their families must have . . ."

Under the chief's guidance, the tribal council has decided what it will do with the $30,000 check from MWD.

"Engineers have figured out that it will take $100,000 to put a water system into the reservation," the chief reports. "We will put the $30,000 into that project."

Then the water, pumped by the white man out of the distant Colorado River, will flow into mains under the Soboba village and, perhaps, the land will yield a little more return to its owners.

The chief, however, makes an exception.

"We would like to keep our own well," he muses. "It supplies good drinking water."

He gazes across the shale that lies between him and the MWD's tunnel, and a faint expression of distaste crosses his face.

L.A.C. Says:

Don't Like Doctors

A few years ago a public opinion poll indicated that the average family had confidence in and liked their own family doctor—but on the whole they did not like doctors. The present controversy over the President's medical bill for the aged has undoubtedly accentuated these feelings. The doctors are fighting to stop the socialization of medicine. In many ways they are pictured as selfish and not concerned over the welfare of their patients.

The people in the U. S. might well compare this feeling here with the feeling toward doctors in Britain where socialized medicine is in full swing. Recent reports we have read coincide with what we found a year ago when we were in London. There the people definitely do not like doctors, but for a much different reason.

The feeling in the U.S.—we are convinced—is due to the fact that virtually every family has experienced some medical care that has run into large costs. While the doctors fees are only 25 cents of the medical dollar costs for the average family, the doctor is blamed for the whole cost of medical care. In Long Beach we have about one doctor for each 700 of our population. In Britain the average is about 2,000 for each doctor.

The result is that in Britain the doctors are so overworked they cannot give the personalized care the American people demand. Over a third of the graduates from British medical schools leave the country rather than work in the overcrowded hospitals and conditions whereby they are paid about $2.80 a year for each patient assigned to them. They go to Canada, Australia or the United States. Their places are taken by poorly-trained doctors from India, Pakistan and other countries who go to England to gain experience.

Most British hospitals are 60 years or older—many 100 years old. Only a half dozen new hospitals have been built in the last 20 years. People have to wait six or eight months to get in. Here, too, the doctor is blamed because he is the individual who is closely associated with the patient. It is overlooked that it is the system that deprives them of the personalized services that are found only where the free enterprise system is practiced.

These are factors the American people should consider as the President's program is pressured. It covers only a minor part of the older people's medical expenses. But it would be the start of complete socialized medicine with the result inevitably being the same as it is in Britain and other European countries. It is important to realize that we have private insurance programs to protect people against catastrophic medical costs—and that the doctors' fees are only one-fourth of these total average costs.

This does not, however, answer the problem of caring for the aged. These people deserve to be protected from medical bills because their incomes are low and they have no chance of recovering income from future work. They should not be required to use up all their savings before they are given free medical attention. But neither should they be provided free medical care regardless of their ability to pay for it.

It is for this reason we advocate the deductible insurance program whereby the family would pay its total medical costs in any year up to 5 per cent of its total income—and that 80 per cent of all further costs be paid by the insurance. It should cover all persons over 65 years. The cost could be covered by a plan similar to that proposed by some senators whereby the older people would be given a $125 credit on the income tax they would pay—or the government would give this amount to those who pay no income tax. This $125 would have to go for a private medical insurance program—similar to many major medical programs now in force.

The issue cannot be solved by acriminious charges against, or by doctors. It calls for a cooperative effort to provide such a system. We doubt Americans would be happy with a socialized system—but they will have it if government gets into paying all the bills.—L.A.C.

COMMAND TO CHANGE

REPLACES COL. DAY

Air Ace to L.B. Command

American fighter pilot ace Col. Glen T. Eagleston, 41, will take command of the southern sector of the Sixth Reserve Region with headquarters in Long Beach July 1.

He will replace Col. Robert S. Day, who is retiring after 31 years of service. A commendation will be presented to Col. Day by Brig. Gen. Andrew Cannon today.

A retirement party was given for Col. Day Saturday night at Allen Center, Long Beach Naval Station.

COL. EAGLESTON is credited with shooting down 18½ planes in World War II and for destroying 5½ others on the ground. (The ½ figures are for planes shared with other U. S. pilots.)

In Korea he destroyed two planes, was credited with another probable victory and damage of seven others.

Col. Day has developed the Reserve Recovery program — under which American bombers would be provided with emergency bases on return from a natomic attack—for Southern California, Arizona and Southern Nevada. He said his plans after retirement are undecided.

Col. Eagleston, his wife and five children, will live in Huntington Beach.

A reservist when he entered the Air Force, Col. Eagleston said "I was in two wars where reserve airmen were the main stay of the fighting force.

"Things have changed now in that the standing ready force must be capable of dealing with an enemy."

Rusk Sees Growing War Peril

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned Saturday night the danger of war by accident is being increased by the unchecked nuclear arms race and he appealed anew for an enforceable disarmament agreement.

"Only one breakthrough is required," Rusk said. "The Soviet Union must realize that it cannot eat the cake of disarmament and keep the cake of secrecy . . . It is our hope that the Soviets will come to realize that secrecy is a dangerous anachronism in a nuclear age."

* * * *

IN A SPEECH before the New Hampshire Council on World Affairs, Rusk blamed the Soviet's unwillingness to accept a disarmament inspection and control system for the total failure of all the East-West negotiations to halt the arms race.

He said the United States has tried many approaches to meet Soviet objections to inspection on the ground that it would only mean Western "espionage" inside the Soviet Union. He declared this country and its allies will go on trying and he expressed hope that some day "responsible statemanship" in Moscow will lead to accord.

Rusk reported that if the "upward spiral" of nuclear destructive power continues, to grow it could "by 1966 be double what it is today."

* * * *

HE SAID ALL the nations of the world are caught in a paradox, declaring that while they are "pouring more and more resources and skill into are, on balance, enjoying less and less security."

Rusk said that as recently as last April 18 the United States had presented to the disarmament conference at Geneva major new proposals and he expressed hope that the Soviet might eventually agree to negotiate on these.

The Geneva meeting now is in recess under an agreement to return to work July 16.

No One Wants Minnie Any More

WHALE NOW WHITE ELEPHANT

IT'S A SAD THING for a poor dog when she discovers a bone of the magnitude of Minnie, the whale. But Minnie's bones do not cause quivers of excitement in the doggy breast, because the skeleton has been around since 1897.

By GEORGE ERES

Listen to the sad, sad story of Minnie the whale, once the pride of the city, but now only a garageful of bones gathering dust.

Minnie was beached near where the Villa Riviera now stands back in May of 1897, when two boys tied a rope to her tail and house movers brought in a team of mules to drag her ashore.

Crowds gathered and the Pasadena, Los Angeles and San Pedro Railway (now the Union Pacific) ran excursions to Long Beach.

But a couple of days later, Minnie died and the people downwind began complaining.

There was nothing to do but cut Minnie up and boil her down to bones.

But even then 63-foot-long Minnie was a sight to behold and the skeleton was strung together and put on public display.

She was pointed to with pride in Lincoln Park and for a time in the basement of the Main library.

There was no rest for Minnie's weary bones, though. She was carted off to a sun parlor that in those days stood at the end of the old Pine Avenue Pier.

The glamor wore off Minnie at this point, too, and she was shunted over to the Colorado Lagoon.

The curious still went to see her, but they were fewer and fewer and Minnie, with hardly a word of protest, one day was dismantled, and placed in storage in a garage on airport land.

That would have been the end of Minnie, except that one day three boys digging in a barley field at Cherry Avenue and Carson Street, suddenly came up with some whopping big bones.

The scientists were called in to explain the find.

But it was for Dr. Frank Harnett, recently retired as associate director of the Recreation Department, to explain things. He had long lived with Minnie—knew practically every bone in her body. He made the identification and the possible prehistoric animal find was put in proper place—with the rest of Minnie's bones.

The bones, however, were shifted to a new garage location—possibly to keep others from suddenly discovering giant prehistoric animals.

Dr. Harnett, who felt a special affinity for Minnie—he came to work with the city a few days after Minnie was beached—kept the memoranda going in the Recreation Department about what to do with Minnie.

For a time, it looked like they might get State College interested. A student spent considerable time puttering around with the bones.

But State politely declined the offer. No room, they explained.

It would seem that Minnie is more white elephant than whale. She's all broken up; nobody wants her.

Maybe the decent thing to do is give her a proper burial.

BEACHED IN 1897, Minnie, the whale, was the pride of the city as crowds gathered to view the huge oddity from the deep.

JFK Aides Seek Reason for K's Direct Radiogram

By MARIE RIDDER
I. P-T Washington Bureau
(Related Story, Page A-9)

WASHINGTON — Soviet Premier Khrushchev's "unprecedented" use of commercial radio instead of regular diplomatic channels for his telegram to President Kennedy on Laos has puzzled Russian experts here.

The wire sent by Mackay Radio expressed the Russian leader's hope that neutrality finally had been achieved in Laos.

The telegram written in Latinized Russian came through in what is described as "the clear." In other words it was a direct personal message from Khrushchev to Kennedy which deliberately circumvented the usual procedure of sending a diplomatic message through embassy channels.

"The Russians," says a foremost authority on Soviet behavior, "never do anything without calculating the effect, so we must try to evaluate exactly what this seemingly simple action means. We are sure that the wire sent with maximum speed already translated from the Greek to Latin alphabet for easier American understanding was one the Soviets wanted read immediately. The direct method is conceivably an indication that Khrushchev wants another tete-a-tete with the President."

* * * *

EXPERTS consulting here with our ambassador to the Soviet Union, Llewelyn Thompson, feel the Russians are less cocky than they were a year ago when the two chiefs of state met in Vienna.

"Some of the wind has been taken out of their sails," says a department spokesman, "for two reasons. First, Khrushchev's belief that the Soviet economy was going straight up in one rising curve has been rudely shaken by the year's industrial lag and agricultural shortages. The points on the graph aren't continuing the glorious rise the premier was so confident of. The Russians now realize that they aren't overtaking our industrial lead at quite the rate they had expected."

Most disappointing to the Soviet leader are the agricultural failures. He is being forced to choose between arms or consumer goods — guns or butter — while he had expected the Soviet economy to produce both.

The second disappointment for the Soviets is the fact that the new nations have rejected Marxism.

"The Russians," says an observer, "seemed to have thought the underdeveloped nations would immediately communize. They have not. Ghana, the Soviets' foremost African hope, has just sent the Russian ambassador packing."

An ever-increasing problem for the Soviets is their relations with the Chinese. The difference in economic development of the two countries is a cause of constant bitterness. The Russians have reached a plateau of development while the Chinese are still at the bottom. The latter feel that the Soviets should give a generous helping hand. The Soviets, fearful of being dragged backwards, prefer to turn a blind eye on Chinese needs.

In this year of hunger the Soviets have shown no interest in sharing their wealth.

Tulsa Plant of Douglas Faces Strike

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Members of the Aerospace Workers Union voted Saturday to strike the Tulsa Douglas Aircraft Co. plant if contract negotiations break down.

Otis M. Womack, president and business agent for Local 1093 of the union, said the balloting found better than 97-per-cent support for the strike action if its is deemed necessary. The contract expired at midnight Friday.

Negotiations have been under way with the union at Douglas' Aircraft Division in Long Beach, Calif. Talks are to begin next week at Charlotte, N.C.

A strike would affect about 1,600 Douglas workers here. But both Womack and a company spokesman expressed hope that no strike would be necessary.

The last strike at the Tulsa plant was two years ago.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Viet Reds Slay 2 U.S. Officers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Heavily armed communist guerrillas smashed an armored South Vietnamese column Saturday near this capital, killing two U.S. officers and 15 Vietnamese.

The bold ambush 30 miles north of Saigon was carried out with 50-caliber machine guns, 57-mm recoilless rifles, land mines and small arms by a guerrilla band of from 300 to 400 men. Not a member of the armored column escaped unhurt, said U.S. sources, who estimated the number of wounded Vietnamese soldiers at 20.

One of the U.S. officers was identified Saturday night by the Army in Washington as Capt. Walter R. McCarthy Jr., whose wife, Nancy, resides at Columbia, S.C.

Lodge Endorsed

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI)—George Cabot Lodge won the Massachusetts Republican Convention's official endorsement for senator Saturday, setting the stage for another possible Kennedy-Lodge race.

Lodge, 34, the son of former ambassador to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge, was defeated for the Senate by John F. Kennedy in 1952. Last week the Democratic State Convention in Springfield named Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, the President's youngest brother, as its official candidate to run against the Republican candidate picked Saturday. Ted Kennedy faces a party primary and Lodge may also.

Lodge beat veteran U.S. Rep. Laurence Curtis for the Republican senatorial nomination. Lodge polled 936 votes to 848 for the 68-year-old congressman on the first and only ballot.

McNamara Raps France

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara spelled out Saturday night the nuclear strategy the United States would use if major war came in Europe—including no city bombing unless driven to it by Soviet action.

At the same time, the U.S. defense chief sharply challenged, without naming names, President Charles de Gaulle's plan for France to go it alone with her own nuclear weapons and strategy.

He raised questions about the dangers created by a relatively weak nuclear nation, including the possibility that its very weakness might invite a preventive attack by Russia. McNamara setforth his views in a speech at the University of Michigan commencement.

Ford Talks End Early

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI)—A meeting between United Auto Workers union and Ford Motor Co. officials broke up early Saturday evening with company officials saying some "progress" had been made toward settling a strike which has idled 42,000 Ford workers nationally. The talks will resume today.

A strike by 3,200 workers in the key Ford plant at Walton Hills, Ohio, has resulted in shutdowns at all of the firm's assembly plants.

Korea Cabinet Resigns

SEOUL (AP)—Song (The Tiger) Yo-Chan, hero of the Korean war and postwar revolution, quiet as premier Saturday in what appeared to be a dispute over charting South Korea's economic future. His entire cabinet resigned with him. But the military junta accepted only the resignations of Song and Finance Minister Chun Byung-Kyu.

Strike Grips Southland Construction

COUPLED WITH the engineers' walkout was threat of another strike if negotiations fail between the contractors and other building trades unions.

The four contractor groups involved are the Associated General Contractors, the Engineering and Grading Contractors Assn., the Home Builder Assn. and the Building Contractors Assn.

Seymour charged the employer's negotiating committee did not have authority to bargain and said the associations were "fighting among themselves."

* * * *

HE SAID a letter was sent to G. R. Morrison, chairman of the employers' committee, advising him of the union's willingness to negotiate.

"We want assurance that a committee will be appointed which will have authority to negotiate," Seymour said. "We will not deal with these messenger boys any longer."

However, a contractors' spokesman said talks would be resumed Monday.

Negotiators for the Carpenters Union met Saturday with building representatives in an effort to avert a second walkout.

* * * *

UNION negotiator William Sidel said "not too much progress" was being made. No strike deadline had been set, he said.

Sidel said the contractors had informed the unions that a strike by one would be considered a strike by all.

"Possibly the action by the operating engineers will result in a lockout," Sidel said.

* * * *

IN OTHER negotiations, some progress was reported in various construction fields.

Spokesmen for the Teamsters Union and for the contractors reported a tentative agreement on a new work contract.

On May 17 the Union Laborers approved a new agreement calling for a wage benefit package equal to 15 cents an hour followed by other increases over three years.

Meantime, the strike was repoted to have not spread to San Diego, which has a separate local nor Southern Nevada which belongs to Local 12.

N.Y. Judge, 2 Others Guilty of Bribe Taking

long trial—until the tensions of the long jury deliberations began to break through his urbane manner — told reporters after the verdict:

"I am innocent. Nothing anyone can say or do can change that fact . . . my attorneys will press my appeal from this unjust conviction as soon as possible."

He apparently was stunned by the verdict and remained seated for 10 minutes after court was adjourned. His wife of 20 years, sat 30 feet away, her face turned toward a window to conceal her emotions.

KAHANER and his wife left the courtroom immediately without speaking to reporters. Corallo, who has a long record of arrests but only one conviction—a narcotics count—tipped his straw hat at a lo, rakish angle and ambled from the courtroom with a smile.

J. VINCENT KEOGH
'I Am Innocent'

Dr. Robert M. Erdman, 43, an orthopedic surgeon of Manhattan and admitted go-between in the fix attempt, testified that he paid Keogh $22,500 and Kahaner $12,500 to use their influence in behalf of Sanford Moore. Corallo, Erdman said, helped raise half of Moore's bribe money.

Moore, 44, a former New York city cop who went broke as operator of a chain of juke boxes on Long Island, admitted concealing $100,000 in assets from the receivers in his bankruptcy proceedings.

THE MOORE case was before U. S. Dist. Court Judge Leo F. Rayfiel, a friend of Keogh and former congressman with Keogh's brother, Rep. Eugene J. Keogh, D-N.Y.

When Rayfiel got wind of the fix, he revoked Moore's bail, refused to let him change his plea from guilty and sent him to jail for three years. This later was reduced to one year, which Moore now is serving.

Both Erdman and Moore were indicted in the conspiracy, but won severances of their trials for cooperating with the government's special prosecutor, William G. Hundley, whom Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy sent here from Washington especially to handle the case.

Judge Weinfeld continued Keogh and Kahaner on parole and Corallo in $50,000 bail. Keogh had voluntarily removed himself from the bench at the time of his indictment last December, but his $34,500-a-year salary was continued.

L.B. Superintendent of Schools Retiring

received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Rochester in 1918, his master's from Stanford in 1927 and his bachelor of laws from USC in 1938. He was awarded an honorary LL.D. degree from the California College of Medicine in 1955.

He taught in Ohio and New Jersey before coming to Long Beach where he started as a mathematics teacher at Franklin Junior High School.

He served as principal at Seaside and Lowell grade schools before being named principal at Will Rogers Junior High School in 1936. He was appointed director of elementary schools in 1941, assistant superintendent in 1943, deputy superintendent in 1944 and superintendent in 1947.

* * * *

NEWCOMB SAYS that only "the great challenge" caused him to take the superintendent's post. He wavered for a week and finally succumbed to pressure from community leaders.

He adds that he's never been sorry and never has considered leaving despite other offers. "Long Beach has been very good to me."

He feels fortunate in having had the support of an outstanding "handpicked" staff. "We've tried very hard to develop individual potentials."

Newcomb opines that the biggest future problem for the school district is one of finance. Money for schools, he says, has become a statewide dilemma. The superintendent recently initiated a study of the problem and successfully enlisted cooperation of districts throughout the state.

* * * *

HIS AFFILIATIONS include Rotary, American Legion, Masonic and Elks lodges and the Congregational Church. He is a member of the American Association of School Administrators and served on the board of trustees and board of directors of Memorial Hospital. He was president of the Rotary Club in 1957.

The superintendent and his wife, Helen, who live at 256 Granada Ave., have three children — daughters, Mrs. Hugh Carter, and Jane Newcomb, who is attending Long Beach State College, and son, Douglas Newcomb Jr. M.D., an intern at St. Mary's Hospital.

Newcomb waited until conclusion of the school year to announce his retirement. He said he has no definite plans beyond the fact that he and his family will remain in Long Beach.

Retail Sales Outlook Bright

NEW YORK (AP)—Retailers generally expect summer business to increase over a year ago, a survey by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association indicates.

An announcement of the findings shows 72 per cent of 221 retailers interviewed look for increased sales. The report said only five per cent feel there will be a declined.

Figures accompanying the report showed the percentage of optimists was the highest in the annual survey since 1959, when 78 per cent of those polled said they expected better sales.

Thailand Will Get U. S. Irrigation Loan

BANGKOK (AP) — Thailand is expected to receive a $7 million loan from the U.S. Development Loan Fund for construction of three irrigation projects designed to boost the country's rice production by 45,780 tons annually, the newspaper Bangkok World said.

Construction will start in February and is expected to be complete in four years. The loan will be on a 25-year repayment basis.

Hometown Welcomes Spaceman

MITCHELL, Ind. (AP)—Astronaut Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom became the shy boy from around the corner again Saturday at a homecoming celebration that attracted little more than the 3,552 residents of this town in the southern Indiana hills.

But, nearly all of them were there and America's second man in space appeared relaxed and happy as he renewed old acquaintances and made some new ones—including the crew of a slow-moving freight train.

Grissom smiled constantly — but had little to say — through formal ceremonies. The 36-year-old Air Force captain retreated quickly to his parents' neat frame house on newly named Grissom Avenue after telling the crowd:

"Thank you very much. It was an overwhelming day. You're all wonderful people."

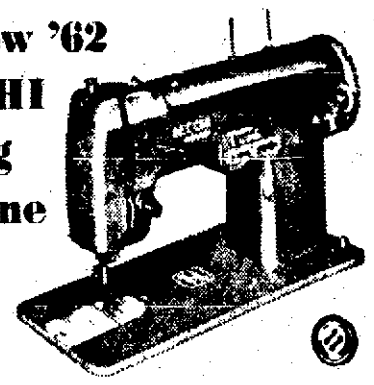

After a long, hot afternoon of speeches and awards, Grissom rose to accept the plaudits of the home town folks on behalf of "my six teammates, who are working today while I am loafing in the sun."

But he appeared happiest when he was just another small town boy home for a visit—in a quiet corner chatting with high school buddies or dashing out of his parent's home to talk with friends who stopped at the curb.

SECOND-BEST ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH—!!

Not when the welfare and safety of you and your family are at stake! Self-interest, as well as civic pride, insists that our police, our firemen, and all other city workers be the best that can be hired. You want our city to be clean, to be well-planned, to be safe, to be beautiful. You hire people to provide these things, and they are good, capable, competent people — your City Employees.

These services cost money, and each year the cost is greater. This is caused not only by the general inflationary trend, but because each year further services are demanded and provided. As a result, more and more tax dollars are required to meet these costs.

Taxes are unpopular. We don't like them any more than you. But they are the price we pay for the civilization we enjoy. To get — and to keep — the best qualified people to work for the City of Long Beach, we have to pay salaries comparable to those paid in surrounding communities. All these cities are competing in the same labor market where, all else being equal, the highest salary captures the best qualified worker.

What is the salary picture in Long Beach? For City employees it is discouraging. Job for job, duty for duty, Long Beach City salaries are up to 25% lower than these same positions receive in either the City or County of Los Angeles. Based on prevailing salaries paid in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area.

This means the average Long Beach municipal worker is paying $65.00 a month for the privilege of working in Long Beach. Or, putting it another way, the average City employee is subsidizing the rest of the City's taxpayers to the extent of $780.00 a year in money that he is morally entitled to, but does not receive. As a permanent policy this can only result in Long Beach being staffed by the rejects of our neighboring communities.

To insure continuance of the city's high standards of service, and the establishment of still higher criteria in the future, it is imperative that Long Beach reassess its pay schedule and job classifications to become competitive with our surrounding communities. Only by doing this can we be assured that Long Beach is still served by the best personnel available. And for Long Beach, only the best is good enough.

Governors Clash in Lively Battle, Throw Statistics

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—My state has more new factories than your state, said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Oh no it hasn't my state can whip your state in new factories anytime, answered California Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

That, more or less, is the dialogue today in a battle between the governors of the nation's two most populous states. Each man is armed to the teeth with statistics.

Rockefeller made his statement Thursday, saying that more than three times as many new plants have been built or started in New York in the past year than in California.

* * * *

BROWN answered immediately in a letter, whose contents he released Saturday. After citing Rockefeller's factory statement, Brown said, "The reverse is more likely true, although I do not believe either state has an accurate record of new plants."

"A comparison of employment shows, however, that between February 1958 and February 1962 the number of wage and salary workers in New York increased by 3.4 per cent while ours increased by 14.2 per cent, four times more than New York. In the category of manufacturing employment, between 1958-62 New York's employment declined 3.4 per cent while California's increased by 11.2 per cent," Brown said.

Brown seemed especially irked by Rockefeller's second contention: That California's indebtedness has been "soaring" while New York's has been dropping.

* * * *

HE SAID that "one of the reasons our bonded indebtedness is increasing (although it is still the lowest per $100 of personal income of the nine top industrial states, including New York) is that we are spending a great deal more on schools and education than you are."

Brown did congratulate Rockefeller on a "fine record of fiscal responsibility," but took the occasion to mention "my record in this field: Four consecutive balanced budgets."

"We did this, incidentally, in a period when California was growing at the rate of 600,000 a year, a pace which, as you know, will put our population at 17.3 million by December of this year, the largest among the nation's states."

HIGHWAY WASHED AWAY

Five Towns Hit by Flash Floods

United Press International

National Guard units were helping clean up Saturday after flash floods struck five communities in South Dakota's Black Hills.

Flooding also occurred on the North Dakota-Minnesota border and a tornado struck in Nebraska early Saturday.

About 400 persons were moved from their homes in the heart of South Dakota's resort area Friday night when heavy rains unleashed flash floods.

* * * *

SEVERAL persons were injured while scrambling to safety. South Dakota State Rep. Joe Dunmire, his wife, and a couple visiting from Oregon were rescued by National Guardsmen in a rubber boat after the four had climbed a tree when water reached their shoulders.

An unofficial report said Sturgis, S.D., received nearly four inches in less than six hours Friday night. Highways were closed around historic Deadwood, S.D., Saturday.

Other highways were closed by floodwaters and bridge washouts, but the roads were opening up rapidly.

* * * *

CROPS AND homes in the Red River Valley in northern North Dakota and Minnesota were under water, following a 12-foot flood crest. Additional flooding was expected, but the water was receding at some communities.

At Nenzel, Neb., a tornado destroyed the Catholic Church and two homes and damaged business buildings.

Several persons were injured, but the injuries were believed not serious.

* * * *

AN OLD lumberyard at Nenzel was hit by the twisters and pieces of lumber were strewn about the north-central Nebraska village. The lumber covered the car of Rev. Carl Ferris, pastor of the Catholic church which was destroyed.

Kilgore, Neb., received a severe hailstorm and 2.5 inches of rain.

Other tornadoes were sighted near Gordon, Neb., Valentine, Neb., and Lantana Heights, Fla.

Heavy rainfalls Saturday included 2.8 inches at Ocala, Fla., and 1.41 inches at Pickstown, S.D.

Temperatures were on the cool side in much of the nation Saturday. Winnemucca, Nev., had a low reading of 37 degrees.

Bonfires Mark Date of '53 Berlin Revolt

BERLIN (AP)—West Berliners set bonfires near the Communist wall Saturday night on the eve of the ninth anniversary of the East Germans' abortive revolt against their Red rulers.

Similar fires crackled all along West Germany's zonal border with East Germany.

West Berlin officials said the bonfires were set to remind the people in East Berlin and East Germany of their heroic rebellion that was crushed by the might of the Soviet army.

* * * *

WEST GERMAN Chancellor Konrad Adenauer appealed to the Soviets in a Bonn television appearance to give East Germans more freedom "and the right to live the way they want to live."

Adenauer, who is expected in Berlin today, asked East Germans to be patient. Reunification with West Germany would not come very soon, he said, "but time will work in our favor."

"In the long run, the spirit is stronger than brutal force," the chancellor said.

Ernst Lemmer, West German minister for all German affairs, said in a radio broadcast in Berlin that the spiritual resistance of East Germans against the Communist regime had not diminished in the past nine years.

Across the wall, the East German Communists opened a two-day "National Congress" attended by 2,300 delegates from East and West Germany, according to the official East German news agency, ADN.

* * * *

COMMUNIST Boss Walter Ulbricht and East German Premier Otto Grotewohl attended the opening session.

The congress is regarded here as the East's answer to West Germany's anniversary observance.

In West Berlin, bonfires were lit a few hundred yards from the wall in nine districts bordering the wall or the barbed-wire frontier of East Germany with West Berlin.

They were set after memorial rallies in the districts, and torchlight parades or youths' rallies in memory of June 17, 1953.

No Hoffa OK for Governor

SACRAMENTO (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, said Saturday the international union will not endorse either Democratic Gov. Brown or Republican Richard M. Nixon in California's gubernatorial race.

Such an endorsement is a local matter, Hoffa said in an interview, and will be left to local labor organizations.

On May 9, Nixon said that Hoffa endorsed Brown. Brown called Nixon "dead wrong" and said he had only the endorsement of the Teamsters Union in California.

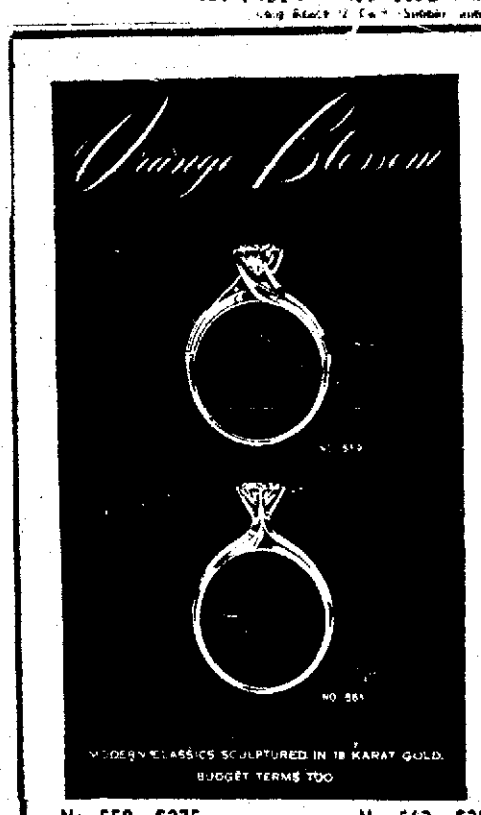

Hoffa was in Sacramento to open a membership drive for the teamsters' political education arm.

He said the international union will make endorsements in congressional races, although it will be done in conference with local unions.

CDC Hits Nixon on Campaigning

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

California Democratic Council (CDC) President Tom B Carvey Jr. told his board members and club representatives here Saturday that the CDC will be armed with rebuttal and legal aid to counter Richard Nixon's "low road" attack against Governor Brown.

Carvey said numerous pieces of literature, including newspaper retractions and correction of reports on resolutions passed by CDC's 1960 convention, will be made available to council members and to all news media.

* * * *

CARVEY TOLD some 200 persons meeting Saturday and today in the Lafayette Hotel that these "phony resolution" stories were thoroughly discredited and repudicated at the time of their first use in 1960 but have been recurring this year. He said the current usage follows that of 1960 in which reports of the CDC resolutions are in most cases "basically untrue, grossly distorted or out of context."

The controversial matter dealt with CDC positions on abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee, inclusion of Red China in negotiations to halt nuclear tests, abolition of state and federal loyalty oaths and unilateral disarmament, among others.

* * * *

CARVEY SAID CDC's corrective literature would include reprints of a full-page correction printed by the "right-wing" publication, Human Events, in answer to the charges used by commentator Fulton Lewis Jr. It also is scheduled to include a Congressional Record entry by Democratic Congressman James Corman entitled, "False Charges Laid to Rest," in answer to charges made by John Birch Congressman John Rousselot.

Leon Cooper, CDC's legal counsel, "has mobilized almost every Democratic attorney in Los Angeles County" for the counterattack, Carvey said.

* * * *

DESPITE NIXON charges against Brown as a CDC captive and despite former GOP Congressman Donald Jackson's effort "to dignify McCarthyism" through the Anti-Communism Voters League, Carvey said, the CDC had impressive successes in the June 5 primary.

CDC member Roy Greenaway reported that the council endorsed 112 candidates of 136 seeking office and that 100 of the 112 won nomination. He said this accounting includes congressional, state senate and assembly races, but not the state constitutional offices, which CDC-endorsees also won.

Greenaway pointed out that 55 of the 112 were unopposed Democrats but that among the 57 opposed candidates, 45 CDC endorsees won and 12 lost, for a 79 per cent achievement record.

Skydiver Injured Seriously

VENTURA (AP)—A skydiver suffered serious injuries Saturday when his parachute failed and his emergency chute dragged him after he landed.

Sheriff's deputies said he is Armand Eichwald, 32, a Santa Barbara laboratory technician. He was taken to a Santa Paula hospital with compound fractures of vertebra in the lower back.

Eichwald was injured when wind slammed him into the bank of the dry Santa Clara River near Piru, 30 miles east of here.

* * * *

THE HOSPITAL said Eichwald was conscious and seemed in good spirits. He reportedly was not paralyzed.

Eichwald told a reporter he jumped out of a four-passenger plane, as the second of three skydivers. He said the plane was at 2,500 feet.

Eichwald said he tried three times to open his main chute, then grabbed the emergency ripcord and opened the spare chute "below 1,000 feet."

The skydiver said he had planned to make a free fall, in which he would delay opening the parachute until he reached a certain altitude.

* * * *

"ALL OF A sudden I realized I had dived too low," said Eichwald.

"I grabbed my main chute cord with both hands but it still didn't work." Then, hurtling toward the earth, Eichwald pulled the cord on the emergency chute.

"It opened and broke the fall immediately."

Car Hits Girl, Breaks Arm

Four-year-old Debra Johnson of 2280 Willard St. suffered a broken arm Saturday when she was struck by a car near her home.

Police said the child apparently dashed into Willard Street from between parked cars and was struck by a car driven by Joseph T. Celia, 43, of 1726 W. Willard St. The child was reported in satisfactory condition at Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Moore Plans U.S. Hike to See Her 'Hero,' JFK

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Barbara Moore said Saturday night she is planning another marathon walk across the United States as "a personal tribute to President Kennedy."

The Russian-born dietician said she will mortgage her 25-room home in Surrey to pay for her new trek.

"There is no other way to finance the walk," said Dr. Barbara. "America is a very expensive country and it will cost at least $4,500.

"But I'm determined to raise the money to go to America as soon as I can. I'm hoping to see President Kennedy—he is my hero."

Dr. Moore said she is convinced that as long as Kennedy is in the White House there will be no war.

Shell Raps Nixon Tactics

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Joseph C. Shell struck back Saturday in his running battle with Richard M. Nixon and the leadership of the California Republican Party.

Shell said Nixon, who defeated him for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, is harming himself by trying "to avoid the true issues involved in the race for governor."

And he charged that the former vice president is using "power tactics."

* * * *

SHELL'S latest blast followed publication of a remark attributed to Nixon by Caspar Weinberger, vice chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Weinberger quoted Nixon as saying, "There will be no deals of any kind, but I'll talk with any candidates or party leaders on their ideas for the party platform and program."

Said Shell: ". . . I have offered to meet Mr. Nixon and give him helpful advice on how to win in November."

A week ago last Thursday he called and said he would meet this week. So far he has not kept his word.

* * * *

"MY ONLY request is that the people of California who supported me be treated fairly. I am disgusted if Nixon calls this a 'deal.' My campaign was for the good of our state, nothing more. It was based on principle, not personal ambition. My loyalty will always be to my country, state, and party in that order.

Shell, a conservative, polled more than 671,000 votes.

Trying to Cash 'Santa's' Check Leads to Jail

COLUMBUS, Ind. (AP) — "No, Harold, there is no Santa Claus," Columbus police told a construction worker Saturday as he was booked on a preliminary charge of attempting to pass a fraudulent check.

Officers quoted Harold L. Smith, 30, Indianapolis, as saying he found the check for $137 on a street here. Smith said it was signed Santa Claus and the payee line was left blank. The amount was written with a check writer.

Smith said he filled in his name, tried to cash the check in Indianapolis but was turned down. He returned here and presented it in a department store, where a clerk notified police.

Postal Unions' Voting Begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mailing of ballots to nearly half a million postal workers in 25,000 cities began Saturday as the first step in conducting one of the biggest union-representation elections in history.

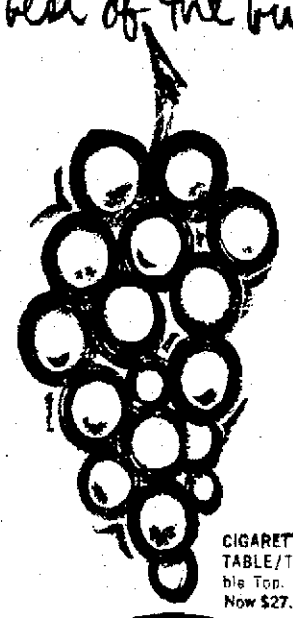

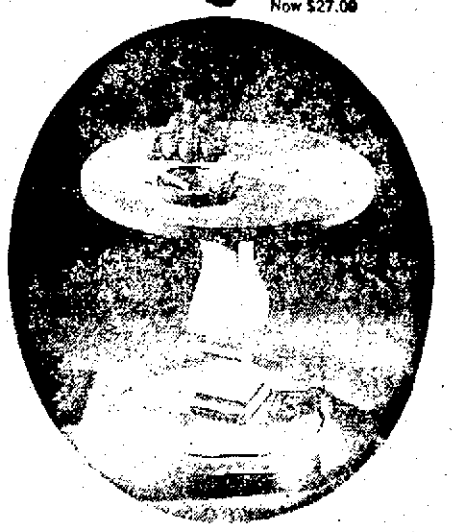

The ballots are to be returned to 15 regional offices by July 1. Counting begins July 9.

Ten employe organizations seeking to represent one or more of the seven postal crafts are listed on the ballots. There is also a place to write in other employ-organization names or to vote for no organization.

The crafts include clerks, carriers and mail handlers.

VICE DETAIL MAKES ARRESTS

Legion 'Recruiting' Party Raided

Sheriff's deputies called it one of the biggest vice raids in a long time.

But American Legion spokesmen protested it was just a "recruiting get-together."

Whatever it was, deputies put a stop to the stag proceedings being held by Legion Post 411, at 7613 Serapis St., Pico Rivera, early Saturday.

* * * *

ABOUT 150 members and guests were rounded up in the raid.

Two women arrested and charged were:

Betty Jean Anderson, 31, a cocktail waitress of 342 35th St., Manhattan Beach—suspicion of sex perversion and violation of the state narcotics act; Joy Ann Wise, 23, receptionist, of 347 33rd Place, Hermosa Beach—suspicion of indecent exposure.

Also booked on suspicion of indecent exposure were post members Robert Riddell, 38, of 14216 Ramshurt Dr., La Mirada and George W. Cain, 36, of 9017 S. Cord St., Downey.

* * * *

THE POST'S commander, Hazen Dewey Scott, 63, was accused of acting as lookout for an illegal act.

Scott said: "It was just a recruiting get-together."

Otto Albert Antenrieth, 34, of 8441 Sanger Ave., Whittier, the post's vice commander, was booked on suspicion of participating in a lewd show. Officers said he supplied the lewd films screened for the "get-together."

Post member Robert Pedersen, 33, of 11557 Baylor Drive, Los Angeles, was accused of being the projectionist.

* * * *

MOST OF the 150 post members and guests rounded up were cited and released.

Fifteen undercover men from the Norwalk Sheriff's station and Capt. Walter H. Howell's vice detail in the Los Angeles Sheriff's office, broke up the show. Officers saw men leaving for intermissions had red marks on their left hands. They put similar marks on their hands and infiltrated the action.

Capt. Howell said the two women arrested provided "entertainment" between film showings.

Square Dancers Plan U.S. Hoedown in L.B.

Twelve thousand delegates to the National Square Dance Convention in Miami Beach have accepted an invitation to convene here in 1964.

Howard Jones, chairman of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau, telephoned notice of the delegates' plans from Miami Beach Saturday night. Jones said the convention was scheduled for July, 1964.

He said local residents William Tickell and Norman Holloway headed a strong California contingent and presented the bid. "Heavy competition for the colorful event was generated by Dallas," added Jones.

Referring to Long Beach Arena, Jones said, "The new auditorium played a major role in the city's bid."

The event will be hosted by the Southern California Square Dance Association, headquartered in Long Beach.

Screwworm Factory Dedicated

MISSION, Tex. (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson told 2,500 persons at the dedication of a screwworm factory Saturday that the struggle against disease "is too great to be fought only by individual philanthropists and private associations."

Johnson helped dedicate the new federal-state screwworm eradication center at the deactivated Moore Air Force Base, 15 miles northwest of Mission.

* * * *

THE FACTORY is capable of producing 75 million screwworm flies a week. The screwworm flies, which include many males, will be rendered sterile by radioactive cobalt.

The sterile male flies will be released by airplanes and mate with fertile female flies that have reproduced in the affected areas. The eggs laid by the fertile female flies that have mated with the sterile male flies will not hatch.

* * * *

THUS, the screwworm, which attacks cattle and deer, will become eradicated.

"We can look at this achievement," Johnson said, "and hope our budget could be transferred to achievements of this kind instead of destruction.

"It cost more than $400 billion to win World War II," Johnson said, "since then, we have spent almost that much more trying to avoid war."

ELECTRONIC BLOODHOUND

Machine Sniffs Out Traces of Anything

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) —Scientists in San Antonio are working with an electronic bloodhound so sensitive it can detect alcohol in a man's saliva from a bottle of beer he drank the day before.

They plan on using the bloodhound to sniff out possible signs of life on the sun-seared deserts of Mars.

It is called the gas chromatograph. And if there was ever a scientific miracle in an ordinary black box, this is it.

Dr. Thomas B. Weber of the School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base holds a patent on a miniaturized version of the gas chromatograph that has a supersensative delection apparatus no larger than the end of a man's thumb.

* * * *

NO LONGER do scientists have to talk about traces in a mixture of chemicals in terms of parts in a hundred or thousand. With gas chromatography chemists at the school can detect a few parts in a million or even a billion.

"Here for the first time is a method that appears to be unlimited in its possibilities for identifying trace materials in minute quantities," Weber said.

* * * *

HOW DOES it work?

A small tube of plastic or metal is stuffed with something such as activated charcoal. A mixture of gases is forced into it. The molecules constituting each of the gases will have different physical characteristics — such as size and shape.

As the gases come out the other end of the tube they are measured with a supersensitive thermometer called a thermistor.

* * * *

A PEN makes a line on a moving piece of graph paper. The position of the humps on the graph paper tell the scientists what kind of gas molecule came through the tube and in what order.

The size of the hump tells just what percentage of the gas molecule is present in the mixture.

Weber predicts that in a few years every hospital in the country will have a gas chromatograph. A test on a reporter for example, showed a slight gum inflamation the reporter didn't even know about.

India Purchase of Jets Defended by Ambassador

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — India's ambassador to the United States defended Saturday his nation's proposed purchase of jet fighters from Russia as a "commercial deal with no strings attached."

Meanwhile, western capitals reportedly were greatly concerned over the possible acceptance of the Russian offer to build a plane plant in India and sell the jets to the government.

Ambassador B. K. Nehru, a first cousin to Prime Minister Jawaharial Nehru, in Columbus to address a midwest Indian student convention, said "the deal is very much up in the air . . . there is no finality about it."

He said he didn't understand the alarm created by the Russian offer.

"I wish people would realize Indians are not babies," he said. "We don't get subverted by contact with people."

Nehru added that India has purchased arms from Russia before.

The governor and other constitutional officers will be inaugurated in the Capitol on Thursday.

Part Hair, or No Diploma at Rites, 2 Told

CHICAGO. (UPI) — Two elementary school students may not receive their graduation diplomas with their classmates next Wednesday because their hair isn't parted.

The mother of one of the boys protested the principal's ruling. She planned to meet with the principal "to discuss the whole matter."

"Why should my son change his hair style when he got a haircut just last week?" complained Mrs. Raymond T. Warchol, mother of Ronald, 15.

Ronald, and Wayne Tiess, also 15, face the possibility of getting their diplomas from the principal's office at Mark Twain Elementary School instead of on stage.

Miss Mary P. Mackin, principal, made the "trim or else" order after deciding the haircuts of the two students "did not come up to normal good grooming standards."

GRUNION RESUME RUNS TUESDAY

If You're Lucky Enough to Be on the Right Beach You May See Tricky Fish

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

This is the tourist season and that means that once again we must explain to our visitors that a grunion party is not a snipe hunt. A grunion, believe it or not, is a real fish, and enough of the tiny silversides will make a meal provided you are smart enough to be on the right beach at the right time of night.

Another grunion run, the second this month, is scheduled to start Tuesday. That run will be between 10:30 and 11:30 p.m. On the following three nights the times will be 11:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. midnight to 1 a.m. and 1 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Far too many visitors to this area have gone back east with the feeling that they were taken as suckers on those nights they stood on a cold beach and waited for the grunion to come ashore. Chances are that they, as kids, snared other youngsters into the the old snipe-hunt trick.

* * * *

THE LITTLE smelt-like fish are found only along the coasts of Southern California and Baja California, where on certain tides and only at night they come out of the water, dance on their tails and lay eggs in the moist sand.

Grunion are tricky little devils because they tell no one where they are going to lay their eggs. You may be standing on the beach near Belmont Pier and never see a single grunion, or any other fish for that matter, while downcoast at Newport Beach the grunion may come ashore by the thousands.

When they do come ashore, you are entitled to catch as many fish as you can with your bare hands only. You must not use shovels, nets, buckets or any other devices and you must not dig holes in the sand so that the grunion will be trapped.

* * * *

ALSO, YOU must have a state fishing license unless you are under 16 years of age. All of these regulations give the poor little grunion a sporting chance to get away with their nocturnal love-making and reporduce the species.

If you'd like to know where to expect the runs, more about the grunion, how to catch them and how to cook the fish, send 25 cents in coin to the State Documents Section, Printing Division, Sacramento 14, Calif., and you will receive a 22-page booklet, "A Guide to the Grunion."

Now head for your favorite beach and hope. Take your favorite girl with you and perhaps you'll forget all about the grunion.

Menzies, JFK Set Trade Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies meets with President Kennedy Monday for what could be a showdown on conflicting foreign trade policies.

Australia is bitterly critical of American opposition to the British system of preferential tariffs for Australia and other Commonwealth nations and to Kennedy's insistence that Britain should join the European Common Market at any price for the good of all.

Menzies will be seeking a way out that would be profitable to his country.

Australian Trade Minister John McEwan bluntly told American businessmen in Sydney last Monday:

"This I am angry about: That the United States should intervene (in Britain's common market negotiations), as I believe her influence is apparent today, to kill the system of British preferences on which we so much depend. If we cannot get American's help, then she should stay out of our hair and let us look after ourselves."

Menzies, although he is unlikely to be so forthright, is expected to try to convince Kennedy that if the Commonwealth countries do not get the same access to the common market that they now have to British markets, then Britain will not join the European Economic Community (EEC), or common market.

* * * *

NEW ZEALAND Deputy Prime Minister John R. Marshall who arrived here Thursday in advance of Menzies, told a press conference the common market's agriculture policy was restrictive and aimed at self-sufficiency. Like Menzies and McEwen, he said it was a gap that had to be bridged between British policy and the common market.

In current negotiations between Britain and the EEC, proposals have been made that, should Britain be admitted, the system of commonwealth preferences should be scaled down gradually, finally to disappear in 1970. At that time Commonwealth products would be subject to the common external tariffs of the EEC.

In the case of Australia alone $452,000,000 of exports would be affected, half of them agricultural products. This, Australia says, would cripple her all-important exports of bulk commodities like wheat, meat, butter and sugar. It argues that all these would run up against the competition of the EEC's variable levy system which comes into effect July 1.

* * * *

THE SYSTEM is a device to adjust tariffs to the rise and fall of world prices, thus stabilizing prices and production within the common market. In addition, a small fixed charge will be imposed to ensure a preferential position for, say, common market grains.

The levies apply equally to American exports of these and other commodities.

One purpose of President Kennedy's pending freer trade bill is to make it possible for the United States to counter the levies by exchanging sizable tariff cuts for improved access to EEC markets for agricultural products.

Australia contends, however, that she is not in a similarly strong bargaining position, having little to offer the common market in return for a better deal.

* * * *

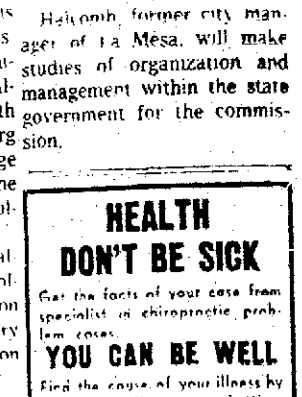

THE UNITED STATES has made no secret of its opposition to the British preferential tariff system, and still does not. It sees no justification for its continuance and holds that Commonwealth countries are unduly concerned.

Australia and other countries, the argument runs, would benefit from any trade deals the United States made with the EEC because tariff cuts conceded to the common market would be passed on to Australia and other third countries under most-favored-nation arrangements.

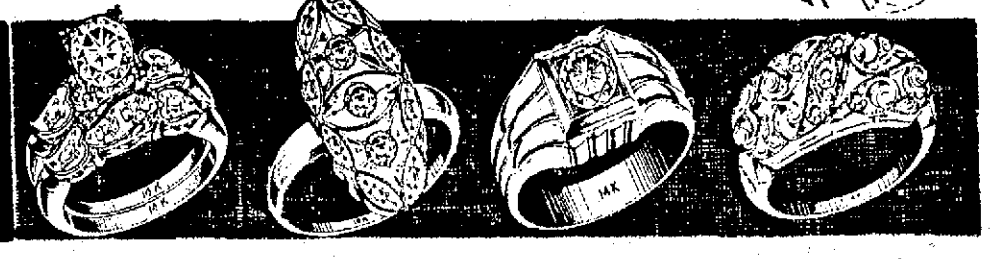

Australia, says this is pie in the sky, for it would not sell her wheat, meat, butter and sugar. Preferential trade with Britain is the reality of the moment.

See K Bid for Support in Romania

By ROBERT J. KORENGOLD

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev leaves here Monday for Romania on his second trouble-shooting swing into the Balkans in about a month.

Billed as a goodwill visit to an outwardly docile east bloc neighbor, the premier's trip appears aimed, at least in part, at winning Balkan support for the Soviet Union's new soft-line toward Yugoslavia.

But Khrushchev may want to use his expected eight-day stay to discuss with Romanian president and party chief Gheorge Gheorghiu-Dej such topics as de-Stalinization, Sino-Soviet and Soviet-Albanian relations, and general eastern bloc economic and agricultural problems.

Khrushchev, who probably will be accompanied by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, is scheduled to visit Bucharest and make several swings into the provinces before returning to Moscow about June 26. This will put him back in Russia in time for the visit here June 28 of Austrian Chancellor Alfons Gorbach.

Like his visit to Bulgaria May 15 to 20, Khrushchev's Romanian trip may produce some marathon speeches critical of western policies.

Certain to come under fire is the western stand on Berlin, and the allegedly aggressive intentions of NATO.

* * * *

THIS WOULD include a renewal of verbal blasts at Greek and Turkish participation in the Atlantic alliance and a call for the formation of a denuclearized Balkan "peace zone."

In Bulgaria Khrushchev noticeably failed, however, to touch on Moscow's problems with Balkan outcast Albania. Western observers here were waiting to see if he maintains his silence on the subject in Romania.

Moscow's anti-Albanian propaganda has fallen off to near zero in recent months in comparison to the violent attacks after last fall's 22nd Soviet Communist Party congress here.

The switch has been interpreted as part of an agreement between Moscow and Peiping to stop squabbling in public.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH THE exact reasons for Khrushchev's sudden interest in the Balkans remain shrouded in mystery, it appears he in turn may be anxious to have Yugoslavia's neighbors stop squabbling with Belgrade.

In a speech May 16 at Varna, Bulgaria, the premier unexpectedly announced that better Soviet relations with once-ostracized Yugoslavia would benefit all countries building socialism and communism.

These were about the warmest words spoken about Yugoslavia by any Soviet leader since the last split between the two countries in 1957.

Both Romania and Bulgaria have been critical of Marshal Tito's allegedly "revisionist" views.

* * * *

ONE BALKAN diplomat in Moscow told a western reporter this week: "Romania and Yugoslavia have their ideological differences, but after all, they are neighbors."

While problems with de-Stalinization and a lagging agricultural program were two of the items believed on Khrushchev's look-see list in Bulgaria, the situation in Romania seems on the surface much better.

In many respects, that oil-rich nation is considered to have one of the healthiest industrial economies in eastern Europe, although living standards are still low by general west European norms.

Romanian agriculture, as in other bloc countries, is lagging behind plans, however, and this may be one area to which Khrushchev will pay special attention.

POWERS AVOIDS SPOTLIGHT

U2 Pilot Lives Quietly, Works for Central Intelligence, Writing Book

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four months after he walked to freedom across a Berlin bridge, former U2 pilot Frances Gary Powers remains an obscure figure around Washington—glimpsed occasionally, talked of more frequently, but always avoiding the public spotlight.

The 32-year-old pilot whose unsuccessful 1960 espionage flight over Russia toppled a summit meeting, has been living quietly in a modern apartment overlooking the Potomac River in suburban Alexandria, Va., generally unnoticed by most of his neighbors.

He is working for the Central Intelligence Agency at duties which are undisclosed but which apparently do not include flying.

* * * *

HE IS REPORTED writing a book on his flight, which ended deep inside Russia, his trial and 21 months in a Soviet prison, and his eventual exchange for convicted Soviet spy Rudolph Abel.

With a few exceptions Powers has gone quietly about his business here without publicity since his appearance before a Congressional committee shortly after his return.

One exception was when he ran into a local Washington reporter at a fish fry given at the home of a friend. Powers said on that occasion that he was able to walk around downtown Washington without being recognized but that once he visited Pope's Creek near the little town of La Plata, Md., he was discovered and people lined up to get his autograph.

* * * *

ANOTHER exception was in late April when his wife Barbara was taken to Georgetown University Hospital here with an acute stomach ailment which the hospital diagnosed as a "medication reaction." Police said she had taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

The director of the CIA, John A. McCone, has been attempting to have the agency show up somewhat less in the newspapers than did his predecessor, Allen Dulles.

All the CIA will say about Powers is that "he works for us."

* * * *

THIS ATTITUDE undoubtedly stems also from the fact that although the general story is known, there still are quite a number of undisclosed aspects of the U2 flight.

The CIA, on recommendation of a special panel appointed by President Kennedy, gave Powers full exoneration for his conduct during his flight and at his Soviet trial.

The CIA found he had "lived up to the terms of his employment and instructions."

* * * *

HE WAS GIVEN $50,000 back pay, and the Internal Revenue Service ruled he could spread the taxes on this over two years.

But no one has even completely cleared up publicly the mystery of how his plane was brought down.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told the Russian people it was done with "a remarkable rocket."

* * * *

POWERS IN his Senate testimony said he did not know the answer. His first sign of disaster, he said, was when he "heard and felt" an explosion and saw an orange light.

Then his plane was falling in a spin, and after a struggle against the forces of gravity, he bailed out without being able to start the mechanism which would have destroyed the plane after he left it, he testified.

Story of Heartbreak in Making and Testing of Powerful Missile

By BILL BROOM
U. P. I. Washington Bureau

APE CANAVERAL (UPI) The heartbreak and frustration of making missiles were exposed to merciless view Thursday when the Army's much-vaunted Pershing missile fizzled at its first public showing.

Now in the last stages of development, the Pershing had an unmatched success record of any missile during secret tests of the past two years. Out of 37 flights, only six had been less than 100 per cent successful.

The missile system itself accepted by the Army and will be in the hands of troops early in 1963. The 38th firing Thursday was to be evidence that four years and $470 million worth of effort had given the American field commander the most advanced weapon in the arsenal of ground troops.

* * * *

GLEAMING white in an arc cut through the Florida darkness by floodlights, the Pershing stood on its launch site, a monument to proud effort by thousands of men and scores of contractors. The countdown was untroubled. At the precise present moment, the missile thundered aloft from the Atlantic missile range.

But the second stage failed to ignite several miles above the earth and the missile destroyed itself before reaching target. Thirty-six hours later, engineers and technicians were still trying to determine why.

It was a bitter moment, all the more so because outsiders were there to witness it.

* * * *

OFFICIALS of the Martin Co., prime contractors for the Pershing were disconsolate. So were representatives of the FMC Corp., which makes the tanklike vehicles that give the Pershing battlefield mobility, the Bendix Corp., which makes the guidance system, Army officers and all the other contractors who had done their bit.

Over a loudspeaker, the voice of Capt. William Walker broke the sultry, tropical stillness.

"I'd like to point out," he said, "that if this had happened under combat conditions, we'd have another missile in its place in a matter of very few minutes."

The Pershing is a remarkable weapon, despite Thursday's mishap. It gives an Army commander a tactical weapon comparable in some respects to the Navy's Polaris missile. And it gives him the longest punch of any ground commander in the world—about 400 miles in advance of his front lines.

* * * *

PERSHING is a shoot-and-scoot weapon carrying a nuclear warhead. Mounted on tracked vehicles manufactured in San Jose by FMC Corp., it can move steadily on roads or across country in friendly territory. The enemy will never know from whence Pershing comes until it is fired.

All that's needed to drop a nuclear charge on an enemy target hundreds of miles away is a plot of land 20 feet by 40 feet and about 15 minutes for preparation.

The Pershing fills a requirement handled in the past by tactical air support planes. It has many advantages.

It can operate day or night in foul or fair weather, which planes cannot.

IT IS DIFFICULT to defend against, because it has no fixed launch sites.

It can be put into action within minutes at the command of an Army headquarters, whereas planes present operational, administrative and command problems and create a much longer time lag between command and execution.

Its solid-fuel propellants simplify firing problems. The simplicity of its design makes it usable by average troops with a minimum of training.

Of one thing the disappointed creators of Pershing are certain. Their weapon will be in the hands of troops on time and reliable.

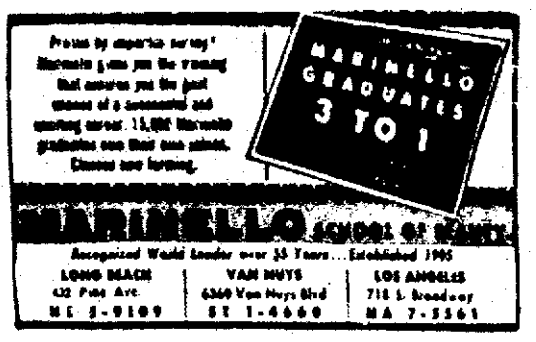

* * * *

"NOT ONE BASIC concept has had to be changed throughout development and testing," said Herm Staudt, Martin's project director. "We've hit no blind alleys, and the Thursday test is no exception.

"Pershing doesn't have 100 per cent reliability, but we believe it's perfectly reasonable to have it, and we expect it will."

FMC Corp. has delivered 20 XM474 tracked vehicles for the Pershing tests. Thursday's firing was conducted from one of these. A total of 112 of the vehicles are now in production. The first two will be delivered by the end of this month.

Hams Set Annual Test Days

Twelve antennas, erected on portable aluminum towers, are being constructed in Palos Verdes this weekend preparatory to area participation in the world-wide amateur radio operators field days June 23 and 24.

The annual exercise, under rugged emergency conditions, is held to test equipment and procedures that could be of help to such agencies as the Red Cross, civil defense, police and public utilities when normal communication channels are not available.

TWELVE amateur radio stations will be set up at the home of Dr. Edgar E. Daniels, 3003 Palos Verdes Dr. East, Palos Verdes. All stations will be powered by an emergency generator and all will be transmitting simultaneously, said Lee.

Lee invited all licensed amateurs who would like to participate to take part in the Field Day directly or by making contact on the air.

More than 15,000 United States and Canadian radio amateurs will take up stations in such places as tents, log cabins, fire towers, barns and even on floating rafts for the test.

The event is held in the form of a contest. Club groups score points for the number of contacts made and simulated emergency messages exchanged.

TWO-THIRDS OF TOTAL FROM NON-TAX FUNDS

City Budgets to Top $100 Million Mark

By GEORGE WEEKS

Although the figure is admittedly misleading, Long Beach's municipal budgets will amount to more than $100 million for fiscal year 1962-63.

Appropriations of $100,938,051 are listed in budgets for general city operations. But the over-all total is inflated, city officials pointed out for at least two reasons.

THE FIRST is that all the money on hand and anticipated in the Harbor Department and the Tideland Oil Fund is budgeted annually, although the progress of capital improvements each year falls far short of the appropriations.

From a standpoint of tax liability, a second reason is that all the Gas, Water and Harbor Departments are supported entirely by non-tax revenues, as is the Tideland Oil Fund. (Most of the harbor income comes from tideland oil, but the Tideland Oil Fund is a separate account expendable for shoreline use outside the harbor district.)

General governmental operations call for less than one third of the total—$32,400,654 in the unadjusted total, $30,923,701 after accounting refinements to limit the figure to tax-supported funds.

OTHER BUDGET segments are: Gas Department, $19,261,101; Water Department, $7,104,630; Harbor Department, $20,412,500; Tideland Oil Fund, $26,135,507. Allowance for interfund transactions brings the gross figure of $105,294,392 down to $100,938,051.

None of the budgets has been approved as yet by the City Council. Water and Harbor Department budgets will be ratified first because these will become effective as approved by the respective boards unless the council modifies them before July 1.

The $30,923,701 general operating budget directly re-

Vandal Toll $6,563 at SA Schools

SANTA ANA — Vandals delivered a costly blow to the Santa Ana city schools the past year.

Business Manager Harold Nichols reported that vandals caused $6,563 in damage to various schools in the district. He added one hopeful note; the damage was $2,000 less than occurred the previous school year.

He noted that most damage was done to elementary schools. Glass breakage was the leading item and the district suffered a $1,529 loss.

Theft was second highest, with $1,016 loss.

He said insurance and private parties have paid $3,788 of the damage, but the rest remains uncollectable.

Fuchsia Show at Auditorium

California National Fuchsia Society is presenting its eighth annual fuchsia and shade-plant show today in Municipal Auditorium from noon to 9 p.m.

Competing in the show are designers of garden plots from 30 branches of the society and over 500 individual entrants.

The show's queen, crowned Saturday night, is Debbie Barlow of Venice. Her princesses are Cheryl Silvers of Westminster and Elaine Hughes of Orange.

See 5,000 at LBSC for Summer

Five thousand students are expected to register Monday when Long Beach State College opens its 1962 summer session.

The six-week term which ends July 27 will be followed by a four-week session which starts July 30.

Registration times are assigned alphabetically for students who have obtained advance registration request forms. The signups start at 8 a.m.

Officials said that entrance to the summer session is still open. Students who have not obtained advance approval may enroll at 3 p.m. Monday along with those who missed their assigned times.

Summer courses are offered by nearly all departments of the college. There will be several special workshops given only during the summer.

THE SILHOUETTE'S THE SAME

Long Beach Pair Sponsor Brigitte Bardot 'Double'

By VERA WILLIAMS

The typical French face, the long blond hair, the sultry mouth are unmistakable.

So is the silhouette. . . . But she isn't Brigitte She's Colette Andre, 20, Brigette's "double" and she has just arrived in America, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie M. Dreis, 1943 Pattiz Ave. She hopes to be a model or a movie or TV actress here.

"But you have so much beautiful girls," she says, "Do I have a chance?"

BORN IN Dieppe, the daughter of a newspaperman, and reared in LeHavre, her resemblance to Brigitte was discovered in 1957 by a LeHavre newspaper photographer, who chanced to stop in at a cafe operated by her family on Rue de Richelieu.

His picture of her appeared in the LeHavre Libre, then was widely republished.

Solette appeared opposite George Ulmer of "Pigdale" fame in the Music Hall Miracle in March, April and May, 1960 in the Alhambra Theater in Paris.

SHE HAD THE supporting role to Colette Descombes in the film all about a boy and girl who fall in love," she played opposite Jacques Brel in several TV shows; she posed for the jackets for long-playing records, notably "Vienne et la valse" played by Rapha Brogiotti and his orchestra.

Then on the scene arrived a representative of a Manhattan manufacturer of lingerie. He wanted the name Brigitte Bardot to advance the sale of lingerie, but BB did not want to be bothered posing for it.

In the Ritz Hotel, Bardot signed a contract (allegedly for one million dollars over four years) for the lingerie to bear her name, but for Colette to pose for advertisements and publicity. The silhouettes are the same, remember?

LES DREIS, retired Long Beach police inspector, and his wife Veda, met Colette last year in her parents' cafe where the Le Havre newspaper photographer had discovered her.

She told them how much she wanted to come to America. She was studying English, she explained, and she often went to the harbor to watch the big ships come and go and imagine that she was on one of them coming to America.

The result was that the Dreis' arranged for her passage to America. She crossed the United States, by choice, by bus, so that she could see the country.

"IT IS so big and so clean. I saw much scenery, mountains and deserts," she said.

She is here on an immigration visa and expects to become an American citizen.

About her career, Les says "Lighting could strike twice. It struck once. No reason why it couldn't again."

THE BIG man stops and grins. "There are a lot of young bucks in my neighborhood who never even saw me before. But since Colette came you should hear them say 'Good morning, Mr. Dreis.'"

Colette loves American food, and she has gone wild over fruit-flavored ice cream. But she has to watch it. She is 5 feet 4, 115 pounds (perhaps a little more because of the fruit-flavored ice cream mentioned above), and her measurements are 35½, 25, 35½.

No, she hasn't had a date yet in America.

COLETTE ANDRE . . . Brigitte's "Double"

The 1957 Wilson High School graduate who received his bachelor of science degree at the academy ceremonies has been assigned to duty in Boston, Mass.

Huntington Beach All Set for Fourth

HUNTINGTON BEACH — Plans have been completed for this city's 58th annual Fourth of July parade and celebration.

Jack Feehan, chairman of the celebration committee, said committee assignments for the parade and fireworks show include, in addition to Huntington Beach residents, county and state representatives who will serve on the executive committee.

THE SCHEDULE calls for the parade to begin at 11 a.m., to be followed by entertainment in the beach amphitheatre at 2:30 p.m., the All-Southland Bathing Beauty contest at 3:30 p.m., more entertainment in the amphitheatre at 6:30, a performance by the Robin Hood band at 7:30 and the aerial fireworks display on the pier at 9:30 p.m.

Queen of this year's celebration is Camille Cornaby, 17, from Huntington Beach High School, who will ride a red, white and blue float accompanied by princesses Rosalea Herman, Ann Ford, Diana Coraby and Gloria Christensen.

Acre of Ground Given Hospital

More than an acre of property was given to Memorial Hospital of Long Beach during the observance of its second anniversary; Henry H. Clock, president of the board of directors, announced Saturday. The property fronts on Atlantic Avenue between 28th and Columbia Streets immediately adjacent to the hospital.

The gift was given as a permanent memorial in remembrance of Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich H. Barbour by their daughters, Mrs. Harriet Barbour Bare and Mrs. Theresa Barbour Clarke.

Barbour and his family came to Long Beach in the early part of the century, and in 1912 built their home on Columbia Street adjacent to the present hospital site. Barbour purchased property in the area before oil was discovered on Signal Hill, and this property was later inherited by his daughters.

IN PRESENTING their gift, Mrs. Bare and Mrs. Clarke said they were pleased to see the efforts of the people of Long Beach culminate in the building of such a medical center as Memorial Hospital. They felt that no finer memorial could be established in their parents' name than to give their property for the continued expansion and growth of the hospital.

Clock said the hospital's planning and expansion committee will give immediate consideration to the best use that can be made of the property to further advance new health services and facilities for the benefit of the people in the area.

9 Sectors of Economy Show Gain

Long Beach area made favorable showings in nine sectors of its economy in May compared to the like month of a year ago, a Chamber of Commerce economic summary revealed Saturday.

Biggest advance over 1961 was in valuation of new building permits—up 69.2 per cent.

A Great School Leader Retires

THE ANNOUNCEMENT BY Douglas A. Newcomb that he will retire at the end of June as Superintendent of the Long Beach Unified School District is received with mixed emotions. His retirement is well-earned, but the citizens of the school system regret losing his splendid leadership. He has been one of the truly outstanding school superintendents in the nation during one of the most difficult eras for school administrators.

NEWCOMB INHERITED the job shortly after World War II, and it was his duty to guide the district through the staggering post-war years when the school-age population inundated the land.

While hundreds of school systems throughout the country had their students on half-day sessions because of classroom shortages, the Long Beach district under Newcomb solved its shortage and provided a seat for every child.

He planned, directed, and implemented a $100,000,000 school construction program and, though many other districts were voting down school bonds, obtained voter approval of four major school bond issues. These feats were possible because the school system under his leadership had earned the confidence and support of the taxpayers.

IT WAS, ABOVE ALL, a leadership of good common sense. It was progressive without being faddish. Newcomb instituted a remedial reading program with clinics, a special school for physically handicapped, an educational radio station, and child welfare services. It was a fundamental without being backward. (He emphasized the 3 R's and placed ever greater emphasis on foreign languages and science.) And it kept in touch with the people.

We doubt that any school system ever had a more intelligent public relations program. Newcomb stressed the importance of letting the citizens know at all times what their system is doing, and this information program has been expertly operated—not as a propaganda agency but as a public service.

Realizing that a school system can be no better than its teachers, he maintained a strong recruitment program that attracted the best teaching talent from all parts of the nation.

IN THE END, OF COURSE, the product must speak for itself. And we are proud to say that the Long Beach system ranks as one of the greatest school systems in the nation—a system that has solved its building problems, obtained good teachers, held its costs within reason, and produced students who can compete successfully with students of any system.

The man who has had the major responsibility of the system deserves the major part of the credit. Superintendent Newcomb enters the record as one of the remarkable schoolmen of modern times.

Byrd Obstacle to Bill on Debt Limit

By THE I. P-T WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON—There appears to be trouble ahead in the Senate for the administration's bill to raise the national debt limit to $308 billion. The trouble, so far as the President is concerned, is the courtly, soft-spoken man from Virginia, Harry F. Byrd, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Passage of the bill in the House was too close for comfort, by administration reckoning the final outcome, 210 to 192, was not inspiring of confidence.

While raising the debt limit has become habitual and is justified as a bookkeeping device which would allow the expenditure of obligated funds, its accomplishment this year reached several peaks of emotion, not the least of which were some charges of Pentagon blackmail.

Some congressmen charged that the Defense Department exerted improper influence with its own lobbying for the measure. Congressmen were reminded of defense projects in their district and told that if the debt limit were not raised it might be necessary to scale down some of the programs.

It was estimated during this period that about $1 billion might have to be trimmed out of defense programs. Rep. John W. Bytnes (R., Wis.), chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, has urged an investigation to see if "people in the Defense Department engaged in criminal blackmail."

And now Byrd.

He is on record in opposition to a hike to $308 billion.

"A federal debt approaching $308 billion," he stated, "would be the greatest national debt in history, in war or peace. . . . Federal debt and deficits are the prime factors in inflation which continues to reduce the value of the dollar."

There is a stiff fight ahead in the Senate, in other words, where the mood has been unruly at best during the past few days.

YOU NEEDN'T BE AFRAID of expressing an opinion on the behavior of the stock market. Even if you know nothing about it you will probably find authority on your side no matter what theory you might develop.

A New York broker, asked if recent statements by administration figures were affecting the market, said: "No. And I wish they'd shut up."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, who says he owns no stock, feels that the Kennedy administration's hostility to business is to blame.

Sen. Stuart Symington, who says he was hit hard by the drop, scoffs at this and points out that in 1929 no one would have called that administration hostile to business nor could anyone look with horror at a national debt or government spending.

Sen. Everett Dirksen came up with this happy comment:

"I met a man the other day who said, "I haven't lost my confidence I've only lost my money . . ."

He did not say what the man was smiling about.

United States Conducted Hydra-Headed Policy in Laos

WASHINGTON—It has now been exactly one year since President Kennedy returned from conferring with Premier Khrushchev in Vienna with their only accomplishment a joint agreement that they would work for peace in Laos.

PEARSON

It has taken one year to work out that peace, and the case history of how it was worked out is important for the American people to know. The fault has not been all on one side. We were responsible for a lot of it. And if we are to win the battle against communism we must examine our mistakes as well as our virtues.

The basic fault of the United States is twofold:

1. A dual system of conducting our foreign relations, partly by the State Department which is officially charged with the job, partly by the Central Intelligence Agency, which is not charged with the job but has not hesitated to undercut State Department policy.

2. A group of officials, in a minority but potent, who are willing to bog the United States down in another Korea-type war in the jungles of Asia.

Both Eisenhower and Kennedy have been opposed to such a military bog-down. But in 1954, Ike was almost pushed into a Southeast Asian war by energetic Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; while Kennedy was pushed into sending troops to Thailand by faulty intelligence and overexcited advisers.

The hydra-headed direction of our foreign relations is illustrated in Laos by the fact that Central Intelligence in 1960 proceeded to kick out the duly constituted neutral Premier Souvanna Phouma, and replace him with a puppet behind whom was strong man Phoumi Nosavan.

It had been decided by the Geneva treaty of 1954 that Laos was to be neutral. But when Laos installed a neutral prime minister, CIA proceeded to undermine him and throw him out of office.

Now, after months of headaches and heartaches in all Asia, we are right back where we started before the CIA agents took over the foreign policy of the United States. We have the same premier they kicked out.

Right up to the last minute, before the recent agreement of the three Laotian princes, CIA agents kept the United States—and Laos—in hot water. Its hand-picked strong man, Gen. Nosavan, deliberately tricked American military advisers into believing that the Communists had attacked in Northeast Laos.

It was later learned that they had not. According to a report by India's highly respected Avtar Singh, chairman of the Neutral Commission, it was Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the right-wing leader, who broke the cease-fire. He deliberately provoked the attack on the pro-Communists, then turned and executed a pell-mell retreat.

This hasty retreat, Gen. Nosavan hoped, would scare the Americans into rushing troops into Laos. It almost did. The retreat was so fast that two American generals, supposed to advise the Laotian royalists, couldn't keep up with their scurrying troops.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Kennedy, alarmed by the reports, rushed U. S. troops to the Thai border, then learned, too late, of the faked report. He almost hit the ceiling.

The faked incident, however, did cause Kennedy to put the heat on Gen. Nosavan so vigorously that he finally agreed to a neutral government—though not until after making a tour of Formosa and the Philippines trying to drum up support from Chiang Kai-shek and President Macapagal.

The American public does not realize it, but all this makes us look like fools abroad. It puts the President in the position of not being able to control his own military and his espionage service any more than ex-President Frondizi of Argentina.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Careers at Stake in Special Session

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The special session of the California legislature which Gov. Edmund G. Brown has set for June 26, is shaping up as a meeting of considerably more significance than the possible financing of higher educational facilities with another bond issue.

The decisive defeat of Prop. 3 at the primary election, which would have provided $270 million for state construction — including about 80 per cent of it for higher education facilities—has left a big gap in Brown's program. Not only would it interrupt the building of college and university facilities for two years but it leaves some $90 million in projects in the new budget with no money to finance them.

Most observers feel this was a very embarrassing turn of events for Brown, as it knocks part of the props out from under his main re-election platform — that his administration is building for the future without raising taxes. The same observers felt that, were Brown forced into calling a special session, he could not help but suffer further embarrassment at the hands of the GOP minority in the legislature.

But there's a strong feeling now that this shoe may fit more than one foot and that pitfalls of the Republicans lie ahead as well.

For one thing, a number of Republican legislators are openly irked at Richard M. Nixon, the GOP gubernatorial candidate, for getting into the act so promptly and urging Brown to call the special session. They not only feel that Nixon thereby let Brown at least partially off the hook but that Nixon should have consulted with them before making such a hasty statement.

Now they feel that, as long as Nixon didn't "shut up," it's now up to him to "put up."

Assemblyman John L. E. Collier of Los Angeles, a veteran and conservative Republican member of the legislature, put it this way:

"As long as our leader, Dick Nixon, has prevailed upon the governor to call a special session of the legislature, then I feel that it is his responsibility to be in Sacramento before and during this special session. He should meet daily and counsel with Republican members of the legislature to solidify their thinking and actions. Nixon owes that to the Republican members of the assembly and to the Republican party statewide."

* * * *

COLLIER WAS quick to point out that he will support Nixon in the election. However, he said the special session of the legislature will provide the first test of whether the harmony considered necessary for a Republican victory in November can be established.

In other words, if the Republicans wind up in a squabble over whether a higher education bond issue should be submitted to the people in November, it may work to split the GOP even wider.

There are a number of legislators—probably in both parties—who have seen the vote in their districts against Prop. 3 and are not too anxious to go against this vote by putting the issue back to the people in such a hurry.

Not All of Shell's Attacks Went Unanswered by Nixon

RICHARD NIXON was jabbing back at Joe Shell as early as five weeks before the primary although the general impression was that Nixon, by his own choice and declaration, didn't lay a glove on Shell.

This information was supplied by Nixon's camp a little less than two weeks before the primary in the form of background material and a campaign article by free lance magazine writer Oliver Carlson.

HOUSER

Referring to Nixon's declaration of candidacy, the information intimated the power of anti-Nixon sentiment in his own party by noting that Nixon found himself the center of attack from three other GOP contenders, Goodwin Knight, Harold (Butch) Powers and Shell. Each of the three "seemed more determined to impute the motives and to question the abilities" of Nixon than to prosecute their own campaigns or to attack Governor Brown.

It pointed out that Knight later pledged support to the GOP nominee, as did Joe Shell, "who stubbed his toe and had to retract his latest headline-making charges." Adding that Shell's campaign was well financed, the piece said Shell "has the backing and support of the ultra-conservative wing of the Republican party as well as that of the right-wing extremists. He has been endorsed by the Californians for Goldwater and by Robert Welch, president of the John Birch Society."

THIS "BACKGROUND" information virtually charged Shell with giving aid and comfort to Democrats by attacking Nixon and using an "old political device," a less-well-known candidate attacking one widely-known—a device which almost automatically draws party dissidents together. "Joe Shell has deliberately made himself the lightning rod to attract the support of every GOP 'aginer' to Nixon, Eisenhower, Dulles and Warren."

Again stressing that the "right wing element in California is stronger than anywhere else in the nation," the information pieces recall that the ultra-conservative, politically unknown Thomas H. Werdel polled 33.6 per cent of the vote in running against Gov. Earl Warren in 1952, even though the Warren presidential slate had the backing of Knight, Nixon and former Sen. William Knowland.

WHILE CITING this Werdel vote and the anticipated 35 per cent Shell vote merely as polarization of the "aginer" turnout, the Nixon releases depicted the expected 20 per cent vote against Brown by three unknowns as "handwriting on the wall" sealing the means for Brown's defeat by Nixon.

Through Carlson's article, the Nixon camp took further occasion to stress Nixon's policy of refraining from inflicting party scars by tearing down GOP opponents, but added Nixon's quote: "Of course, I could answer the attacks that have been made upon me, and don't think the temptation isn't pretty great at times when I think of some of the whoppers that are being told about me."

This pre-primary backgrounder on Nixon also tied Shell's prospects for a "bright political future" to his post-primary support of Nixon: "His (Shell's) opportunity to make his point of view felt on the problems of state government would be greatly lessened if he were to withdraw to the sidelines in the final campaign. People would call him a bad loser."

ON ALMOST the same date the Nixon background material was being released, Joe Shell was speaking (May 23) over statewide TV, saying "Richard Nixon is a loser," and depicting him as a "falling star" against a background of "rigged deals, closed slates, kingmakers, absentee political landlords and smear tactics."

Against this broadside, the Nixon camp still saw hope for accommodation in noting that "Shell's differences with Nixon are miniscule when compared with his differences with Pat Brown."

PUBLIC FORUM

Voters as Dumb as Brown Thinks?

EDITOR:

Are we voters as dumb as Gov. Brown seems to think? I refer to his blaming the defeat of Proposition 3 to the way it was worded on the ballot. He seems to say that the voters didn't know what they were voting for and that the proposition would have passed had it been worded to say it's for schools.

Permit me to differ with those who so lowly rate the intelligence of the voters. Included with each ballot was a booklet from the Secretary of State that gave the wording of each proposition and arguments for and against.

* * * *

ARGUMENTS for Proposition 3 state, "Over 80 per cent of this bond issue will go for increasing our college level facilities." So the majority of the voters knew the money might be used for schools. But they weren't fooled. The falseness of the above quote is revealed in the wording of the proposition. Specifically, section 2 includes, "Nothing in this act is intended to prevent the legislature from deviating from the specific projects mentioned . . ." and "Nothing in this act is intended to bind the Legislature to follow the system of priorities contained in said report." In other words, the voter has no idea where, when or for what the money would be spent. To vote for an issue containing such wording is like signing a blank check for $270,000,000.

* * * *

LET GOV. BROWN and the legislators properly interpret the resounding defeat of this proposition as proof that the voters know what they are voting for, and that they can see through the sucker bait of saying that bonds are for schools. If money is urgently needed by the state for school construction, a new proposal should be placed on the November ballot. But such a proposal should be specific and contain safeguards to prevent squandering of school money on pork-barrel projects, for I am convinced the voters will continue to veto such transparent frauds as Proposition 3.

Seattle Fair Head Answers Criticism

EDITOR:

We were disturbed by a recent letter to your paper by Mr. Jim Bentson of Seal Beach, California, asserting that "the 'scalpers' and profiteers have seemingly already secured a comfortable little monopoly in Seattle."

The only thing the few scalpers and profiteers of Seattle have achieved is an unwholesome reputation among an overwhelming majority of our residents.

* * * *

MR. BENTSON'S letter indicated that he based his charges on word from his travel agent that reservations made for him in January would not be honored. The letter implied, it seems to us, that the only way for a Californian to visit the World's Fair is to sign up for a package tour that includes mandatory extras.

This is not the case. Expo-Lodging Service, the Fair's official, non-profit housing agency, makes thousands of reservations every week at prices ranging from a $3 dormitory bed, to an average price of $14 for two persons at a good motel or apartment-hotel, to suites that are worth the $20 or $25 charged.

* * * *

WE DEPLORE Mr. Bentson's experience with one Seattle lodging, through one travel agent, and we are investigating the incident. We also offer him, and all Californians, lodging at reasonable cost, through Expo-Lodging.

Mr. Bentson had every right to be furious at his treatment, but I believe we have every right to be annoyed at the implication in his letter that everyone heading for Seattle will get a similar raw deal.

To anyone wishing to visit the Seattle World's Fair, I give this message:

Expo-Lodging may not be able to book you in the specific hotel you request, for the specific dates you request. But if you will write to Expo-Lodging, stating the general type of accommodations you desire, and the general price range, Expo-Lodging will do its best to fill your needs.

If the response from Expo-Lodging does not satisfy you, I believe that it will at least convince you that we do have a variety of accommodations available, and that you do not have to sign up with a "package tour" to get good lodging at Seattle.

JOSEPH E. GANDY
President
Seattle World's Fair.

REPRESENTS 9,000 STORE EMPLOYES

Retail Clerks Union 324 Dedicated to Serving Members and Community in Long Beach-Orange County Area

Occupying a prominent place in the community as well as in the circles of organized labor is Local 324 of the Retail Clerks International Association (AFL-CIO), 8530 Stanton Ave., Buena Park.

Having grown from a membership of less than 2,500 in 1950 to more than 9,000 today, Local 324 has members working in retail stores in Long Beach and throughout Southeast Los Angeles County, as well as all of Orange County. The Buena Park headquarters is centrally located to best serve the union's members.

Key to the success of Local 324 is its basic philosophy of providing, through collective bargaining, a better standard of living for union members. This in turn, the union members feel, brings a sounder economy to the entire community, for by achieving better wages and working conditions for its members, the union not only attracts new members, but it also creates more purchasing power which in turn promotes community growth and well-being.

Recognize Responsibility

"We don't seek anything which would adversely affect the community or the economy of the community," says Local 324 Secretary-Treasurer Arthur Z. Berland. "We recognize our responsibilities not only to our own members, but also to the various communities we serve. On the other hand, we're totally dedicated to the principles of trade unionism, without which our country would not have achieved its present-day standard of living."

Proof that the union has achieved its aims of an improved way of life for its members is contained in the contracts under which the members work. Two major contracts which have stabilized wages, conditions of employment, and benefits are in the Food and Drug industries, where agreements have been negotiated on an industry-wide basis. These contracts not only set an excellent wage standard, but also provide union members and their families with a complete medical and hospital plan, including surgery, X-ray, laboratory work, home and office doctor calls, and maternity care. In addition, many contracts include dental and psychiatric care for not only the union member but family members as well.

Benefit Payments

Also included in many Local 324 contracts is provision for benefit payments to supplement state unemployment and disability payments, so that if union members are unemployed or disabled, they can still maintain a decent living standard.

Pensions for retiring union members are another proof of the effectiveness of the union in negotiating beneficial contracts. In addition to Social Security, retirees at age 65 with 30 years' employment in the industry covered receive over $100 per month as well as continuing medical care and a cost-of-living adjustment to their pensions. Those members reaching retirement age with fewer years of service to the industry receive lesser amounts, depending on length of service.

"We're both proud and humble because of what Local 324 has done for the Retail Clerks," Secretary Berland says. "We're proud of our improved standard of living, and we're humble in the realization that the members themselves have accomplished their goals simply by working together for the common good of all. The end result has been an improved community not only for the clerks but for everyone living in this area."

Many Services Provided Members From Modern Business Office

Inside the beautiful building, shown below, you'll find efficiency at work—a modern, departmentalized business utilizing the latest IBM equipment and methods to maintain up-to-the-minute records on more than 9,000 union members, without sacrificing warm human relationships.

In addition to necessary membership records and data on eligibility for various negotiated benefits (health care, pensions, etc.), the union maintains many services to its members—a credit union, job placement, grievance processing, insurance claims, and other departments.

The union publishes its own monthly newspaper, the Local 324 Reporter, which keeps the members up-to-date on all phases of union activity. The Reporter has been praised by labor leaders and government officials as an outstanding example of labor journalism.

One of the most recent special services to the union members and their families was inauguration of a college scholarship program, with $5,000 set aside to provide 14 scholarships for the 1962-63 academic year.

Eligible to compete for the scholarship awards will be Local 324 members, children of members, and wives or husbands of members.

One award of $750 will go to a graduate student; a similar award ($750) will go to an undergraduate student; two awards of $500 each will go to undergraduates, and 10 awards of $250 each will also go to undergraduates.

"We'd like to see the day when every high school graduate can look forward to attending college if he wishes," Secretary Berland says. "If we can assist a number of students in continuing their education, we feel the union is making an important investment in the future of our country."

BIG UNION AUDITORIUM WILL SEAT 1,200 PERSONS

Big Auditorium Source of Pride Among Members

A source of great community pride is Local 324's beautiful auditorium, the largest and most modern in Orange County. In almost constant use, it serves not only for the monthly meetings of the union's members and for their social events, but also for important public and charity functions. In addition, it is available, at nominal rental, for use by conventions, trade shows, large or small meetings, and other group activities.

Seating 1200, and complete with catering kitchen, full stage facilities, and an expansive parking area, the auditorium is looked upon by Local 324 members as one more way in which they can prove their value to the community. They take great pride in their auditorium, just as they take great pride in their union and everything it stands for.

BOARD APPROVES ACTIONS

Any actions by officers of Retail Clerks Union Local 324 must be approved by the 18-member executive board and the membership. This, the union stresses, is democracy in action in its truest form, for it keeps all members closely interested in the union activities.

Democracy In Action

Operating under democratic by-laws which call for membership election of all officers and representatives and members of the executive board as well, Local 324 projects its total democracy into every phase of union activity.

Actions of officers are subject to approval of the 18-member executive board and the membership. Thus, the union carefully plans all its activities to provide maximum benefit to the entire membership.

"We feel that Local 324 is a classic example of democracy in action," Secretary Berland says. "We're proud of our membership participation and we want to keep it that way. As long as our members have confidence in their organization, we'll continue to progress and to improve our services to the members. It's their union—dedicated to a better way of life for all."

Personal Friendship Is One Key to Success of This Big Organization

WORK, PLAY TOGETHER

In the vast organization of 9,000 members, Local 324 of the Retail Clerks International Association (AFL-CIO) members are not treated as just names on a roster. Activities are planned and conducted so that all members may participate and develop personal friendship. One means of this is a dance held at the big hall. "Family Night" at union meetings is another.

Local 324's success story goes much deeper than the basic elements of better wages and conditions for those working under union contracts.

The union personalizes much of its activities. The 9,000 members are not just so many names on a roster; Local 324 looks on them as members of one big family, with mutual goals and mutual problems. And as a result, an unusual number of special social and fraternal events are scheduled to bring members and their families together.

On Labor Day last year more than 5,000 union members and their families gathered at Disneyland for a gigantic picnic that featured food, fun, and frolic, and—on the serious side—a major address by Gov. Brown. This year the Labor Day get-together will be highlighted by a circus at the Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa.

"Family Night" Held

Last Memorial Day, Local 324 held a successful dinner-dance, serving dinner under the stars to some 2,000 members and guests, with dancing both in the union auditorium and under the stars.

Another innovation has been "Family Night" — a union meeting at which husbands and wives, and sons and daughters of members can see how a democratic union functions. The union feels that by bringing the family into the picture in this manner, everyone will have a better understanding of just what Local 324 accomplishes in behalf of the member and the family.

"A business corporation may be an impersonal thing to its thousands of stockholders," says Secretary Berland, "but a union can never be an impersonal organization to its members."

Ill Are Remembered

The union sends birthday greetings to all members, and flowers and get-well cards to those who are hospitalized or ill. And when a member needs direct financial assistance he may turn to the union's "Aid and Assistance Fund," set up specifically to help members when unexpected financial difficulties are encountered.

"We're here to help our members," says Secretary Berland. "In helping them, we help the community. That's what unions are for."

ARTHUR Z. BERLAND

Secretary Is Executive Head

Guiding its destinities as administrative head of the 9,000-member union is Arthur Z. Berland, secretary-treasurer of Retail Clerks Union Local 324.

As executive head of one of the largest Retail Clerks' unions in the country, he is dedicated to rendering the maximum service to its membership and establishing a standard of living which benefits not only the members but the community as a whole.

Berland's dedication to trade unionism, the guiding force in his personality, led to service as an elected Business Representative, Head of the Textile Division, and ultimately to his present position as Secretary-Treasurer.

Knows Management

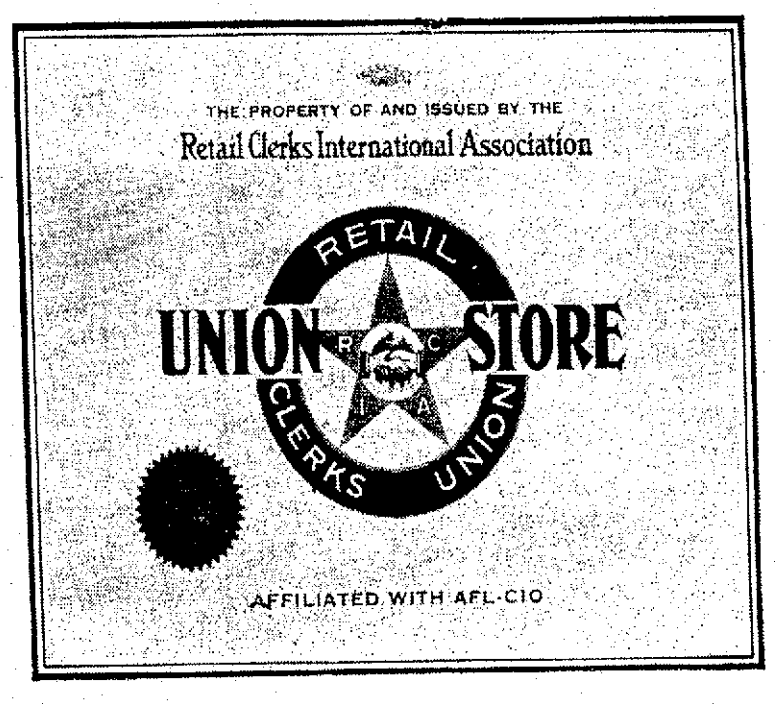

Berland's background embodies management as well as union administration, leading to an atmosphere of mutual respect and understanding between this union and employers in the field of labor-management relations.

Berland's management experience is also reflected in the administration of Local 324's office, in which the most modern business procedures have been installed to provide maximum efficiency and service to the union members.

"We are proud of our business-like approach in the conduct of our union affairs," Berland says.

"After all, meeting the needs of more than 9,000 union members is big business in itself and it has to be approached this way."

STORES UNDER UNION CONTRACT ARE IDENTIFIED BY THE "UNION STORE" CARD, SYMBOL OF INTEGRITY FOR THE STORES THAT MERIT COMMUNITY SUPPORT.

Retail Clerks Union Local 324 proudly points to these stores by an advertising program designed to promote both the "Store Card" and the stores which display it. A nine-week campaign of newspaper advertisements was recently concluded in six daily newspapers in Local 324's territory, including the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram.

Better understanding of the Union and its accomplishments as well as public acceptance of the "Union Store" has been the goal of the advertising campaign, which is scheduled for continuation and expansion this fall.

"We want to bring our union and the community closer together," Secretary Berland says. "We feel that by advertising ourselves and our product - - service to the community -- we'll help everyone to understand the importance of not only Retail Clerks Local 324 but also the entire labor movement as well."

Boy Turns Self In as Bomb Planter

A 15-year-old Torrance High School student surrendered himself to police Saturday as the perpetrator of a postgraduation prank that touched off Torrance's fifth bomb scare within the past two weeks.

Juvenile Officer A. L. Jackson said the youth was turned over to his parents pending further action after he turned himself in to police when he learned they were investigating a bomb found on the roof of a shop building at the high school earlier in the day.

The bomb consisted of a clock, wires, batteries and a can filled with gunpowder. The clock had stopped running some four hours before it was set to go off at 11 a.m. Friday.

* * * *

THE BOMB was found by four boys playing on a nearby tennis court. Sgt. Philip Wilson and Officer James Farquhar dismantled it and took it to the police station.

A telephoned bomb report had been received at the school last week, and two bomb reports, one of which caused the school to be evacuated, were received during the week at Torrance City Hall.

Two weeks ago, the Stadium Theater, at 1651 Cravens Ave., was cleared in a bomb scare.

* * * *

POLICE SAID a 17-year-old boy, who was with the 15-year-old when he placed the bomb, also would be picked up for questioning. The 15-year-old had served as an usher at graduation exercises Thursday night and placed the bomb later in the evening, police said.

Officer Jackson said the bomb didn't contain enough powder to do much damage but that it would have created a big flash if it had gone off.

HEARING SET

Orange Assessor Fires 3

By KEN KNIGHT

Three Orange County auditor-appraisers, dismissed from their jobs by Assessor Hugh J. Plumb have been described by their attorney as "conscientious eggheads trying to save money for the taxpayers."

But Plumb in formal letters of dismissal accused the men of "disloyalty and improper conduct".

Plumb fired the men orally Tuesday after they refused to sign resignation papers. After sending the letters of dismissal Thursday, Plumb indicated that the firing was the result of political activity.

* * * *

ALL THREE of the men, Roy Hallberg of Corona del Mar, Robert Kaneen of Downey and George Roundsley of Garden Grove, have denied the charges and hired attorney Arthur V. Jones to represent them at a formal hearing next week.

The three auditors have denied any political activity and Kaneen said he felt the political charges were the result of the trio attending a luncheon May 1 at the Los Coyotes Country Club where Plumb's primary opponent E.J. O'Brien was speaking.

Plumb was an easy winner in the election, defeating O'Brien by a wide margin.

* * * *

"ALL WE learned at the luncheon was that O'Brien shot a pretty good game of golf. I would say that our reaction to him was lukewarm."

Replying to the other charges, Halberg said that they did not resent supervision as charged by Plumb but that they had been told to make four or five audits a day.

"It often takes four or five days to make one audit," said Hallberg.

* * * *

KANNEN SAID that a proposal by him and his associates in 1959 saved the county $10,000 and resulted in a more efficient assessing operation.

The three men cited their records of efficiency in answer to the charges of disloyalty.

After the men received their letters, which Plumb said he [illegible] Thursday, they have five days to demand a hearing before the County Retirement Board which they say they will request.

The Board cannot order the men reinstated but it can restore them to eligibility in comparable jobs with other departments.

'Y' to Have Real Cool Boys Camp

It promises to be a real cool outing.

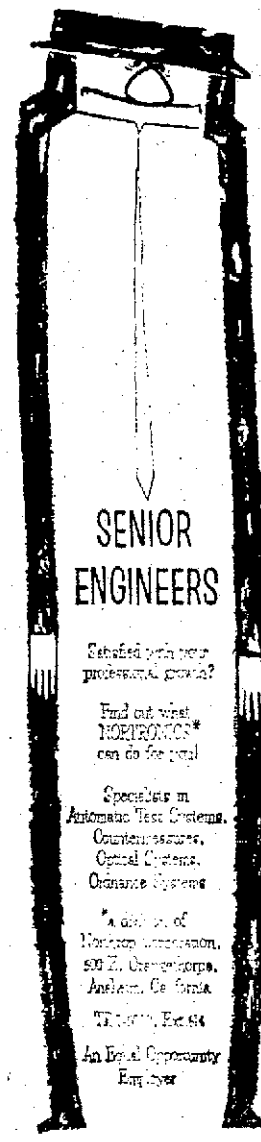

That's the way the weather shapes up for the opening of the Long Beach YMCA's summer camping program scheduled to begin Monday.

Nearly 130 boys are poised for the trip to the Y's mile-high spread, Camp Oakes, located near Big Bear. They are the vanguard of the ten-week program which will attract, in all, close to 1500 youngsters for one-week outings, according to Al Holladay, director of camping.

For the past week night temperatures in the Big Bear area have dipped into the 20's.

Gun-Trap Kills Man Who Set It in Home

LEXINGTON, Ga. (UPI) — A trap designed to foil suspected pantry raiders is believed by officers to have claimed the life of its designer.

Sheriff W. T. Howard said an investigation showed that Frank Hubbard, 57, who lived alone in an isolated rural home, bled to death from a leg wound inflicted by a single-barrel shotgun he rigged inside a pantry door. A string was tied to the door so that anyone opening it would trigger the gun.

READY WITH A SONOBUOY

Target is located and this Navy crewman is ready to drop a sonobuoy to report the exact location of an enemy submarine. He and three other members of the four-man crew of a S2F-3 anti-sub tracking plane can go through the entire range of the actual plane and weapon system capability without leaving the ground, thanks to a simulator training device which duplicates the actual conditions without the risk of using a plane and submarine in training.

SIMULATOR THOROUGH

Antisub-Training Mockup Realistic

By HERB SHANNON

Navy flight crews are receiving training in far-ranging aerial antisubmarine warfare without leaving the ground at North Island Naval Air Station, San Diego.

One of only two incredibly complex flight and tactics simulators built for this purpose makes the training program possible. The other machine is in use by Atlantic Fleet units at Key West, Fla.

In addition to providing extremely realistic flight conditions in the grounded cockpit of a four-man, twin-engine S2F3 aircraft, the device also reproduces the exact detection signals emitted by a submarine attempting to escape.

* * * *

COMBINATION of these two artificial environments makes the simulator, built by ACF Electronics at a cost of $1.3 million, the most complicated military training device of its kind ever made.

In spite of its cost, the machine pays for itself every three months in the cost of actual sonobuoys if used at the rate the electronic trainer simulates them, according to Navy spokesmen. This is without considering the possible loss of lives and aircraft in accidents during actual flying training.

"In many ways, the trainer is more valuable to us than the actual aircraft," says Capt. Arthur F. Farwell, commander of the Fleet Airborne Electronics Training Unit at North Island.

"The pilot and his crew work better as a team and are more capable of taking over an actual airplane after safely forming their flight habits in the simulator."

* * * *

A FOUR-MAN crew in training in the simulator can search for, detect, classify, localize, attack and destroy simulated underwater targets. The device is so sensitive it will distinguish between calm water and a turbulent wake, tell the number of cylinders in a submarine's engine and account for varying degrees of salinity in the sea—the same as the equipment on the real plane.

All weapons are simulated, including advanced homing torpedoes and an atomic depth charge. So realistic are these simulations that the explosions are heard in the grounded cockpit in the same way sonobuoys would report explosions to the plane in flight.

Physical conditions of a flight also are simulated. These include lightning, clouds, thunderstorms and similar effects created by seats that bounce during "rough air" conditions, vibration during engine-trouble and the screech of tires during touchdown.

65-PLUS offers basic protection

The 65-PLUS plan, introduced back in 1957, was the first Hospital-Surgical plan of its kind. Today, hundreds of thousands of senior citizens across the nation now have this protection.

10,000-RESERVE is for the big bills

10,000-RESERVE is designed for really big expenses and to start paying benefits when bills get "too big" for you to handle, or most of the benefits of your basic plan have "run out." To do this, 10,000-RESERVE has a "deductible" feature that works very much the same as the "deductible" feature used in auto collision insurance. Each calendar year after you, or 65-PLUS, or any other basic plan you may have, has paid the first $500 of eligible expenses, the 10,000-RESERVE plan goes into effect and pays 75% of all further eligible expenses during that calendar year up to a lifetime maximum of $10,000. Then, after any proven continuous 6-month period without treatment, you are eligible again for another $10,000 in benefits. As you can see, the 10,000-RESERVE plan in no way conflicts with any basic plan you may now have. It is the perfect "companion" policy to add to any basic plan.

5,000-MEDICAL plan is for out-of-hospital expenses

Anyone who joins either 65-PLUS or 10,000-RESERVE, or both, has the extra opportunity to join the 5,000-MEDICAL plan. This extra plan offers protection against out-of-hospital expenses and also features a deductible. Each calendar year after your eligible out-of-hospital expenses have reached $100, the 5,000-MEDICAL plan takes over and pays 75% of all further eligible expenses during that calendar year up to a lifetime maximum of $5,000. Then, after any proven continuous 6-month period without treatment, you are eligible again for another $5,000 in benefits. This is the first plan of its kind ever offered to anyone and everyone 65 or over!

This is your Guarantee

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Teamwork Sought to Make National Economy Click

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy offered big business the olive branch last week. In effect, he said let's quit dealing in bugaboos and politics and team up to make the nation's economy click.

He also appealed to Republicans to support him on "matters of great national import," including his surplus-cutting farm bill, other key legislative proposals, and the state of the economy.

* * * *

THE TIME to argue politics, the President told a nationally televised press conference, is during the next presidential race. "Right now," he added, "it would seem to me that we should be concerning ourselves with the real problems of the country." He said they would still exist even if he weren't in the White House.

Once again Kennedy was seeking to free his administration from the anti-business label attached to it by some business and political factions after his controversial steel price increase rollback.

He made no secret of his worry over an economy that lags while most evidence, such as booming automobile sales, tends to show it should be in high gear. He wanted it made clear that neither he nor his administration are enemies of free enterprise.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT told newsmen he did not accept the view voiced in some quarters that Republican-tinged big business engineered the stock market slump to discredit his administration. What is needed, he said, is an end to personal dialogue and "a dialogue on what tax, budget and fiscal policies we should pursue."

He twice pointed to recessions during the Republican Eisenhower administration to emphasize that the nation's welfare was not a matter for partisan politics. The most important thing, he said, is to avoid recessions.

Republicans have jumped with charges he had destroyed the confidence of business in the economic outlook. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said for example that Kennedy's fiscal policies were slowing down the economy and hence "he should fire the whole bunch of crackpot college professors whom he calls advisers."

BARRY GOLDWATER
'Crackpot . . . Professors"

In a commencement address at Yale University, the President said: "The solid ground of mutual confidence is the necessary partnership of government with all the sectors of our society in the steady quest for economic progress."

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, met secretly in his office with a dozen business leaders in a further effort to dispel any hostility toward the administration.

* * * *

THE CHIEF executive made a frank plea for Republican votes in Congress. He said that on matters of great importance the Democrats had some right to expect a degree of support. "I would hope," he added, "that those who are on the opposite side would be willing to sustain us or give us assistance."

The House, meantime, approved the President's request to raise the national debt ceiling to a temporary $308 billion. It now stands at $295 billion. The increase is necessary to tide the government through next fall when tax collections are seasonally low.

The Senate passed and returned to the House a $48.4 billion defense appropriation. This was $590 million more than the House voted. The Defense Department was directed to spend $491 million developing the RS70 reconnaissance bomber which in this nuclear age it does not deem feasible.

Democratic congressional leaders said there would be no election campaign recess. They mapped a speed-up drive for Kennedy's program and said "we are going to stay here and go straight through."

California Democrats met with the President and told him they were going to "permanently retire" former Vice President Richard M. Nixon from politics in the November election. Nixon is GOP candidate for governor.

* * * *

IN OTHER news spheres: Kennedy told reporters there could be a lessening of tensions between the U.S. and Russia if there is "good will on both sides." This was after Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev charged that U.S. nuclear weapons tests in the Pacific were preliminary to "a surprise attack" on Russia. Kennedy reiterated that the United States was building for its own security and that the world knew that. Russia has sent a fourth electronics-laden ship to spy on east Asia would not be tolerated.

The President and Khrushchev exchanged congratulations over formation of a coalition national government in strategic Laos. But Kennedy used the occasion to warn that "untoward actions" to upset the peace in southeast Asia would not be tolerated.

The President made a personal plea to the flight engineers' union to abandon a threatened strike against three major airlines and seek a peaceful solution. He said a walkout would seriously damage the economy.

ARNOLD PALMER

ARNIE IS FLYING

—Associated Press Wirephoto

WAVING HIS putter and jumping for joy, Arnold Palmer watches ball go into cup on 17th hole for an eagle-two during Saturday's third round of the U.S. Open. Putt traveled 25 feet after he had hit big drive over protecting trees on to green.

Arnold Fails in Birdie Bid for Open Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Rookie Jack Nicklaus surged back with a final round 2-under-par 69 Saturday and tied heavily favored Arnold Palmer for the 62nd National Open Golf Championship with a 72-hole score of 283. They meet in an 18-hole playoff today.

The fabulous Palmer, who has pulled a half-dozen titles out of the fire with miraculous finishes, came to the 462-yard 18th hole, needing to sink a 15-foot putt to take it all.

But this time his comeback magic failed him. He stroked the putt boldly and it spun past the cup, rolling three feet away on the lightning-fast greens.

He could have missed it—under the most intense of pressures—but he didn't. The muscular Masters champion from Latrobe, Pa., banged the ball into the back of the cup and he thus finished with an even par 71.

Thus, one of the Open's oldest traditions was maintained, no man has ever come to the final hole, needing a putt to win and sunk it.

Palmer Favored Over 22-Year-Old Rival

Palmer will be favored today over his 22-year-old rival, a pro less than a year, in the head-to-head duel, which could bring him the second leg in his bid for an unprecedented professional "grand slam."

Palmer is shooting for the Masters, U.S. and British opens and U.S. PGA titles in a single year—a sweep which even the great Ben Hogan never achieved. Hogan won three of them in 1953, but failed to play in the PGA.

Palmer and Nicklaus, two of the biggest hitters and fiercest competitors in modern golf, were paired in the opening two rounds of the tournament. During this stretch, Palmer had an edge, shooting 71-68 to Nicklaus' 72-70.

The battle for the 62nd Open, played in sweltering heat over the Oakmont's awsome string of furrowed sand traps and rolling table-top greens, developed into a two-man battle in the afternoon after other challengers had fallen off the pace.

Television: Channel 4, 1:30 p.m.

Phil Rodgers, the ruddy-faced ex-Marine and son of a San Diego, Calif., auto salesman, made a strong run for it, but took bogeys on the 69th and 70th holes for 72 and 285. This tied him with Bobby Nichols, the handsome, 24-year-old Kentuckian, who shared the lead with Palmer at the 54-hole mark.

Nichols finished with a 73, after going over par on two of the last four holes.

Record Crowd of 25,000 Roots for Palmer

An all-time record crowd of nearly 25,000, shouting encouragement to their neighborhood hero, Palmer, added to the intense pressure of the rigorous, excitement-loaded 36-hole windup.

"Come on, Arn, you can do it."

"We're with you, Arnie boy, go get 'em."

This was the baseball stadium atmosphere that prevailed on this 6,894-yard, par 71 course carved out of the hills of western Pennsylvania.

Palmer tried to oblige, but it was an uncomfortable position for him. He was out in front. He likes it better when he is behind.

At one time during the afternoon round, he was 3-under-par for the tournament and had a three-stroke lead over his nearest rivals.

Then he came to the 480-yard ninth hole, one of Oakmont's so-called "hell holes" which doesn't play too hard. After a booming drive, he hit a strong second shot but pushed it to the right of the green into the 3-inch rough.

He seemed to have an easy wedge shot at the flag, but he appeared to lose concentration. He scuffed the ball only a few feet, still short of the putting surface. His next chip also was weak—unlike Palmer—leaving him about 8 feet short.

Palmer Shaken by Series of Mistakes

Shaken by this strange series of mistakes, he muffed his putt and took a bogey after being in a good position for a birdie.

This plus a bogey at the 161-yard 13th where he drove into a deep trap cost him the championship—at least temporarily.

Coming into the finishing holes, with a television audience looking in, both Palmer and Nicklaus had to sink good-sized pressure putts.

On the 17th, where he had an 8-footer for a birdie, Palmer paused and turned around, asking for "quiet." Then he missed.

"I heard the television announcer summarizing my putt," he said.

The Latrobe pro said he could hear shutters clicking almost every time he bent over a putt and this affected his concentration.

Asked what he thought about playing Nicklaus today, Palmer said in a post-tournament interview:

"I wish it were somebody else—that big strong dude. I thought I was through with him yesterday."

Then he closed the session with the plea:

"Are there any good putters in the crowd? He can give me a lesson tonight."

Oregon NCAA Champ...Easy

'No Contest' but 3 Records Sent Tumbling

By HAL WOOD

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Three new meet records were set as Oregon won the NCAA track and field championship Saturday on the fleet feet of Harry Jerome, Jerry Tarr, Mel Renfro and Dyrol Burleson.

With Tarr collecting 20 points by winning the 120 yard high hurdles and the 440-yard intermediates; Jerome capturing the 220 and finishing second in the 100; Burleson winning the mile and Renfro finishing second in the high hurdles and third in the broad jump, it was a no-contest team meet.

But the performances were outstanding, with these meet records:

Mile—Burleson won a pushing-and-shoving race in 3:59.8.

440-yard hurdles—Tarr, in 50.3.

3,000-meter steeplechase — Pat Traynor, Villanova, in 8:46.8.

Another record was cracked Friday when Dallas Long of USC heaved the shot 64 feet 7 inches.

Oregon scored 85 points, to second-place Villanova's 40 3/7th. Defending champion Southern California finished third with 27 3/7ths.

THE MILE run turned into something of a rodeo. Burleson was pushed and stumbled at the start. About 100-yards later his own teammate, Keith Forman, stepped on his heel after being elbowed.

But the Oregon runner stayed near the front after a slow first quarter of 62.2 seconds and a half of 2:02. Then he had to put on a brilliant run down the home stretch to catch Bill Cornell, an Englishman representing Southern Illinois.

Burleson won going away, with Cornell finishing second in 4:00.5.

Traynor's performance in the steeplchase broke the NCAA meet record of 9:01.1 set by John Lawler of Abilene last year. Lawler finished 13th in the field this year.

* * * *

PROBABLY the biggest upset of the meet came in the high jump, where Roger Olsen, University of California sophomore, won with a leap of 6 feet, 10 inches. Included among his vanquished foes were John Thomas of Boston University and teammate Gene Johnson, both conquerors of the seven-foot mark.

"It was the first time I ever beat anybody," said the sur-

Coach Lauds NCAA Bids by 49er Trio

EUGENE, Ore. (Special)—Long Beach State College had three men in the NCAA track and field championship meet and all, competing in four events, advanced through the trials, with two men reaching the semi-finals.

"I think the school can be extremely proud of these boys," said 49er coach Jack Rose. "Both Jim Richardson and Gary Patterson actually finished as the ninth best men in their events in the entire nation."

Richardson did a 9.7 century for fifth place in the semifinals. Only four in each heat advanced to the finals.

PATTERSON, in the 120 high hurdles, finished his semifinal head in a photo finish for second place, but the pictures showed him to be a nose out in the four-man dead heat and he was placed fifth with a time of 14.2.

Darryl Taylor finished fifth in the 880 quarter-finals, didn't make the semis. Richardson set a school record with a 21.5 furlong (on curve) and placed sixth in the semis.

Dodger Skid Continues as Colts Win

By GEORGE LEDERER

Dick Farrell and Jim Golden, unwanted by the Dodgers this year, are untouchables for the Houston Colts today.

Farrell followed Friday's shutout by Golden with an equally impressive three-hit, 4-1 triumph Saturday night to run the Dodgers losing streak to three for the second time this season.

A near-full house of 51,530, including 6,384 ladies, watched Farrell as he sliced the Dodgers' league lead to

THE Dodgers couldn't hit Golden with a canoe paddle and their stroke against Farrell wasn't much better. In fact, the Dodgers are finding it difficult to stay afloat. They have scored only two runs in the last 31 innings, while losing four out of their last five games.

Johnny Podres was driven to cover for the seventh time in a row as three Dodgers errors made two Houston runs unearned. Podres (3-6) trailed 2-0 when he left for a hitter in the sixth. The last two runs were charged to Ed Roebuck, who faced only three Colts and failed to retire any in the seventh.

THE defense, or lack of some, was to blame, primarily, for Roebuck's difficulty. However, two excellent plays by first baseman Ron Fairly had saved Podres at a critical time.

Willie Davis had two of the Dodger hits and ruined Farrell's shutout bid with a triple in the seventh inning. He

Darlene Hero as U.S. Wins Wightman Cup

WIMBLEDON, England (Special to the Press-Telegram)—Darlene Hard may have been too ill to play in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships last year, but she showed Saturday that nothing is going to keep her out this time.

The blonde lass from Long Beach provided the U. S. Wightman Cup team with the power to win the huge trophy, which is the symbol of international women's tennis supremacy. She fought off an upset stomach and leg cramps to become the heroine.

After winning the opening match on Friday when the U.S. girls coasted to a 3-0 lead, Miss Hard breezed to victory in the opening match Saturday to clinch the trophy. Then the English girls staged a strong rally—too late.

AFTER Miss Hard had defeated England's Christine Truman, 6-2, 6-2, to give the U.S. an insurmountable 4-0 lead, the American girls lost the last three matches of the final day's competition.

Ann Haydon defeated Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Texas, 10-9, 7-5, and Deidre Catt beat Nancy Richey of Dallas 6-1, 7-5, in singles. Then, in doubles, Miss Haydon and Miss Truman defeated Miss Hard and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, 6-4, 6-3.

The victory was America's 28th in 34 Wightman Cup tournaments. The U.S. won the Cup last year, too.

"I WAS playing very well," said Darlene. "My legs hurt all over yesterday and I was a bit worried about them but they were only a little sore today and didn't slow me down."

With the Wimbledon tennis tournament — the unofficial world's championship — little more than a week away the play of the rest of the American girls was disappointing.

Miss Moffitt, who won the Wimbledon doubles crown last year paired with Mrs. Susman, was overpowered by the British duo Saturday.

The 18-year-old Long Beach girl scolded herself aloud several times for her mistakes.

THE CAPACITY crowd of 6,000 laughed at the obvious relief with which Mrs. Dupont, captain of the American team, clutched the tall silver cup, thoughtfully filled by the British with a bouquet of American Beauty roses for the presentation ceremony.

No Relief as Angels Again Fall to Chisox

By ROSS NEWHAN
I. P-T Staff Writer

CHICAGO — If Bill Rigney is not at Comiskey Park this afternoon when the Angels and Chicago White Sox meet in a doubleheader, he'll be found at the Billy Graham crusade at nearby Soldier's Field.

The Angels' skipper needs some divine help in finding out what's happened to his bullpen and Ryne Duren, in particular. The spark has left the "Flame."

Duren was tagged with his seventh defeat and fourth in his last seven appearances as the Angels dropped a 4-3 decision to the Go-Go Sox Saturday before 21,511 fans, 7,135 of whom paid their way in.

GRAHAM is expected to draw 100,000 today, the Angels and White Sox slightly less. Dean Chance (4-3) will attempt to break the Seraphs' four game losing streak in the opener against Juan Pizarro (3-5).

This one will be televised into your living rooms over KHJ-TV (9).

If Chance (who promised he wouldn't go for any drives with Bo Belinsky Saturday evening) fails, then Eli Grba (2-3) will try his luck against Johnny Buzhardt (6-6) in the nightcap.

Duren took over in the 11th after Ted Bowsfield, making his first appearance since May 23, had held Chicago in check during the ninth and 10th. But, like June, the Windy City nine came

Prove It Does in Comeback

By ERNIE MASON

Prove It did. The Rex Ellsworth entry who sometimes does and sometimes doesn't, came up a winner Saturday.

The hero of the 1961 winter racing season when he won the two hundred-granders at Santa Anita, Prove It captured his first stakes since those sparkling efforts when he ran the fastest mile and one-sixteenth of the season to take the $55,950 Inglewood Handicap in 1:41 flat before a crowd of 48,814.

It was an exciting moment for owner Ellsworth and trainer Mish Tenney, whose faith has never wavered in their handicap star. But it was just as exciting for jockey Henry Moreno as he ended a 10-year Hollypark Stakes drought, picking up his first added-money triumph at the Goose Girl oval since winning the 1952 Hollywood Gold Cup with Two Lea.

INSIDE MOUND CONFERENCES!

What Does Manager Say?

By GEORGE LEDERER

It happens in eight bal games out of 10. The manager walks slowly to the mound. The pitcher picks up the resin bag, drops it and turns his back to the dougout. The catcher and an infielder join the huddle. The umpire becomes impatient.

What does the manager say? How does the pitcher react?

With the Dodgers leading 5-1 at Pittsburgh recently, Joe Moeller walked two of the first three batters in the bottom of the ninth inning to bring manager Walter Alston to the scene.

As if he needed to know, Moeller glanced at the scoreboard in left field, then nervously scratched the dirt with his spikes. Alston looked the other way, toward the Dodger bullpen. Then he broke the tension.

Reaching in his back pocket, Alston produced the remains of a package of chewing tobacco. "What's the matter, Joe?" Alston asked. "You want a good chew?"

Moeller, barely 19 and a non-smoker who disdains even the sight of tobacco juice, was startled. "No, Skip," he said, "I think I'm all right."

"Well, then relax and throw the ball over the plate," said Alston to end the conference.

Moeller did need help to save a 5-3 victory, but the Alston version of a "chewing out" put him at ease temporarily.

If the manager is Leo Durocher, who now serves as Alston's chief mound executioner, the conversation under similar circumstances can be rough.

* * * *

NEEDING ONE win to clinch the pennant for the Giants in 1954, Durocher started Sal (The Barber) Maglie against the Dodgers at Ebbetts Field. Maglie had a 2-0 lead when he made his first pitch, but proceeded to walk two of the first three Dodgers.

Leo stormed to the mound and asked for the ball. "You no-good so-and-so. You dumb fathead. You ——. Gimme the ball. If you don't want to win this thing, I got other pitchers who do.

"I really got him mad," Leo recalled, "and that was my whole idea. I had no intention of taking him out. Besides, he wouldn't give me the ball. He tried to stomp on my foot to get me off the mound.

"He got Snider to hit into a double paly that ended the innings. Then he came into the dougout, took a big gulp of water and spit it all over my shoes. I knew then that he was in good form. He went on to win, 7-2."

* * * *

OCCASIONALLY, a manager will consult his catcher if the pitcher is in trouble. Such was the case of manager Frankie Frisch and catcher Bill DeLancey of the 1934 Cardinals, better known as the Gashouse Gang.

A rookie pitcher, making his first start, yielded a single, a double and a home run on his first three pitches. "Bill," said Frisch, "has this kid got anything today?"

"How in the world would I know," said DeLancey. "I haven't caught one yet." their minds made up whether to yank a pitcher or leave him. Only rarely will a pitcher influence the decision.

* * * *

BOBBY BRAGAN, then managing Ft. Worth, was swayed into making a change during a Texas League playoff game. Eddie Chandler, later with the PCL Los Angeles Angels and now a Beverly Hills stock broker, had pitched eight brilliant innings against Shreveport.

"Suddenly, things got a little rough in the ninth," Bragan recalls. "Shreveport had two on base when I went out to talk to Chandler with half a notion to take him out. I had Chris Van Cuyck, a lefthander, in the bullpen and their next hitter was Hal Simpson, also a lefty.

"Eddie, do you know who their next hitter is?" I asked. "Yes," said Chandler. "It's Simpson and I know Chris can get him out."

What to do? "I let Chris get him out."

Mantle Returns With Home Run but Yanks Lose

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Jerry Kindall hit a two-run homer in the last half of the ninth inning Saturday to give the Cleveland Indians a 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees despite a three-run, pinch-hit homer by Mickey Mantle.

The home run, which knocked the Yankees out of first place in the American League, was Kindall's fourth hit of the day and boosted his batting average to .450 against the Yankees. Kindall connected against Jim Coates, the seventh New York pitcher, after Woody Held was hit by a pitched ball.

Mantle made his first appearance in nearly a month in the top of the eighth. The slugger, who suffered a muscle tear in his right thigh May 19, slammed a tremendous 450-foot homer with two on to give the Yankees a 9-7 lead. The blow climaxed a Yankee rally from an early 6-0 deficit, John Blanchard and Roger Maris hitting two-run homers during the comeback.

Twins' Drive Stalled by A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Diego Segui, Kansas City's ace relief pitcher, starting his first game, beat Minnesota 6-2 Saturday night and foiled the Twins' chance to take over the American League lead.

While Segui subdued the Twins on seven hits, Dick Howser and Ed Charles led the A's bombardment against starter Joe Bonikowski and two relievers. Each hit a solo home run and each got three hits.

The Athletics got their eventual winning runs in the second inning when Segui singled, Howser tripled and scored himself on a sacrifice fly.

The Twins could have gone into a one percentage point lead over Cleveland with a victory.

Tigers Continue Slide, 7th in Row

DETROIT (UPI)—Earl Wilson scattered six hits in seven innings and helped his own cause with a two-run bases-loaded double Saturday to pace the Boston Rex Sox to a 4-2 victory over the slumping Detroit Tigers, who dropped their 7th straight game.

The 6-3 Boston righthander was tagged for a pair of solo Rocky Colavito, his 11th and 12th of the season, but except for those two lapses Wilson had things pretty much under control.

Wilson left the game after seven innings, with reliefer Dick Radatz finishing up, and recorded his fourth victory against two defeats.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Long Beach Bowling SOS!

Notes from an untidy desk drawer:

. . . Harry Hugasian, the "old" Stanford and Chicago Bear quarterback, along with Stan Greene and Norm Belt of the beachfront's Ocean Lanes, writes this corner for aid in enrolling L.B. bowlers for the mammoth Professional Bowlers Tournament at his house July 5-8. Me appeal to bowlers for aid? Now, there's a "first."

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Anyway, the tourney is the greatest ever to hit Long Beach. Such top rollers as Don Carter, Billy Welu, Steve Nagy, Ray Bluth, Buddy Bomar, Carmen Salvino, Harry Smith and 100 other pros will be here for the four days. Local amateurs have a chance to haul down some loot, too, during a pro-am July 5. The winning amateur will drag down $500, while even the 42nd finisher will bag $50.

. . . "Our main problem is filling the amateur end of the tourney," writes the Ocean Laner. "If we can only make the average enthusiastic bowler aware of this end, we'll have a fine tournament." (Okay, Average Enthusiastic Bowler, the address is 25 Chestnut Pl. Got it?)

. . . Incidentally, Hugasian came up with a great line when asked if his new bowling venture was keeping him busy. "I wish I could go back and join the Bears to relax," he sighed. "At least George Halas gave me a good seat on the bench."

. . . A message from Bootin' Ben Agajanian to the effect that he recieved a PLAYER'S contract from the Green Bay Packers for next season. The 42-year-old Armenian businessman was more tickled than a kid with two Dodger tickets. He had resigned himself to the role of an instructor.

. . . Belated congratulations to Tom Shaheen, Fred Miller, Stan Weiss and Art Edwards for wrapping up the financial end of Long Beach's initial American Basketball League franchise. The city would have lost considerable face throughout the nation if its already-awarded franchise would have been forfeited for lack of financial security, but when the above group stepped in, all was rosy again.

CLYDE THE OFFICE BOY clipped a Los Angeles newspaper's story on Bo Belinsky's latest episode and attached the note, "How do you like this for ad placing?" Right next to the story of Bo's early morning escapade with an older woman was a Cadillac agency ad featuring Bo's picture and this comment: "I saved $1060." (Not on THAT night, Bo-Bo!)

. . . Note to myself: If the Angels don't watch out, they'll be known as the Rams of baseball. At least they're in the lead for baseball's playboy-of-the-year trophy. Or the last two years, for that matter. Remember the Eli Grba-Ron Kline early hours safari in '61?

. . . Sandy Koufax, the Dodger lefthander, informs that he's opening his Tropicana Motor Hotel, 8585 Santa Monica Blvd., Tuesday. Which proves that all southpaws aren't eccentric, I guess.

. . . Bob Pestolesi and Dick Perry message that plans are clicking merrily along for the first annual L.B. Invitational Basketball Tourney in December in the new Arena. Oklahoma State and Drake are in the fold for this year's classic, but while they attended a recent coaches' convention in the East, Pestolesi and Perry were approached by representatives of Iowa State, Utah State and Oklahoma City University, among others.

MRS. FRED GATES, 5831 Blackthorne, Lakewood, drops a note about her son, Airman First Class Fred Gates, who coached the Bitburg Air Force Barons in Germany to second place in the USAFE Boxing Championships. This was Bitburg's first boxing team in six years. When you're paroled, Fred, maybe you could come home and handle the Century Club team.

. . . No better way to close than to quote Bo Belinsky's FORMER roommate, Ed Sadowski, who told us a few months ago that Bo was a good roomie. "He'd be my second choice after Jerry Casale," said Ed. "Bo jokes about lots of things and gets quoted and when he reads the stories he laughs. But he's serious about baseball." Now I'm laughing.

. . . See you in a few weeks. A vacation is beckoning.

TITO'S RUN WAS NEAT-O

Caught in middle of rundown, Cleveland's Tito Francona breaks for home, darting past Yankee catcher Elston Howard (32) and Clete Boyer gloves throw. Howard moments later disputed umpire's call when Tito scored. Howard was ejected.

Marichal Blanks Cardinals, 5-0

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Juan Marichal shut out St. Louis 5-0 on two hits Saturday as the San Francisco Giants ended a three-game losing streak.

Felipe Alou's two-run first-inning homer and Willie Mays' two-run fifth inning double formed the Giants' power.

Marichal, pitching his 10th triumph against four losses, allowed only one hit until Charley James doubled down the left field line opening the eighth. James reached third on an infield out but died there as Marichal put down pinchhittter Red Schoendienst and then Curt Flood.

* * * *

ALOU smashed his 10th homer over the right field fence with Mays on base via a walk after two were out in the first.

Larry Jackson, Cardinal righthander who took his seventh loss against five victories, was touched for two more runs in the fifth. Marichal reached first on a batting interference call against catcher Carl Swatski.

Chuck Hiller singled off Ken Boyer's glove. Mays drove in Marichal and Hiller with a double to the left field corner.

The Giants added their fifth run in the sixth when Felipe Alou beat out an infield hit, stole second and scored on Willie McCovey's line single to right.

A Candlestick Park crowd of 24,844 saw the Giants win only their third triumph in 12 games.

Burdette Handcuffs Bucs, 2-1

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Right-hander Lew Burdette and shortstop Roy McMillan teamed up to give the Milwaukee Braves a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday night, snapping the Pirates' seven-game winning streak.

Burdette pitched an eight-hitter in improving his record to 5-4. He was in frequent jams, but was tough when he had to be.

McMillan provided all the Braves' firepower, socking a solo homer, his seventh, in the first winning and driving in the winning run with a seventh-inning single.

Pittsburgh had tied the score at 1-1 in the fifth when Bill Virdon's fly ball dropped between McMillan and left fielder Lee Maye for a double and Dick Groat followed with a single.

* * * *

BUT IN the seventh Joe Adcock singled, advanced to third on a single and infield out, and scored on McMillan's single.

Vernon Law was the loser. He worked seven innings and gave up only four hits, but walked four as his record evened up at 2-2.

The Pirates got a double followed by a single in the second inning but couldn't get the run across as Burdette pitched like the Burdette of old, pushing his record to 5-4.

The Pirates also threatened in the first and third when outfielder Bob Skinner cracked two-base hits in each frame, but Burdette tightened, went all the way and walked only one.

WYNN ROZELLE

By JERRY WYNN

Pete Rozelle is the American dream come true . . . Long Beach area version.

Once the "boy next door" as he grew up in Lynwood, attended Compton College and worked part-time in the sports department of The Press Telegram, Rozelle today earns $60,000 a year as commissioner of the National Football League.

And he is 35 years old.

During the past year, Rozelle carried the ball himself to score two brilliant victories for the NFL. He helped secure a $9.3 million two-year package television contract, and he led the fight to defeat a $10 million anti-trust suit filed by the American Football League.

You have had many important positions, Pete, among them NFL commissioner, Rams general manager, public relations director for the Rams, University of San Francisco and a private firm, and last, but not least (it says here), sports deskman for the Press-Telegram. Which one have you enjoyed the most?

"It's difficult to answer because each one gave varying kinds of enjoyment at different ages. Primarily because of the time spent on the TV and court cases and the subsequent satisfaction with the results of each, I would probably say my present job."

Which of the jobs was the most difficult?

"Learning to write sports headlines under Bob Hall, Dick Zehms and Maxwell Stiles when I was working Saturdays at the Press-Telegram."

Almost a month later, how do you view the decision by Judge Thomsen in the AFL anti-trust suit?

"As one of the most satisfying moments of my life, and a decision that will have a far-reaching and beneficial effect on clarifying the unique aspects of sports leagues of all kinds."

Was winning this case tougher than obtaining the television contract?

"No, the television package deal was more difficult because of complexities involving clubs, sponsors, network, courts and Congress."

Last year, sports writers voted that pro football is replacing baseball as the national pastime. Do you agree?

"Naturally, we feel our sport has no peer. However, I do not feel that any one sport dominates on a national scale. I think it varies on a local or regional basis dependent largely on the home team's success."

Will the NFL ever go to a two-games-a-week schedule to take advantage of the surging fan interest?

"I don't believe the physical and mental stamina required for the game would permit a two-a-week schedule. The standard of excellence and performance would suffer greatly."

When you were with the Rams, they drew crowds of 100,000 several times. Do you think the competition from baseball and other pro sports will make such crowds impossible in the future?

"No, I fully expect the Rams to draw as large as they once did in the near future. Southern California has demonstrated again and again that its fan support for good entertainment is insatiable."

How do you view the Rams owners' decision to give Elroy Hirsch full control of the team this season?

"It was an excellent and selfless decision that I feel will be an important factor in club success."

What was your reaction to the recent Sport Magazine article "Jon Arnett Sounds Off on the Flaws of Pro Football?"

"They were, in part, intelligent comments. Some difficulty may have been encountered in the phrasing of particular questions."

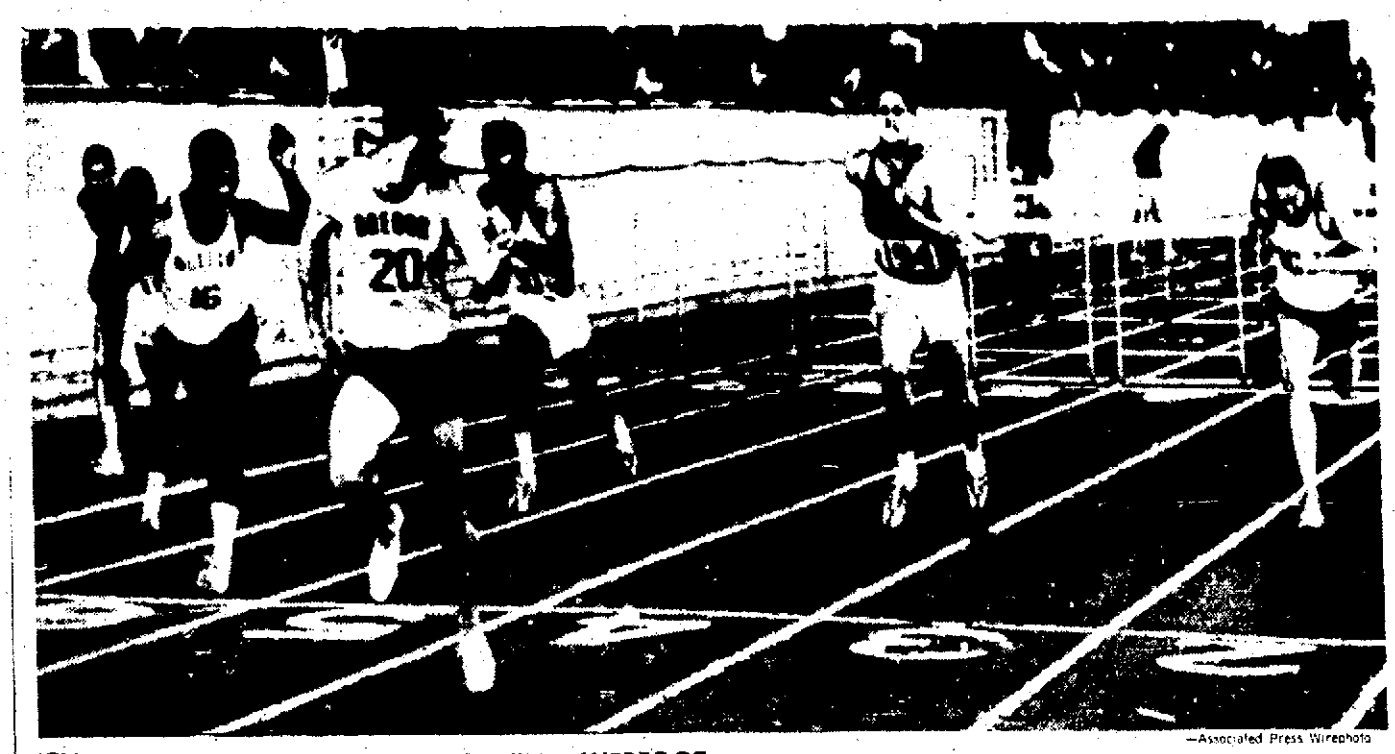

I have been told that you work at a break-neck schedule. What do you do for leisure?

"I will let you know better in a year, Jerry. The TV and court cases have taken so much of my time, there has been little left for anything but reading, primarily newspapers. I do intend to take up playing tennis again for exercise."

What advice do you have for a young man who wants to succeed in business by really trying?

"Try to work hard, forget the clock and give extra effort and have good friends."

And for Pete's sake, support the Rams!

IT'S AS EASY AS DUCK SOUP FOR THIS WEBFOOT

Crew Title to Cornell; Wash. 2nd

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—The East regained rowing prominence after three lean years Saturday when Cornell won the varsity and freshman races and missed by a whisker a "sweep of the river" in the 60th annual Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta.

A sun-drenched crowd of 15,000 was treated to an awesome display of versatility as Cornell churned to a two-length victory in the 3-mile varsity race on calm Onondaga Lake after the formidable freshman crew won the 2-mile opener.

Darkhorse Navy spoiled Cornell's bid for a sweep by nipping the Big Red junior varsity by a quarter length over the 3-mile course.

* * * *

THE TWICE-beaten Cornell varsity oarsmen, concentrating on distance all season, finally lived up to the potential everyone said they had.

Harrison (Stork) Sanford, at the helm of the Cornell varsity eight for 26 years, seemed to take the performance in stride.

"We rowed the race as we planned," he said. "I knew we had it won after two miles."

* * * *

CORNELL'S mastery of the 3-mile varsity race produced these results:

—The Big Red will travel to Philadelphia, Pa., on July 4 for the Independence Day Regatta billed as a world struggle between America and the mighty Russians.

Cornell ruined the hopes of Washington for an undefeated season and snapped California's two-year hold on the Challenge Cup.

Cornell won its 20th varsity title since the IRA was inaugurated in 1896 and its first since 1958.

For Washington, it was a dismal climax to a year that promised to bring the Huskies their first IRA title since 1950. Washington, never a winner on Onodago Lake, relied on a high stroke to beat out California for second place. Wisconsin was fourth, followed by Penn.

Strung out behind were Dartmouth, Brown, Navy, Columbia, Princeton, host Syracuse and MIT.

Frank Budd of Villanova retained his crown as the fastest 100-yard dash man in the world by winning the event by about three inches from Jerome. He was clocked in 9.4, against the 9.3 he took Friday in winning an eased-up trial.

Tarr's 20 points made him the high-point man of the meet. Jerome had 18 and Renfro 14.

Jan Sikorsky of USC, getting off a 249 foot, 4 inch heave on his last throw, won the javelin.

Tony Watson of Oklahoma won the broad jump with a leap of 26 feet, one-half inch. Only one and one quarter inches separated first and third places.

Hubert Brown, a Panamanian running for Morgan State, pulled a mild upset in the 440 when he came home in front with a clocking of 46.9. Favored Adolph Plummer of New Mexico finished fourth.

L.B. AREA RELAY TEAM TRIUMPHS

National Prep Record Falls to 'Mountain Boy'

By JOHN CASH

Doug Brown, an 18-year-old mountain boy from the quaint-sounding pine-shrouded hamlet of Red Lodge, Mont., ran only his second competitive two-mile race Saturday night, but it was good enough to grab the brass ring at the third annual Golden West Invitational track meet at Los Angeles State College.

Brown's 9:16 clocking, before 5,384 onlookers, is the fastest ever run by a prep and betters Danny Murphy's national record of 9:25.5 at Mira Costa in 1960, and earned for him the Stewart Baughn memorial trophy as the outstanding athlete of the meet.

Three meet records fell and two others were equaled but all races were into a 5 mph wind which accounted for the comparatively slow marks.

* * * *

ED MOODY of McClymonds in Oakland was the meet's only double winner with record-equaling marks of 9.7 in the hundred and 18.8 in the 180 low hurdles, nipping Tom Hester in the closest race of the meet.

John Yancy, Wilson broad jumper, pole vaulter Mike Lindsay and the CIF No. 2 sprint-medley relay team were the only area performers to place high in their respective events. Yancy was second in his specialty with a leap of 22-9½, George Janquardt of Jordan, Poly's Dave Campbell, Chuck Kanoy of Dominguez and Millikan's George Davis teamed up to win the relay in a meet-record time of 3:30.2.

* * * *

LINDSAY tied for top spot in the pole vault at a meet-record height of 14-4¼, but lost in a run-off to Jim Farrell of Tulsa, Okla.

Ron Pascarella, Miami, Fla., hurled the discus 183-4 to establish another meet standard.

Poly shotputter Jeff Smith failed to place when his best effort of 57-10½ gained a sixth place.

City Golf for Ladies on Monday

By JERRY WYNN

There is nothing more uncertain than a woman, so it figures there should be plenty of question marks attached to the 35th annual Long Beach City Women's Golf Championship beginning Monday at Skylinks. For instance:

Is Ruth Miller ready to crack the mammoth jinx that has kept her from winning at home?

Can Jane Becker, once the finest of fems as she won titles in 1955 and 1957, make a successful comeback?

Is Harriet Glanville prepared to repeat her brilliant 1960 victory at Skylinks when she set a course record?

One question mark removed concerns the prowess of defending champion Dora Donaldson. She proved her mettle by capturing the California State title this year.

A new contender for the City crown is Karen Oldham of Recreation Park, who was a member of the U.S. Olympic track team in 1960 as a javelin thrower.

Qualifying will be held Monday with the low 16 of the field of 96 entering the championship bracket. Match play rounds begin Tuesday and continue daily through Friday. Qualifying times:

DAVIES NIPS WELSHMAN, 1 UP

Pasadena Golfer Wins British Amateur Title

HOYLAKE, England (UPI)—Richard Davies, handsome 31-year-old real estate broker from Pasadena, Calif., pulled his faltering game together on the final seven holes Saturday and won the British Amateur Golf Championship with a 1 up, 36-hole victory over John Povall of Wales.

After wasting away a morning 4 up advantage and falling behind by 2 during the afternoon round, Davies won the 30th, 32nd and 33rd holes in par-birdie-par to earn America the huge silver championship trophy for the 15th time.

The tall, dark-haired Davies thus became the 13th American to win the British Amateur crown. Lawson Little and Frank Stranahan each won it twice.

And it balked 23-year-old Povall's hopes of becoming the first Welshman ever to win the British championship since this tournament was begun on this same Hoylake course back in 1885.

'Star' Nine Plays Hawks Tonight

These Hollywood entertainers must like Long Beach . . . last week golf, this week softball.

KEELY SMITH
Bat-Girl

Loaded with two full teams of movie and TV talent, the Hollywood Entertainers play the seven-time world champion Long Beach Nitehawks tonight at Park Ave. Field starting at 8:15.

But although the personalities are the main attraction, the game itself may turn out to be a real battle. The Entertainers have lots of outstanding ballplayers including former major leaguers John Berardino and Michael Dante.

Heading the glamor list are batgirls Keely Smith, Leslie (Daisy Mae) Parrish and Joan Staley.

Keely postponed a commitment in Chicago in order to attend the game.

Among the more well-known of the group are Soupy Sales, Bud (Ripcord) Pinnell, Peter (Lawman) Brown, Mark (The Detectives) Goddard, Doug (Checkmate) McClure and comedian Sheckey Smith.

* * * *

SOME OF the other notables are Phil Crosby, Ronnie Smith, Max Baer Jr., Bob Lepore, Don Edwards, Jack Gilardi, Dick Bakalyan, Sandy Dvore, Jimmy Harris, Norm Alden and Frank Faylen.

Ronnie Smith will pitch for Hollywood, and the Entertainers claim he's one of the best softball pitchers in the area.

The Nitehawks will open with their regular lineup with both Jack Randall and Eddie Waymire available for pitching duty.

Once Over Lightly

Race Horses are Strange Creatures

Race horses are strange creatures. Each has a different personality . . . a different story. In fact, their stories are among the most interesting to be found in the world of sports.

Race horses, for instance, pine for the race track once they are taken back to the ranch. We related an incident of this kind recently when we told about Stranglehold, a fine stakes runner of a few years ago, being unhappy on the farm where he wasted away to almost a skeleton.

Now the 13-year-old gelding serves as the stable pony for trainer Dale Landers, is thoroughly happy and has fattened out like a butterball.

There are many strange, humorous and warm stories about race horses and while we recall a few, we sought out R. E. (Lanny) Leighninger to fill us in on some more. Lanny is head placing judge at Hollywood Park, a steward at a couple of other tracks and regarded as one of racing's outstanding historians.

DAVE LEWIS

One of the most unusual stories recalled by Lanny concerns a horse by the name of Toombeola, who became a big winner after he and a one-legged seagull formed an alliance of sorts.

For over a month, the one-legged seagull would show up at the track whenever Toombeola raced and perched on the backside rail. When the field would break from the starting gate, the gull would soar over the horses to the first turn and on around the track.

Toombeola won five straight races during the time the seagull followed him. This story has been verified by many trainers and officials.

ONE OF THE GREAT HORSES in racing history was Exterminator. When it came to off tracks, he was the undisputed "king of the mudders."

Many horses love beer and soft drinks, but Exterminator went them one better. He drank champagne from a silver bucket after all his later-day victories.

Almgren was just a poor plater until one day his trainer introduced him to Pisco Punch. From then on he enjoyed a quarter a day. He quickly turned into a 28-1 winner, followed up with two more victories and was claimed for triple his value. His new owners, however, took him to New York where no one knew the secret of his success. Without Pisco Punch, Almgren soon faded into oblivion.

Happy Issue, who won the Hollywood Gold Cup a few years ago, loved Hershey bars and trainer Frenchie Pinon fed them to her daily.

One day in Chicago, though, the Hershey showed up in a urine test as "caffeine" and Frenchie was suspended. So Happy Issue had to be content with carrots after that.

BULL REIGH, A BELOVED campaigner at Hollypark and Santa Anita a few years back, was a shrewd old fellow who used to drive his trainer, Hank Ross, crazy on occasions.

Bull Reigh would fake lameness everytime he paraded to the post. He would stumble and seem about to fall time and again. However, the track vets soon got to know about this trick and therefore never scratched him. As soon as the field broke, the "lameness" quickly disappeared.

Phar Lap, the great Australian horse which died soon after winning the old Coffroth Handicap in Tijuana, hated roses. He was one of the most mannerly horses of them all until roses appeared in the winner's circle.

Phar Lap also was a lonely soul and required a pony at all times in his stall. Handlers would tear down the wall between two stalls so Phar Lap and his pony could be together.

The great Stymie one day took a liking to a banty rooster that strolled into his stall and wandered off.

Stymie almost tore down his stall until handlers realized he wanted the rooster back. The rooster became his pet and they became inseperable.

THE ACUTE HEARING OF HORSES often can be observed by their actions. Many, of course, become fond of music and listen to a radio outside their stalls by the hours.

One campaigner at Hollypark a few seasons ago took a liking to a popular western ditty sung, as I recall, by Johnny Cash. He would sway back and forth like a swooning bobby soxer whenever the song was played.

Band music, however, will disturb most horses. In the old days, there were bands at all tracks and owners used to stuff cotton into the ears of their horses so they couldn't hear.

Calumet Farm's Bull Lea, one of the greatest sires of all-time, was the favorite in the Kentucky Derby many years ago. But when huge massed bands blared as the horses went to the post, Bull Lea and several others went frantic, fretted and washed out. He was badly beaten.

There has even been cases where blind horses have won races. Kinglike was one of them. His trainer stuffed his ears with cotton so noises wouldn't cause him to bolt and under a strong ride he scored a smashing win in a sprint race.

Yes, horses are strange creatures . . . but no more so than we humans.

Water Polo Club Sets Fund Event

In an effort to secure funds for two projects, Long Beach Nu-Pike Water Polo Club will stage a rummage sale Monday at the House of Sales.

The club needs funds to (1) attend the National Water Polo Championships in San Francisco next month and (2) bring Mexico's championship team to Long Beach for three international matches immediately after the nationals.

Anyone interested in assisting the poloists is urged to attend the rummage sale.

Angels, Hose on TV Today

busting out against Rapid Ryne.

CHARLIE SMITH, who earns his salary against the Angels alone, doubled to open the final frame. Camilo Carreon then layed down a sacrifice bunt which Duren fielded in perfect position to go to third, but instead fired to first, nailing the Chicago catcher. Pinch-hitter Bob Farley promptly rifled a single to center and the "Flame" was extinguished.

The victory went to Eddie Fisher, the fourth Chicago pitcher, who lullabied to sleep the Angel offense over the final two frames. In fact, the Angels collected only three hits after scoring two in the sixth. Turk Lown limited the Cherubs to only one safety in three innings prior to Fisher's entrance.

DURING THE current string of defeats, however, the Angels' attack has not been silent. All of the losses have been registered against the bullpen and in three of the four games the Angel starter has left with a lead.

Don Lee departed with the score 3-2 in his favor in the sixth only to watch Jim Landis tag his 13th home run off Art Fowler in the seventh to deprive the newest halo hat of his third consecutive win as an Angel and set the stage for the extra sessions.

After Lee and Ray Herbert had battled through three scoreless rounds, the Angels hit pay dirt in the fourth on a walk to Leon Wagner, Lee Thomas' single and Bobby Rodgers' double.

NELLIE FOX' single and Landis' triple evened matters again in the fifth, but the Angels streaked in front in the sixth when Felix Torres doubled with the bases loaded. The Angels lost a run when Rocky Bridges sent Earl Averill, running from first, home on the blow. As a sprinter, Averill never leaves the blocks. He was out by plenty.

Chicago came right back in its half to send Lee to the showers—which was a favor since the temperature was in the high eighties. Carreon's single following a single by Joe Cunningham and wild pitch, made it 3-2 and brought forth Fowler.

THE "HUMMER" prevented further damage, but Landis' homer into the centerfield bleachers one round later made it a new game again.

Rigney indicated he may take Duren with him to the crusade today. Graham has a chance for the biggest "save" of the season.

Dodgers Defeated Again by Houston

scored as Fairly grounded out.

The third Dodger hit was a sixth-inning leadoff single by Daryl Spencer that prompted Podres' dismissal. Duke Snider popped up for Podres and Farrell also disposed of the next two.

* * * *

A POP fly double by Carl Warwick and the first of two errors by Maury Wills produced Houston's first unearned run after two were out in the fourth. Wills' wide throw on Norm Larker's grounder pulled Fairly off the bag. Larker scored from first when Warwick placed his blooper ingeniously between Wills and W. Davis, who peeled off to avoid a collision in shallow center.

Fairly rescued Podres briefly in the fifth after singles by Bob Aspromonte and Bob Lillis. Fairly charged Farrell's bunt and forced Aspromonte at third, then made a backhand catch of Jim Busby's foul in front of the Houston dugout.

* * * *

A LEADOFF double by Jim Pendleton and a single by Larker gave Houston a 2-0 edge in the sixth and Roebuck took over in the seventh.

Roebuck's wildness and Wills' second boot filled the bases befre manager Walter Alston had a chance to say "Ron Perranoski," the third pitcher.

Roebuck hit Aspromonte with a pitch and walked Lillis. Farrell bounced a double-play ball to Wills, who dropped it in attempting to block and tag the sliding Lillis at second. Alston's claim of interference was not allowed and the bases were filled for Perranoski's entry.

AL SPANGLER, batting for Busby, tagged the first pitch for a two-run single to center and continued to second when W. Davis allowed the ball to get past him.

When Davis made amends with his triple in the same round, it broke a string of 17 scoreless Dodger innings, begun at Milwaukee Thursday.

Farrell (5-6) turned in his fourth complete game and already has pitched more innings than he did for the Dodgers last year.

Joe Moeller (5-4) and Ken Johnson (4-6) are the pitchers in this afternoon's series windup.

DIS AND DATA — Johnny Berardino pitched and batted Nat (King) Cole's Hollywood TV-stage-screen stars to a 4-3 win over the sportscasters in their annual prelim . . . Berardino's single broke a 3-3 score in the third and final inning . . . Tom Harmon was the losing pitcher . . . Elroy Hirsch hit his customary inside-the-park homer for the sportscasters, with an assist from right fielder Bob Newhart . . . Dean Martin, playing shortstop for the All-Stars, turned in the best defensive play with a backhanded stop . . . Buzzie Bavasi was tempted to give him a contract.

Houston's victory Friday night was its first at the start of a trip . . . Conversely, Dodgers are only team to win a series opener at Houston . . . Colts' publicity chief Bill Giles wonders who has NL's best pitching staff . . . He makes a good point for his club . . . Four Colts are among league's 11 earned runs leaders: Farrell 2.66, Jim Golden 2.54, Johnson 2.77 and Bob Bruce 3.19 . . . Comparing Colt staff to Dodgers, Giles points out that Houston pitchers have allowed fewer runs (270-308), fewer hits (544-578), fewer walks (173-2515) and fewer homers.

FAY'S NIGHT OUT lacked speed to keep up after breaking on top, came again while between horses in stretch to finish strongly. HENRIJAN made up some ground in stretch. KING KAMEHA raced gamely but was no threat to leaders. GOLDEN NOTES raced up on outside of pace on far turn, held on with good courage to stretch then gave way. F. H. RUSS tired after setting pace to stretch.

PROVE IT advanced steadily while saving ground on stretch turn, came to outside of WINONLY entering last furlong, forged to front midway of stretch and under strong handling held SEA ORBIT in final strides. Latter elected to race on outside to insure clear racing room, finished with a burst of speed through stretch and under vigorous handling was moving to winner. RABLERO came to inside in stretch to finish strongly. WINDY SANDS was in close quarters between leaders going to far turn, held on with good courage in final stages. WINONLY had lead almost from the beginning, drew out going to far turn but weakened slightly when winner challenged a furlong out, was inclose quarters last few yards but was a beaten horse. T. V. LARK was far back reaching backstretch, saved all the ground possible, advanced steadily in last quarter but was never able to reach contention, had no apparent trouble. CRAZY KID was forced wide on first turn while striving for position, forced pace to last quarter then tired. OLDEN TIMES gave way in stretch after showing good early speed. MR. CONSISTENCY was never prominent. GREY EAGLE appeared to be rank. Jockey Harmatz lodged a claim of foul against the winner which was not allowed.

HORSE RACE ROUNDUP

Kelso Breezes to First Win of Year for Shoe

(Combined from Wire Reports)

Champion Kelso toyed with five rivals Saturday in the $7,500 Clem McCarthy Memorial Purse at Belmont Park, turning on the power in the final eighth of a mile to win by 2¼ lengths from Garwol.

It was the first victory this season for Kelso, who brought Horse of the Year honors to Mrs. Richard C. DuPont in 1960 and 1961. Trainer Carl Hanford surprised Belmont officials by entering his 5-year-old ace in the one-mile race, named for the late sports telecaster, instead of the featured $25,000 Nassau County Handicap.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker, who flew here from Southern California to ride Kelso, took the son of Your Host-Maid of Flight in hand and took charge midway down the stretch and won easily.

* * * *

Flaming Page, 3-year-old filly, won the 103rd running of the Queen's Plate at Toronto's Woodbine Park. A crowd of more than 30,000 including Britain's queen mother, watched.

PROVE IT---

had made the comeback, they had to withstand a claim of foul lodged by Bill Harmatz, who finished fifth aboard front-running Winonly.

The stewards ruled, that while Prove It did brush with Winonly in the stretch, the incident was minor and that it had no effect on Winonly's final placing, and therefore the original order of finish would stand.

* * * *

IT WAS THE fourth time at the meeting that Tenney had saddled both Prove It and Olden Times in handicap competition. And the two have taken turns at beating each other.

After his victory in the recent Golden State Breeders' Handicap in which Prove It finished fourth, Olden Times was considered to be the stronger of the Ellsworth hopefuls. But Olden Times finished a sagging eighth.

The triumph was a hard-earned one for the comeback champ. It took all of his speed and courage to repel the blazing stretch spurts of Sea Orbit, the defending champion, and Rablero, the longest priced horse in the field of 10 at 37-1.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Pertinent Questions About Boating

For a change of pace from fishing to boating today, let's take a look at a letter from Art Knowles, of Newport Beach, who, in the beginning, says "FISHIN' AROUND makes sense and your treatment of Newport Harbor is such that I'm sure you are just as respected here as one of the Newport natives." (Thanks for those kind words; we need 'em.)

Art submits a list of eight questions, mostly about boating, but still vitally connected with fishing in a boat at the offshore banks. Here are those questions:

"(1) Where can we get a RELIABLE weather report in the early morning as to conditions in the open water for the day? Sounds simple? Try it!

"(2) How valuable for local use is an electronic fish-finder?

"(3) What constitutes good etiquette regarding privately owned boats running the chum lines of party (or charter) fishing boats? How far can we go?

"(4) What is your opinion of the reliability of the Coast Guard in answering a call of distress?

"(5) Name the dangers of fog, running short of fuel, submerged rocks, surf, etc.

"(6) How about a lightweight anchor for bottom fishing? I have darned near killed myself heaving the old standard-weight hook.

"(7) Any special wrinkles for fishing the kelp beds?

"(8) Tell us latest in new-type fishing gear as opposed to the old time-tested variety."

THAT'S A BIG ORDER, MR. KNOWLES. But with the help of oldtime boating friends, here we go at the answers (by your own numbers):

(1) Call ORchard 0-0234, the automatic weather recording station that gives you the latest report 24 hours a day. The recording is changed from hour to hour or as conditions demand. Watch the weather flags, which are flown at points of vantage in all harbors. A coastal warning facilities chart is obtainable through stores selling geodetic charts. It gives all names of radio stations that broadcast weather and the hours.

(2) The Fathometer used on party boats and other similar instruments (all expensive) are valuable in finding fish schools. However, it takes much training to be able to read such instruments. The cheaper varieties for small boats may not work so well. Don't expect a thousand dollars worth of performance from a fifty-dollar gadget.

(3) I would never run a small boat close enough to a party boat to interfere with their fishing lines. I see nothing wrong in anchoring or trolling at a distance farther than that. Here again, it's the point of view. If you are on the party boat, the small craft is a stink pot; if you are on the small craft, the party-boat boys, passengers and crew, are a bunch of bums.

(4) I AM PURPOSELY SKIPPING this one so that it may be discussed in a full column later this month. I'm 100 per cent for the Coast Guard, but there are some circumstances that need clarification.

(5) Any boater who values his life and those of his passengers should know the danger of fog. If not, he'd better take a safe-boating course with the Coast Guard Auxiliary or the U. S. Power Squadron. Running short on fuel is not an emergency; mostly it's carelessness. Submerged rocks are a small danger because they are few. Coastal charts showing such are available from all stores that handle U. S. Geodetic maps. B. and B. Supply Co., Bahia Marine Sales and Long Beach Marine Hardware are dealers in this city. There are numerous others in nearby cities.

(6) I'd try a Danforth, by far the lightest and best holding anchor of all, but there are others. Consult your marine supply dealer.

(7) STAY OUT OF THE THICKEST part of the kelp; fishing is good there, but your chances of getting a big one out of a kelp tangle are small. Try to fish the edges of the kelp patch.

(8) I can stick my neck out and get into real trouble with this one. I have conventional, spinning, flyrods, bait-casting rods and find a use for each. If you have a good conventional outfit, stick with it. I'm not going to knock any type of outfit because I have too many friends in the fishing-tackle trade, and they are trying hard to make a living by selling every kind of rod, reel and terminal tackle.

I'd like to end with this statement: Be certain that your fishing outfit is balanced, so that rod and reel feel like a part of your arms when you cast.

There will be future columns describing new products in fishing, as well as in the other outdoor sports.

Ban-Bombers Interrupt Macmillan

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan promised Saturday to work for new East-West summit talks in an apparent bid to halt the slump of public confidence in his conservative government.

But even as he lashed his opponents at a political rally, ban-the-bomb campaigners demonstrated against him and fresh electoral setbacks threatened his government.

OPPOSITION labor leader Hugh Gaitskell challenged the prime minister publicly to stake the life of the government in an immediate general election. Macmillan is not required to call an election before the fall of 1964 unless he is beaten in Parliament on a vital issue.

A day packed with political incident brought these quick-fire developments:

1. Macmillan warned Tory followers at Bromley that a Labor or Liberal government would ruin Britain — and so, too, would a Labor regime leaning on liberal support. He went on to speak about the need for East-West understanding on disarmament and peace.

2. When he stopped speaking a shouting nuclear disarmer handed him a letter protesting Britain's H-bomb policies. Then as he and Lady Dorothy Macmillan prepared to drive home, 24 demonstrators squatted in front of and behind his automobile. As fast as police removed them they returned, delaying his passage for 10 minutes.

Name Six Community Chest Division Chairmen

Appointment of chairmen for six of the larger divisions for the Community Chest campaign were announced by Robinson A. Reid, drive leader, Saturday.

C. E. Scott, who recently retired as division manager of the General Telephone Co., will serve as head of the major gifts division. Scott has been a board member of the Boy Scouts for the past 10 years and is a former president of the Long Beach Council. His division in former drives has been responsible for raising nearly a third of the campaign goal.

Industrial division chairman will be Ray Bliley, co-owner of the Ray and Eddy's markets. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and a past president of Uptown Kiwanis. Under his direction 9 teams in the area will seek contributions from 257 employe groups.

* * * *

ORGANIZATION of the business teams in Lakewood will be undertaken by Fred Sanchez of Hody's restaurants. Sanchez was vice chairman of the division last year and is well known in Lakewood for his participation in civic affairs.

Moving up from a vice chairman position in the retail division, James Campbell, branch manager of Foremost Golden State Company, will be in charge of the entire division this year. His contacts as a member of the Independent Business Men's Association, Lions Club and Masons have given him a wide acquaintance with business concerns here.

Procter and Gamble's plant industrial engineer, Ralph M. Irwin, has accepted chairmanship of the commercial division. Having served in two previous campaigns in the division he is familiar with the division's 200 firms involved and organization needed.

* * * *

RALPH M. GORDON, attorney at law, has been chosen to head the professional division. Not only has he been a member of the Chest speaker's bureau for a number of years, but he was a group chairman and vice chairman in the commercial division last year.

Chest agency executives acting as directors for these divisions will be: Harold Arnold, major gifts; Thomas Wolfanger, industrial; Lou Yantorn and Russell Hosking, Lakewood; Maurice Bugbee, commercial; Mrs. Nelle Loder and Pet Vest, retail; and Bernard Miran, professional.

U.S. Charges Negro Fired Over Voting

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The Justice Department filed a federal court suit Saturday charging a Negro teacher was fired because of voter registration activities and demanded reinstatement with reimbursement of lost pay.

A Justice Department spokesman said it was the first time a court order had been sought to restore a job lost in connection with civil rights action.

Mrs. Ernestine Denham Talbert, 33-year-old college graduate from Lucedale, was fired from the Greene County vocational school staff April 25. County Supt. Evans T. Martin said the action was in the "best interest of the school."

* * * *

CONTACTED at his home in Leakesville, Martin repeated his earlier stand that the action was taken "in the best interest of the school," but quickly added:

"She was not fired. Her contract simply was not renewed for the 1962-63 school year. It looks like the Justice Department is trying to take over the administration of our local county schools."

dropped from employment as an apparent results of efforts to register to vote and her testimony about those efforts in a civil rights suit.

* * * *

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL M. A. Hayes contended there had never been complaints about her work as commerce teacher and librarian.

Mrs. Talbert was one of six Negroes whose affidavits appeared in a Justice Department voter registration suit against the George County election commission and circuit clerk.

Mrs. Talbert resides in George County and commuted to Greene County.

Saturday's suit asked for a temporary injunction against the board of education's hiring of a replacement until the case has cleared the courts. U. S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox will hear the case next Saturday in Biloxi.

* * * *

THE SUIT carried affidavits from Mrs. Talbert and a letter from the school principal, which said she was recommended for another year. She was the only one of 22 teachers not approved by the county board.

The complaint said the "action was without justification and is an act to intimidate, threaten and coerce Mrs. Talbert and other Negro citizens to become registered to vote."

The firing "was not based on her ability or performance as a teacher . . ." the suit charged.

* * * *

MRS. TALBERT charged in an affidavit that she and her husband were arbitrarily denied voting privileges after being given the "run around." She said she had been paying poll taxes for seven years.

In addition to asking reinstatement of Mrs. Talbert, the suit asks that the defendants be enjoined from failing to deal in good faith with the Negro teachers of the county for the purpose of interfering with their right to vote or for the purpose of discouraging them from giving testimony in respect to being deprived of their right to vote.

Named as defendants were the board of education of George County; chairman Oscar G. Rounsaville; board members Willie. E. Brown, Douglas W. Daughdrill, Lewis M. Henderson, and Carlos McLaine and Supt. Evans.

SUMMER SEMINAR

JFK to Explode 'Myths' of Government to Students

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will welcome 6,000 college students to Washington this week and launch them on a summer-long seminar he hopes will explode "some tired old myths" they may believe about government service.

The students, who are coming to work at various agencies during their vacations, will hear speeches by top government officials, the leaders of Congress and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

The White House, announcing the seminar Saturday, said it has been established to give the students a broader view of the workings of government. Students have had temporary jobs in Washington for years, but have never had an opportunity before to learn much about agencies other than those in which they worked, the White House said.

* * * *

KENNEDY will greet the students of the White House lawn at 10 a.m. (EDT) Wednesday. The seminar sessions will be held at intervals throughout, the summer, ending on Aug. 28 with an address by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

In a welcoming letter to the students Kennedy listed some of the "myths" he hopes the seminar will dispel.

"You may have been told, for example," he said, "that government workers are clock-watchers; you will soon find that the vast majority of them are dedicated not to their paychecks but to the job to be done.

* * * *

"YOU MAY HAVE heard that government positions involve nothing but plodding, routine tasks; you will see some of the most exciting, interesting work in the world being done here.

"You may have read that public servants are unimaginative, security-seeking, uncreative, skilled in only at the techniques of empire-building; you will quickly discover that we have far more than our share of lively minds, endowed with vigor and courage."

Kennedy said he hoped the students, on returning to their colleges, would act as missionaries to "attack the cloud of prejudice and suspicion which still enshrouds so much of what goes on here and so many of us who work here."

And he expressed the hope that some, at least, of the students would be inspired to make government service their careers.

The seminar program will be filmed by the National Educational Television and Radio Center for presentation on its affiliated educational TV stations.

The seminar sessions will be held in Constitution Hall.

Dutch Say Indonesia Troops 'In Bad Way'

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea (AP) — Rear Adm. L. H. Reestern, commander in chief of Dutch forces in West New Guinea, said today Indonesian paratroops who surrendered to the Dutch recently "were physically and psychologically in a bad way."

He told a news conference the Indonesians had been told they would be contacted by regular Indonesian troops within two days but no reinforcements showed up "and the paratroops did not even receive food by air."

Alice Wright Feted at Retirement Dinner

By VERA WILLIAMS

Alice Wright, a peppy little gray-haired, hazel-eyed woman who for 11 years has taught creative writing at Long Beach City Colege, was feted at "An Appe for Teacher" dinner Saturday night at the Woman's City Cub.

ALICE WRIGHT
Teacher Retires

It was quite an affair, spearheaded by Frances Edelman, pupil, emceed by Beth Norman Harris, attended by 150 persons.

Alice Wright is retiring, and the dinner offered pupils and former pupils an opportunity to tell her what it has meant to them to learn to put one word after another on a typewriter, and get checks for doing it.

At the dinner were pupils who make "hobby money," selling occasional jingles and quips; people who make "eating money" selling stories and articles to run-of-the-mill magazines, every once in a while hitting a pretty good market. And pupils who are deep in writing novels.

Present were many who every year gain inspiration from the Long Beach Writers' Conference, sponsored by City College — a conference that is the brain child of Alice Wright.

Mrs. Wright, who was born in Big Timber, Mont., received her BA from the University of Montana, her MA from Columbia, and taught in Montana, New York and Ankara, Turkey, before coming to Long Beach.

"I try to teach pupils to write well, and sell if they can, of course," she says, "but I also try to help them observe — become aware of the world they live in."

Floods Claim 18 in East Pakistan

TRIP ASSURED

Students' Kindness Rewarded

GLEN LAKE, Mich. (AP)—The 33 Glen Lake Community High School seniors who had scraped and saved since 1956 for a graduation trip to Washington — then canceled it all to aid a cancer-stricken classmate—will leave Tuesday for the nation's capital.

Kind-hearted folk, particularly in Washington, who read of their charity just wouldn't let the class miss its long-cherished trip. Donations rolled in. President John F. Kennedy invited them to the White House, promising a personally guided tour.

And 17-year-old Duane Richardson, a basketball star who learned a few months ago he had cancer, plans to go with the classmates who voted to turn over $700 toward his hospital and medical bills, rather than see Washington.

* * * *

THE SCHOOL'S bus will leave at 9 a.m. Tuesday to make a train connection in Detroit. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has set aside a special car for the group, departing Detroit at 6:15 p.m.

The 21 boys and 12 girls washed cars, sold popcorn and candy and worked at odd jobs to pay for the scheduled trip. But they changed plans when Duane learned he had cancer in the right shoulder.

They had raised approximately $2,500, but when the $700 was gone there wasn't enough left for Washington and no prospect of replacement.

So the class voted to place the balance where it would do the most good and it is gone. They gave $620 to the school's annual yearbook fund. Another $300 went for needed athletic equipment. For $125 the seniors bought flowers for their parents and decorations for their June 1 graduation ceremonies.

ON THEMSELVES they spent only $200 — the cost of a senior banquet and bowling party.

When newspapers reported the class donation to Duane and the scrubbing of its Washington trip, residents of Washington responded with offers of money, lodging and food. Radio station WWDC said it would send $700 to the graduates.

Other offers of assistance topped $600 and the Empire State Bank of nearby Glen Arbor offered to advance $2,500.

Banned Book on Marines Receives OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Naval Institute said Saturday the Pentagon has cleared a controaversil history of the Marine Corps which originally had been scheduled for publication last fall.

The book is "Soldiers of the Sea," written by Marine Col. Robert D. Heinl, chief of a U.S. Naval mission in Haiti.

The conrtoversy flared in January when the Pentagon refused clearance of one chapter of the book for publication as a magazine article. The chapter had been submitted for Pentagon review last September.

A Defense Department spokesman said that chapter appeared to impugn motives of former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, as well as others.

The spokesman said, in effect, the article seemed to charge that a conspiracy existed among several former officials to kill off the Marines. The Marine Corps had joined in Defense Department objections to the chapter.

The institute, which is not an official Navy agency but which is headed by top-ranking Navy officials, plans the publication through its publishing agency, the "Proceedings."

Shattering Welcome for Queen Mother

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto welcomed Queen Mother Elizabeth Saturday with official ritual, cheers of affection and a thunderous artillery salute—so thunderous that it shattered two store windows in the neighborhood of City Hall.

The queen mother is winding up a nine-day visit to Canada.

China Refugees Barred by Bonn

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chinese refugees will not be admitted to West Germany, West German Labor Minister Theodor Blank said. He was replying to a question asked in parliament.

He said Germany already has admitted 620,000 Italians, Spaniards, Greeks and Turks and their number would reach an estimated total of 700,000 by the end of the year. Chinese are not wanted because of high transport costs and language difficulties, he added.

The question of bringing Chinese into West Germany arose several weeks ago when the Association of Hotels and Restaurants in West Germany reported negotiations in progress to import 3,500 Chinese cooks from Hong Kong.

Russian Police Receive Little Public Support

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nobody wants to be a witness when police make an arrest, a letter in the Soviet newspaper Izvestia complained Saturday.

The letter, written by workers in a factory, said, "We often see cases when militiamen seize a thief, a hooligan or a drunkard." But when the people's militiamen ask the assembled crowd to give their names and appear as witnesses, the crowd "seems to disappear into thin air," the workers wrote.

They said the people's militia "deserves more trust, support and help from citizens."

THE BUSINESS WEEK

New Sharp Stock Slump, Deficit Share Spotlight

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Another sharp slump by the stock market, further bids by President Kennedy for business cooperation and the question of whether a federal budget deficit would benefit the economy held the spotlight this week.

All were interwoven in the fabric of the nation's business picture.

The market, pummeled by discouraged selling, sank through the bottom of the May 28 "Black Monday" level to its lowest point since Nov. 2, 1960.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Kennedy said in a speech at Yale University commencement exercises it was a "false issue" to assume "any and all unfavorable turns of the speculative wheel—however temporary and however plainly speculative in character—are the result of lack of confidence in an administration."

Later, at his news conference, Kennedy said, in response to a question, he could not believe that big business would want an economic slump just to get back at a President.

A newspaper column had indicated some business men hoped to take advantage of the market decline for that purpose.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, said some investment analysts believe stock prices have fallen to about the right levels in relation to share earnings.

* * * *

KENNEDY used his Yale speech and his news conference to outline his views on government-business cooperation and the possible result of an unbalanced budget.

"The solid ground of mutual confidence is the necessary partnership with all the sectors of our society in the steady quest for economic progress," he said at Yale.

He called it a myth that "federal deficits create inflation and budget surpluses prevent it . . . persistent deficits for the last several years have not upset our basic price stability."

At his news conference he elaborated, saying deficits are not necessarily harmful. He added that what the country must be concerned about is maintaining the vitality of the economy.

* * * *

KENNEDY said while most business men are Republicans traditionally, the important point is that they and all other groups recognize the necessity of the government working out a policy that will aid in generating economic growth.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg told a convention of the hatters union in New York "we are not anti-business and it is nonsense to believe that a president of the United States committed to our institutions can be."

Federal Budget Director David E. Bell said in New York spending and tax policies may have to be changed this year if the economy begins to lag seriously.

"The biggest question," he said, "is whether we are heading into a budget surplus too quickly."

Newly reported business statistics painted a mixed picture.

* * * *

SECRETARY OF Commerce Luther H. Hodges announced retail sales in May declined 1 per cent from April, corporate profits dropped in the first quarter and personal income showed a smaller-than-usual advance.

Even so, he said, over-all economic figures "still look awfully good." For the rest of the year he predicted good business but not full economic activity.

The Labor Department reported earnings of factory workers reached their highest peak in May and non-farm employment was the greatest for the month.

However, indications were for an increase in unemployment in June and a poorer-than-expected job situation in construction and soft goods manufacturing.

* * * *

WILLIAM McCHESNEY MARTIN, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said in an address to the Harvard Alumni Association that the United States needs to accelerate economic growth.

"The American economy today is at the highest level in our history, and it is still moving up," he said. "Yet, too many people are still unemployed, too much of our business structure is still operating below most efficient levels and our growing population needs more job and business opportunities.

"Growth has now become the focal point of attention in economic affairs because, if we can increase the size of the pie speedily and steadily enough, everyone can have a slice or a still larger slice, and none will have to yield any of his present share to his neighbors."

A SURVEY by the magazine Engineering News-Record indicated large companies are going ahead with spending plans despite the stock market slump. Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., was quoted as saying he considers the market adjustment a short-term affair and Ford spending plans are unchanged.

Ford, in a separate statement, predicted good automobile sales for the rest of this year and at least the first part of 1963. Earlier he had forecast sales of 6.9 million to 7 million cars which would make this year second only to 1955, when 7,169,908 were sold.

Sales in the first 10 days of June totaled 161,969, compared with 150,596 a year earlier. Production this week fell off to an estimated 147,000 from 150,077 last week but was well ahead of the 129,274 of a year ago.

THE SITUATION in the steel industry remained discouraging with production last week down for the 10th consecutive week. Mills turned out 1.58 million tons of steel, off 0.4 per cent from the previous week and representing about 52.5 per cent of estimated capacity.

Producers said indications are production will continue to decline for a while longer.

Bethlehem Steel Co., which received an order for 92,000 tons of steel pipe for a petroleum products pipeline, recalled 750 employes at its Steelton, Pa., plant.

Briefly around the business scene: Highway users paid a record $5.5 billion in state taxes last year . . . Actress Arlene Francis was elected a director of the 721 Corp., owner of the Bonwit Teller specialty store chain . . . National Cash Register Co. is introducing a battery-powered portable adding machine . . . Sears, Roebuck & Co's fall and winter catalog prices are up one-half of one per cent from a year earlier but unchanged from the spring catalog.

DUTY IN TOGO

Peace Corps Looking for Fishermen

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Wanted: Eight French-speaking fishermen to teach modern techniques in Togo. Should be hardy outdoor type. Apply at Peace Corps.

This call went out from the Peace Corps for what it said was perhaps its most unusual project to date.

The volunteers are needed to help ease a famine situation and to improve the fishing industry in Togo, Africa's smallest republic.

They will work for a man who gained Togolese President Sylvanus Olympio's confidence because he is, the corps said, "a practical man who brings a dried fish in and puts it on the president's desk when he wants to make a point."

Two of the experts will be based in Dacpango to help cultivate fish in the 400 small ponds, 40 reservoirs and several rivers in the north, where famine is feared.

* * * *

THE OTHERS will be assigned to Togoville and Anecho.

The Peace Corps fishermen will introduce new methods of smoking, salting, and drying fish, and demonstrate such techniques as trap fishing, gill netting, beam trawling and oyster culture.

Sybil Does Fine Job as 'Opal'

Sybil Reed's name isn't "Sybil" any more at Community Playhouse.

It's "Opal."

As smoothly as fingers ever slipped into a glove, she slips into the role of Opal, disheveled, warm-hearted collector of trash, in "Everybody Loves Opal," which opened Friday night at the Playhouse. She does some of the best acting seen hereabouts in many moons and she lifts the play from a "prank in three acts" to real drama.

Dolly O'Neil, who never has been in a play before but who is pretty and what the boys call "well-stacked" is the feminine member of the crook trio, aided by Bill Becker and Pat Waddick. All turn in competent performances, as does Michael Lakin, as the officer pal of Opal. Don Kroll does a lot with a bit part as a doctor. One of the funniest scenes of the play comes when the doctor examines Opal for the insurance.

Larry John directs. Ruth Crail, Elsie Crail and Janet Roach did a yoeman job of collecting the props for the play. —Vera Williams

HIGH COST OF LIVING DOLLS

Marilyn, Liz Cost 20th Century-Fox Studio Cool $12 Million--and the End Is Not in Sight

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Two beautiful females, perhaps the most expensive dolls in the world, have cost a major movie company $12 million thus far and the end is not in sight.

They are Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe. The battered studio is 20th Century-Fox, which is flirting with financial ruin.

Sickness and scandal have delayed the studio's "Cleopatra" for many months. Miss Taylor's escapades with Richard Burton and her delicate health have been responsible for increasing the cost of the picture from an estimated $20 million to $30 million or more. "Cleopatra" still is limping along.

* * * *

MISS MONROE'S continued absence from the set of "Something's Got to Give" forced 20th Century-Fox to scrap the picture at a loss of $2 million.

At the moment only one picture, "Celebration," is shooting on the lot, leaving the other stages empty and hundreds unemployed.

To staunch the heavy flow of dollars studio chiefs have cut scores of employes from almost every department at the studio and in its New York headquarters. Executives have taken hefty pay reductions.

* * * *

WALTER WANGER, producer of "Cleopatra," learned last week that he had been taken off salary although he continues in his post. Miss Taylor, however, continues to draw her handsome salary which already has far surpassed the million-dollar mark.

To make matters worse at the studio four of its network television shows were canceled this spring.

Gone are "Adventures In Paradise," Bus Stop," "Margie" and "Follow The Sun." Only "Dobie Gillis" continues shooting for next season.

ONE EXECUTIVE expressed fears that the studio may be forced to close temporarily, "thanks to the caprice of a couple of actresses who couldn't care less about the movie industry or their fellow workers."

* * * *

Still another 20th-Fox topper said:

It's the star system that has caused all the trouble. There is no point in our fighting with these people. We want to get the pictures finished.

"If we raise too much hell with some of those nitwits they'll never want to work for us again."

* * * *

A BULWARK of motion pictures during the early years of the television invasion, 20th Century-Fox has finally been victimized by ruthless stars who demand so much money it is difficult, if not impossible, for some pictures to show a profit.

Jerry Wald, a producer on the lot, says:

"There are between 15 and 20 top stars that everyone wants for their pictures. Between here and Europe there are 100 producers willing to meet their prices. So it's a seller's market.

"The stars know this and it is only natural that they are out to get all the money they can. It's human nature I guess.

* * * *

"THEY CAN'T keep all the money, but it is good for their egos. Each one wants to be known as the highest paid star in the movies, and that makes it pretty tough on the studios and independent producers."

Wald named off the stars who are in demand and who demand the highest prices—John Wayne, Rock Hudson, Kirk Douglas, Cary Grant, Tony Curtis, William Holden, Burt Lancaster, Frank Sinatra, James Stewart, Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor, Natalie Wood, Marlon Brando, Sophia Loren and Audrey Hepburn.

"There may be a few others," he added, "but major motion picture producers are dependent on this limited number of stars.

* * * *

THE interesting thing to me about that group is this—how many of them are 30 years old, and how many of them are over 50. None of them, with the exception of Natalie Wood, are youngsters anymore.

"I wish more of them would take Jimmy Stewart's attitude. He takes only a $200,000 guarantee for salary and a percentage of the profits, if there are any.

"But others, like Bill Holden, want a $750,000 guarantee going in. Liz demanded a million dollars for 'Cleopatra,' and Brando isn't very far behind. To me it is all out of reason."

* * * *

WALD SEES no solution to the problems except for development of new talent.

It was suggested that newcomers such as Warren Beatty arrive on the scene and within a picture or two are demanding almost as much as the older established stars.

"That's true," he agreed. "The only answer is for the studios to take a tip from baseball and develop their own farm systems so they have a constant supply of young bushleaguers coming up to star in major pictures.

CONSTRUCTION of a new $6,000,000 combination cargo and passenger terminal in Los Angeles Harbor is scheduled for completion early in 1963. This network of steel girders form part of the $1,500,000 cargo terminal of the structure while in the background is the two-story portion fronting the main channel.

THIS IS THE waterfront view of the big new cargo-passenger terminal in Los Angeles Harbor. The terminal will handle two large passenger liners or cargo ships at once.

Subject to the Palomar board's approval the American stockholders will exchange their shares for an undetermined number of Palomar shares. The Palomar board will consider the plan Wednesday.

Severin said that American Mortgage Services, which has headquarters in Costa Mesa, has a loan servicing portfolio of about $28 million. American has offices in several cities including Van Nuys. This would be a further penetration of the Los Angeles area, he added.

Under the terms American's president and treasurer, John A. Hess would join Palomar's administrative staff.

TRANS WORLD AIRLINES recorded a 33.3 per cent increase in revenue passenger miles on international routes during May plus a 1.7 per cent rise on domestic schedules, L. P. Marechal, vice president and general sales manager announced.

In May, TWA's 140 passenger jets flew 99,143,000 revenue passenger miles internationally compared to 74,394,000 the same month last year. Domestically, TWA flew 351,070,000 revenue passenger miles compared to 345,036,000 in May, 1961.

Operating revenues increased 29.3 per cent on international and 5.5 per cent on domestic flights, a combined 11 per cent revenue boost for TFA's entire system during May.

Marechal attributed the trans-Atlantic increases to a lessening of world tension plus new business attracted by TWA's economy group fares for travel to Europe.

Homes on P.E. Right-of-Way Planned for Newport Beach

Macco Realty Co., subsidiary of Macco Corp., one of the west's largest construction firms, will make another contribution to the fast-growing Orange County area by developing acres of prime real estate property in Newport Beach-Balboa.

The development of the Pacific Electric right-of-way in Newport Beach into 100 residential duplex homes was awarded to Macco Realty Co. in competition with at least 100 leading builders and developers in Southern California.

* * * *

THE RAILROAD has approved the acquisition of this property with Macco which will end the last trace of more than 50 years of rail service to Newport Beach. The Newport Line was originally a well-traveled link in Pacific Electric's system which, as early as 1904, had declared itself "The Greatest Electric Railway System on Earth."

John MacLood, chairman of the board for Macco announced that this new project is the result of combined planning and effort on the part of Macco Realty Co. (Macco's home building subsidiary) and Harbor Investment Co.

* * * *

PLANNING IS PRESENTLY underway to develop a $2,707,000 seashore colony of attractive residential duplex homes on 100 lots. These homes will be designed for both year-round living and as vacation homes with a minimum amount of maintainance. The development is located between 33rd Street and 57th Street and bounded on the west by Seashore Drive and on the northeast by Neptune Ave., within 200 feet of one of Southern California's most beautiful beaches.

As for Newport Beach, the Pacific Electric rails into the city have been removed and now it becomes Macco Realty Company's task to create the new subdivision. While this event signals the end of an era, it is also the beginning of a new phase of land utilization in one of Southern California's most desirable areas by a company who continues to realize greater volume and to enjoy a solid, secure reputation within the home building industry. Macco RealtyBeach-Balboa area with 411 Company now leads the build-lots presently under improveing industry in Newportment.

SEASHORE COLONY SITE

Macco Realty Co. announced it will build a seashore colony on the vacated Pacific Electric right of way, shown here, in Newport Beach.

Government Showing Concern Over Home Foreclosure Jump

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has officially expressed "concern over the rising number of home foreclosures."

Two agencies are teaming to find out what is behind the steady upward trend in home loan defaults. Their fondest hope: To discover a pattern in the foreclosures which will help lenders avoid making loans doomed to go sour.

The inquiry is being made in six major cities: Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York and Philadelphia.

Census Bureau employes are checking lenders' files for conventional loans foreclosed within the past year. After taking down pertinent information about the loans the bureau researchers will try to interview the borrower who couldn't keep up his payments.

• • • •

BASIC DATA on foreclosed FHA and VA loans has been obtained from those agencies.

The bureau is making the study for the Housing and Home Finance Agency. The agency has hoped to check on a dozen cities, but found that for the $50,000 it had available the Census Bureau could include only six. The survey is supposed to cover about 3,000 foreclosed mortgages.

Henry Schechter, head of the Housing Agency's division of housing analysis, is the economist in charge of the survey. He expects the basic information to be collected by late summer. Then will come several months of tabulation and study and finally a written report.

• • • •

LIKE MANY government officials, Schechter believes a major cause of the sharp rise in home loan foreclosures in recent years was an ebbing of inflationary pressures in the housing and land market. When prices were rising, it was easy for a home owner who fell behind in his payments to sell out and cover his delinquency. In a stable or declining market, the owner with only slight equity in his home avails himself little by selling.

Even thought it has been known for months that foreclosures climbed by 22,000 last year to a 21-year high of 73,074, no responsible official in government has seemed disturbed. When asked, several experts have dismissed the 1961 increase—and the upward trend of recent years—as a result of a slowdown in inflation. Always it was emphasized that even though rising, the total number of foreclosures is small in relation to the number of mortgaged homes.

• • • •

FINALLY, the Census Bureau announced it was making the study in response to concern over the increase.

There were about 20.2 million mortgaged, non-farm one-to four-family homes in 1961. The number of foreclosures amounted to 3.6 per 1,000 such dwellings, compared to a rate of 2.65 in 1960. A jump of 11,000 in FHA foreclosures accounted for half of the overall foreclosure rise.

The Census Bureau survey, Schechter is hopeful, will permit sketching of a composite picture of the home owner who defaults.

Penney Co. Sales Soar

NEW YORK—J. C. Penney Co's May sales set an all-time record to continue the pace of the preceding three months of the department store chain's 1962 fiscal year.

MAY MARKED the seventh straight month that sales of the 60-year-old retailer have reached all-time highs. Of the past 12 months, 11 have been record-breakers.

At the same time, the company announced that sales for the first four months of the fiscal year which began on Feb. 1 were 14 per cent more than for the same period in 1961. Sales for the period this year amounted to $461,765,980 against $405,004,267 a year ago.

The company had 1,689 stores in operation as of May 31 compared with 1,701 a year ago.

Six Double Patio Homes Ready Now in Golden West Estates

A GOLDEN WEST HOME
The beautiful front room of this model of a Golden West Estate overlooks the front entry patio at far right through large sliding glass doors.

"Six of our new double-patio homes have just been completed at Golden West Estates in Huntington Beach," announced Jim McCarthy, vice president of McCarthy Co., co-builders with Sant Construction Co.

"These new homes are clean, bright, and sparkling throughout—ready this minute to receive their buyers."

The popular Golden West double patio plan includes both a front entranceway court and a secluded side patio. • • • •

The homes may be purchased with FHA, conventional, or VA no-down-payment terms. Down payments from $875 accompany the 35-year, 5¼ per cent FHA terms, while conventional down payments range from $695. Pricing is from $17,800.

Quality features include: modern breakfast bar, ash kitchen cabinets, floor-to-ceiling sliding glass doors, forced-air heating, large service area and center entry hall.

Dads Get More Gifts Than Moms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fathers get more presents than anybody — which should console them while they dig in their jeans to pay for them.

A study reported by Bulova Watch Company, Inc., shows that, contrary to general belief, more gifts are given on Father's Day than Mother's Day. Mothers usually get somewhat more expensive presents, but in terms of numbers of gifts, Father's Day ranks next to Christmas and birthdays as the biggest gift occasion of the year.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT!

Miles P. Shook's "The Flintstone" has received much comment from viewers of the apartments at 2165 E. 21st St. in Signal Hill. Shook has built some unusual units in the past but this one is unique. Every apartment has a built-in electrically cooled beer keg, the "Tar Pit" is the big black swimming pool. Bright wild colors decorate the units and some have Chinese birdcage chairs that swing from the ceiling. There are 28 units in the new structure and all are rented, Shook said.

LAW IN THE NEWS

Different Deeds on Co-op Apartments

In large cities with a land shortage for regular homes you now find more and more "subdivisions" that look like skyscrapers. In fact they are skyscrapers. Such "cooperative" apartments have some features of old-fashioned home ownership.

Such apartments have different legal set-ups. Some are profit corporations. The owner gets building stock and a permanent lease. If you buy one of these you are a "tenant-owner," and have a right to use it as yours as long as you hold stock. You share in the expense of keeping up the halls, grounds, and the like. Directors elected by the tenant-owners run the place.

* * * *

ANOTHER set-up is a trust. Here a trustee owns and manages the building. Tenants have a permanent right to their apartments as trust beneficiaries.

More recently ownership is the "condominium," from ancient Roman law. The buyer owns the air space inside his apartment. All air space owners then jointly own the walls, hallways, and the building and elect the management.

Purchase agreements may restrict the use, sale, or transfer of ownership. Long contracts set forth the buyer's rights and duties.

* * * *

TENANT-OWNERS share financial responsibilities. Creditors who work on the building may have claim on the whole project. If one tenant-owner fails to keep up his maintenance costs, others may have to bear his share. In a condominum real estate taxes may be assessed on the whole building or on the separate units. If one tenant-owner fails to pay, a tax lien might well be put on the whole project.

Some co-operative apartments allow "owners" the right to sell only with the consent of the board of directors or of the stockholders.

Some usual terms: One may use the apartment only as a private home, the owner must keep the inside in good repair, and make major changes only with the director's consent. The directors might make house rules about noise, pets, the use of common facilities, etc.

Will Build Space Craft Air Monitor

Beckman Instruments, Inc., has received a $240,000 contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to design and build a miniaturized gas chromatograph — an instrument for chemical analysis and identification — to monitor the closed atmosphere of a manned spacecraft.

Walter Donner, project manager for Beckman's Scientific and Process Instruments Division, Fullerton, said the instrument will weigh less than 15 pounds, about one-tenth that of standard laboratory gas chromatographs, and will be less than 10 inches wide and high. The instrument will be delivered to NASA at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.

* * * *

DONNER SAID the instrument will be designed to separate and identify individual components of the atmosphere of a vehicle large enough to carry three men. He said it will monitor for oxygen, nitrogen, carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide and certain specific trace gases.

He said the instrument will monitor the atmosphere of the space vehicle automatically and continuously, and that any variation will be detected immediately, thus telling the astronauts of any change in their breathing supply before they themselves can detect it.

To Direct Marketing of Realty

Don McMullen has been named marketing director for the real estate firm of Walker & Lee, Inc., Frank R. Hart, executive vice-president, announced.

A long-time associate with Walker & Lee, McMullen has been active in the new house and resale division and presently manages a number of subdivisions in Orange County.

Don McMullen

"Southland builders and developers all look forward to a substantial upswing in residential sales, perhaps as much as 20 per cent during the next four months," McMullen said.

The executive added that the real challenge in his new post will be development of new business through predictive research of the homes market and working with builders and developers as subdivisions are opened to public purchase.

Walker & Lee sold 1,053 homes during the first quarter of this year, representing a 20 per cent increase over the same period in 1961, according to Hart.

The homes sold had a total dollar value of nearly $23,000,000 for the period to reflect sales in Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura counties.

Crowds See New Store

Highly successful was the two-day grand opening Friday and Saturday of Ritner Furniture, 6414 E. Spring St. in the Plaza Shopping Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ritner, the owners, said the crowds exceeded expectations by far. The new owners were associated with McMahon's Furniture Stores 20 years before opening their own. The store carries a complete line of home furnishings in both early American and modern styles as well as appliances, carpeting, patio furniture TV and radio sets.

Garden Park Estates Has Wide Range of Plans, Size

FIREPLACE IN BEDROOM
Charming bedroom shown is in one of the new two-story luxury homes in Garden Park Estates' all-new unit at Knott Avenue and Garden Park Estates. The second-floor master bedrooms as well as the spacious living rooms have fireplaces.

Boasting an exciting selection of diverse one and two-story contemporary and conventional elevations, Garden Park Estates' new unit of luxury homes also presents an exceptionally wide choice of floor plans ranging from two bedrooms with den to five bedrooms, officials of this community at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway report.

This five-bedroom is the handsome two-story dwellings just introduced into Garden Park Estates "family" of attractive homes. A true two-story design (not a "split-level"), these homes are created for today's larger families.

From the inviting entry hall the stairway rises to the three bedrooms and bath on the second floor where the master bedroom has its own charming fireplace. The first floor is designed so that the other two bedrooms are away from the areas of activity and the second bath is convenient to the entire first floor. There is a front facing kitchen and dining room and the spacious living room overlooks the garden area. The living room as well as the master bedroom, has a fireplace.

• • • •

ATTRACTIVE features included in Garden Park Estates' new one and two-story homes list sliding walls of glass, forced-air heating and luxurious baths with Italian mosaic tile, colored plumbing fixtures and pullman lavatories. Kitchens have built-in color-matched gas wall oven and range with matching hood, light and fan, semi-automatic dishwasher, natural ash cabinets and countertops of colorful superamic tile.

Flexible financing includes veterans terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs or Cal-Vet loans; and for non-veterans, excellent conventional loans or choice of 30 and 35-year FHA loans. Full prices are from $17,800.

Furnished models are reached from Long Beach by driving east on Seventh St. past Long Beach State College to the corner of Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway.

Handicapped Taught Building Designing

A group of nine handicapped veterans at the Long Beach Veterans Hospital are learning a new profession in what is believed to be the only course of its type available to patients in hospitals throughout the country.

Under the guidance of Joe W. Passero, a Long Beach building designer and originator of the unique class, the men are obtaining practical experience in the building design field during a free once-a-week evening class in the manual arts section of the facility's physical medicine and rehabiliation service.

Students, include an electrical contractor who was injured when he crashed his airplane; a crane operator who suffered an on-the-job accident and a forest ranger, are only taught the "basics" of the building design profession, Passero said.

* * * *

"WE'RE NOT TRYING to make 90-day wonders for our profession—it simply can't be done," he commented.

However, initial graduates, who are in the hospital's spinal cord injury and amputee sections, can look forward to a job procurement service set up by the Long Beach AIBD group.

Importance of the program, which is not specifically offered to place a student in a building design position, is pointed out by the fact that the building design course for hospitalized veterans is a pilot class and is being eyed with interest by the Veterans Administration.

Earl Clifton, chief of manual arts therapy for the Long Beach VA Hospital commented, "This is a tremendous thing Passero has started here and the interest in the course has spread through the hospital."

* * * *

THERE IS A VERY good possibility the course may be given in other U.S. veteran's hospitals' rehabilitation and vocational programs, Clifton said.

The initial course will last from four to six months.

Assisting Passero, vice president of the Long Beach chapter of AIBD, is Robert Greig, himself a past president of the Long Beach Chapter.

Other members of the Long Beach AIBD chapter act as instructors in the event Passero or Greig can't attend a class session. All teaching services are free and on volunteer basis.

As soon as the first class is finished, another will be launched. And with reason—there's a waiting line for "next semester."

Win Realty Honor Again

Two men who had won the honors twice already this year, took the awards for multiple listings for May, the Board of Realtors announced through Lawrence Toner, contest chairman.

Joseph A. Messina, Realtor, with offices at 76 Atlantic Ave., secured the most listings and "Ric" Owen, with the Rex L. Hodges Co., made the most sales.

MESSINA, a native of Massachusetts, came to Long Beach in 1954 and operated a restaurant and bar several years. He received his broker's license in 1961. Charles Persinger is associated with him.

Owen, who has a record of over $10 million in real estate sales during 10 years with the Hodges Co., works out of the downtown office. He attributes much of his sales success to his dedicated confidence in the future of California real estate and particularly the growth value of Long Beach property.

Big Luxury Homes Will Unveil Today

Spectacular ocean views will greet home seekers today as Seaview Terrace unveils newly completed models, it was announced by Smith, Wilson & Kleefeld, builders of the custom-type residences.

Seaview Terrace comprises 20 homes of two-story and split-level designs fronting on Paseo de la Playa near that street's intersection with Palos Verdes Ave. in the Hollywood Riviera, just north of Palos Verdes Estates.

The uniqueness of a private beach for each home is vieing for viewers' favor with floor plans offering 3,100 square feet of actual living area, the builders stated. Unobstructed view of the surf below, as well as of nearby palisades and city skyline, characterize the setting.

* * * *

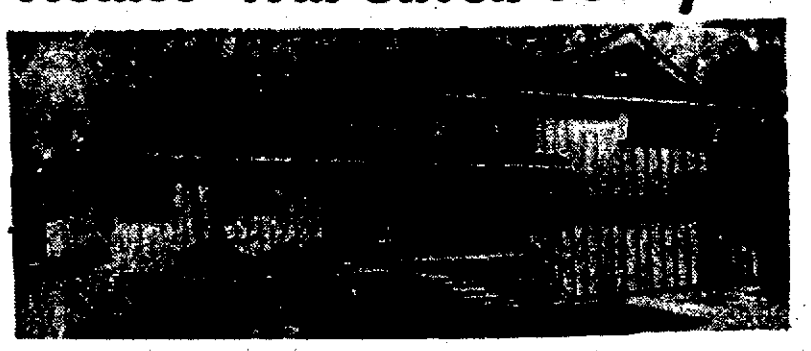

TO KEEP SOARING land costs in the picturesque location from influencing home purchase price, the models are being sold on land-lease arrangement, it was noted. The homes are being sold from $39,950, with 10 per cent down payment, the buyer obtaining a long-term use of the land site by paying only the equivalent of interest charges. Families with $18,000 or more annual income qualify for the terms, it was stated.

All Seaview Terrace models offer four bedrooms, three baths and two fireplaces finished with dolomite, Palos Verdes or "driftwood" stone. Bedrooms of some models boast a third fireplace of travertine design.

* * * *

TWO-STORY STYLINGS feature a first-floor terrace and a roof garden, both facing the ocean and extending the full width of the house. A front patio adds to indoor-outdoor enjoyment. Split-level models feature double terraces, which may be entered via sliding glass walls from living room, family room and master bedroom.

Seaview Terrace is reached from Long Beach by taking Pacific Coast Hwy. (101) West to Elena Ave. (Just beyond the Plush Horse Inn) and turn left. Then follow left to Catalina which becomes Palos Verdes Blvd. Continue 1 mile to Paseo de la Playa where you turn right to models.

IN SEAVIEW TERRACE Homes with 3,100 square feet of living area, on lots directly overlooking the ocean and sloping down to private beaches, are being offered in the Hollywood Riviera. Home sales are being directed exclusively to families with $18,000 minimum annual income.

Attorney to Talk on Estate Taxes

Norman Rasmussen, local attorney and CPA, will address the Estate Planning and Trust Council of Long Beach at the final meeting of the year Thursday at the Petroleum Club. Rasmussen will discuss preparation of the federal estate tax return and calculation of the gross taxable estate.

Also scheduled is the election of officers. Robert A. Fenberg, Frank D. Lawrie and Charles P. Boyer have been nominated for the offices of president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

161 Huntington Village Homes Are Open Today

OFFERED IN HUNTINGTON VILLAGE

Grand opening of Huntington Village's Unit 10 will be held today with furnished and decorated models open for the public's inspection. Unit 10 is a new edition of the famed Sea Breeze series of big three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes.

Grand opening of unit 10 in the Huntington Village Sea Breeze series of homes will be held today, according to Dan Mytinger, sales manager for the building and development firm of Doyle and Shields.

"The 161 new three and four-bedroom homes of unit 10 join more than 800 homes already occupied in the Huntington Village community," Mytinger said, "and in keeping with the Doyle and Shields policy of constantly improving their homes, new features have been incorporated into the unit 10 homes, such as: RCA Whirlpool dishwasher is now standard in these homes (joining the RCA Whirlpool built-in range and oven); gas log lighters in the fireplaces; built-in phone outlets; glass-lined water heaters; custom slate entryways; and new exteriors and floor plans are but a few of the many additional features in the new homes."

* * * *

THESE ADDITIONS join the outstanding features previously found in Huntington Village Homes: Big family room and living room, two baths with marble pullman tops, wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, halls and master bedroom, central forced air heat, all rooms color-coordinated, including the big, roomy kitchen with ample counter and cabinet space to go with the RCA appliances in decorator colors, plus a host of others.

"The new homes in Unit 10" Mytinger went on, "will sell from $395 down, plus costs, with full prices starting at $17,150. The down payment includes a grant deed to the property and title insurance. There are no due dates or balloon payments."

* * * *

"OUR IDEAL location," Mytinger continued, "has had much to do with the unique success of the Huntington Village community. We're just minutes away from Southern California's finest beaches and newest small boat harbors; the Meadowlark Country Club is adjacent to us, a new shopping center, with a major market, is within walking distance of most of our community's homes. There are grade schools within the community with children walking to school on streets engineered for their maximum safety; a new high school will be located adjacent to Huntington Village; and the new immense Douglas Aircraft Co.'s research and development center is to be built within one mile of us.

To visit the model homes from Long Beach, drive east on Seventh St. to Golden West, turn right to Edinger, right on Edinger to Springdale, then left a short distance.

Homes for Retired Are Now Selling

The third unit of Sun Park Retirement Homes was opened recently in Hemet.

Constructed by Frazar Brothers, Inc., experienced builders, these are custom quality homes that invite comparison. Home buyers today are finding great differences in the quality of location, design, construction, total costs and other factors of great importance to those selecting homes for their retirement years, a spokesman says.

Results of research showing a preference by those of retirement age for smaller communities placed near established cities, the size of Sun Parks has been limited, the most recent having 116 homes. All these homes have access to the recreational area and it is here residents find complete facilities for entertainment and community activities. The air conditioned clubhouse has a kitchen, fireplace, hobby shop, billiard room, and facilities for all forms of indoor recreation and entertainment. Surrounding the clubhouse is a large recreation area with shuffleboard, croquet, and bocci ball courts, barbeques, putting green, and horseshoes as well as a large heated swimming pool.

Located at State and Johnston Sts., just a few blocks from downtown Hemet, the recreation center and three furnished model homes are now open.

Pacific Sands Ideal for Home Near Surf

Home seekers with a zest for California Beach living are delighted with the advantages offered by Pacific Sands, a private residential community located just one minute from the ocean in Huntington Beach, according to Ben Deane, speaking for Deane Brothers and N. J. Brock and Sons, builders of the homes.

"The homes, priced as much as $5,000 less than the present market, are available in 26 models ranging from two to four bedroom with multiple baths, priced as low as $13,500 up to $19,950 for the luxury two-story model," Deane explained. In further describing the homes Deane stated, "The homes offer luxury items such as mahogany paneling in the living room, wall-to-wall carpeting, sliding glass doors, birch cabinets in the kitchen, oversize two-car garages, some with boat doors, and many other quality features not usually found in the Pacific Sands price range.

* * * *

"THE MOST outstanding and eagerly awaited feature of the development is the Pacific Sands Cabana Club and Community Recreational Area which will be opened in early July. The Cabana Club features an Olympic-size swimming pool, tennis courts, children's playground, shuffleboard, cook-out facilities and a spacious Clubhouse for meetings, dancing and parties. There is no initiation fee to first buyers."

Deane Brothers were recently awarded The American Builder's Magazine "Grand First Award" for 1962 for one of the Pacific Sands Homes.

The homes are located on Beach Blvd (Hwy. 39), one-½ mile north of Pacific Coast Hwy. Signs will direct interested viewers to the furnished models.

It's Reigning Dads and Dogs

So you're tainking of getting a dog! Sounds simple, doesn't it? And maybe it is if you don't give a thought to tomorrow.

But if you're an apartment dweller, you're liable to find that the cute pup of today becomes the ponderous behemoth that threatens to crowd you right out of your home tomorrow.

Or that the equally cute-pup the boys expected to hound over your ranch acreage with them as they hunted rabbits, turns into a timid, 10-inch prancing little darling as an adult. So a little discretion now may lead to a happier situation in the family a few months hence.

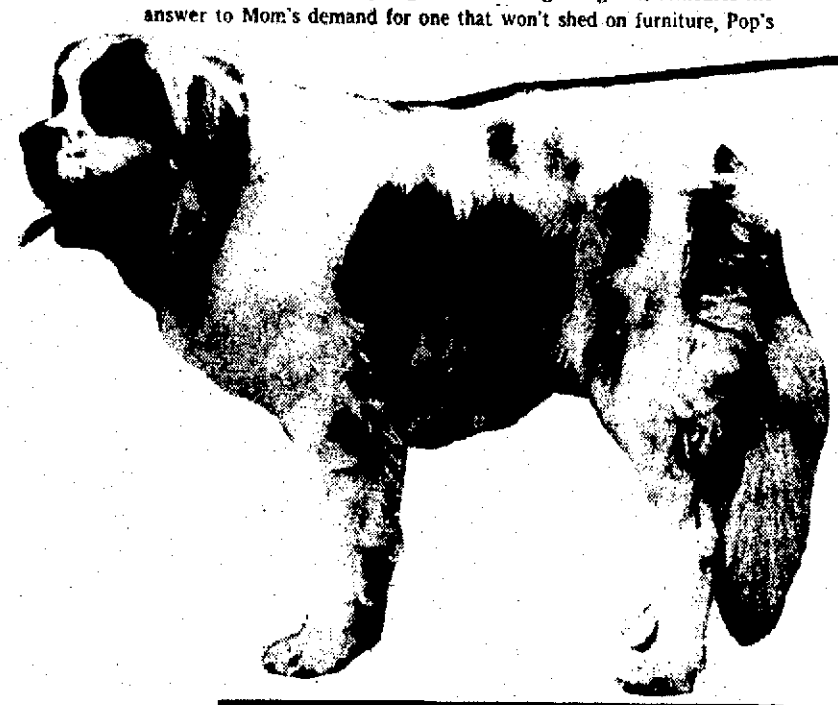

What do you do? Of course you might go from dog owner to dog owner asking questions. You might, that is, if you had nothing else to do for a couple of months. There are more than 100 different breeds of dogs on the American Kennel Club rolls.

Well, then, how DO you go about finding a dog that combines the answer to Mom's demand for one that won't shed on furniture, Pop's desire for a hunting companion, Junior's wishes for one that will romp with him and sister's hopes for a cuddly playmate?

* * * *

ON THIS FATHER'S DAY, as Dad and the family ponder the problem, Long Beach dads have the easy answer . . . and the one recommended by the professionals. They can plan to go to a dog show and do the job right.

Next weekend (June 23-24) brings the second largest dog show in the United States to Long Beach. Some 2,500 prize blueblooded dogs of at least 90 different breeds will be on hand at the 27th annual Harbor Cities Kennel Club all-breed dog show and obedience trials.

Independent-Press-Telegram
Women
LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JUNE 17, 1962 SECTION W

Show site will be 15 acres adjacent to Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

So going to the show, we thought, solved the problem without further ado . . . but quickly found it still isn't as simple as that. "To do the job really right," frowned our old-pro consultant, "there are some things you first must know. Otherwise you're liable to get awfully confused."

* * * *

THE DOG WORLD is divided into six parts. The names of the six alone permit a quick preliminary job of elimination.

Under "sporting breeds," for example, come such dogs as pointers, retrievers, setters, spaniels and weimaraners. "Hounds" run the gamut of perhaps 20 varieties, most with hound somewhere in their names.

Then there are "working breeds" encompassing boxers, collies, dobermans, Great Danes, St. Bernards, German shepherds and 20 or so others. The classification "terriers" speaks for itself—more than 20 of them. "Toy breeds," too, hardly need further explanation . . . they're the little fellows of a host of types.

And finally comes "non-sporting breeds" where you encounter bulldogs, chows, Dalmations and several others.

With that as a starting point and a preliminary elimination made, you're ready to advance on the exhibition where the horde of canine aristocrats of every sort, all groomed to the ultimate degree, await you. In the case of the massive Long Beach show, some breeds await you on Saturday, the balance on Sunday.

* * * *

FIRST THING to do is drop by the show superintendent's office and pick up a schedule of judging. At various hours, the dogs of each particular breed enter a show ring and go through their paces for the

THERE'S NO RESISTING Kabu, and happy to be taken in tow by the handsome St. Bernard are Cecil Evans and his daughters Mary, 11, and Gale, 8. These mammoth dogs are famed for life-saving work on Swiss Alps; make wonderful pets, too. This one is owned by Edward McCarthy, Long Beach.

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH Johnny (Champion John William of Cypress, no less) are Attorney Bob Bergmann, daughter, Gretchen, 19 months, son, Christian, 3. They have just learned that although Johnny is officially called a silky terrier, he nonetheless is classified as a member of the toy breeds, information of importance to prospective buyer. Experts on all breeds will answer your questions next weekend during huge Long Beach Dog Show.

SEEING EYE TO EYE, and loving every minute of it, are young dog-shopper David Griffiths, 5, and a golden retriever by name of Young Clyde of Golden Veil, a member of dogdom's sporting breed. OK, Clyde, you've completely captivated Dave, now better turn your charm on the others; Karen, 4, and dad, Dr. Robert Griffiths. Dad looks like he'd go for a retriever but Karen appears doubtful.

LENDING AN EAR is no problem at all for prize winning beagle, field champion Vi Jo's Hardly Able . . . "Abe" for short. Here he demonstrates what a good listener he is as Mottell Peek, his young charmers, Abigail, 4½, and Amanda, 3½, chat with him (Amanda pressing for his attention somewhat). Affable Abe and his brother beagles are classified as hound dogs in canine world.

BEWARE OF THE PUPPIES! They'll steal your heart every time. Then the difficult part comes—choosing between them when each is irresistible. Even the rational approach of science tends to be shaken when a cuddly puppy looks you in the eye. So discovered Robert Henderson, professor of chemistry at Long Beach State College when he held the miniature poodle, L'aprico. His dilemma is shared by daughter Katy, 11, who has succumbed to wiles of silky terrier, Willy. There'll be many other charmers at dog show.

Planning Begins for Deb Ball

Junior League of Long Beach will present 11 outstanding young ladies at its Debutante Ball Dec. 29 in Pacific Coast Club.

Purpose of the deb event is two-fold: to give a gracious family party during the Christmas season and to provide money for Community Trust Fund which finances community service projects sponsored by the league.

Debutantes and their mothers will be honored at a tea in the garden of Mrs. James Wood's home Thursday. Table decorations will consist of pink flowers surrounding a fountain from Venice. Mrs. Harriet Wood will provide background music on the harp.

* * * *

JOINING the honorees and mothers in the receiving line will be Mmes. James Kresl, Junior League president; Donald Wallace Jr., ball committee chairman; James Wood, debutante coordinator, and Clare Hamman, ball coordinator.

Ball precedure and plans were discussed last Friday when presentees and mothers met at a get-acquainted coffee in the home of Mrs. Hamman.

Debutantes and parents are Sharon Elizabeth Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davidson; Bonnie Demler, Mr. and Mrs. Edison J. Demler; Eileen Desmond, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Desmond; Jorie Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Eastwood; Mary Fontana, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Fontana; Carol Jean Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hancock.

Also Patricia Farrell Horan, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Horan Jr.; Kathryn Reed, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Reed; Sandra Ruth Silk, Capt. and Mrs. Francis W. Silk; Sandra Weissker, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Weissker; and Emily Wiltse, Dr. and Mrs. Leon L. Wiltse.

"RELAX, IT'S A BALL—that's all," says Dr. Arthur Buell as he and Mrs. Donald C. Wallace Jr., debutante ball chairman, show two nervous dads of debs-to-be how to pace-out a presentation. Dr. Buell has flurry of Junior League Debutante Ball behind him by a year as his daughter made her debut last December. Daughters of (far right) Capt. Francis W. Silk and Dr. Leon L. Wiltse will make their bow Dec. 29 at Pacific Coast Club. So, to shine as debs' dads, Capt. Silk and Dr. Wiltse are practicing ball protocol. Each will have pleasant duty of escorting daughter.

judges who, incidentally, are coming here from as far away as Australia, Canada, Mexico and various eastern states.

After judging, the dogs return to their benches and remain on exhibition. When one or another strikes your fancy, jot down the number worn by the handler in the ring. There's a show catalogue in which corresponding numbers indicate where to find him on the benches. The catalogue also gives name of dog, other information.

Don't be timid; go to the benching areas and talk to the dog's owner or handler . . . ask all the questions you like.

The exhibitors expect and welcome such inquiries. These people will probably know where pups can be obtained either immediately or at some future date.

* * * *

IN GENERAL, the toys, terriers and non-sporting breeds will occupy the Saturday show here, with the sporting breeds, hounds and working classifications appearing on Sunday. Both days will have champion parades, obedience trials and numerous other activities.

So there you are and we hope you find just the companion you want. We're strictly neutral. You can criticize the human members of a family, with discretion, and survive as a friend. But say a derogatory word about a dog and you're in trouble! So we hereby solemnly state that we think they're all wonderful up to and including that little fellow down the street without benefit of any pedigree at all.

It's just a case of fitting the family to the dog and the dog to the family.

S.F. Opera Sets L.A. Season

San Francisco Opera will open its 26th Los Angeles season Oct. 26 in Shrine Auditorium with Puccini's "La Boheme." Victoria de Los Angeles, Spanish soprano, will sing the role of Mimi: Marilyn Horne will portray Musetta and Sandor Konya, Rodolfo.

The company has completed casts for the 21 performances of 14 operas to be given.

FROM POLITICS TO P-T.A.

The Mayor Is a Very Busy Mrs.

By MARY NETH

Bellflower's mayor is a Mrs.

A very busy Mrs.

She heads the council (all men), signs the proclamations (about one a week), attends groundbreaking ceremonies and banquets (sometimes two to a day) and still manages to remain (at all times) the picture of calm dignity.

Some might think being a mayor a man-sized job, not Ruth Caruthers. It ties right in with her two main interests: city government,—Bellflower in particular, and civic leadership,—women in general.

For Bellflower she has big plans. Included, a try for the All American City Award.

"It's not so important to win as to enter," says Mayor Caruthers. "It's a fine way of upgrading existing programs and adding new ones.

"The main thing is progress."

* * * *

AND PROGRESS is the key to her interest in women politicos, too. She thinks gals in government are a must for the future.

"We might be further along today if the fair sex had been given a fair chance," she says.

She holds that women are particularly qualified for civic work: tend to be more thoughtful about social welfare, have a seventh sense (in understanding people) that men don't possess.

"But, to win leadership status they'll have to live down lots of pet (male, of course) preconceptions."

Men tend to believe women too talkative, too petty, too willy-nilly for work which takes concentration and stamina.

"Not true," says Mayor Caruthers. And, Bellflower councilmen vote right along with her. In fact, they voted her right into office.

"Here we elect five councilmen and they in turn elect the mayor from among their ranks," she explains.

* * * *

AS MAYOR Mrs. Caruthers will try to see Bellflower, which incorporated in '57, through its transition from a quiet rural area to a boomingly busy city.

And she takes the responsibilities of this gavel wielding work very seriously. "It's not like running a home or a business," she says. "A wrong decision in government affects not few, but many innocent parties."

How did this Mayor Mrs. first get into government?

By dint of lots of civic, social and community work.

"No matter how good your ideas, how well suited you might be to civic office, you can't get in unless you're elected and you can't get elected unless you are known."

* * * *

HER ADVICE to feminine office seekers. "Be a joiner. Become well known as a good worker at the organizational level."

Mrs. Caruthers has done that and more. A schoolteacher for 18 years, she's been active in every facet of community work one could name from P-T.A. to running a business of her own for more than 10 years.

She campaigned on a platform of economy, honesty, and far-sightedness and she's standing firm on just that.

Whether it's throwing the first ball for the Little League play-off or setting up a committee to unsnarl traffic, she's always in there pitching.

Mayor Ruth Caruthers

Mrs. Moore to Head Benefit

Mrs. George Moore of Long Beach has been appointed general chairman for Alpha Chi Omega's sixth annual fashion benefit luncheon to be given Nov. 8 in the International Ballroom of the Beverly Hilton Hotel. Don Loper will be the fashion designer for the "Magic in Motion" show.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

IT WAS A nice and Lohengrin kind of night Saturday and star of the party "show" was Civic Light Opera favorite Betty Burkett. Don't recognize the name? It was Betty Kimber before she and Bill Burkett eloped to Las Vegas.

"Elopers"

After friends were able to get their mouths out of the oh-is-for-surprise position they quickly broke into smiles. Then party plans began with Jessie Lee and Dr. Don Malcolm feting the newlyweds at a cocktail buffet last evening, co-hosted by Jackie and Harvey Waggoner and June and Jim Doherty.

With the guests leaning largely to the talented musical sort, you can be sure the rafters rang with plenty of the old ring-a-ding, ranging from a touch of Mendelssohn to a lot of Rogers and Hammerstein.

KISSIN' cousins of blazing excitement today are LBSC coeds bound for a fabulous summertime trip. Diane Eldred, Kitty McCoy and Melody Carr leave by plane Monday for New York where they'll board a Norwegian ship bound for Copenhagen.

Diane will then fly to Helsinki, where she will be guest of Marja Ryona, Miss Finland in our IBC contest last year and a guest at that time of Diane and her parents, Mae and Cliff Eldred.

Kitty and Melody both have signed up for summer studies at Oslo University. All three of the girls are planning to rendezvous for travels around the continent before they return next fall. Sharon Hunt is flying over June 30 with hopes to join the others for at least part of the summer.

* * * *

AN AROUND the world trip deserves a special bon voyage. For teen-agers Carol and Linda Hancock, a pre-travel highlight was the breakfast party given for them by good friend Roberta Pettit and her mother, Betty (Mrs. George) Pettit last Sunday at Virginia Country Club. The girls, with their parents, Bea and John Hancock, fly to New York to board the S.S. France for Europe. They'll fly, a la Carpenter only closer to the ground, clear around, returning home in September.

* * * *

BEFORE SHE knew what was happening to her Thursday night, Anne Stanley was in the midst of a surprise bon voyage party in her honor. The shindig was arranged by her son and daughter-in-law, Jack and Lee Stanley, to give Anne's trip to Europe (she leaves June 30) a proper sendoff. Guests included Zela and Gene Dodge, who came down from Bakersfield for the affair, Janet MacIntyre of Pasadena (all formerly of Long Beach), Pat and Walt Gilkey, Elizabeth Gibson and Alice Driver.

BOUQUETS to the Long Beach Yacht Club which played gracious host to the many participants from the world of entertainment in last weekend's celebrity golf tournament. And believe thee me, that doesn't hurt little old Long Beach's reputation one bit with a bunch of people who, if they choose, can be plenty good press agents.

"Famous funsters"

The Yacht Club offered all courtesies of the clubhouse to the visitors and boy, did they take advantage of them!

Saturday night found the club bulging with famous faces, Desi Arnaz took to the drums like a duck to water, spurring on a gala until - closing - hour party. Player-stars and sportswriters who mingled with the regulars included Buddy Rogers, John Payne, Curt Massey, Forrest Tucker, Jerry Wynn, Al Larson, Jack La Laine, Sid Miller and Tony Martinez, to name a few.

IT'S A garden party luncheon, see? Being also St. Mary's Hospital Guild's annual installation of officers, it's all a very swish, swank dress-up day for members and most graciously being given in the home of Ferrel (Mrs. Richard) Schug.

So the ladies are sitting there, see, in their Sunday best with everyone being so gay and polite to each other and all when without a word of warning from the weatherman it started to rain pitchforks. Someone forgot to mention about the ladies to the automatic sprinkling system.

Well, you never saw ladies turn into girl athletes so fast in your life with Ferrel fastest of all, racing against the rainbirds to the turn-off point. In fact, she unofficially set a new record for the 15-yard dash. The ladies? Wet. But not madder than.

YIKES AND YOWPS!

Have you talked to Fran Cavaliere since her return from St. Louis? She drove back to see daughter, Bunny, graduate from university there, her car packed with her nicest clothes, best jewelry, graduation gifts plus gifts that had been given her, personally.

Well, she parked out front of Bunny's dormitory and ran in to announce her arrival. She wasn't gone more than 10 or 15 minutes but when she returned her car (which had been locked) was bare. Fran stood there with just the wig she was wearing and what she had on. As if that wasn't bad enough, her itinerary included traveling on to Detroit for a bang-up reunion of her sorority's alumnae. Now how could a woman face the old crowd with just a wig and one dress? She couldn't, naturally. There was hasty shopping in St. Louis.

The thieves were seen but not apprehended. At least it was clear that they were teen-age boys; not members of the Shop in Downtown St. Louis or Else Association.

FITNESS AFTER FORTY

Boost Strength, Tune Body

By BEN ZINSER

An exercise program that requires only 90 minutes a week can boost your strength and endurance by 175 to 200 per cent in only six weeks a doctor said during a visit to Long Beach.

The program, developed by the Illinois State Medical Society, draws upon the latest research findings relating to exercise, according to Dr. Clement G. Martin, Chicago, medical director of Continental Casualty Co.

Dr. Martin, now on tour of the country to explain his firm's "Fitness after Forty" program, said that a jump rope is the only piece of equipment needed.

* * * *

OLDER PERSONS can safely perform the exercises, provided they start out slowly and not overdo, he said.

"Many of us are killing ourselves with inactivity," Dr. Martin said. "An exercise program such as this can tune up the body and in many instances bring down blood pressure of those with high blood pressure."

The three-point "minimum maintenance of fitness" program employs six exercises to build strength and a jump-rope and running schedule to increase endurance.

The strength exercises include those scientifically known as isometric exercises. They pit one muscle group against another.

* * * *

DR. MARTIN said that the greatest strength gain results from one maximum muscle effort of 30 seconds or less while performing each of the six exercises.

Three times a week is sufficient for the performance of these exercises (see cuts), Dr. Martin said. However, five times a week is preferable.

At the outset, strength will increase at the rate of 5 per cent a week.

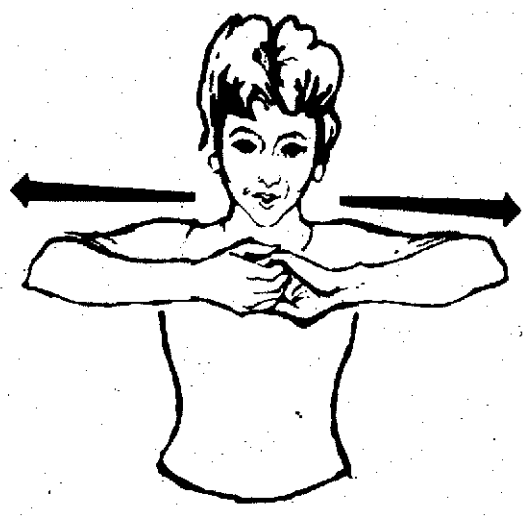

The rest of the program calls for five minutes of jumping rope three days a week plus 20 minutes of running.

* * * *

A FREE BOOKLET tells how to work up to 20 minutes of running at a time, and also describes the exercises in detail. It also explains how to tell whether or not you're exercising too strenuously.

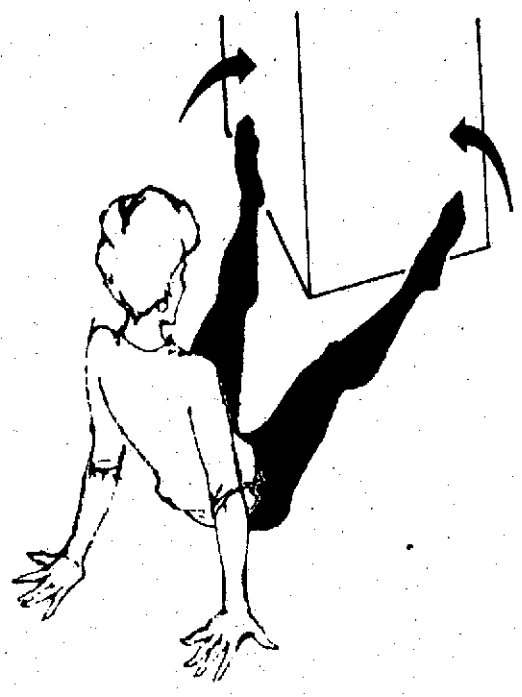

Dr. Martin said the pamphlet, "Fitness After Forty," may be obtained by writing Continental Casualty Co., 310 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Dr. Martin says that exercise, combined with good nutrition and periodic medical examinations, can increasse longevity. As for diet, he recommends the eating of less meat, more fish and poultry and more unsaturated fats (vegetable oils).

HANDS AGAINST HANDS

To develop upper chest, hold interlocked hands at chest level with arms up and elbows straight out. Push as vigorously as you can. Then reverse the direction and pull as hard as possible.

FEET AGAINST WALL

Sit on floor before door, attempt to push out jamb with feet, letting structure resist. Shift to a corner with one foot on either side of wall (right). Pull legs together, letting structure resist.

Convention Is Scheduled

Long Beach chapters of Kappa Delta Phi, non-academic sorority, will attend its national convention at Hotel Fort Des Moines, Des Moines, Iowa, Thursday.

Members attending from Eta Alpha Chapter will be Mmes. Gordon Gann, national vice president and candidate for national president; Germaine Harris, D. R. Jackson and W. R. Martin. Mrs. Claude Vatter will represent Eta Pi Chapter.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Path Is Boulder Strewn

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school junior and am in love with a 19-year-old boy. He says he loves me and wants to marry me as soon as I finish school. The only things stopping us are age, religion and money. I am Catholic and he is Jewish. His parents are so mad at him they don't even want to meet me, and mine are also against our marriage. He still doesn't know what line of work he is going to follow, but can get most any kind of selling job because he has a nice appearance and a gift of gab. Do you think we have a chance of making a go of marriage?—SUE (not my real name)

ABBY

DEAR SUE: If you and your boy friend are two in a million, you can make it. But I'd advise you to WAIT! Neither one of you is equipped for marriage. And money, and the blessings of your parents are very important.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for three years and I feel like nothing but an unpaid housekeeper. When we go grocery shopping, I sit in the car and my husband goes in with the grocery list. I am not allowed to have a milkman or a bread man. I haven't been to a beauty parlor since we've been married. Abby, what's a woman supposed to do when she looks like a sheep dog and is kept practically bare footed?—BLUE

DEAR BLUE—A man who keeps his wife broke, looking like a sheep dog and practically bare-footed is sick upstairs—and a woman who holds still for this kind of abuse is sicker than he is.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor and I have a complaint. Every week-end two religious fanatics come to our doors and try to preach to us. They have magazines and pamphlets and they want us to stop everything and let them read to us from the Bible. Now we have nothing against these people or their religion, but why do they try to preach to the people who have their own religions and are not interested? We've tried telling them in a nice way that we haven't time, but this doesn't seem to discourage them. Then next week another pair comes and we have the same thing to do all over again. What can we do?—ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: They are probably sincere people who are dedicated to their religion and want to spread the gospel. If you tell them frankly that you are not interested, you will not be bothered again.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "N": Don't be naive. A man doesn't have to travel to stray. If he's so inclined, he can manage it on his lunch hour.

Vicki's in Good Form—Fashion, Too

She 'n Skis Fly Off to Japan

By Mary Ellis,
I. P-T Fashion Editor

TEEN-AGE VICKI VAN HOOK, shown during slalom course run, is holder of 12 national, two international water ski titles. She began skiing at age of 8; at 18 is traveling to Japan to give instruction to Nippon skiers.

Vicki's Tips for Tyros

For the novice water skier, Vicki Van Hock has a few important bits of advice:

1. Be sure to have a competent "boat driver." Even a good skier can be dunked by a person not accustomed to towing a skier.

2. As to type of water skis the beginner should have, this depends on person's height and weight, also the type of boat used. Example: behind an outboard motor boat, the skier needs a wider ski.

3. Most common mistake by tyros is the tendency to pull too hard on the rope. Result: a prompt spill.

4. In the proper position, the skier's knees are bent, the ski tips lifted a bit, the arms are straight forward.

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

About-to-be-18 Vicki Van Hook is going places in the world. Again, that is.

This time to Japan. And with water skis yet.

But this is par for the slalom course. Vicki's been going places on skis since 11, when she won her first title (national trick ski champion) during competitions at Lakeland, Fla.

That, of course, shattered a record—quite a few skiers, too. She was youngest femme ever to swish off with that—or most any—national title.

Now, 12 national and two world championships and 350 trophies later (she was woman's world champion at 15 — another record), Vicki is off to demonstrate her prowess to would-be champions on the other side of the world.

* * * *

QUITE A FEAT—and treat—for a teen-ager who just this week received her high school diploma during commencement exercises at Poly High.

And what an outgoing way to commence after-high-school days . . . with a flying trip to Japan just three days after graduation.

How did she ski jump into such an international opportunity?

It all started last summer at the VII World Water Ski Tournament when Vicki met Kimiko Shiba, a member of the Japanese team. The two girls became fast friends and through this friendship came the invitation for Vicki to visit Japan, where she will instruct boys and girls in the techniques of water skiing.

Vicki's instructing—to take place at Lake Hakone, near Mt. Fugi—will be in anticipation of the VII World Water Ski Tournament scheduled for August, 1963, in France.

Also, Vicki and 28-year-old Kimiko, who has given up her job, as she says, "to go tripping for the summer with Vicki," will tour major cities of Japan with several of the country's top boy skiers to put on water ski exhibitions.

* * * *

AND NOT ONLY will teen-age Vicki be in good form ski-wise . . . she'll be in good style fashion-wise.

Fact is, she's probably set another record—this one unofficial. The Long Beach teen-age ski whiz is possibly the only globe-trotter who ever toted 20 swimsuits on a plane trip.

She figures they should cover the situation adequately—since she wears out 15 a season.

All were fashioned by Mary Ann DeWeese, California swimwear designer, who scissors a fashion-with-function suit expressly engineered for the rigors of water skiing.

Suited to a "T" (or ski), Vicki's swimwear lineup includes several show suits, including an ultra gold mylar lastex, an all-velvet model, and one of white lace accented with rhinestones.

Also, she took along 10 handsome DeWeese beach towels (a gift from the City of Long Beach), three sun dresses (she plans to buy more daytime clothes in Hong Kong) and several pairs of capris.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, on the now-quiet B. E. Van Hook homefront, 4157 Gardenia Ave., the family (mother, father and children—Roger, 19, Sunday, 16, and Yvonne, 12) is recuperating from an action-packed week of getting Vicki graduated and sent off to Japan.

Mrs. Van Hook, reflecting on past ski trips taken by her talented daughter, noted that "wardrobes are pretty important when you're traveling to another country."

She cited an example: "When Vicki went to Milano, Italy, for the world championships in 1959, she lost one of her bags. Besides swimsuits, the only thing she had to wear was a blouse and a pair of walking shorts which, unfortunately, exposed her knees.

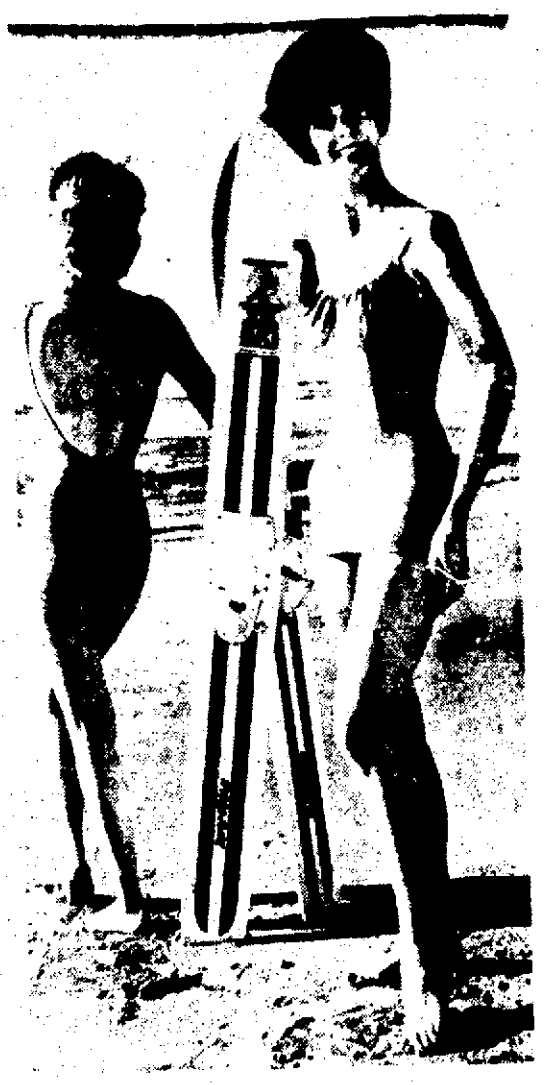

"And for street wear in Italy, that's against the law. A fact which Vicki found out—in no uncertain terms—when accosted by the police

"Thereafter, she draped herself in a bath towel, from waist to ankles, when going to and from competitions."

Most forelorn of the Van Hook stay-at-home clan is Vicki's dog, Kookie.

He's keeping vigil in Vicki's Hillman (bought with revenue from her TV commercials), waiting for his mistress to take him shopping—an every-night ritual to buy the gum-chewing canine his supply of chewing gum.

But doggone and chop-chop: she's gone skiing again!

"SKI SIREN," here worn by professional models, is suit designed by Mary Ann DeWeese for all active water sports—from skiing to surfing to serious swimming. A lastex princess sheath, suit has unique stretch-strap, which rims scooped neckline and plunging back, also keeps boneless inner bra securely in place. Its name inspired by Long Beach ski champ Vicki Van Hook, "Ski Siren" comes in round dozen colors, including pastels, brights, black and white. Local skier has taken 20 DeWeese suits, all identically cut but in a variety of colors and fabrics, on ski trip to Japan.

MEMORABLE EVENING HONORS VISITING CRITIC

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Recently I had the privilege and honor of being invited for dinner with three Los Angeles music critics in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willem P. Hasselman. The hosts were honoring the music critic from Rotterdam, Holland, Eugene Eberle, who was in Los Angeles attending the Los Angeles International Music Festival. Hasselman is the Consul General of the Netherlands in Los Angeles. The whole occasion was like going back to the old world in Europe where I lived for eight years.

One would never suspect that in the heart of Los Angeles is a private park of some 75 mansions. Quiet and elegant, the atmosphere here is far removed from the immediate noisy environment.

Arriving at the appointed hour of 7:30 we mounted the steps, lighted with torches on either side, to the house that looked like a young Versailles. We entered the enormous drawing room where already the guests were laughing and chatting. Our host soon joined us and told us something of his life.

* * * *

"THE NAME Hasselman is German and originally our family came from Germany," he said, "but for four generations we have lived in Holland."

His grandfather owned a coffee planation in Java and that is where Hasselman was born.

"I love the Orient," he said, "and when I retire I want to live in Japan."

In his professional diplomatic life, Hasselman has lived all over the world.

"Our son, now 21 and a student at Columbia University, is a naturalized American citizen," he said. "He visits Holland frequently, but he prefers the wide open spaces of America."

Mrs. Hasselman joined us and we learned that she is a pianist and a painter. A charming woman, she enthused about Southern California, the Los Angeles International Music Festival and Americans in particular. The beautiful original oil paintings on the walls were mostly by Dutch artists.

* * * *

"MY HUSBAND and I rattle around in this huge house," she said. "On the third floor is the ball room which will accomodate 150 dancers.

She regretted we had brought no music as she loves to accompany singers, especially in the songs of Brahms, Schubert and Schumann.

Dinner was announced and 15 guests were escorted by our host to the beautifully appointed dining room. The long table, glistening with cut glass and silver, was a nostalgic reminder of the European days. Two huge silver candelbra flanked a gorgeous centerpiece of cut flowers. Eberle admired particularly an exquisite sailing ship of silver with masts of mother of pearl which was on the table.

* * * *

TWO MAIDS served the dinner while the butler served the wine. As I glanced at the fish knife and fork at the top of my plate I was glad of my European experience. I was at no loss as to how to apply them to my cold lobster and shrimp with mayonnaise, the first course. Then came oxtail soup, and I bet I was the only critic who knew what it was! In huge silver platters came filet mignon with tiny new potato balls, even tinier French peas, green beans and broiled mushrooms. And, oh, the dessert! Lemon chiffon pudding in the shape of an angel food cake was smothered with whipped cream and luscious red, ripe strawberries.

After this sumptuous repast, our genial host arose and in a well-worded speech welcomed us, in the name of music and in the name of the Netherlands. (I was dismayed that none of my countrymen responded.)

European-like, the men retired for smoking and liqueurs, while the ladies went back to the drawing room for liqueurs and coffee until the men rejoined us. It was an evening I shall long remember.

Amati Quartet to Play at Musical Arts Installation

The Amati String Quartet will present a concert for Musical Arts Club installation dinner Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Supper Room, Lafayette Hotel.

Clayton Barrie has been re-elected as president. Others to be installed are Margaret K. Woodruff, Rose Ann Wood Johnson, Ferne Branstetter, Adelgathe Morrison, Ethel B. Fleming, Thelma Paynter, Margaret Jameson, Elinor Knox, Aren C. Zahl, Frances R. Davis, Arthur Carah, Mrs. Oliver G. Boyd and Elizabeth R. Derry.

* * * *

IZORA BRANDT, program chairman, has arranged for the appearance of the Amati quartet. Members are Richard Leshin and Shirley Marcus, violinists; Maxine Johnson, violist; and Harold Schneier, cellist.

The group, formed in 1955, is widely known for its concerts and recordings. Each musician is an artist in his own right and has filled principal positions in leading symphonies. The quartet is especially acclaimed for the performance of works by Haydn, Mozart, Debussy, Bartok and Bordin.

Marvin Miller to Star at LBSC

Marvin Miller expects summer students at Long Beach State to ask him, "Where's my check?"

Everyone else does. And the 30-year veteran of radio, movies and television is happy to oblige. He has given fans more than 100,000 autographed "million dollar checks."

Miller, guest artist in LBSC's summer theater workshop, is best known for his TV portrayal of Michael Anthony, the man who delivers the money on "The Millionaire."

July 17 through 21 Miller will star in LBSC's production of "He Who Gets Slapped," by Leonid Andreyev. In the 1910 Russian drama about circus life, Miller will be the clown whose heart is breaking.

MARVIN MILLER

* * * *

SUMMER STUDENTS will have an opportunity to work with Miller. Dr. W. David Sievers, the director, is holding tryouts Tuesday at 7 p.m. Registration for the theater workshop, and other summer courses, will take place Monday.

Outstanding high school drama students, who have completed the junior year, can enroll in the theater workshop if they obtain permission from LBSC drama department chairman John H. Green.

Miller will participate in all rehearsals for the summer show. He will also lecture to acting and directing classes.

Miller last appeared on a campus stage during his own college days at Washington University in St. Louis. He was working in radio by the time he got his degree in 1934.

L.B. Tenor Competes for Award

Tenor Robert O. Day, 27, of 7071 Olive Ave., is competing against 18 other vocalists in regional auditions being conducted by Young Musicians Foundation in its 1962 competition for the state's best young pianist, vocalist, string player and composer.

Also competing from this area is soprano Joanne Lathrop, 26, of 10661 Woodbury Road, Garden Grove.

The three-day auditions close today in Schoenberg Hall, UCLA. Two winning pianists, vocalists and string players will compete against five finalists chosen in Northern California regionals. Statewide finals will take place Saturday in Schoenberg Hall. The panel of judges will include such famous musicians as violinist Jascha Heifetz, cellist Gregor Piatigorsky, who is the foundation's honorary president, violist William Primrose and singer Rosa Raisa.

'West Side' Will Open Run June 28

The award winning New York musical, "West Side Story," will open June 28 at Frank Sennes' Moulin Rouge, Hollywood.

Chita Rivera, who created the role of Anita in the original Broadway company, will be starred, as will Carla Alberghetti in the role of Maria.

Leonard Bernstein composed the musical score and Arthur Laurents wrote the book for "West Side Story."

The policy of the Moulin Rouge will be that of theater-restaurant, with the price of admission including dinner and show. Performances will be nightly at 9 o'clock, except on Saturdays when shows will be given at 8:15 and 11 p.m. The house will be closed on Mondays.

Curtain at 8

"And Quiet Flows the Don," epic Russian film based on Mikhail Sholokhov's classic novel, will be shown on Bay Theater's Curtain at 8 series Tuesday through Thursday.

The color film is being distributed at the request of the U.S. Department of State in connection with its cultural exchange agreement with the Soviet Union.

Palos Verdes Group Show Is Stimulating

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Palos Verdes Community Arts Association has an elegant group showing by three painters and a sculptor. The exhibit will continue through June 28. While each brings to his work an entirely different approach, all are in contemporary idiom and live happily together in the large, one-room gallery.

Roger Williams' sculptures are on pedestals in the middle of the room. He works primarily with shaped sheets of aluminum soldered together. One piece is of patined brass sheet (attached with screws) and one is done with small welded bronzed rods. Except for the latter, all of Williams' works enclose space with no open areas within the sculpture. They are vertical, between 2 feet and 3 feet high, but do not resemble persons, rather they seem to be a wide variety of abstract baroque and complex ideas.

While several sculptors are working in sheet aluminum, and it is certainly a material identified with contemporary life, it seems cold to me and is a poor conveyor of light and shadow, which are the basic elements of sculpture.

JO WERTS covers canvas with carefully-painted random areas of color related in size, harmony, and key. "Color Composition," for instance, is all yellows and reds with a touch of complementary blue. The effect is bright and happy, whereas "Musical Composition" in turgid reds, greens, and blues conveys a feeling of deep involvement.

Lillian Miller does portraits, profoundly expressive of personality. "Regression" looks like a nasty little child who has gotten himself in a corner. "Blonde" is a 12-year-old girl in the agony of being the center of attention with no self-assurance of being either child or woman. These highly-glazed and skillfully drawn portraits are most attractive and provocative.

* * * *

WARREN Monahan is abstract on a monumental scale. Several of his works concern a canyon, going into, being in, or coming out of same. 'Thru Titus Canyon" is mostly black, with a pattern suggesting squares across the bottom, and three circular blobs within the black area; these are tan. "Into the Canyon" is the most powerful, with bright red and purple areas against neutral tones. Monahan harks more to the "New York School" or Motherwell than to types of approach usually found in the West.

This group show is very challenging, cerebral, and alive.

El Camino to Stage 'Teahouse'

"Teahouse of the August Moon," will be El Camino College's summer theater workshop production, announces Fred West, director. Performances are slated for 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. July 27.

Registration is scheduled Monday and Tuesday for the College's Summer Community Choir, which Crist Mikkelson will direct. The class, open to anyone who enjoys work in choral music, will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m. June 20 to Aug. 1.

Boys Chorus to Sing Out in 'Carmen'

Ten boys, most of whom have never set foot on a theatrical stage, will dress as street urchins and join voice with some of the finest professional singers in the world, in the Festival of Opera presentation of "Carmen," Aug. 24 and 25, at Laguna's outdoor Irvine Bowl.

The boys, who range from 10 to 14 years, will comprise an All-Boys Chorus and be on-stage some 15 minutes, often singing right along with such New York Met Opera stars as soprano Margaret Roggero and tenor William Olvis, "Carmen's" leads.

Sounds tough? That's not half of it. Bizet's "Carmen" is sung in French. None of these boys speaks a word of French. Nor do they sight read music. Not one of them knows what musicians call "note value." But—according to chorus master Doris Shields, who is not only teaching the boys their roles but is tutoring them in phonetic French at the same time—they all have "exciting" voices. Mrs. Shields expects her chorus to be one of the high spots of the Festival's "Carmen."

Ticket information for the following productions of "La Traviata," Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, and "Barber of Seville," Sept. 7 and 8, may be obtained by writing the Festival of Opera, 650 Broadway, Laguna Beach.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

McCook Cooks Up a Quickie

By Mildred K. Flaxstry
I.-P-T Food Editor

That vague facial expression isn't due to the fact that Nelson McCook Jr. is cooking, but because he'd just learned the stock market had dropped a cool sixty-million, and that the Harbor Department and World's Fair committee were doing a bit of fancy sparring. Today's Chef of the Week is usually a happy mixture of thoughts of past and present.

He has combined ideas from Long Beach of the past with its potential for the future, and the results have been accumulative. With courage and fortitude to spare, McCook has assumed the presidency of the International Exposition for Southern California, Inc., which will be responsible for the proposed 1966 World's Fair to be held in Long Beach.

Genuinely civic minded, and known as "one of the nicest guys in the world", McCook has been a source of strength for the City of Long Beach.

* * * *

WITH A fashion for smoothing out rough edges, the faculty for understanding people, and being big enough to do the little extras, he had done an excellent job as chairman of Long Beach Economic Development Committee. Through its combined efforts, new businesses are given the red-velvet-welcome.

That his interests have paid dividends, is evidenced by his having won the John Paul Jones award for most outstanding work in the membership department, Downtown Long Beach Associates. The presentation was made at its installation last week.

Nelson McCook Jr.

Vocationwise, McCook keeps busy, too. He's vice president and director of the First National City Bank of Long Beach and manager of the McCook Investment Co., as well. He, with his late father and brother, Fonda, organized the bank in 1948.

* * * *

BORN IN Sumner, Iowa, he moved here with his family in 1918. A graduate of Poly High, class of '27, he is well remembered as captain of its golf team, and for his "divine" Olds convertible, which he drove sans top and with hair a-flying. To return to golf a moment — he was champion of Virginia Country Club in 1934, and his love for the game has remained paramount ever since.

The University of Oregon and Southwestern University Law School both preceded his entry into the Fourth Air Force in World War II.

Once back on terra firma, however, he was made administrative assistant, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, handling surplus military real estate. In this capacity, he negotiated for the sale of "Victory Pier" to the City of Long Beach through the Harbor Department.

A past director of Long Beach Realty Board, McCook is currently first vice president of the Independent Business Mens' Organization. Active in the Chamber of Commerce, he is outgoing treasurer, Downtown Long Beach Association.

A member of the Pacific Coast and Virginia Country Clubs, he also belongs to Mounted Police, American Legion Post 445, and Beta Theta Pi Alumni Association.

THOUGH not in any sense a kitchen pioneer, according to his wife, Dorothy, our "chef" is one of those rare individuals who IS a big help in the kitchen—even to the clean-up detail.

He has a mania for polishing things — anything. Gets completely carried away with it. Apparently it all started in the Air Force when he began polishing brass.

Simply mad about cheese, his imagination knows no bounds when it comes to dreaming-up new ways for using it. Today, the dream resulted in Cheese Soup.

CHEESE SOUP

1 medium onion
1 small can green chiles chopped
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 tsp. oregano
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
1 cup grated mild yellow cheese
2 tblsp. corn oil

Fry onions and chile peppers in oil until the onions are soft. Add tomatoes and simmer. Add two cups water and bring to a boil. Add parsley and oregano, simmer for 5 to 10 minutes. Grated cheese is put into individual soup bowls, about ¼ cup to a serving. Add hot soup mixture and serve. Quick and SO good!

Oswald Jacoby
Sly Defense Upsets Bid

Here is a hand from the Silodor-Tierney book which shows what deceptive defense can do to upset a declarer.

Silodor points out that North's two club Stayman bid was wrong. He should have jumped right to three no-trump with his 4-3-3-3 distribution.

South ducked the first heart, but had to take the continuation. Most declarers would go right over to dummy to take the diamond finesse, whereupon they would wind up with 10 easy tricks and possibly 11 if they played exactly right.

* * * *

THIS particular South decided that he might not have to try the diamond finesse at all. The queen of spades might drop, so South cashed his ace and king and sure enough East dropped the queen. Now South could count on four spade tricks so he led the deuce and finessed dummy's nine. East produced the 10 spot together with the remark, "I just found it among my clubs." Back came a heart and another game bit the dust.

I want to add my fervent amen to Silodor's remark that North should not have used Stayman. When your partner opens no-trump and you have 4-3-3-3 distribution there is a good chance that you will make as many tricks in no-trump as in a 4-4 major fit and if you don't find that fit, you will help the defense. Thus, East knew surely that South did not have four spades and felt safe in making his brilliant play on the second spade lead.

POOL RULE—Chlorine in your pool is the same bleach you use to strip color. Do not permit wet suits to be worn in the house — a few drops on the rug or upholstery can mean ruin. Swim suits should be rinsed and dried in the shade. Never apply hot iron. Wash frequently in mild soapsuds and lukewarm water.

Time and Money Savers

By MARY NETH

What's new? Lots of new items to save time and money.

The following are on the market or headed that way. Our favorite: the grocery goods calculator. A nifty way to compute costs—and save.

Under $1

Any old line won't do these days. Not where the girls are concerned. They'll take a line that isn't a line at all — it's a translucent sewing thread. This nylon thread solves many problems. No longer does the harried housewife have to go on that last-minute, frantic search for thread of the right color. Translucent thread's always right — it blends with the fabric.

* * * *

For the most for the (grocery) money—calculate. Purse-size dial translates puzzle of fractions-of-ounces versus price-per-pound. Even those who balk at supervising a first-grader's homework will find it easy to use.

In canned goods, it shows instantly whether value offered by large economy size is really better than jumbo or king size. Shows which of two brands packaged in odd sizes is better buy. Also, gauges price comparisons for items weighing between two ounces and eight pounds and costing a dime and a dollar.

It's must in these days of misleading packaging and high-powered advertising. Now, at last you'll really know if you're getting a bargain. Dial, only 4 inches in circumference, is flat and easy to carry.

* * * *

Preparing children's clothes for camp? Gluing name tapes to clothing with new liquid fabric mender is speedier than sewing, just as permanent, and adhesive does not change "feel" of the fabric. Name tapes affixed in this fashion will withstand repeated washings and ironings. Also, useful in mending children's clothing, unholstery in homes and autos and for reinforcing garments.

Under $3

A daub in time — checks damage. New stain remover kit enables homemaker to remove fresh spots from rugs, carpeting and upholstery. Four bottles, each containing a professional formula, come with simple directions that indicate exactly how to remove or check just about any type of fresh spot.

Under $4

Pick of the picnic accessories. New lightweight jug weighs a mere 13 ounces, has a full gallon capacity, keeps food or beverages steaming hot for 14 to 16 hours, and icy-cold for approximately 24 hours.

MRS. MARKS will appear as a panel member in a discussion of publicity techniques directed by Howard Harrington, manager of Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

OUR COVER

This is "Sweetpea" (Sitzmark's Moan'a Lisa), a one-hound welcoming committee to the big Harbor Cities Kennel Club show and obedience trial scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday at Municipal Auditorium. "Sweetpea" is also one of the famous Beck's Bassets that rocketed their owner to fame in national magazines, on post cards, and on TV. Five years ago, Rosemary Beck of Cucamonga dashed off some puppy names on the back of a tomato soup label in a contest and won a basset hound puppy as second prize. A few bassets later, Rosemary acquired a camera. Before she started snapping she read that Walter Chandoha, famous animal photographer, advised an electronic flash and a speed of 1/500 of a second in order to freeze motion. Giving her bassets a loving look, Rosemary thought, "What motion?" and proceeded to photograph with three floodlights and a speed of 1/60. For more about Sweetpea and her pal, Smiley, turn to Page 7.

More and more landlubbers are learning the difference between port and starboard, and the water traffic is becoming terrific as boating gains in popularity by leaps and bounds. Mooring space (that's "parking" to landlubbers) is growing scarcer and scarcer. This is the seagoing situation as Southland sees it next week in "Give a Man a Ship He Can Sail."

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: would you give a brief geneology on HODSON — G.H., W.H., Long Beach.

G.H., W.H.: HODSON was formed from Hodge, a nickname for Roger. The ancient English warrior title Roger meant "Famous spearman." William Hodson, a descendant of the primary ancestor, "Hodge-son," was a Yorkshire land owner in 1379. This family's coat-of-arms, granted in Cambridge in 1590, has a golden chevron placed between three flying golden falcons or hawks on a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the source and shield on MEANS. — Mrs. J.T., Long Beach; A.P., Compton.

J.T., A.P.: MEANS has been the object of extreme spelling changes ever since this family's proud and valiant forefather arrived in England with William the Conqueror in the 11th Century. This gentleman was known as Judael de Mayenne, the owner of a baronial castle and large tracts of land in northwestern France. His surname "De Mayenne" was taken from the River Mayenne; the river name in turn was from the Latin word "magnus" meaning "great." The Sire de Mayenne was awarded a large estate in Devonshire by William the Conqueror. He became an important English baron. The surname was subsequently shortened to Mayn, Meyn, and by the 1500s it became Means. The family shield is red, emblazoned with two red horseshoes as emblems. The American Means family ancestors came from north Ireland to the state of Maine in 1718; they moved to Lancaster County, Pa., in 1720.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze SHEPHERD. — H.S., Long Beach; B.S., San Pedro.

H.S., B.S.: SHEPHERD, Shepard, Sheppard, Sheperd, are all English variants of a surname that originated from the occupation of herding sheep Walter Le (the) Schepherde lived in Cambridge in the late 13th Century. One of the many Shepherd coats of arms symbolized the name-meaning with two gold shepherd's crooks crossed between three silver lambs on a green shield. Edward Shepard of England, whose oldest son John was born in 1627, was among the founders of Hartford, Conn.

DEAR MISS RULE—Have you data on HUGHES?—E.M., Seal Beach.

E.M.: HUGHES, an ancient Welsh lineage, is traced back 32 generations to Roderick the Great, a 9th Century king of Wales. Hughes extended from Hugh, a baptismal name meaning "of brilliant mind." The Hughes coat of arms is that of King Roderick, a black rampant lion centered on a silver shield. Titled branches of this lineage lived in Anglesey and Merioneth, Wales. Descendants were 18th Century residents of Cumberland, Buckingham, and King George Counties, Virginia.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like data on MARTIN.—Mrs. D.F., Paramount.

D.F.: MARTIN originated in France. A nobleman called Martin, whose name was from the Latin word "Martinus" meaning "warlike one," was the owner of estates near Bayeaux, Normandy. After the Norman-French conquest of Britain, he became the owner of estates in Pembroke, Wales. The ancient Martin shield is silver, crossed by two red bars in the center. The family motto is "sure and steadfast." Christopher Martin and his wife sailed from England to Massachusetts on the Mayflower in 1620.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you give the origin of RUIZ. —A.R., Long Beach.

A. R.: RUIZ translates from Spanish as "Son of Ruy." Ruy, a Castilian nickname taken from Roderick, meant "Wealthy and famous one." The Ruiz coat-of-arms, granted in medieval Castile, is a shield divided into four quarters. The upper left and lower right sections are blue with a gold band across the center; the other two sections have a green tree with a black wolf standing before the trunk, on a silver background. Far back in the lineage was the celebrated Spanish poet Juan Ruiz, born in 1283.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the brief genealogy for POWELL.—Mrs. C.C., Long Beach; M. P., Anaheim.

C.C., M.P.: POWELL, a Welsh surname, is a contraction of Ap-Howell, deciphered as "son of the man with the active mind." Ap-Howell is traced to a famous forefather, the Welsh King Howell the Good who ruled from A.D. 916 to 950. The Powell shield is red, emblazoned with a gold rampant lion in the center. New England forebears include Thomas Powell who settled at New Haven, Conn. in 1638.

DEAR MISS RULE: Do you have the origin of DALGLISH. — Mrs. L. S., Bellflower.

L.S.: DALGLISH originated in old Scotland. This name was locational in background, derived from the Scotch-Gaelic phrase "dail-glaise meaning "from the brookfield." The clan coat-of-arms has a green tree placed crosswise between three blue arrowheads on a silver shield, accompanied by the Latin motto "Deliciae mei" meaning "My delight."

How to Display Holiday Treasures

By Lorena Fleissig

Shell collectors find many arrangements of interest such as one shell fastened to another by gluing, a natural arrangement; paper weights made with jar lids.

ACQUIRING souvenirs along the way is a great American pastime, shared by children and adults alike. Many Long Beach area youngsters delight in walking along the beaches, picking up shells and stones. Hikes to the mountains also result often in a "harvest" of brightly colored or oddly shaped rocks.

Those who go to the beaches may return with some shells as treasures. Or flat or transparent stones. The desert and mountains have many such treasures.

If you go to both mountain and beaches and have an assortment of rocks and shells, you might think about how you could put them together in a way that would be both decorative and useful. Combining your souvenirs into useful doorstops and paperweights could solve some of your gift giving problems.

FIRST THING to do is to wash your collections with soap and water until they are sparkling clean. Sort them, keeping the small items separate from the larger pieces.

On a flat stone, arrange a shell in the center with smaller shells or stones around it. Experiment until you decide on a good grouping, then lay aside the shells or stones and prepare the stone base with white glue. Over the glue spread a thin web of cotton pushing it down until it is thoroughly saturated. Replace your decorative arrangement, pressing the stones or shells firmly into the gluey cotton. Where areas of cotton show between the pebbles, drop on some grains of fish gravel and a scant sprinkle of glitter. The gold glitter will give the same effect as the gold we see in the sand grains and will add a lot of glamour.

In case your larger stones are rounding, set them on the flattest side. Select smaller shells for a close grouping on the rounded tops of your stones. Use cotton and glue as mentioned. To hold the shells firmly on the top, wrap in foil or wax paper tightly and secure with rubber bands. Give them a week to dry thoroughly.

IF YOU HAVE shells as a reminder of summer fun and they are dull, try covering a shell with pink water color or use yellow color if the shell is slightly yellow. Remove most of the water color until just a delicate tint remains on the shell.

Shells while living in the water, often fasten upon each other and grow together. In copying nature fit two shells together with the larger one as the base. A spiny shell will contrast beautifully with a clam type shell as a base. If the base shell needs to be weighted, pour white glue inside and fill with gravel. Spraying with lacquer will give a translucent brightness and a finished look to your arrangement.

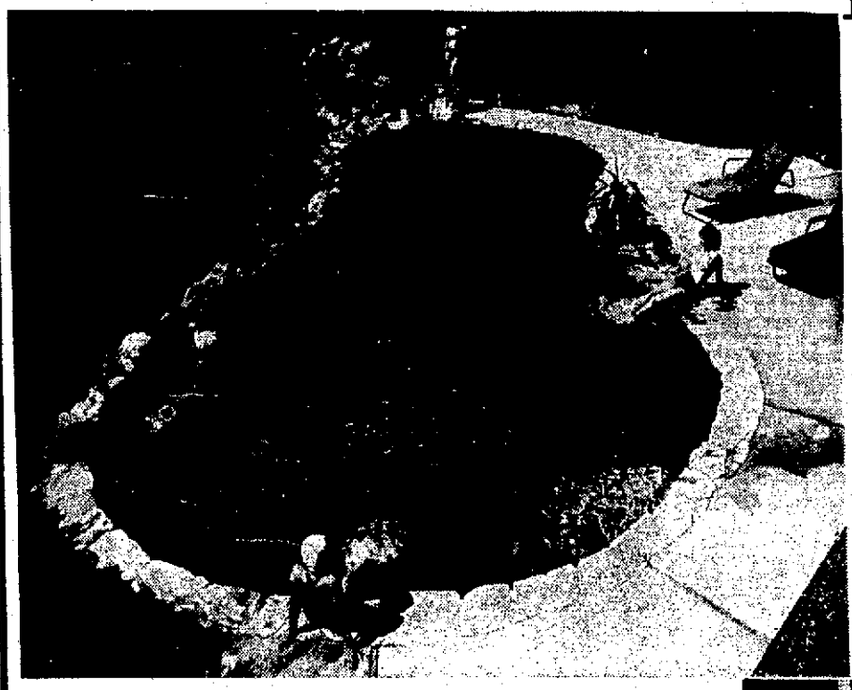

You will probably have many leftovers of shells and small stones and these are quickly made into simple paperweights. Jar or cheese lids filled with glue and cotton will hold groups of interesting objects. Besides the colored shells, add bright sea beans and one or more colored glass marbles, or beads. Finish the outside edge with a strip of paper to cover any printing.

—Photos by Larry Reichner Studio

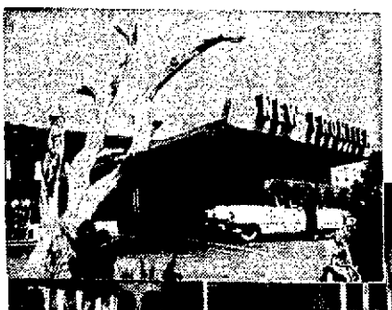

Shells may also be glued to stones to enhance interest in both types of collections.

GRADE CARD

Safety Stressed

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

SUMMER is a time of joy in the heart of youth—but it is also a time of hurt and tragedy.

Hundreds of boys and girls will die and thousands more will suffer serious injuries during the next few weeks because they violate common rules of summer safety.

Because of a more congested society and a wider variety of activities, today's youngster is exposed to more dangers in a single day than children of a generation ago experienced in a week.

Help your child develop summer safety habits. Here are some rules that may save his life:

1. Never go swimming alone. Drowning was the cause of one out of every 25 deaths by accident last year. If you can't swim, take lessons from qualified teachers, and don't go into water over your head until you do know how to swim. Whether you are a beginner or an expert, never swim without a companion.

2. Avoid excessive exposure to the sun. Sunstroke and sunburn can be serious, even fatal.

3. Learn boating safety. More and more boats are in use in this country every year—and more and more deaths are occurring at sea and on the lakes and rivers. More than half the fatalities of pleasure boating result from the negligence of the operator and from capsizing. Before you get in a boat, make sure that it is properly equipped and that its skipper knows what he is doing.

4. Make use of available public playgrounds, especially those under the protection and guidance of skilled playground directors. A fenced playground may save a child's life by preventing him from running thoughtlessly into the street in pursuit of a baseball.

5. Observe bicycle safety rules. Each year hundreds of young bicycle riders are in collisions with motor vehicles. The great majority of these accidents result from traffic violations by the bicycle rider. If your son rides a bike, make sure he knows the rules of the road.

And finally, here is a special reminder:

Make sure your child has received all his polio shots. No child need die or suffer crippling paralysis from polio in today's world. Miraculous immunity, achieved at great expense and by many long years of scientific work, is now available. Give your child the protection medical science now provides at a very reasonable cost.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

Looks like the lockup for Sweetpea . . . "There'll be a fair trial," says Sheriff Smiley.

Smiley checks to see if Sweetpea has a date. He's got two tickets for the show . . . Dog Show, that is.

IT SHOULDN'T EVEN HAPPEN TO A CAT:

The Basset Blues

By Eleanor Avery Price

FOR GIRLS, it's fun to dress up. For boys, okeh, if it's cowboy suits.

For dogs, some love it, some don't—but for bassets, who knows? They always look so sad, naturally!

And that's the way it is with Beck's Bassets, also known as Sweetpea & Co., as they give their version of the dress-up business, and just a dull day in general. The dogs belong to Rosemary Beck of Cucamonga, photographer and mother of five children. The pictures on today's cover and this page are hers.

Basset owners—members of the Basset Hound Club of Southern California—will have their specialty show next Sunday at the Harbor Cities Kennel Club show and obedience trials at Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. The show is a two-day affair, starting Saturday.

Basset clubbers aim at improving the basset breed. But just how they go about improving a breed that is stacked like a sack of sand with four legs and ears (and what ears!) is a science best left to them. Anyway, they have fun doing it, and the dogs seem to enjoy it. (And should any of the dogs think we're making fun of them, heavens-to-Betsy no! They're beautiful!)

TO GET BACK to the show: Saturday specialties will include Golden State Bull Terrier Club, Western Fox Terrier Breeders Association, United States Lakeland Terrier Club, Scottish Terrier Club of California, Silky Terrier Club of America, and Chow Fanciers Association of Southern California.

Sunday specialists other than bassets will include English Springer Spaniel Club of Southern California, Weimaraner Club of America, American Bloodhound Club, Borzoi Club of California, Sierra Dachshund Breeders Club of Los Angeles County, Irish Wolfhound Association of the West Coast, Rhodesian Ridgeback Club of the United States.

EMERGENCY IN THE SKY:

Trouble Talks . . . in a Soft, Sexy Voice

Out of an 8-pound package of electronics comes a soft, sexy voice to warn Air Force pilots of trouble as they hurtle along at twice speed of sound. The sexy voice is that of Gina Drazin, Nortronics secretary, shown with warning tape.

By Ev Hosking

"ANY WOMAN can get anything out of any man at any time she desires," is a quote that has been attributed to many sophisticated ladies from the time of Cleopatra to the present.

Modern electronic engineers, being what they are, seized on the idea, tacked "instantly" to the phrase and proceeded to prove their point.

Their achievement is a soft, feminine voice bottled up in an eight-pound box that today is saving the lives of the pilots of the Air Force's 1,300-mile-an-hour B58 Hustler bomber.

The device, known as VIPS, was developed in the research facilities in Palos Verdes Estates of Nortronics, a division of the Northrop Corp.

VIPS is a highly versatile, compact warning system capable of handling 50 hazard situations by means of pre-recorded warnings.

THESE WARNINGS combine common hazards into single terse statements of malfunction. The messages are recorded by a pretty, vivacious employe of Nortronics.

The Air Force tested the woman-powered warning system against conventional red light emergency signals. It found that pilots averaged 12 seconds reaction to lights and sometimes took as long as a half an hour to notice them.

The sexy voice reduced the reaction time to an average of only three seconds.

It was decided to use the feminine voice for the safety warnings to separate them distinctly from messages being transmitted by the crew.

And the sexy safety device is working very well, according to the Air Force.

Managing 80 tons of aircraft at twice the speed of sound is a full-time job for a single pilot in a multi-engine aircraft.

IN THE B58, for instance, there are 44 inputs to the emergency warning system. The information from these inputs has been transmitted to the pilot by a light warning system.

Such systems have two shortcomings—first, they tend to leave pilot observance and response to chance. Second, should two or more emergencies occur at the same time, they provide no means of classifying the trouble by priority or degree of urgency.

VIPS solves both these shortcomings. It audibly warns the pilot and in the case of multiple emergencies, the most critical is transmitted until corrected. When the correction has been made, the lesser items are automatically transmitted to the crew.

The Air Force points out that the psychological value of the feminine voice warning system should not be overlooked. A pilot is relieved of the strain of monitoring warning lights in addition to his instrument panel and the extra burden to his memory if multiple dangers demand quick decision as to priority of actions. And there is definite comfort in knowing that all crew members will be made immediately aware of any malfunction.

RECENTLY, a B58 was returning to its base following a successful test flight. The crew was faced with rapidly deteriorating weather.

As the pilot started his Ground Control Approach, he told his electronic systems operator to forget about the VIPS they were testing.

A few moments later the pilot heard a female voice say "Left manifold pressure low," followed by "alternator failure," and a few seconds later by "hydraulic pump failure."

Busy with his GCA, the pilot was in no mood for games and told the electronics officer to quit the gags. The electronic officer retorted that this was for real.

The crew, well versed in VIPS operations, had heard the voice before and their emergency procedures were correct and immediate.

A probable accident was averted.

The Federal Aviation Agency has said that it has no plans at present to adapt VIPS for commercial airliners.

Recently, however, an FAA official actually proposed recording the voices of celebrities to use at radio checkpoints.

THE OFFICIAL suggested that a pilot hearing the familiar voice of Bob Hope, Bing Crosby or even Marilyn Monroe would never miss a check point signal.

One commercial pilot, however, pointed out there was a hazard that the pilot might try to loop the 285,000-pound jet after hearing Marilyn's voice.

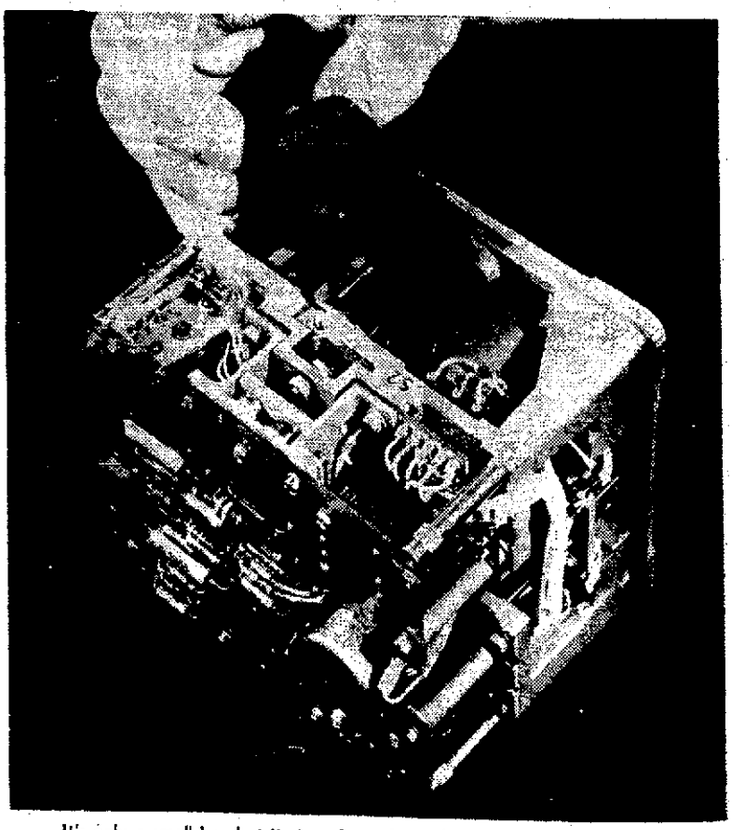

Another, a Douglas test pilot, pointed out that despite the comforting qualities of the soft voice, the gimmick had all the dubious qualities of a back-seat driver.

Airline pilots, although maintaining their blood is just as red as that of their male counterparts in the Air Force, insisted that the device might lead to ridiculous extremes.

"For instance," one said, "the next thing you know, the stewardesses will want their own warnings recorded by Rock Hudson."

Another pilot, a trifle on the cynical side, maintained that it all depended on what woman or women made the recordings.

"You know the FAA," he complained, "we'll ask for Marilyn Monroe and we'll get Zasu Pitts."

It's only a small box but its taped warnings of trouble cover 40 danger situations for the busy pilots of 1,300-mile-an-hour B58 Hustler bombers.

Fairies Frolic for Cinerama

Russ Tamblyn makes friends with two of his fellow actors, a rabbit and a fawn.

CASTLES OF Weikersheim and Neuschwanstein, the quaint walled city of Rothenburg and the Rhine River, come to life as the camera rumbles over cobbled streets, travels on an ancient paddle-wheeler, hops aboard a train for Berlin and careens down a winding mountain road with a runaway coach and four!

These are high, dramatic episodes in "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm," a new Cinerama production which opens Aug. 8 in the Warner Hollywood Theater.

More than five years in preparation, this is the story of Wilhelm and Jacob Grimm, who 150 years ago introduced the folk tale as a literary form. Much of the film was photographed in the Bavarian locales where the brothers gathered their fund of stories.

Talents of Metro Goldwyn-Mayer; Cinerama; George Pal, producer; a great cast and the greatest story-tellers the world has ever known combined to bring this tale to the screen in Metrocolor. Into the biographical and dramatic narrative are woven three of the Grimms' famous stories, "The Dancing Princess," "The Cobbler and the Elves" and "The Singing Bone."

LAURENCE HARVEY, one of the newest and most sought-after leading men in pictures, plays the younger brother, Wilhelm, whose impractical dreaming leads to heartaches as well as eventual literary fame. Harvey comes to this new assignment from "Butterfield 8," "Summer and Smoke" and "A Walk on the Wild Side."

Yvette Mimieux dances in a court of the famous Neuschwanstein Castle in Bavaria.

As the family doctor reports on Wilhelm Grimm's condition to the family and friends, this is a scene from MGM's presentation of "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm." Players who are shown here are Barbara Eden, Walter Slezak, Claire Bloom, Tammy Marihugh and Brian Russell.

Taxation's Greatest Dividend

By Virginia Crill

First school built in Long Beach was located on site at the corner of Sixth Street and Pine Avenue in 1886.

FROM THE TIME "Taxation Without Representation" pushed us into the Revolutionary War until today's multibillion dollar national budget through which we are pushing ourselves into space, taxes have always been of primary importance. They provide not only our government upkeep, roads, parks, public buildings and institutions, but the best basis for continual grumbling known to man.

No one agrees with all the uses of the tax dollar, but each enjoys its benefits. If you think the wrong party is in power at the moment you can still travel over tax-built freeways to relax in tax-protected national parks. You can even use your tax-supported education to study present ways of spending money in order to better contest them if you so desire.

There was a time, however, when people not only paid the taxes asked of them, but dipped into private reserves and worked against numerous problems to speed one of our biggest tax dividends on its way. This was in the late 1800s when what is now Long Beach was still a bright, warm pastureland partially bordered by an uncluttered, white sanded "long beach."

THE EARLY pioneers who came to Southern California for a good life determined that their children should have it also. They knew that the quotation, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free" (John 8-32), was as dependable as it was old. So they demanded schools. They paid some of their first and highest taxes for their schools and when this seemed not enough, gave extra time, income and land to speed learning for their youth. Basic educational needs were seen even more clearly then than now for they had no schools and knew that they could have no worthwhile settlement or city without them.

William Erwin Willmore, the founder-promoter of Willmore City—later renamed Long Beach—specifically designated in his 1882 townsite of 350 acres, locations for a city hall, church, park and school. On land overgrown with wild mustard and with squirrels racing everywhere, streets were marked simply by plowing through the yellow-flowered mass. The park which he designated is still the location of Lincoln Park.

But it takes more than a site to start either a city or a school. The first school of this locality actually began in 1885 through the efforts of Mrs. John Bixby and Mrs. W. W. Lowe, who were not satisfied with promises from the county superintendent and supervisors that a school district would be established the following year. With a total budget of $75 they hired Miss Grace Bush, 16-year-old high school graduate, to teach for three months.

OTHER PROBLEMS arose. The first school meeting place was an unoccupied building on the corner of Pine Avenue and Second Street (now Broadway) and, two weeks after classes began, the building was sold. The pupils were then moved to a tent provided by Postmaster W. W. Lowe and set up on the corner of First Street and Locust Avenue.

Any school at all was news in those days, and word of the "tent school" began to spread. The next year (1886) the first school building, a two-story "magnificent" structure was completed and staffed (with tax money as promised by county supervisors) at Sixth Street and Pine where Willmore had mapped it out. It was promptly overcrowded. Settlers were already searching out this beautiful ocean-rimmed town as it spread north, and the over-populated school was too far away for many small feet to walk.

A meeting was called by the trustees to conduct a bond election to build a school in the north end. Once more eager parents speeded the issue. Mr. and Mrs. L. Saunders, owners of a ranch, offered to give a site for the school free, provided it be built at the northwest corner of Hill Street and Atlantic Avenue. The offer was accepted in 1888, the same year Long Beach was incorporated. The school was completed and opened in the spring of 1888 with 30 pupils, and serenaded by the coyotes. It first was named Signal Hill, but renamed Burnett in 1897 in honor of Peter H. Burnett, first governor of California.

LIVING NEAR this school today and still interested in and attending some of its more important functions are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Lewis of 2321 Atlantic Ave. Mrs. Lewis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders who donated the land for the school, was one of its first pupils. She recalls a small but attractive and well-planned building. At recess time boys used to chase coyotes and rabbits in the slough and there were very tall willow trees everywhere for squirrels and other small animals as well as children to climb.

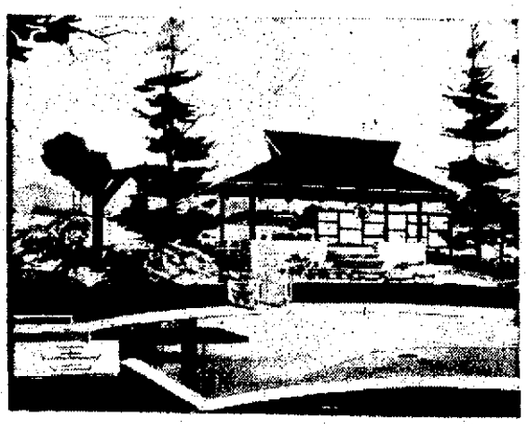

As the city spread up and down the beach and inland in

First classes were held in Long Beach in a store building, believed to be the location that is partially hidden by the wagon at left in this Pine Avenue view in 1886.

You Ask We Answer

By Haskin

Q. How did Greek warriors hold their big round metal shields? K. G.

A. In the time of Homer, the Greeks used a belt to support the shield.

Later, a crossbar of metal or wood or leather was fixed across the inside center of the shield, and a leather thong was nailed around the inside rim so that it formed a succession of loops. The soldier thrust his forearm between the crossbar and the inner surface of the shield, and steadied his hand by grasping one of the leather loops along the inside rim.

Q. What would happen if all insects were destroyed? J. A.

A. The human race would probably soon perish in a world entirely free from helpful as well as harmful insects. Flowering plants, which require cross pollination by insects and make up a large part of our diet, would soon disappear. Stock animals would die from lack of forage. Many waste products normally destroyed by insects would accumulate and breed disease.

Q. How can an organization get a charter from Congress? H. B.

A. A Congressional charter is obtainable only through an act of Congress. A resolution for the passage of this act must be brought through a senator or representative on petition of the parties involved.

Q. Please give the title of the poem that ends, "But is it art?" F. W.

A. This is Kipling's eight-stanza poem "The Conundrum of the Workshops." The first stanza tells of Adam sitting under a tree, scratching with a stick in the mold: "And the first rude sketch that the world had seen was joy to his mighty heart, Till the Devil whispered behind the leaves: 'It's pretty, but is it art?' "

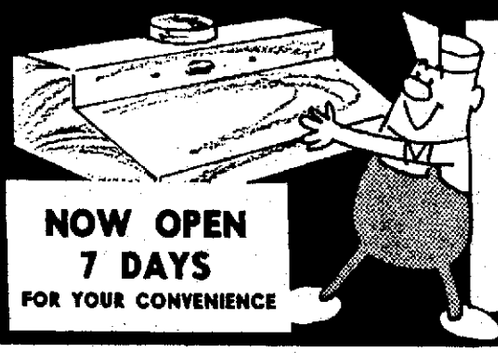

Q. What is the best way to clean pewter? C. A.

A. Since pewter is a soft metal, do not use harsh abrasives or metal polish. To remove tarnish, apply silver polish with a soft brush. While the polish is still wet, add soapsuds and work up a lather of polish and soap. Dry with a flannel cloth, and rub to produce a soft luster. For regular care, wash the pewter in hot soap suds, rinse, and dry.

High, wide and handsome is the 40x20-foot living room in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters. Mrs. Waters gave imaginative touches to the decor. Above right, a view of the interesting exterior.

HOMES

Imaginative Is the Word

By Stella George

MASTERFULLY planned on an expansive site, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters, 1485 La Perla Ave., has many features on the grand scale. Ed Killingsworth, the architect, created and developed many ideas for the home that are outstanding among things architectural.

An entrance hall has 24-foot ceilings of glass.

The living room measures 20 by 40 feet.

Walls of glass overlook a wide and spacious balcony.

Glass is used wherever possible—above doorways, in the ceilings, in place of walls, and as huge picture windows in smaller bedrooms. Entry hall, living room, master bedroom, and dining room-kitchen area are all on a high, wide and very handsome scale. The home is one in which a decorator's skill and talent and imagination might know no bounds. Mrs. Waters chose to do her own decorating, and her ideas have resulted in a unique and original personality being given to the home.

Every piece of furniture in the home is second-hand! This does not mean that pieces were bought as expensive antiques, or pseudo antiques to be used as a decorative theme. Second-hand pieces were sought for their worth to Mrs. Waters herself. Endowed with great imagination, she liked to picture the background of certain treasures she found and see them recapture some of their former elegance in their new surroundings. Many items had a functional value of their own.

Entrance hall in the Waters' home is dramatic and gives a sweeping view through the house to glass wall and huge, stuffed lion (seemingly looking out on the garden) at the far end from the front door.

Taking advantage of the large site, the Waters installed this extensive balcony as a part of outdoor space.

Glass is used generously throughout the house, as is shown here, adding to the home's luxurious quality.

A DRAMATIC high light of the entrance hall to the Waters' home is an out-sized chandelier centered above the area under the glass roof. From the front door, the view is straight through the home to the glass wall of the master bedroom in the far rear where a huge stuffed lion stands majestically viewing the garden beyond.

The immense living room at the right is carpeted with an over-sized Persian rug. Two walls are an art gallery, with flowers the predominant theme. Mrs. Waters found many of the pictures, unframed, in out of the way places, and bought many very inexpensively. She then had them suitably framed, and the results, in some cases, seem like masterpieces.

Twin leather, wing-back chairs flank the fireplaces. Individual furniture treasures are everywhere, but the room is so large there is no clutter.

THERE ARE countless little functional touches everywhere in the home. The desk is one corner of the living room, for instance, is placed just under the mail slot so that incoming mail drops into the proper receiving basket.

The large dining room-family room is adjacent to the open kitchen. The dining room set, another treasured bargain, opens to accomodate fifteen. A useful part of the set is a butler's cabinet which encloses choice bric-a-brac. In the family room end, a blue naugahyde couch faces the TV which, in turn, can be viewed from the kitchen.

In the kitchen, evidence of Mrs. Waters' skill and ingenious practical thinking are everywhere. The eating bar is not a built-in as is usually the case. Rather, it is a movable unit which fits in place between the rooms for everyday use, but which can be moved to the desired area when entertaining takes place. Trash is no problem in this kitchen. A small trap door above the work area near the sink opens to a large trash bin below, thus, there are no waste baskets in the room. Floor sweeping is easy. A small trap door in the floor lifts up to a long metal container under the floor which, when full of dust, can be taken out and emptied.

SIZE OF THE master bedroom is emphasized with the glass wall overlooking the garden. The fine chandelier in the room came out of an old church is Redlands. The adjoining bathroom is elegant with fine fixtures, and the bath itself views the garden. The closet is open above to allow for constant ventilation; too, this adds space to the room. The long closets that line one side of the room have shutter doors, a feature used throughout the home.

The study, to the left of the main entry hall, is leathered and masculine, a private retreat for Dr. Waters. Children's bedrooms are down the hall, each furnished with carefully selected pieces. The girl's room has a brass bed. Her doll's furniture is in white wicker.

The huge balcony off the living room (and with access to the dining room) is grand and ample for entertaining on a large scale. The Waters have loaned their home for many important business and social functions, and the place is never crowded. The outdoor furnishings are all white wicker, picked up at bargain prices and sprayed white by the adept Mrs. Waters. Pieces even include a wicker doghouse!

The home is located on nearly an acre of land. Beyond the balcony, the expertly landscaped garden stretches to a wooded area. A children's play hideaway is delightfully private surrounded by trees and bushes.

Compact Ranch Saves Steps

A MEDIUM size family with a medium size income will find large size advantages in this attractive three-bedroom ranch.

There are only 1,178 square feet of living area (not counting the 248-square-foot garage), but House of the Week design B-69 has features normally reserved for larger and more expensive homes.

"Living problems are the same whether you have a large home or a small one," said architect Herman H. York, who designed B-69. "I've tried to incorporate as many solutions as possible into the economical compactness of this house."

ONE SUCH feature is the extra lavatory which shares economical back-to-back plumbing with the main bathroom.

The extra bath not only serves as a private adjunct to the

Deft use of brick or stone in front and roof line broken by the extended garage gives this 1,178-square-foot ranch home appearance of much larger house.

11-foot, 4-inch by 14-foot master bedroom, but with its second entrance it is convenient to the kitchen and rear terrace—just the thing for outdoor entertaining or children playing in the back yard.

York's design provides excellent circulation for a house of this size. The extra bath contributes to it, serving as a quick passage to the kitchen or rear entrance from the master bedroom.

OTHER FEATURES which aid circulation are the entrance from the garage direct to the 11-4x12-6 family room, the other three entrances to the family room—off the living room and kitchen and through sliding glass terrace doors—and the entrance vestibule.

Dimensions of B-69 are 47 feet 10 inches wide by 33 feet 6 inches deep, well suited for a 60-foot wide lot.

The family room is two steps lower than the rest of the house, setting it apart from the kitchen and living room as a private dining area if desired, but at the same time allowing it to function as a spacious unit with the kitchen.

A railing between the kitchen and family room provides a balcony effect for a dining area, which the 9x16-foot kitchen can accommodate easily. The kitchen also is well planned as a control point for supervising play both indoors and out.

STORAGE SPACE is no problem in B-69. It has a full basement, plus ample bedroom closets, a coat closet off the entrance vestibule, and a linen closet convenient to the main bathroom.

York has done some tricks with the exterior of the house, too, giving it an appearance of a larger home.

He extended the garage beyond the front of the house, preventing a box-like effect too often found in smaller homes and giving it an attractive roof line.

THE SIDE walls suggested are vertical boards, but a shingled horizontal line could be substituted if preferred.

For added interest, you also could use a different material for the cantilevered bay section which forms the bedroom seats. "However," said York, "you shouldn't use more than three different materials on the side walls."

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-69.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Anyone who can drive a nail can build this modern secretary by following an easy and detailed plan.

By Ursula M. S. Dadras

THERE'S A hidden bonus in modern furniture design that more and more homeowners are discovering.

Modern furniture is so easy to build!

Take the secretary shown here. It has a wide writing surface, convenient bookshelves and two handy drawers.

Because of its clean, straight lines anyone who can drive a nail can make it. Only tools required are a saw, carpenter's square, measuring tape, screwdriver, nail punch and hammer. Even the sawing can be eliminated if you have your lumber dealer cut parts to the measurement given in the plan.

Fir plywood, or plywood with a hardwood finish, is used on desk top. Clear pine or hardwood are used for the two risers and shelves. The modern legs can be purchased at any hardware store. They are factory-turned and screw into easily attached mounting brackets.

If you wish to eliminate the legs an alternate design shows how to mount the unit directly against the wall.

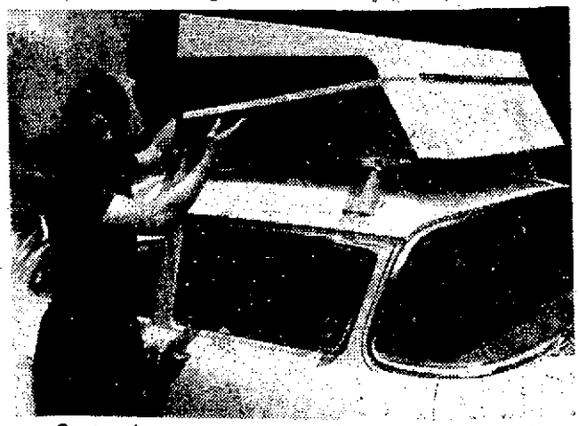

The Sketchbook plan includes a complete list of parts, with exact dimensions of all pieces and step-by-step instructions in words and pictures on the simple assembly procedure.

TO ORDER, specify Secretary Plan S-61 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Aid to Happy Vacation

WHATEVER your plans for vacationing this summer, if you are driving you will have more fun and less worry if you have a safe place for your luggage. For a rain, snow, dust and wind proof luggage compartment that can be locked and carried on top of your car, consider the unit pictured with this article. It's good looking, can be painted to match car colors and the top is hinged for easy packing and unpacking. The size may be varied according to individual needs.

This handsome and useful item may be made easily by any amateur do-it-yourselfer by using a full-sized pattern with list of materials, directions and illustrations. To obtain the pattern—it's No. 228—send name and address and $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Car-top luggage compartment built from a full-sized pattern is demonstrated by John Ericson of NBC-TV.

Delft Is a Delight

By Helen L. Gillum

Delft ware from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Lee of Long Beach includes pieces made in Germany and England. A rare piece is reclining cow, a milk pitcher.

DELFT WARE, with its pretty blue coloring and quaint designs, is a never-failing source of interest wherever it is found. Its ability to blend harmoniously with most any type of home decor also makes it popular among antique lovers. A collection of blue delft, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Denver Lee, of 4444 North Bellflower Blvd., adds taste and distinction to the Early American and Victorian furnishings of their home.

"Old Delft," sometimes referred to as the "faience of the Netherlands" was made in Holland as early as 1550. Like its counterparts, majolica and faience, delft was actually another early attempt to imitate the cherished Chinese porcelain, that popular goal of European potters from the time of the Crusades onward. And, as happened in the case of majolica and faience, the resulting ware, while not exactly accomplishing the coveted goal, did develop into an excellent product in itself.

NAMED after Delft, the town of its manufacture in Holland, this was first an earthenware coated with a lead glaze rendered opaque by the addition of tin ashes. Eventually, the tin glaze was abandoned in favor of translucent glaze.

But the term "delft" continued to be used long after the tin glaze was abandoned. Likewise, the name of "delft" has been used down through the years for this type of pottery manufactured in other countries in imitation of the early Dutch potters. The industry did well until the end of the 18th century, when competition by Wedgwood's cream-ware in England finally caused all but two Delft factories in Holland to close.

PLEASING features to be found in all delft ware are the decorative motifs of landscapes, seascapes, Biblical themes and Oriental scenes. While the deep blue coloring of most delft endears it to many collectors, others prefer the not-so-easy-to-find items in red, yellow, green, brown, black and varicolored. The small and unusual objects to be found in delft, particularly the English and Dutch products, make for interest and variety, too.

Most of the pieces in the Lee's collection are German, with several bearing the crossed swords of the Meissan factory. A covered soup tureen with windmills and sail boats is English delft. Two plates and an old salt box with hinged wooden lid feature windmills and canal scenes. There is an interesting dripolator-type coffee pot eleven inches high with country views on it. Among the smaller objects is a rare "reclining cow" cream pitcher, seven inches long by two inches high.

Hers Is a Desert Refuge

By Ellen Saunders

PEACE and security have entered the life of a Eurasian beauty who, twice in a decade, was evacuated from Shanghai in the face of Japanese and Communist invasions, and who now lives in Coachella Valley.

"The last time was in 1949," says dark-haired Mrs. Lillian Chang of North Palm Springs, former wife of a high-ranking Chinese government official. "The Communists were surrounding Shanghai and I was given two hours in which to leave my $60,000 home.

"I arrived in Japan aboard the SS Tucker with only a fur coat and two rose quartz elephants. I realized afterwards the things which I had saved were those which had a sentimental value for me."

Lillian Chang was born in Minneapolis of a Finnish mother and a Chinese father and was taken to China at the age of seven to be reared by her paternal grandparents. With the exception of two years spent in the United States while in her early teens she lived continuously in China until 1941.

"IT WAS a bewildering experience at first," she explained, "but the Chinese people are very gentle with children. We lived in the country and I learned to cook, to embroider and to weave. In our province of Toy-Saun the women did most of the work in and outside of the home because, as was the custom in those days, the majority of the men had emigrated to the 'golden mountain,' as America was called. A portion of their wages would be sent back each month and saved against the day they would retire and return home."

Shanghai was Mrs. Chang's home after her marriage at 17 to the head of China's Foreign Trade Commission. She and her husband later separated.

"Those were the days," Mrs. Chang reminisced, "when many world notables were visiting China. I toured the cities with them acting as guide and interpreter to Dr. Roscoe Pound of Harvard, Claire Luce, Nehru and Cameron Forbes, the founder of Boston University.

"I served as president of the Women's Club of Shanghai and introduced Doris Duke Cromwell to society there."

Shortly before Pearl Harbor Mrs. Chang and her young son Ronald caught the last boat out of China for the United States. During the war years they lived in Hollywood where Mrs. Chang manufactured the first plastic dinnerware produced in the United States.

Lillian Chang relaxes beside a portrait of herself, painted from memory by a British artist who met her in Hong Kong in 1950, was impressed by her beauty.

THE WAR OVER, she returned to Shanghai just as inflation was reaching its peak.

"Both Mr. Chang and I were living there," she said, "although we did not meet at the time. It was a fantastic life. Money depreciated so quickly that people carried large rolls of bank notes with them all the time. 100,000 yen wouldn't even buy an egg. You would order a dish of noodles in a restaurant and before you could pay the bill the price would have risen fourfold."

Mrs. Chang's husband, novelist F. S. Chang has used the Shanghai of those years as the background for his latest novel, "Nameless School," which is now in the publisher's hands.

Chang is the scion of a family of scholars (his cousin is Dr. Wei Taoming, former governor of Formosa and one time ambassador to France and the United States) practiced law in China before serving as chancellor of the Chinese Embassy from 1942 to 1948.

"My writing career actually began in Washington," he recalled, "when my English instructor liked the way I wrote up an old Chinese legend of the Milky Way and urged me to expand it."

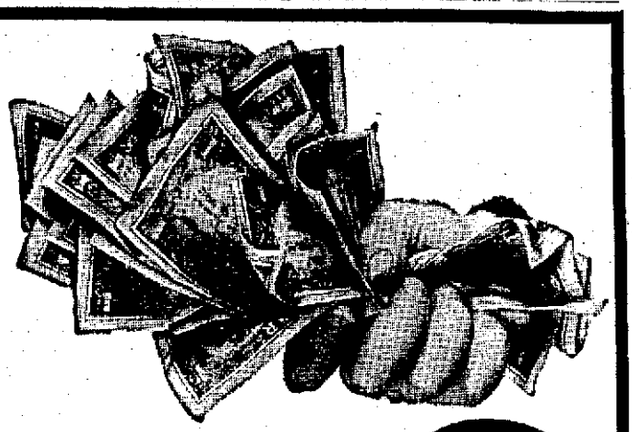

THE RESULT was "The Sky River," a book for teenagers which won the Boys Club of America award.

During the decade that elapsed between the publication of his first book and his move to the desert two years ago, Chang authored two other successful pieces of fiction, "Until the Phoenix" and "The Two Women of Lee Ho," toured the world, did library research in China, owned and published Freedom Magazine in Hong Kong.

"Cooking has always been my hobby," said Chang, "so when Lillian and I were married we moved to the desert and opened China Inn where we serve only dinners leaving me the rest of the day to write. We don't have any great ambitions, we just want to make a living."

"And give thanks every day," said his wife, "that we are living in a land of peace."

Time to Dine Al Patio

Setting a mood for fun and relaxation, this colorful meal with Calypso Chicken is something special for outdoor dining. With the chicken, named for the tasty marinade used, go hominy-peas-onion rings in combination, potatoes browned with butter over coals, and 2-tone salad. A relish bowl eases waiting time.

Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

NOW IS THE TIME of year when the great American public takes to the outdoors, with mealtime in the patio or at a picnic site providing high lights for summery days. Whether dining is to be "al patio," or al fresco wherever the wandering charcoal broiler may be set up, Chicken Calypso with its peppy marinade suits the hungry mood.

Versatile canned foods save work in preparing the vegetable dishes and a tasty make-ahead salad. A delightful extra is the snack platter for munching while the chicken grills.

Calypso Chicken

1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon ginger
½ cup canned apple juice
⅓ cup soy sauce
¼ cup canned or bottled lemon juice
3 cloves garlic
6 to 8 chicken legs
Salad oil

Mix sugar, dry mustard and ginger. Add apple juice, soy sauce, lemon juice and finely minced or crushed garlic; mix well. Pour over chicken legs; let marinate several hours or over night. Drain chicken legs (saving marinade) and dry on paper toweling. Brush chicken legs with salad oil. Cook over hot coals about 5 minutes, turn and brush them generously with the marinade. Continue cooking until done, turning the chicken legs frequently and brushing with the marinade. Six to eight servings.

Vegetable Trio

1 medium size onion
2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
1 can (1 lb.) hominy
1 can (1 lb.) peas
¼ cup light cream
Salt, pepper

Cook thinly sliced onion in butter until tender but not brown. Add drained hominy and peas, cream, and salt and pepper to taste. Heat. Six to eight servings.

Grilled Potatoes

2 cans (1 lb. each) whole white potatoes
¼ cup butter, or margarine
Salt, pepper
Paprika

Roll drained potatoes in melted butter and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Put in a wire clamp holder and cook over hot coals until browned, turning once. Brush occasionally with remaining melted butter. Six to eight servings.

Two-tone Molded Salad

Tomato Aspic Layer

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¾ cup canned tomato juice
⅔ cup canned tomato sauce
2 teaspoons canned lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 tablespoon grated onion

Cottage Cheese Layer

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ cup diced cucumber
¾ cup light cream
2 cups creamed cottage cheese

Tomato Aspic Layer . . . Sprinkle gelatin over tomato juice in a saucepan to soften. Heat slowly until gelatin is dissolved, stirring. Add remaining ingredients, mixing well. Pour into a mold and chill until firm.

Cottage Cheese Layer . . . Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes, dissolve over hot water. Add to remaining ingredients, mix well. Pour over tomato aspic layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving plates and garnish with salad greens and lemon wedges. Pass mayonnaise. Six to eight servings.

PENNEY'S DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH

The Princess and the Indian Chief

By Helen Smith

MANY tales of lust and passion in the Old West have come down through the years but perhaps none can rival the little-known episode of a beautiful young lady of royal blood and the head of the Suisunes Indians.

It has all the earmarks of a Grade B scenario, casting as the heroine, Russian Princess Helena De Gagarin, blonde, lovely and described as a "lady of 20 Aprils."

The hero is Chief Mighty Arm, baptized Francisco Solano, a handsome brave with long braids of inky black and standing an even seven feet tall in his colorful blanket and feathers.

The "heavy" could be Mexican Gen. Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo who did all he could to forestall the budding romance. Or it could even be Count Alexander Rotcheff, General of Siberia, and the young lady's husband, but history books have little to say about his reaction to the affair.

IT ALL STARTED in 1841 when the golden-tressed princess married Count Rotcheff one spring day in St. Petersburg. For all her delicate gold and white beauty, Princess Helena had a sturdy constitution and a whim of iron. So instead of choosing to honeymoon in the luxurious atmosphere of the palace, she capriciously announced the wedding trip would include the Russian otter hunting outpost of Fort Ross on the rugged Northern California coast.

Bundled in wolfskins the young people and their servants began the sleigh ride across the icy wastes of Siberia. They then made a stormy crossing of the Bering Straits in a small sailing vessel, finishing the final leg of their journey in a bumpy stagecoach.

Princess Helena reached Fort Ross still enthusiastic about adventure—and ready for more.

She found it as she was carried to the beach from the shore boat and deposited, all French ruffles, laces and perfume, at the feet of a towering Indian.

Her eyes traveled up the length of his seven-foot frame and she cried in a voice as radiant as an aurora borealis, "Oh, what a splendid savage!"

MIGHTY ARM did not understand her words but the tone was unmistakable. Wearing his blanket with the dash of a Spanish cloak, he helped the party unload their belongings.

Gen. Vallejo was also on hand for the arrival of the

A NEW ACHIEVEMENT IN SANITARY PROTECTION!

5 reasons why new Confidets make other leading sanitary napkins out-of-date, ill-fitting and inadequate...

1. Only true anatomical shape. Confidets® are the only sanitary napkin fully tapered and shaped to fit body contours. Wide in front for more protection—narrow in back for greater comfort—don't bunch or bulge. Confidets can be worn with any standard belt . . . fasten easily, fit securely.

2. Only one with proportioned depth for more protection. No other napkin has extra thickness in middle where greatest absorbency is needed. Protects like a super pad with less bulkiness than a junior size.

3. Only accident-proof inner shield that's full size and securely held in position. Moisture simply cannot penetrate this feather-light shield, so under part of this new napkin stays dry, soft.

4. Only multi-layer filler with this unique arrangement. It holds 8 times its weight in moisture as proved by laboratory tests. The pure, fine quality materials absorb at maximum speed. You're blissfully secure with Confidets!

5. Exclusive ultra soft-strength cover. Only Confidets has a cover so comfortably soft against the skin yet has so much flexible strength in use. Try Confidets—developed and patented by Scott Paper Company.

Karl Boehm, young Viennese star, is seen as Jacob, the elder, more practical and serious-minded Grimm. This is the second Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film for Boehm who also stars in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Claire Bloom, acclaimed for her performance in "The Brothers Karamazov" as well as her recent London stage hit "Altoona," appears as Dorothea Grimm, wife of fantasy-minded Wilhelm. Also lending romance to the lives of the brother-team is the young star, Barbara Eden, remembered for her work in "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea."

ROUNDING OUT the cast are Walter Slezak as bookdealer Stossel, Oscar Homolka as the blustering Duke, employer of the Brothers Grimm, and Ian Wolfe as the duke's right-hand man.

Elisabeth Neumann, Betty Garde, Cheerio Meredith, Walter Rilla, Martita Hunt, Tammy Marihugh and Bryan Russell make up the remainder of the cast of the story's biographical section.

Similarly star-studded are the fairy tales.

In "The Dancing Princess," Yvette Mimieux is the beautiful princess who sneaks out of the palace nightly to wear out dainty slippers dancing at a gypsy camp. The young woodsman who steals her secret — and her heart — is Russ Tamblyn.

ALTHOUGH THREE fairy tales appear intact, other Grimm characters are not forgotten. Appearing in one sequence are Tom Thumb, Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Hansel and Gretel, the Frog Prince, the Queen Bee — and Rumpelstiltskin, who is portrayed by Arnold Stang.

Enhancing the fairy tales are songs written by Bob Merill, whose musical, "Carnival," proved a Broadway hit.

every direction, the newly formed government began taking giant steps. Problems now met regularly by city planners would astound Willmore with his dream. New suburbs can emerge too quickly into a chaotic tangle of narrow traffic-filled streets leading to inadequate business sections where schools and parks are not wanted. So outlying sections are preplanned.

One of the city's newest suburbs, Los Altos, although mainly 8 to 12 years old, was actually expected much earlier. Werner Ruchti, city planning commissioner, declares that "Long range planning for East Long Beach was begun and put on record as early as 1931. Plans for the schools were prepared by the regional planning commission and the school authorities."

THESE EXPERTS worked together and planned well—but not without extra help, for the pioneer spirit of the Bixbys, the Lowes, and the Saunders still lives. It may relax in an easy chair at home while bridges are built, huge loans are made to other countries, and rockets are sent hurtling into space, but it rises quickly in a P-T.A. or school board meeting when new school plans are in progress.

The foresight of authorities and constant interest of the parents has provided this city with its biggest tax dividend. It is now equipped with and constantly adding to a school system whose excellence would reassure the Bixbys, Lowes, Saunders and other early settlers that their efforts and gifts as well as taxes were not in vain. A beatiful new State College for which city money provided the land, now brings added prestige and benefit as it grows each year, on a hill in East Long Beach, in size, attendance and variety of subjects available. Even now several of its pupils may be contemplating the design of the first passenger rocket to the moon. May the tickets soon be available.

Russians and he, wise old campaigner, knew what a bonfire had been kindled in the breast of the warrior. Nothing like Princess Helena had ever been beheld before in this land of few women. Vallejo determined to be watchful — no telling what scandal could result from the meeting of these two.

Mighty Arm and Vallejo had been friends and allies for almost ten years as the Indian and his 1,000 braves helped keep the peace in the area north of San Francisco which now includes Marin, Sonoma, Lake and Solano Counties. Vallejo knew that this friendship was now in danger of being broken for he could not allow the smitten Red man to do anything that would endanger Mexico-Russia relations.

Vallejo and his wife Francisca Benicia opened their lovely hacienda, Lachryma Montis, in Petaluma, to the visitors and Solano was a frequent visitor there.

AFTER BAPTISM, Solano had learned fluent Spanish. In buckskins and beads, he was seemingly at ease in the thickly carpeted rooms, sipping French wines and listening to the music of Mozart. He was almost a gentleman at times like these and he knew he preferred blondes.

His gaze would rest for hours on the yellow-haired princess as she played the harpsichord or worked on needlepoint. They exchanged few words but always the Princess was aware, and delighted by Solano's stare as she flaunted the satins and low cut designs of her Parisian wardrobe before the glance of this primitive man.

One day, capricious as ever, Helena began to weary of her game. The memories of lavish parties in St. Petersburg and the gay shops in Vienna returned and made her dissatisfied with her present surroundings. The simple life of the raw frontier and her guache admirer had both lost their allure.

She abruptly announced that her group would return to Russia beginning the next day.

THAT NIGHT Vallejo was awakened by the sound of pebbles being thrown against his casement window. He found Solano requesting a private audience.

It seems Mighty Arm, strong and fearless in battle, could not face the realization the Princess was going out of his life. He had decided, he informed Vallejo, to stop the carriage as it went through the pass to Bodega Bay and take the Princess by force.

Vallejo was horrified by this announcement but not too much surprised. He had been expecting it to happen before this. He smoothed his white hair and side whiskers searching for words to prevent this act which could end only in disaster for all.

Through the long hours Vallejo gestured and ranted while Solano sat as stone. Vallejo tried every argument and finally made a plea for the sake of his own honor as the host of the Russians.

DAWN WAS NEAR when the proud chieftain stoically indicated his surrender and agreement not to kidnap the "lady of 20 Aprils" who had captured his heart and was preparing to carry it off to a land he would never see.

To make sure the agreement would be kept, Vallejo ordered the chief to head for Napa Valley until the carriage was safely through the pass.

Princess Helena gave a coquettish laugh and feigned a swoon in appreciation of the story later told of her rescue from the "splendid savage."

And what of Solano?

Was he in Napa Valley when the carriage traveled the narrow road to the coast? Or was he silhouetted on some nearby hill—still fighting the love in his heart and wanting to give the story a happy ending?

AND INCREASE YOUR VALUE

Freighter passengers aboard a Matson vessel visit chart room for first-hand navigation information.

Long for Adventure?

IF YOU love ships and long for adventure, travel by freighter may be just what you're after.

It's relaxing, it's economical and you visit ports off the regular track of the passenger liners, according to Matson Lines, which operates four cargo-passenger ships regularly between California and Hawaii, and two to the South Pacific.

The steamship line also provides luxury liner service to both areas.

The Matson cargo-passenger ships carry a maximum of 12 passengers. It's an informal sports shirt and shirt sleeve atmosphere, day or night. And at mealtimes everyone gets to sit at an officer's table. Passengers dine in the officers' saloon.

FREIGHTER STATEROOMS are equipped with two and three berths; they're all outside rooms with private baths and portholes, and situated amidships.

Freighters have no laundry or bar facilities. It's a good idea to take along adequate changes of clothing and your own supply of liquor, should you desire an occasional drink of something stronger than coffee, tea or milk.

Planned entertainment goes by the board, too. On freighters, you make your own fun—loafing in a deck chair, playing cards, chess or checkers, or simply watching the sea, a fascinating pastime as any old salt can tell you. And should you feel like "raiding the icebox," go right ahead.

ABOVE ALL, freighter passengers need to be flexible. Departure times and even the ports of call are determined strictly by cargo, and always subject to change.

Rates on Matson freighters range from $180 to $225 one-way to Honolulu, and $455 to $600 one-way to Australia.

Fair Film Tip

Don't plan on many outdoor movies after dark at the Seattle World's Fair is the advice of Charles Whaley, manager of the Kodak Photo Information Center on the fairgrounds. There just isn't enough illumination in most of the exhibit area, he explains. An exception is the amusement zone, known as the Gayway, which is brilliantly lighted.

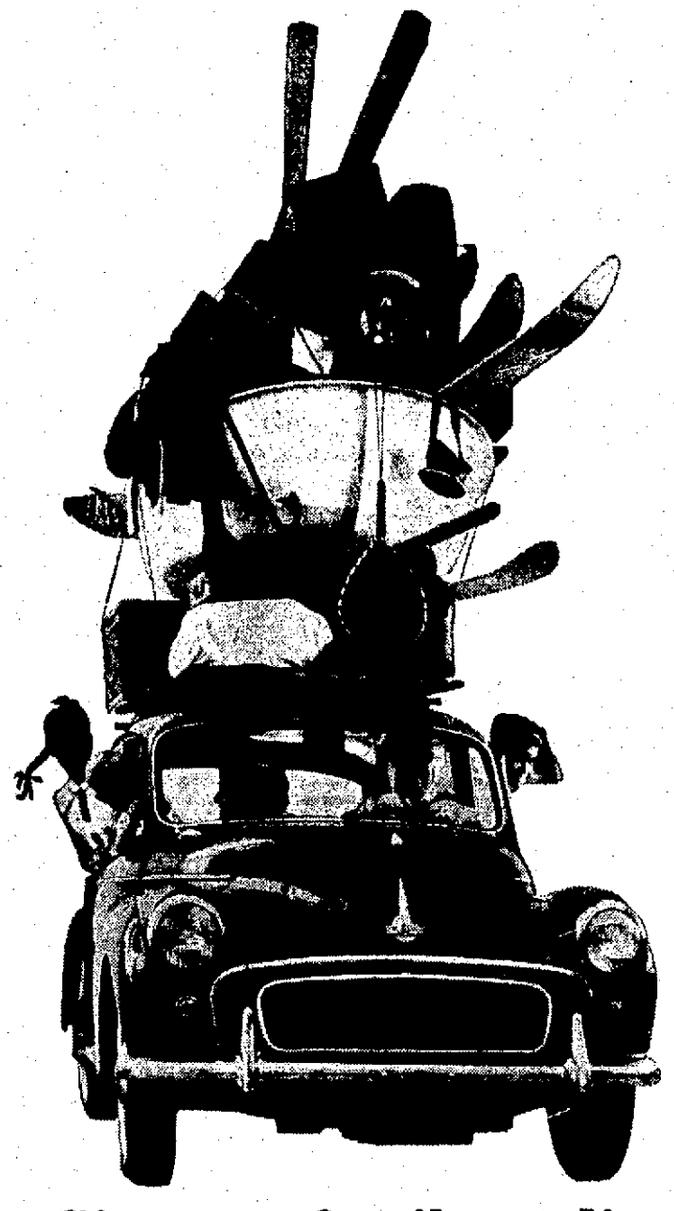

For still pictures, however, there are many colorful nighttime possibilities, using a flash or taking time exposures. Whaley recommends a tripod and light meter.

An important function of the Information Center is dispensing exposure information and suggesting vantage points for many of the interesting structures on the grounds, including the much-photographed Space Needle. There are also a variety of interesting fountains and pools to attract the shutter bug. A wealth of interior shots are possible with flash equipment.

Going to Israel?

If, like many Americans, you plan a trip to the Holy Land this year, first read "Everyone's Guide to Israel" (Doubleday & Co., 575 Madison Ave., New York 22, $4.95). Written by Joan Comay, this handsome book covers the history, economy and government of Israel as well as detailed travel information for the entire country. The foreword is by David Ben-Gurion.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Combat Fatigue Slow to Heal

By Ben Zinser
Independent, Press-Telegram Medical-Science Writer

COMBAT FATIGUE, once thought to be a transient condition, can persist for years, new research shows.

Bay Area researchers have found that many World War II veterans still have their original symptoms of recurrent nightmares, irritability, headaches and startle reaction.

In the group of veterans studied, 82 per cent said their symptoms were severe enough at times to interfere with their ability to work.

LABORATORY rats, after drinking coffee, did not recover more rapidly from the effects of alcohol, Indiana University researchers say. Instead, the coffee prolonged the degenerative behavior produced by alcohol. Tests now are being conducted on human subjects, says GP, journal for family physicians.

STILLED HEARTS that do not respond immediately to a surgeon's massage sometimes can be aided by injections of a substance called THAM. This chemical appears to correct an acid imbalance associated with heart standstill, according to American Surgeon. Heartbeat was restored in 14 of 15 patients who got THAM after standard methods of resuscitation had failed to restore heart rhythm within 15 minutes.

WOMEN UNDER 40 suffering from a condition called endometriosis can often be spared surgery by a drug treatment that induces a pseudopregnancy.

So says Dr. Edwin C. Hamblem, professor of endocrinology at Duke University Medical Center.

Endometriosis is the appearance of cells that usually line the womb in such unusual places as the intestinal wall or the bladder. It can produce irregular or painful menstration.

Dr. Hamblem, in the journal "Consultant," says the use of such hormonal drugs as Enovid or Depo-Provera can make the body react remarkably like it does in real pregnancy. The drugs bring about a destruction of endometrial tissue.

THE STERILE woman, says a New York doctor, often is found to be an overprotected child with repressed hostility toward her own mother. She fears that she would treat her child as her mother treated her.

The observation is that of Dr. Irving C. Fischer of New York Medical College in a report to the American Society for the Study of Sterility.

PROLONGED and uninterrupted television viewing under a condition of poor posture can lead to pain in the tailbone area.

So says Dr. Donald S. Miller of Chicago Medical School in the American Journal of Proctology.

Overstuffed chairs usually are a factor in the development of the condition.

"A hard, firm seat is more comfortable to the coccyx tailbone) than an upholstered chair," Dr. Miller says.

TV viewers should attempt to maintain a proper sitting posture, he adds.

CAPSULES: A vaccine against trachoma, an eye infection that may lead to blindness, is being tested on 400 Indian children in Arizona. . . . An enzyme called Chymoral, taken as a tablet, aids bronchitis patients unable to cough up tenacious sputum. The drug thins out mucous secretions to facilitate expectoration, doctors say in British Medical Journal.

A dentifrice containing the enzyme inhibitor sodium N-lauroyl sarcosinate has been able to reduce tooth decay by 30 to 55 per cent in six tests, a dental journal reports. . . . A new drug called B 633 shows promise in the treatment of leprosy.

Frustrations at the Wedding

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

IF YOU read only one book of fiction this month, let it be Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "DEARLY BELOVED" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $3.95). It is her first prose book since "Gift from the Sea" and it is well worth the seven-year wait.

Offhand, it is difficult to think of another woman who writes as subtly as Mrs. Lindbergh or who handles the English language as well as she does. The appeal of "Dearly Beloved" is universal—perhaps a little more to women than to men because Mrs. Lindbergh seems to understand women better than men.

Set in the framework of a June wedding, the book explores the consciousness of persons at the wedding, revealing their hopes, fears, frustrations.

Sally is marrying Mark "in the sight of God and the face of this company." We come to know the young people, but better yet we know Deborah, mother of the bride, seeking to establish communication with her husband after years of a so-so marriage; Frances, mother of the groom, who dallies with affairs; Chrissie, the bridesmaid with love and adventure ahead, and her mother who unexpectedly has found happiness in a middle-age marriage; Aunt Harriet, spinster who knows more about the family than they know about themselves. On the periphery are a psychiatrist, an alcoholic artist, a musician, a college professor, a young college student, and Timothy, the bride's grandfather who knows enduring happiness.

All, listening to and watching the service, gain new insights in love, marriage—and their lives.

This reviewer has only one criticism. I should have liked to know more about John, husband of Deborah, father of the bride. It would have been interesting to know how he thought and felt, too.

THIS IS SCRUFFY, the last remaining ape on Gibraltar and unwilling hero of Paul Gallico's "SCRUFFY" (Doubleday, $4.50) about a misanthropic ape which perpetuated a legend and saved the British Empire.

WILLIAM FAULKNER departs from his usual theme of the decadence of the Old South to frontier humor in "THE REIVERS" (Random House, $4.95). "Reivers," it should be explained, are plunderers; characters and incidents are familiar to Faulkner readers.

This plot has to do with three reivers who in 1905 "borry" Boss Priest's automobile, drive it from Jefferson, county seat of Yoknapatawpha County, Miss. to Memphis. The car is traded for a horse named Forkid Lightning. And Faulkner goes on from there.

A wonderful paragraph about Parsham Hood, elderly Negro: "He said grace, briefly, courteously but with dignity, without abasement or cringing; one man of decency and intelligence to another; notifying Heaven that we were about to eat and thanking It for the privilege, but at the same time reminding It that It had had some help too."

SIMONE DE BEAUVOIR, French novelist of considerable stature, tells about France, Jean-Paul Sartre and her associations with the writer of the existentialist school in "THE PRIME OF LIFE" (World, $6.95).

The "prime of life" to which she refers is the years after she was out of school until she was in her 30s. The period was 1929 to the liberation of Paris, shortly before the end of World War II.

Careers of the author and Sartre developed almost simultaneously, and they rejected the normal conventions of life to live a Bohemian existence of their own. The story is about French people, very French people—and it is pretty decadent.

MILOVAN DJILAS once was No. 2 man in Communist Yugoslavia, bosom comrade of Tito. But the corruption proved more than he could stand. He wrote a book, "The New Class," and exposed it. For that he was stripped of all offices, expelled from the party, thrown into prison. In prison he wrote more along the same lines, and smuggled it out.

Finally released by Tito, he could not be kept silent. He wrote "CONVERSATIONS WITH STALIN" (Harcourt, Brace and World, $3.95). Back to prison went Djilas, as he surely knew he would. Tito has indicated that Djilas is in this time for a long term. Probably beyond the eight years and eight months to which he was sentenced on May 14.

No one in the anti-Communist camp has been so close to Stalin, to the whole Kremlin, Djilas writes, with great power and skill, of his missions to Moscow in 1944, 1945 and 1949. Stalin is presented by a master portraitist as are Beria, Malenkov, Molotov, Zhukov and Khrushchev.

When told Soviet troops were killing all German civilian refugees Stalin is quoted as saying "Why lecture our soldiers too much? Let them have some initiative."

OF COURSE the British were shocked by the savage ease with which the Nazi war machine overwhelmed Poland in September, 1939.

But the horror passed as the western front remained quiet and Britain settled into that fumbling, tragi-comic period variously known as the sitzkrieg or "THE PHONEY WAR" (St. Martin's, $5).

E. S. Turner, a Briton who has authored numerous social histories of his people, vividly recalls the halcyon days when issues included whether fox hunting should be continued and whether soldiers' mistresses should receive Army allowances.

Turner turns his penetrating eye on every spectrum of English life during those confused months which ended when the panzers smashed from the Ardennes to prostrate France.

Then the British, nearly defenseless, rallied to the Churchill summons to expend blood, sweat and tears to defend their homeland on the beaches and in the streets.

Tiniest Official Park

Mill Ends Park, an official park in the City of Portland, Ore., is said to be the world's smallest. It was founded and is carefully tended by Dick Fagan (above), newspaper columnist, much to the amusement of Portland residents. Only regular users are leprechauns and press agents. Seems an 18-inch hole was left in a concrete traffic island for a power-line pole but, when plans for the pole were scrapped, Fagan and gardeners took over.

"How do you tip railroad and airline porters in European countries?"

AT SOME airports the company pays the porter. Some places there is a standard charge and they'll tell you—this includes railroad porters.

Usually you go to the airport bank to change money. What I do is ask the man at the desk what the proper tip is. They tell you—it's always the local equivalent of the way we'd use a quarter in America. Once you've got this coin in mind, it works for railroad porters, bellboys, etc.

". . . a hideaway town without many tourists in Mexico by car"

Go down the central highway—Guadalajara to Queretaro to Mexico City. Below Queretaro, you come to San Juan del Rio. Turn off here to Tequisquiapan.

Nine little inns of good quality. Nice high country. Not too far from Mexico City. Tourists pass by usually in a hurry to get to the city.

Good new books on Mexico City, by the way: "My Mexico City and Yours" is a Dolphin paperback guide (95 cents). By Pepe Romero, the best-known columnist south of the Border.

"We are taking a trip around the world by ship and would like to hit the 'free port.' Does this mean you pay no duty when you come back? Or must we declare what we buy?"

You declare what you buy when you come back to the U.S. You are allowed $100 duty-free. (But while you are away you can also send back as many presents as you like duty-free if they are marked "value less than $10.")

Free ports only mean you pay no taxes or customs duties of THAT country. Therefore, they are cheaper. Lots of times cheaper than the country where they are made. Because if you bought them in that country, you'd pay local taxes.

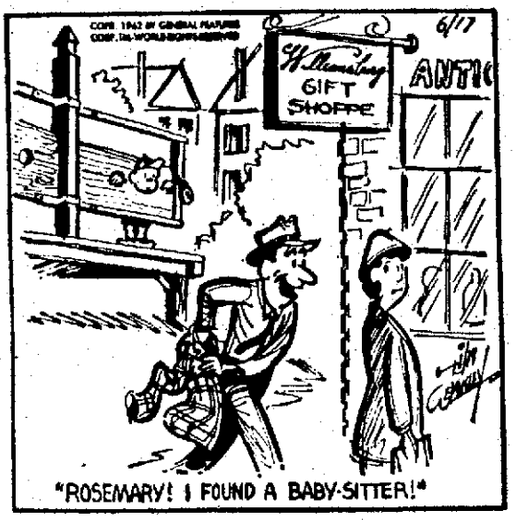

There's no list that I know of free ports. But the ones I can remember off-hand are: Hong Kong, Singapore, Amsterdam Airport, Shannon Airport, Montego Bay and Kingston, Jamaica. (They sell it to you in town. You get it aboard ship or airplane.) The Virgin Islands, Barbados and Trinidad have something similar to Jamaica.

London has a system of no tax, no duty if you have the things delivered at the ship or airport. Copenhagen airport and a number of others around the world sell liquor and cigarettes on a free port basis.

Best free ports for choice and easy shopping are Hong Kong, Singapore, the Jamaica towns and Shannon.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

TO MANY travelers, Washington is at once a gracious and lovely city, and a strangely cold one. It is often compared with Paris for its tree-shaded boulevards punctuated by circles where history's great are commemorated in stone and bronze. Its imposing government buildings are impressive and dignified.

Yet there is a uniformity and a sense of impermanence about Washington that deprive it of much personality—with one tiny exception.

That exception is a 10-square-block area in the northwest corner of the city known as Georgetown, a fiercely independent last stronghold of traditionalism. Georgetown is, in effect, the "old city" of Washington, and it was a thriving place when the Capitol was still a swamp.

When history bypassed Georgetown in the 1800s, the area became a slum. Its handsome examples of Federal architecture, with unique salmon-colored scored bricks and fan-shaped doorway windows, fell into disrepair. Inevitably the pendulum swung back, and interest in restoration grew. By a few years ago, Georgetown had become probably the most exclusive residential area in the United States.

THOUGH Georgetown is technically part of Washington, its residents are so influential that they control virtually all their own affairs according to their own lights. A Georgetown, D. C., mailing address is quite legal, as are traditional street names. Georgetown also has its own

The Newest View of Alcatraz

Guadalajara, busy capital of the Mexican state of Jalisco, soon will bear the stamp of Hilton Hotels. Set to open in 1964 is the 220-room, downtown unit of the famous chain seen in artist's view above.

SOMETHING new has been added to the tired old hills of San Francisco.

Not a new kind of weather: the creeping fog hasn't moved out on little cat feet, and the cutlass-like edge of wind at dusk hasn't dulled.

And it's certainly not the attitude of San Franciscans who still believe their city has it made.

It's the Crown Room, atop the newly completed Fairmont Hotel Tower, a rival for the Top o' the Mark, the tourist trap that has endured for, lo, these many years.

The view is almost a dead ringer of that from Top o' the Mark, only maybe a little more so.

Nineteen stories up, Top o' the Mark commands a tremendous sweep of the captivated 44-square-mile area that is San Francisco, and the Golden Gate, Alcatraz and beyond. The Crown Room surveys the same breath-taking scene from a 29-story height; but since the Fairmont Tower's base is lower than the Mark's, the difference in height is equivalent to only about four stories.

To get there, gaping visitors may board an "outside" elevator and watch the city drop slowly away from them as they crawl the outer Tower wall in their glass-enclosed cage to their rendezvous with the view and a highball.

The Crown Room's decor is extravagant in a way that San Francisco loves to be extravagant. The big room is built on three levels with the two higher levels turning slowly in a clockwise direction. To italicize the name of the room, a 12-foot glittering chandelier, in gold wrought iron and shaped like a crown, is suspended from the ceiling.

The more naive visitors look up (with a soft whistle) to notice this decoration for the first time when a cocktail waitress dressed in an abbreviated skirt and powdered wig brings the bill for the drinks.

They're a buck a throw.

newspaper and social customs.

The signs are erected, and the trees and facades and atmosphere preserved, under the watchful eye of Washington's Fine Arts Commission, without whose approval absolutely nothing can be changed.

Hardly anything ever is. Gas lamps still illuminate the streets and housefronts, their tops carefully removed so they flicker fittingly. Nothing would be less surprising than to see a horsedrawn coach clop down "N" St., as it might have in the 18th Century when Washington's only accommodations for congressmen were in Georgetown's Union Hotel.

"N" Street, probably the most fashionable in the tiny area, still has its original cobbled streets and frame houses, which are required to be painted regularly. Some of the loveliest of Georgetown's famed walled gardens are here also, the objects of annual pilgrimages.

Still surviving—and thriving—also are some of the last of the neighborhood groceries, as well as quaint shops of odd descriptions — saddleries, fabric stores and the like.

TOURISTS are about the last things Georgetowners want (only small sightseeing buses are permitted on the streets). It took effort tantamount to moving heaven and earth to get a hotel in Georgetown, but that's exactly what opened last month with the somewhat grudging approval of the Fine Arts Commission.

Knowing that only a unique place would satisfy the stern powers that be, Chicago entrepreneur Julius Epstein is unabashedly calling his Georgetown Inn "the most luxurious in the country." It has floor butlers like a European hotel, the help is liveried in colonial costumes.

A WINTER CRUISE to the summer lands of South America is offered by Swedish American Line for next January-March when the cruise liner Gripsholm, Scandinavia's largest and most modern cruise ship which often calls at Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbor, will make a 45-day circumnavigation of the South American continent. The Gripsholm will leave New York Jan. 18 on its 13,890-mile itinerary.

FREIGHTER, ANYONE? Standard Fruit and Steamship Company's modern banana ships plying between Berth 160, Wilmington, and Puerto Bolivar, Ecuador, now offer passenger service at $475 per person —double rooms with shower. Your ship is your hotel throughout the voyage.

THE CUNARD liner, Caronia, will dock in Long Beach Harbor next Feb. 8, it was announced by Ronoldo G. Morton Jr., cruise director for Cunard, while on a recent visit to the Southland.

GADABOUTS: It would be a nice run down to Del Mar for the opening of the 10-day Southern California Exposition and San Diego County Fair on June 29. It's always a good show!

July 4-8—Semana Nautica (Spanish for nautical pageant) at Santa Barbara, which this year will include underwater competition for skin divers. Other events: Baseball, horsemanship, swimming, sailing, lawn bowling, tennis, even kite flying!

July 2-4—Flagstaff's all-Indian Pow-Wow, with 12,000 Indians from 30 tribes taking part. Parades at 11 a.m., afternoon programs at 1 o'clock, evening show at 8:30.

FIREWORKS will light the sky on Casino Point, Avalon, Catalina Island, on Saturday night, June 30; Tuesday night, the eve of July 4, and the following Saturday night, July 7. July 4 celebrants there also will dance in the Casino Ballroom to Eddie Howard's band.

He's the Luckiest!

Bryan Russell's finest hour to date was when Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris met him at a Florida airport.

BRYAN RUSSELL isn't called the luckiest 9-year-old in town because he's been in 30 shows in three years, but because he was in one movie — namely "Safe at Home"—with Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris.

"Safe At Home" is playing now throughout Southern California. Bryan stars as the young little leaguer whose proud boast that his dad knows Mantle and Maris leads him to run away to the Yankees and Maris and Mantle for help.

Bryan, a wiry, crinkly little fellow with wavy hair, freckles and two pushed-out front teeth, spent ten days in Florida to make "Safe At Home."

Guess who met him at the airport? Yup, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris.

THAT WAS Bryan's finest hour. He's been crazy about baseball since he's been old enough to know about the game. He plays second and shortstop and treasures the uniform, glove and ball the Mantle-Maris combine gave him.

Bryan's thumbnail comments: "Mantle always has a smile. Roger Maris usually goes around with a frown. He's more serious, but he's real nice. Mickey Mantle gave me his glove one day and Roger Maris gave his to my understudy.

"Ralph Houk — you might think he was kind of tough but he fools you."

Bryan made his entrance into show business in an unusual way. His mother and father were appearing in the opera "Madame Butterfly" in Tokyo. Bryan, then three years old, was scheduled to play the baby.

The extras, dressed in Oriental costumes, frightened him. The next day he contracted the mumps. When he was better he was brought to the opera house for his first role. In his mind, he blamed the extras for his attack of sickness and he screamed in fright when he was placed on stage.

A DUMMY was used until Bryan was talked out of his fear.

Later, at 6, playing on Hollywood streets, he was spotted by a casting director of the "Lassie" TV series.

As Bryan says, "Lassie" led to "Lawman" and "Lawman" led to "Troubleshooters" and "Troubleshooters" led to "Bus Stop . . ."

In three years, Bryan appeared in five movies and 25 TV shows. Currently, two films of his will appear, "How The West Was Won" and "Brothers Grimm." Bryan has just signed for another featured role as the brother in "Bye Bye Birdie."

Bryan is relaxed, besides baseball his hobbies are collecting bottle caps and baseball cards. He wants to be an architect and engineer and actor. He likes to ice skate, swim, ride horse back. He lives with his mother and sister, Jeanne, a movie gal in her own right. Jeanne, 11, plays the taunting Margaret in "Dennis the Menace."

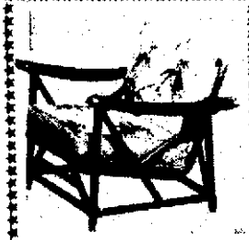

Bryan can be seen on the set or at a Beverly Hills school walking around in his baseball cap with a ball glove tucked in his jacket—autographed by Mantle and Maris.

He's the luckiest boy in my town.

Seattle's Fair Is Photogenic

Flame-topped Space Needle is seen here through graceful curves of the Seattle World's Fair monorail setup.

By Irving Desfor

AMERICA'S MOST photoscenic attraction of 1962 is the Seattle World's Fair. We would guess that more people will bring more cameras and shoot more pictures there in its six-month season than in any similar area in the world for a similar period.

Plan in advance to shoot a comprehensive picture story of the occasion. As with any off-beat vacation trip, make this a personal photo "assignment" and prepare a preliminary script or check list of important highlights to be included.

Certainly no photo fan is going to miss the fair's tallest attraction — the flame-topped Space Needle. Just below the flaming jet of natural gas is an observation deck, making it the high point for picture taking on the grounds.

PERHAPS EVEN a better vantage point for an overall view is the northeast elevator going up and down from the Needle. It has glass walls and the vertical motion of the elevator can easily be stopped with a speed of 1/100 second and a firm grip on the camera.

A Photo Information Center near the base of the Needle and just across from the monorail station where people arrive from downtown Seattle is a handy meeting place or starting point for camera fans.

Movie fans may take the Sky Ride for a fast-moving view of the fair.

Near the fair's center, and certain to be one of its most photographed subjects, is a magnificent fountain with streams arching to a height of 100 feet. At night, colored lights add to the effect. For effective after-dark pictures of this water display, an exposure of 1/5 second at f/2 with Kodachrome Type A film is suggested. Or time exposures, with a tripod to steady the camera, can start with two seconds at f/.5.

COUNTLESS opportunities for taking pictures indoors make it advisable to bring flashbulbs or a good light meter to gauge available light exposures correctly.

The best panoramic view of the entire fair area can be taken from a little city park about 100 blocks from the fair entrance. As a bonus, towering Mt. Ranier and the Seattle waterfront are included in the same picture.

POPULAR BOOKLET with amateur photographers, "Clicking With Color," is available again in a revised edition that includes data on Kodachrome II film and the newest flash bulbs. Simply written, the booklet contains rules, charts and illustrations for shooting color pictures. It's a substitute for having an old pro standing by to advise. Kodak dealers have it (50 cents).

LONG BEACH Camera Club will install officers and present trophies at a dinner at 7 p. m. Wednesday in Jones' Dining Room, 126 E. 5th St. Lowell Weeks will present a program.

Aid for Lawns

How often do you feed your lawn? Monthly? Bimonthly? Or just whenever you get around to it. The California Association of Nurserymen claims that indifferent lawn care results in indifferent lawns and that feeding should be a regular process — just like watering and cutting (or are you indifferent about that, too?).

Feed once a month and your lawn will respond with a continuous even growth of green.

Brilliant Color for Summer

By Murtha Hurley

IN JULY, often the sun seems to hide itself. On such a date, when the skies are leaden, you may glimpse a corner of a garden or a patio sparkling with brilliant color, shimmering in the heat of the mid-summer day. The color feast, you will find, is a bed of cockscomb.

The beloved, old-fashioned cockscomb has been greatly improved by plant hybridists. Botanically, it is Celosia. The plants add splendor to mid-summer and autumn gardens, blooming as they do continuously from July until frost.

The name, "cockscomb," applies to the huge flower heads in their resemblance to the form of a rooster's comb. The radiantly colored flower crests or long graceful flowering plumes are much in demand for flower arrangements. The vivid rich colorings of red, gold, yellow, rust and rose stand up in the heat and the plants thrive in hot weather.

The plants blend well in borders with marigolds and zinnias. For gentle contrast, tone them down with a border of soft grey "Dusty Miller."

Plumed cockscomb flowers resemble ostrich feathers, brilliant in colorful shades of red, yellow and rose.

THERE ARE three types of cockscomb. The crested, the feathered or plumed and the dwarf compact varieties.

Celosia plumosa bears plumes like ostrich feathers in great profusion on two-foot high plants. The foliage is as lovely as the flower. "Flaming Fire" has brilliant scarlet plumes waving over bronze-maroon foliage. The plumes stay in flower for weeks. "Golden Fleece" has long-stemmed, shimmering golden plumes above green leaves. The sturdy, well branched, upstanding plants are ideal for backgrounds. They grow well, most anywhere, from the desert to cool mountains.

Celosia "Toreador," a very popular variety and an All-America bronze medal winner is a stunner, an intense, bright scarlet with plush-like crests, 6 to 9 inches across. The foliage is light green. Plants grow 20 inches high, spread often to 2½ feet. They require plenty of growing space. For handsome contrast, plant "Toreador" with white petunias.

"Crestata" or crested dwarf Celosia has great velvety plumed heads 12 inches high, spreading out to a foot. Crested "Gilbert" is a soft rose shade growing 24 inches tall. "Jewel Box," a new variety, this year, is a real dwarf. For low beds, edging borders or window boxes, the plants make a beautiful showing. Enormous thick velvet crests almost hide the compact foliage of the uniformly dwarf eight-inch plants.

BESIDES BEING effective and colorful in garden beds, the plants are spectacular as potted plants and in arrangements or dried for winter bouquets.

These new cockscomb plants have three requirements. They need a rich, loamy soil, plenty of water and full sunlight.

Seeds may be started indoors in fertilized peat pots, then set into the warm ground outdoors.

Easier still, get plants from your nursery, both small bedding plants and larger potted or canned, well-established plants.

Cockscomb flowers last a long time, both in the garden and in arrangements. You can enjoy their beauty in winter bouquets, if you dry the flower crests and plumes as you do "Everlasting" flowers.

Early fall is a good time to begin harvesting the great flower crests and plumes for drying. Cut them close to the ground. Pick off all foliage. Shake out the seeds and hang the plants by their stems in a cool shady place to dry.

Water Wisely in Hot Weather

Watering flowers such as coreopsis (above) growing in the ground and shrubs in pots takes varied technique.

By Joe Littlefield

WATERING flowers in ground requires a different technique from watering plants in pots or other kinds of containers. Plants in ground have unlimited soil area that requires additional water. Container plants space for water is very limited.

That is why watering potted plants correctly is a critical factor in their growth during the hot weather. Many home gardeners turn the hose on strong, fill pots once and consider that watering. It is no wonder clay pot plants need daily waterings, yet plants don't thrive.

Gardeners should use one-fourth water pressure and fill the pots three or four times after water drains through the pots.

Watering this way gives plants a thorough drink and eliminates frequency of watering.

When to water is determined by types of containers and prevailing weather conditions. There are three types of containers. Clay pots are affected by weather conditions. If the weather is hot, the dry heat draws moisture quickly through porous clay pot, from the moist soil within. Naturally, plants are watered more often than those in composition pots or redwood tubs. Plants in wood containers are watered much less often because the soil stays moist much longer.

DURING THE hot part of summer you'll help azaleas and other potted plants to grow better by dunking them where practicable in a tub of water. Water in tub should be several inches higher than the tops of immersed pots. When bubbling stops—which means plant's roots have absorbed all the moisture they can hold—take them out. When well drained, put them back where they were in the patio or lath house.

You've done two helpful things dunking pots thusly. First, you've leached possible salts buildup in the soil. Next, you've also double checked to make sure plant root balls are thoroughly soaked.

A good time to fertilize or apply a soil conditioner to potted plants is either after a good drink of water, or after a dunking.

THERE ARE many kinds of plants grown in containers. Azaleas do exceptionally well, and may be grown two to three years in same size containers. Camellias, citrus, loquat, Trinidad flame bush, bottle brush, and many others are grown in containers, some in natural bush form, others trained to grow flat (espaliered) on a lathe frame.

Soil mixture should be two parts of organic mulch material and three parts of soil, excepting for azaleas. Use pre-moistened peat moss, unless your nurseryman at time of purchase tells you the azalea was grown in a different mixture.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Plant annual bedding plants for late summer and fall color.

By Dorothy Jonson

I think of June as the month for mildew; the time when it seems to be at its worst.

It is partly to guard against mildew that I frequently recommend the use of agricultural sulphur in the soil of your rose bed, during the spring.

Right now, however, your method of defending your garden against mildew is to follow a regular spraying program and for this I like to recommend a two - purpose rose spray . . . one that combines nicotine and copper. Such a spray can be used with safety every ten days or two weeks, since it is not harsh enough to leave dangerous residue. Still, it is sufficiently potent to keep down the thrip and aphis population at the same time that it checks mildew. Insect life moving over the body of the plants inevitably spreads mildew and other fungus diseases such as rust and black spot. Copper sprays have been tested and proven effective for use in warm, dry climates.

Lawns watered deeply and less frequently are happiest. If compaction prevents water penetration, use a corer.

Use containers of yellow marguerite for a quick show of color in your garden.

Figure on feeding chrysanthemums with liquid fish about every third week. Include fuchsias and begonias in this schedule, too.

Snails are year-round visitors in our gardens and should be greeted with bait or pellets. You can simply scatter the latter.

Begonia Society

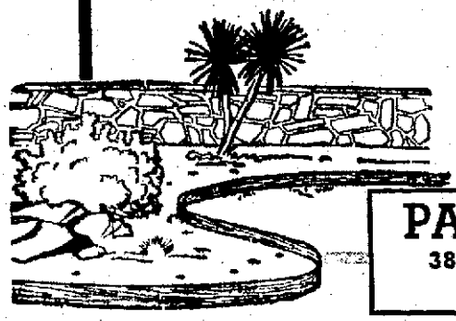

Color slides of gardens and flowers will be shown and a talk on tuberous begonias will be given at a meeting of North Long Beach branch, American Begonia Society, at 6:30 p. m. Friday in the banquet room of Community Savings & Loan Association, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Plant table and potluck supper are planned.

In sympathetic style that has drawn attention to his work, Robert Kasser portrays Sophia Loren and her pet.

Spare-Time Artist

By Vera Williams

THERE'S A TOUCH of something "different" about the home of Robert L. Kasser, 3832 Radnor Ave., a furniture salesman. Unusual furniture, you'd say offhand, but you'd be wrong. It's pictures.

Kasser has a houseful of them. He painted and drew them himself, and he has gained considerable attention by his efforts.

Sophia Loren, a Siamese cat in her arms; Pier Angeli, in a red beret, and an Italian girl with great hoop earrings were done in pastels.

CHARCOAL studies include a little girl, lying in her father's arms, apparently watching television; a mother and child; a serious clown; an old man with a pipe.

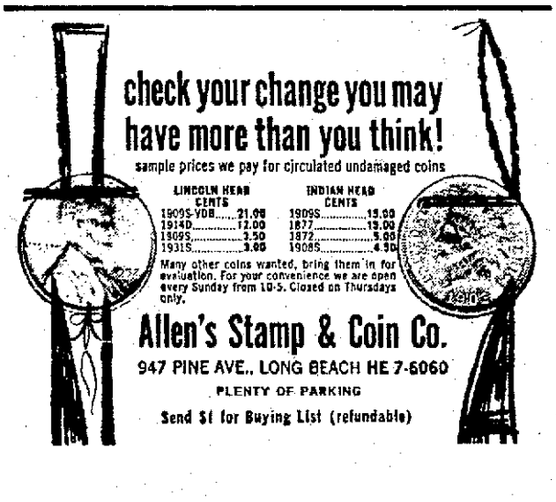

"Almost everyone paints smiling clowns," says Kasser. "I decided to do one who is not smiling."

Visitors usually are struck by an unusual portrayal of mother and child. The child obviously is retarded. The mother holds it tenderly.

"That's mother love," says the 27-year-old artist.

"Sherry and Boots" is the title of this study by the Long Beach artist, who does his work in his spare time.

VIRGIL HECKELMANN
Everything's New

NEW, wine-colored wall-to-wall carpeting which looks good enough to drink. . . . A handsome new decorating job inside and out, with the accent on modern off-white tints. . . . Smart modern abstracts hung on the walls. . . . An interesting new menu. . . . And a new staff trained in the secrets of gracious professional service.

Those are some of the ingredients of one of Long Beach's newest restaurants—Heck's on Willow Street at Magnolia Ave. Owned by Virgil Heckelmann, who tagged it with his own nickname, Heck's has quickly taken its place as one of the city's best restaurants, thanks to its excellent food and service policies. Heckelmann, former owner of Ricarts, is an experienced and skilled restaurateur who knows how to entrance diner-outers by serving them choice eastern beef which is a marvel of juiciness and tenderness. Prominent on his menu is a variety of charcoal-broiled steak delights (priced from $3.25 to $4.75) including a chef's special dinner steak, top sirloin, New York cut and filet mignon. Among the other house specialties are scrumptious cuts of roast prime rib au jus, with an appealing flavor that cannot be duplicated in any home kitchen, and a tremendous steak and lobster tail combination which has become one of the most sought-after items served. It includes a large 10-ounce whole lobster tail and a fine charcoal-broiled 10-ounce New York cut steak. Other entrees include charcoal-broiled halibut ($2.50), southern fried chicken, lobster or shrimp Newburg, grenadine of beef and beef tenderloin Stroganoff. All are served with assorted chilled relishes, soup du jour or tossed green salad, choice of potato style and beverage.

Heck's (formerly Crow's) also serves large complete luncheons, including the finest seafoods, steaks and other appetizing items.

TA-RA-RA-BOOM-DE-AY!

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

That's What Hollywood Needs

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — What Hollywood needs, says Lee Marvin, is a return to old-fashioned ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay!—and no one can deny he's the fastest draw with a zip-it-up gun since Humphrey Bogart.

Marvin stars 10 p. m. today (Sunday) in the adaption of an H. G. Wells' story, "The Country of the Blind," on channel 4.

Marvin has popped off about everything from some of the "insipid" plots television gave him as Lieutenant Ballinger on "M Squad" to what he thinks of certain actors and actresses, to Hollywood's lack of interest in merchandising movies once they are complete.

He arrived in Hollywood in 1951 when television started to drain all the colorful life out of the gay old town, and he laments: "I'm sorry I missed all the madness and the fun."

But he can't be accused of not trying to keep them from taking in the sidewalks at 9 p. m. He's a fellow who wants to keep the home fireworks burning.

OTHER SATURDAY NIGHT, he hosted a party for the touring Old Vic company and it was a swinger. "It started at midnight and it was mad," he tells it, "I finally collapsed and went to bed at 9:30 a. m. But the last of the guests didn't leave until 2:30 Sunday afternoon. There was none of the old, 'And what do you think about Frailty, thy name is woman?' Everybody lived it up, and I bet some of those Englishmen still have hang-overs."

The television treadmill—on which Lee does most of his work—keeps people so busy they don't have time to be themselves. It hasn't cramped the style of Lee Marvin, ex-Marine night raider, who is a character and admits it.

It's surprising, in a way, because he's one of the best actors in the business today. An "actor's actor," they call him, but he's better than that. Audiences don't usually dig actor's actors, but they dig Marvin, who says acting gives him an "exhiliarating feeling."

He was in a series of movies before television pinned a star on him, but the biggest movie impact of his career just came as the year's meanest heavy in "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance." What John Ford saw in his performance—a rugged, prematurely grey man big enough to stand up to John Wayne—just won him another role with Ford and Wayne. The two of them will be toe-to-toe again this summer in a James Michener South Sea story.

"I HAVEN'T READ the script, yet," grins Marvin, "but it's a comedy about a couple of fellows who fight it out once a year."

About Ford, his new idol, he's as outspoken as on any subject you'd like to discuss. "He gives you 15 ways to play a scene," Lee tells it, "and if you go his way he's happy. But his directions are so light they are earthshaking. Like telling me one day:

"This is the first time I've filmed a stage coach holdup, so you're going to have to help me.' "

Subjects come and go because Lee Marvin likes to ramble. But his key lines you don't ever forget. Like why certain stars demand such high salaries: "They are expensive," snaps Marvin, "because they fail so often."

About men in space he says: "Maybe the Pilgrims will go to the moon instead of Massachusetts this time;" about criticism, "Everybody is a greater second guesser than a first guesser."

He will even give you a comment when you wonder if Richard Burton will marry Liz Taylor. "Why?" asks the obstreperous Lee Marvin.

LEE MARVIN AND MIRIAM COLON star in a drama about a Colombian miner who discovers a hidden valley inhabited by a race of eyeless people. The drama, an adaption of an H. G. Wells' story, airs 10 p.m. today (Sunday), channel 4.

Magazine Blasts Award to Minow

NEW YORK (AP)—"Broadcasting" magazine says the George Foster Peabody Radio and Television awards should be abolished because of an award to Newton N. Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Minow once called television a "vast wasteland."

The trade magazine is considered to often reflect the views and interests of the broadcasting industry.

The publication's lead editorial was headed, "Time to Bury the Peabody." It said the Peabody awards committee "defiled its purpose and defamed those it sought to honor last week by bestowing a special award upon the chairman of the FCC."

Shakespeare

A documentary special about William Shakespeare will be offered by NBC-TV next season in honor of the 400th anniversary of the bard's birth.

Air Mental-Health Drama Wednesday
'THE FIRST DAY'

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—"We're 12 minutes over," said Gordon Duff, the producer.

The way he said it was as calm as an old top hand can be in the wild and woolly world that is television. Except that—just how calm can you remain, with 12 extra minutes jutting out of an hour?

It's got to be lopped off, and in the lopping comes the hurting.

"When you cut a play, you hurt the author, the actors, the director, the . . . but we're all well aware that the clock is inexorable," said Duff. "We've got an hour. We're 12 minutes over it. You can't go ask the sponsor for an additional half hour.

"You can't cut Margaret Leighton's part. She's the star, and she's all over the play. And neither can you cut Ralph Bellamy, the special guest. What you do, finally, is you cut out some grace notes—the ornamentation, some of the smaller things in the flow of the piece."

* * * *

THE PIECE at hand was the last of the five original dramas that Duff has produced this season for the "Westinghouse Presents" series on the CBS network. It is "The First Day," by Roger O. Hirson, directed by Tom Donovan, and it's coming on Wednesday night (channel 2 at 10 o'clock) pre-empting "Armstrong Circle Theater."

Miss Leighton, who is starring on Broadway in the award-winning "The Night of the Iguana," will portray in the TV vehicle, a school teacher attempting readjustment after being discharged from a mental hospital.

The time problem that Duff was discussing is one of many a producer ponders in the days before taping a play. In the case of cutting, the author, producer and director get together and decide how to do it. Do they ever break out in a titanic quarrel? No, says Duff. Although they'd like to have an hour and a half, they all realize it's got to be done in an hour and that's that.

* * * *

THE PLAY is taped as if it is being put on live. The taping is done in three days, an act a day.

"This one was remarkably easy to cast," Duff said. "There was plenty of enthusiasm. In doing a string of specials like this, you had to take the pro's, the guys who could deliver. And it's hard to vary in a series like this. You have to stick with a tried and true formula.

"Five different writers have come to me and said, 'Let's do the aftermath of the H-bomb'. You can't do that in a studio. You might do it in a weekly show. With 54 shows a year, you can experiment. Here, we're trying to do originals and it's much more difficult.

"The boys who write originals always want to do something new and fresh. They're trying to do the big things rather than the dramatic things. Take a topic like the Freedom Riders. I think the public affairs department can do this so much better.

* * * *

"OR TAKE the crew member of the Enola Gay who had trouble. How much do we really know about it? Or the U2 pilot, Francis Gary Powers. I don't know how much we know about his case—or don't know.

"A drama like 'Victoria Regina,' which won the big Emmy award, is comparatively easy to do. It has run on Broadway, and all over. It's polished with the years. Actors approach it with a reverence — whereas they approach originals with wariness."

Duff believes the TV audience reacts best to the small play that is intimately concerned with a person's life and is not too involved in plot.

"Audience taste is the same as in Greek times — they want a story they can identify with and empathize with," he said.

MARGARET LEIGHTON (left) stars as a schoolteacher discharged from a mental hospital during "The First Day" at 10 p.m. Wednesday, channel 2. Ralph Bellamy portrays her father and Nancy Wickwire is her sister.

THE LATE Fiorello La Guardia, the "Little Flower" reform mayor of New York City, will be the subject of "Biography" at 7 p. m. Saturday, channel 4, a series premiere.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

June Foray is a girl who goes around talking to herself—and gets paid for it.

On NBC's Sunday "Bullwinkle" TV show, for example, she's Rocky the Squirrel and Natasha.

The hero squirrel and villainess Natasha frequently are involved in verbal tilts but June never has the bushy-tail sounding like the sinistress.

On the same show, she's also Nell Fenwick in the "Dudley Du-Right of the Mounties" segment.

She supplies the feminine voices for CBS's "The Alvin Show" and many of the falsetto tones for ABC's "Calvin and the Colonel."

For Walt Disney, she's Grandma Duck and Witch Hazel. She has been, in fact, about 150 "voice-overs" and each character has been a little "different."

HER FAVORITE VOICES are those that she does on commercials.

"I get paid more money in residuals (repeats)," she said. "And they're always doing something different with commercials."

The real June Foray, a petite, 4-feet, 11-inch-tall, 95-pound doll, smiled engagingly.

"I had quite a challenge with one commercial last year," she said. "I did an empty peanut-butter jar."

So how does an empty peanut-butter jar sound—old, blase, young, vigorous?

"I tried it halfway between a straight voice and a Tallulah (Bankhead)," said June. "They seemed to like it."

Another which the sponsors "liked" was the radio voice June used to sexily plug a fertilizer. You know the one:

"So-and-so is the word for fertilizer."

The advertisement comes across like an invitation from the world's most glamorous girl to a midnight rendezvous for two, you and Miss Sexy.

And anybody with common sense knows that midnight is a poor time to fertilize your lawn.

FOR THE SEXY VOICE, June used low, breathy tones.

Low tones, according to June, are necessary to transmit glamour over the radio.

"Marilyn Monroe, who has a real high voice, would come over flat on radio," she said.

On television, except for a few rare exceptions, June has been seen and not heard.

"I'm little," she said. "There aren't many seeing parts for little girls."

It's the TV audience's visual loss. The small package comes in a pretty container.

BUT JUNE, who made her radio debut when she was six years old and has been working steadily since she was twelve, has found that there can be recognition even for the unseen.

A doctor recently gave her a prescription for a sore throat. During the course of his examination, he learned why June felt it was so urgent the throat should be healed quickly.

When the doctor left, he told June:

"I'm going to be a big man in my house when they find out I treated Rocky and Natasha."

June, with her cartoon voices, has "treated" millions of children. The knowledge of the pleasure she's given them is worth more than her residual payments.

"They may not stop me at Hollywood and Vine to ask for my autograph," she added, "but I'm the star in my own neighborhood."

What has happened to "Tic Tac Bowl" which used to be on channel 5 every day at 11 a.m.?

Mrs. J. Murphy, Long Beach

It struck out when the outside packager failed to deliver the programs on schedule, according to KTLA officials.

* * * *

Set the alarm for the whole family at 8:10 a.m. Saturday so we wouldn't miss our art lesson on channel 2. What happened? We have really enjoyed John Gnagy series.

Mrs. B. W. Ward, Long Beach

Artist John Gnagy was painted out of the picture one Saturday because his New York office failed to deliver the film. KNXT officials said the New York liaison man flew to Hawaii and the Hollywood liaison man didn't realize he hadn't received the film because he was home sick or sick at home.

* * * *

What happened to Tommy Rettig of "Lassie"?

Rena Smith, Long Beach

He's married, has three children and currently is looking for a stage role.

The petition signed by school children in favor of keeping "National Velvet" on the air has been forwarded to NBC.

What a shocking situation to cancel this program because of ratings when broadcasts on Sunday reached almost 12 million homes.

Clara Logan, president National Assn. for Better Radio and Television

I'm sending you two more petitions, Mrs. Logan. Please see the following two letters.

* * * *

I hope these names (126 of them) will help "National Velvet" to stay on television.

I am nine years old and my friends and I really like it.

Diana Lunt, Long Beach

Our organization, "Soupy Sales and Friends," has collected in the past few days the signatures of 76 people who are joining Soupy jr. his campaign to stop students from dropping out of high school.

We hope that this small gesture will indicate to you and others that many people, Soupy fans or not, are willing to join Soupy in fighting a serious problem such as this.

Soupy himself is really interested in the welfare of today's youth.

Karen Hoffman and Dianne MacLagen, Long Beach

You're right about Soupy, but you're wrong about the 76 names. There are only 75 signatures. No one wanted to sign the space you had numbered 13.

'Fair Exchange'

An hour situation comedy series, "Fair Exchange" will be aired by CBS-TV next season.

The series will star Eddie Foy Jr. and deal with the year-long exchange visits of teen-age daughters between an American and a British family.

Court Award

The Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge has named ABC-TV's "Day in Court" for a George Washington honor medal award. An accompanying citation commends the program for "pointing up citizens' rights under our constitution."

LOOK WHERE 80¢ WILL TAKE YOU

THIS SUMMER, when you board your plane at Chicago for Rome, why not stop off at such exotic Caribbean and South American spots as Aruba, Caracas and Paramaribo?

The cost to you: only 80 cents more.

Are you booked on a New York to New Delhi trip? You'll be able to take in Moscow at no extra charge. If you buy a ticket from Los Angeles or San Francisco to Buenos Aires, the airline will throw in a free trip to New York.

The reason for this little-known bounty on the part of the airlines is their membership in a world-wide association that regulates air fares. If you fly the approved routes of member companies—and this includes carriers behind the Iron Curtain, too—you can take advantage of these special combined rates.

A Los Angeles couple had been looking forward for months to a South American trip. A few days before they were to leave, an invitation arrived to a favorite nephew's wedding in New York. The woman phoned her travel agent, regretfully cancelled her South American trip in favor of a ticket to New York. "We just can't afford both trips," she explained.

"But you can," the agent told her. "The tickets from Los Angeles to Buenos Aires let you travel by way of New York at no extra fare. All you'll have to pay is a few dollars federal tax."

The side trips on the Chicago-Rome run make up what is one of the most dramatic examples of these bonus stopovers. The extra 80 cents can take you as far south as Venezuela, as far north as Scotland.

From Chicago you would fly to New York, then board a plane to Caracas, Venezuela. Next you would hop to Curacao, the Dutch island in the Caribbean, then to Port of Spain in Trinidad, Georgetown in British Guiana, and Paramaribo in Surinam.

European Highlights

You would next wing across the Atlantic, with optional stops at Lisbon and Madrid before reaching Rome. On the return trip you would be able to visit many cities in Europe, including Paris and London or Vienna and Amsterdam, with Scotland the final stopover.

This particular routing was devised by Rudy Tjerdeema, a tariff specialist for KLM Royal Dutch Airlines. Now he is busy digging out new possibilities with VIASA, the Venezuelan airline.

The bonus on the New York-New Delhi flight is worked on a "back-door" air route opened several years ago by the Russians and Indians via Tashkent, U.S.S.R. Tariff experts, looking for connection possibilities, have come up with a comprehensive circle route that allows stopovers in Scandinavia, the Soviet Union, Africa, and the Middle East, along with many points in continental Europe.

Not to be outdone by the spectacular offerings of the airlines, the railroads have what they call "diverse routings."

A husband and wife, for example, will pay $200.81, including tax, for round-trip family-plan coach tickets between Chicago and San Francisco. A regular routing of 4,522 miles will take them to Omaha, Cheyenne and Ogden.

But if they have time to spare and the curiosity of the traveler, they can be routed over a trip covering 6,441 miles for only $19.36 more. This would give them stopovers at Denver, Salt Lake City, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, and San Diego on the way west, and they could touch Seattle and St. Paul on the way back.

For only a few extra dollars they convert a straight trip into a scenic tour of some of the nation's top tourist attractions, with visits to Rocky Mountain National Park, the Grand Canyon, the Mexican border, Yosemite National Park and the Pacific Northwest.

How can you find out the stopovers and bonus mileages you're entitled to? Next time you plan a trip, be sure to ask your travel agent or the representative of your airline or railroad: "How many cities am I allowed to visit between here and my destination?"

His answer may open up to you the wonders of the world—free or for a few extra dollars. —DAVID COLLAN

Free stopover in Moscow lets you visit famed St. Basil's Cathedral in Red Square.

Thousands of extra miles can be yours at little or no additional cost

Are you headed for Rome this summer? You can also take in Dublin and Lourdes—as well as a peek behind the Iron Curtain at Prague—at no extra cost. An ordinary rail trip to the West Coast can mean sidetrips at very little additional cost to the Grand Canyon and Denver. An airline ticket from Los Angeles to Buenos Aires entitles you to a free transcontinental trip to New York—for just a few dollars federal tax. How is this done? It's all in the regular schedules—but hidden.

Rome's main drag, Via Veneto, is where you'll see the rest of the world stroll by.

In Naples five months ago the world's best-known mobster died, leaving behind a web of intrigue that is still being unraveled. Here, with Luciano's own snapshots (right), PARADE tells this story for the first time.

Luciano poses with last mistress, Adriana Rizzo.

Adriana took this shot of Lucky, U.S. visitor Pat Ryan.

the last days of

by JACK ANDERSON

NAPLES, ITALY.

ON THE BRISK AFTERNOON of January 26, 1962, Charles "Lucky" Luciano, last of the flamboyant old ganglords, sagged to the pavement outside the Capodichino air terminal here. Only seconds earlier the tough, 65-year-old gangster had seemed in the pink of health. Now he was dead of a heart attack.

This is the story of his last days.

Lucky Luciano belonged to the reckless decade of Prohibition, when mobsters thumbed their noses at the law and basked in the garish limelight of the Roaring Twenties. He climbed from the gutters of Brooklyn to become the unchallenged ruler of the underworld. Ugly and cruel-looking, he was yet strangely attractive to women, had many mistresses over the years. The heart attack that killed him ended an era—but left a riddle behind. What were the curious and sinister goings-on that had come to a sudden halt with Lucky's death?

From Italian police, who trailed him and tapped his phone in the last months of his life, from U.S. narcotics agents who studied his every move, PARADE has pieced together the bizarre tale of Luciano's end. It is a mysterious story, filled with questions that may never be answered—and with contradictions.

What was on Luciano's mind as his life, unknown to him, was nearing its end? Two things were paramount: a movie and a dope ring.

The movie was to have been the story of Luciano's life, and the old mobster, who had a touch of the ham in him, wanted very much to see it made. The dope ring, according to U.S. Treasury agents, was a new world-wide conspiracy which Lucky was trying to establish. In the last months of his life Luciano shuttled between these two concerns, surrounded wherever he went by strange, shadowy, mysterious figures.

Putting the Luciano story on film had been the idea of a man named Charles Duke, an acquaintance of Lucky's who had Hollywood connections. He sold the idea to Luciano, then brought in a producer, Martin Gosch, to write the script and produce the film.

The deal fell through in the end, but not for lack of material. Luciano's life was rich and colorful enough for half a dozen movies. He started in the underworld at the age of 9, rose to be kingpin of New York rackets until a rising young prosecutor named Thomas E. Dewey convicted him of organizing compulsory prostitution.

Ten Years in Jail

Luciano went to Dannemora prison for a 30-to-50 year stretch and Dewey went on to be governor. Only ten years later, the doors that had clanged shut behind the mobster were dramatically opened by none other than Dewey. The condition: that Lucky return to his native Italy and never set foot on U.S. soil again.

He came to Naples, took an apartment overlooking the soft blue bay, resumed his fast, luxurious living. He kept his hands in the American rackets and took his share of the profits through couriers. Federal agents regarded him as the mastermind of the international dope traffic. From his table in the California cafe here, Lucky Luciano could still fix almost anything.

He had begun to show his age when I talked to him here two years ago. His features had blurred, his black hair was turning a distinguished gray. Even his brown eyes, once hard as agate, were disarmingly gentle behind rimless glasses. He spent much of his time betting on the ponies, liked to sign autographs for tourists.

In this life of smug semi-retirement the idea of a film biography appealed strongly to Luciano, and at first he and Gosch got along well. The deal was fitting as smoothly as one of Luciano's silk shirts. Then in December 1960 — 13 months before Lucky was to die—the New York underworld got word of what the exiled mobster was up to. One day a man named Thomas Eboli, known in gangland circles as Tommy Ryan, arrived with a message from New York's latest gang boss, Anthony Strollo, known as Tony Bender.

Luciano's old associates argued that they had built up a multi-million-dollar, worldwide business, which had to be protected from the glare of publicity. An authorized film of Luciano's life, rattling old skeletons and stirring up new notoriety, might give new impetus to the drive against organized crime. The gang wanted the movie stopped.

Lucky reluctantly assented, but Gosch was less easily put off. He tore up the old script and wrote a new one. Then he did a selling job on Luciano. The old mobster approved the script as revised.

But no amount of revision would satisfy the New Yorkers. Pat Ryan, Tommy's brother, hurried to Naples a week before Luciano's death to state the message in more emphatic terms: Tony Bender wanted the movie killed. Ryan was to bring back the original copy of the new script, with Lucky's initials on each page, to show Luciano agreed.

Phone Call from Madrid

Ryan and Lucky had a long talk at the Trans-Atlantico Restaurant here on January 17, after which Lucky wrote Gosch and told him the movie was off. The producer phoned from Madrid, demanded a hearing. Luciano told him to come and bring the script with him. Ryan, he intimated, would be waiting for it. Luciano promised to meet Gosch's plane. The place: Capodichino Airport. 4 p.m., January 26, 1962.

While all this was going on, Luciano had been giving an increasing amount of attention to the second of his main concerns, narcotics—and so had the police of three countries. This part of the final chapter of Lucky's life opened in May 1961, eight months before he was to die. It began with the arrival at Luciano's Naples apartment of Henry and Theresa Rubino, a strange and brassy couple from Miami. They were go-betweens for Luciano, but had no direct connection with the narcotics racket. Henry, a fleshy, flashy showoff, and Theresa, a fading brunette who liked outsize diamonds and purple suede shoes, were in Italy ostensibly to buy a restaurant. Luciano, who was believed to own pieces of other restaurants, would be their adviser and silent partner.

The Rubinos visited the Naples night spots and restaurants with Luciano and his new, young, pigeon-plump mistress, Adriana Rizzo. They stayed a month, then went back to Miami—supposedly to sell their restaurant there. They remained all summer and through part of the fall. On August 30, Lucky wrote Rubino a letter.

"Dear Henry," it began. "I have received the letters and photographs, and want to tell you how happy I was to have news of you, and I thank you for what you did at the cemetery. Henry, there is really nothing that I want. Only when you are ready to come here again, give my regards to Tony B., Pat R. and Tommy. Best regards to Theresa and you."

Luciano signed the letter, "Your friend, Charlie," as he was called by his intimates. Police suspected the letter was a code message to Rubino but couldn't crack it. Rubino later was to admit to police that the names in the letter referred to gang boss Tony Bender and his couriers, Pat and Tommy Ryan. But Rubino would say no more, except that he had placed a wreath on the grave of Luciano's mother.

Meanwhile, in America, a seemingly unrelated sequence of events was unrolling. Three men who had been arrested in a narcotics conspiracy jumped bail in New York and skipped the country. They were Vincent Mauro, Frank Caruso, and Salvatore Maneri. Keeping one step ahead of police, the trio went to Nassau, where they soaked up sunshine and scattered dollars like green confetti.

Three Canadian girls on vacation noticed their lavish behavior. When the girls got back to Toronto they saw photos of the fugitives in a newspaper, tipped off the Canadian Mounted Police. But Mauro, Maneri and Caruso, traveling on phony Canadian passports, stayed ahead of the law. In rapid succession they visited the Bahamas, Jamaica, Caracas, London, Nice, and finally Spain. There investigators lost their trail.

The trio stayed successfully out of sight until November 1961, when a chance uncovered them —and shed new light on their roles. It began when the Rubinos left Miami, turned up in Luciano's company in Naples. They stayed a week—until, police say, they got a phone call from Barcelona, Spain. The next day they hurried there, met three men. Police of Spain, Italy and the U.S., who had been trailing the Rubinos, discovered they had been led to Mauro, Caruso and Maneri.

Parties and Sightseeing

Not knowing yet what was up, however, investigators sat tight. The Rubinos stayed in Barcelona a few days, then flew back to Italy and Luciano. There they embarked on a gay whirl of parties with Lucky and Adriana. Rubino and Lucky carried on oblique telephone conversations, which puzzled police were sure contained coded messages.

LUCIANO continued

At Christmas time, with Lucky's death now a scant month away, the four went to Taormina, the famous Sicilian beach resort. They behaved like innocent tourists, sightseeing around Mount Etna by day, night-clubbing in hot spots at night—mostly at a club called La Giarra, owned by Francesco Scimone.

After a long holiday, the four returned to Naples. The Rubinos, however, took off almost immediately for Spain. And it now became apparent that their Sicilian trip had had a secret purpose, for accompanying them was their genial host of Taormina, Francesco Scimone. The three immediately went into a huddle with the three fugitives, Mauro, Caruso and Maneri, in Madrid's Palace Hotel.

On this furtive trip to Madrid, Theresa Rubino also bought a wedding anniversary card for her husband. She scribbled on it endearing words about "all the wonderful things we have shared and the secrets we have. My sweetheart, I worship you. Your Big Nose." Secrets indeed!

Watching and listening police in both Italy and Spain were now convinced something big was afoot. They decided it was time to move in, picked up Lucky for questioning. By a strange chance, it was the same day Lucky had arranged to meet Gosch at the airport to discuss the movie deal: January 26. Neatly, inexorably, like a master dramatist, Fate was drawing the two threads of Lucky's life together.

At his questioning Luciano explained to the police that all the mysterious comings and goings between Naples and Madrid were perfectly innocent. They concerned the movie, not narcotics at all. To prove his point Luciano invited police to accompany him to the airport to meet Gosch. An English-speaking officer, Cesare Resta, was sent.

The Luck Runs Out

Resta and Luciano were in the airport waiting room when Gosch's plane taxied in, just after 4 p.m. Luciano, immaculate as ever, wore sharply-creased gray flannel slacks and a blue sports coat.

Lucky introduced Gosch to Resta, started to lead them to his car. Then it happened. Just outside the terminal, a few steps from the car, Lucky suddenly staggered. He clutched Gosch. "Martin, Martin, Martin," he gasped. He sagged limply into Gosch's arms.

The airport doctor was quickly summoned. He put a stethoscope to Lucky's chest, looked up and said simply: "This man is dead." A green canvas sheet was pulled over the body until the hearse arrived. It was just after 5 p.m.

The news spread fast. Headlines flashed all over the world. Police moved quickly to pick up those who had spent time in the dead mobster's company before they could disappear.

Mauro, Maneri and Caruso were nabbed in Madrid. In Mauro's pockets was $11,730 and the key to a safe deposit box which contained $43,759 more. The three fugitives were shipped back to the U.S., and recently were given five-year sentences for bail jumping.

A Mysterious Disappearance

The Rubinos were also picked up and questioned, but they were finally released. Ryan stayed in Italy for Lucky's funeral, then slipped silently away. Tony Bender, as of this writing, has mysteriously vanished. As for the lady in the case, mistress Adriana had shown an interest in the handsome Pat Ryan even before Lucky's death.

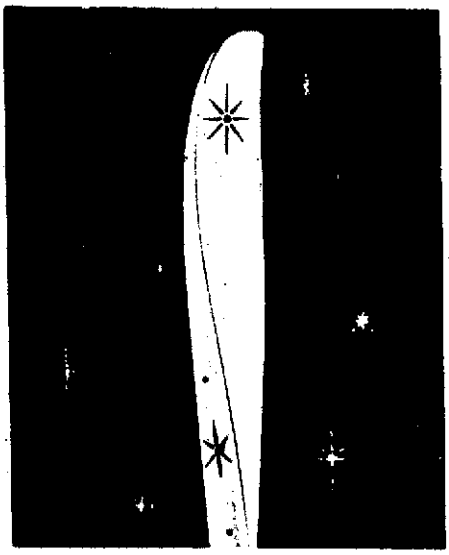

From all the evidence they could muster, investigators were convinced that a worldwide narcotics ring had been in the making. Lucky was to direct it, and the three phony Canadians were to play important roles. All the comings and going between Italy and Spain, the furtive messages and coded phone calls, had been for the purpose of passing money and "business" secrets.

Lucky's death, coming so unexpectedly, stymied the whole fantastic operation, for the time being at least. As for "The Lucky Luciano Story," Gosch still has his script, may try to go ahead with the movie. It will be interesting to see if any further pressures are exercised to stop it.

As for Lucky, the last time I talked to him before his death, he spoke longingly of returning to New York, the Big City, the scene of his underworld triumphs. He got his wish in February 1962. Luciano's body was shipped to New York and placed in a $30,000 family vault in St. John's Cemetery. His brothers, Bartolo and Joseph, removed their hats in the gathering dusk as the coffin was placed in the tomb. But no words were spoken.

A stained glass window in the crypt depicted a saint. To make conversation after the ceremony, a visitor asked Bartolo in a hushed voice what saint it was.

"I don't know," replied Bartolo. "I don't have much to do with saints." ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

WIFE WANTED. Girls who want to marry a millionaire will be interested in a young man, 25, tall, blond and handsome, whose mother recently advertised to find him a wife. In the German newspaper Die Welt the mother described her son as follows: "A millionaire's son and his sole heir, a student, 5 feet 11 inches tall, healthy, good slim figure, with all good attributes, spiritually active, likes sports and music and is well brought up...My future daughter-in-law must be able to manage a large household with a personal maid, cook, second cook, housekeeper, laundress, second maid, butler, second butler, third butler, silver butler, chauffeur and gardener. Necessary in his wife-to-be are good health, faultless past, fascinating femininity, book-keeping ability, sense of family responsibility and a talent for becoming co-owner of a large company...Money is absolutely unimportant but it would be nice if his wife could play the violin."

CAR BUYERS. British auto editors are advising prospective car buyers to rent a new car for a week and to test drive it themselves before purchasing the same model. Car rental proprietors report the idea is spreading to the U.S.

WHY WIVES WORK. What is responsible for the influx of wives into the labor market? Sociologists attribute it to home conveniences which afford the wife more spare time. The U.S. Department of Labor, however, says the electronic age has absolutely nothing to do with the increase in working wives. The major reason most married women work is necessity. They work to support themselves, their children, or their husbands, or to contribute to the payment of the family bills. In 1950 there were 8,500,000 working wives in the U.S. In 1960 the number increased to 12,500,000. In 1970 the figure should jump to 20,000,000.

MARRIAGE MACHINE. Dr. Eric Riss, head of the Scientific Introduction Service, a New York marriage agency which uses an electronic cupid, claims: "Of the 500 marriages we have arranged this way since 1956 we have had just one divorce. The divorce rate for the ordinary marriage in America is one in four. However, we don't guarantee anything." The electronic match-making works this way: A male client is given a battery of tests, the information from which is coded and fed into a computer. Within the computer is information stored on the demands and interests of 3,000 women clients. The machine eventually sorts out the women who have the most in common with the prospective groom.

WHO SMOKES? More than 60 million Americans over the age of 18 smoke. Do smokers have any personality traits in common? Researchers in a study of 2,360 male subjects offer three major premises: (1) Extroverts are heavier smokers than introverts; (2) The more emotionally unstable a man is, the heavier he smokes; (3) People with rigid or puritanical personalities smoke the least.

Paul Newman shoots pool in The Hustler. Will family groups replace the traditional crowd of sharks?

FEMALE POOL SHARKS. A campaign is under way by manufacturers of pool tables to popularize the game for women. The result is that modern pool halls are springing up throughout the country, designed to attract wives and their husbands as well as the youngsters. The plan is to equip bowling alleys with pool tables, keep pool sharks and loiterers out by charging $2.00 an hour for billiards, turn pool into a family recreation.

SOCIAL DYNAMITE. One of the major teenage crime problems of the day involves the young, unemployed Negro who has dropped out of school. In Washington, D.C., St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, New York and other cities to which southern Negroes have migrated in recent years, this problem has become -- in the words of Arthur J. Goldberg, Secretary of Labor -- "potentially the most dangerous social condition in America today." Because these young Negroes, frequently unskilled and uneducated, can find no jobs, they often turn to crime. Says Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard and an authority on education: "The building up of a mass of unemployed and frustrated Negro youth in congested areas of a city is a social phenomenon that may be compared to the piling up of inflammable material in an empty building in a city block."

Three new ways to serve tuna

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

MADE IN A LOAF, shaped into croquettes or served in tiny balls as an appetizer, this tuna mixture is a delight—easy to prepare and just the thing for adding variety to hot-weather meals. Plan a family dinner, using this loaf. Begin with chilled canned vichysoisse with a sprinkling of fresh cut chives. Serve the loaf hot, with instant mashed potatoes, frozen asparagus and a leafy green salad. End with berries and cream. With the croquettes as the main attraction, begin with ice cold juice. Serve tomato sauce with the croquettes. Add crisped frozen French-fried potatoes, green beans, cucumber salad. For dessert, melon wedges. Or, serve the loaf for a company lunch, garnished as shown. Add hot rolls and green peas. Have ice cream and cookies for dessert, and coffee or tea.

Crusty Tuna Trio

2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. each) tuna
1½ cups soft bread cubes
¼ cup chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup evaporated milk
Packaged corn flake crumbs

Drain oil from tuna into mixing bowl. Add bread cubes to oil; blend well. Mix in onion, salt, pepper, mayonnaise and lemon juice. Flake tuna; add. For appetizers, shape into 1" balls; for croquettes, shape into 1½" x 4" ovals; for loaf, shape as desired or use small loaf pan. Dip balls or croquettes in evaporated milk; sprinkle with crumbs. Brush loaf with evaporated milk; sprinkle with crumbs. Place on foil-lined baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 10 minutes for appetizers; 20 minutes for croquettes; 30 minutes for loaf. Makes five dozen appetizers, six croquettes or one loaf.

The meat of a Sunkist Orange gives you lots more health than vitamin C

Something always gets left out of frozen orange juice—the meat. Yet nature hid health builders all through the fresh Sunkist Orange—some in the juice, the rest in the rich meat, such as protopectins* and bio-flavonoids. When you can get all the natural vitamin C plus 50 other nutrients, why settle for less? Eat whole fresh Sunkist Oranges—drink whole fresh orange juice.

DEAN RUSK

THE QUIET AMERICAN

WASHINGTON, D.C.

WHEN PRESIDENT KENNEDY named Dean Rusk to be his Secretary of State, diplomats arched their eyebrows, politicians gasped with astonishment, newsmen scurried for facts. Of all the men mentioned for the post, second most important in the land, the subdued, scholarly Georgian was the least known. True, he had served the public for 11 years in high positions, had participated in policy decisions that affected the nation's destiny. Yet he was a stranger to the American people and an enigma to the rest of the world. Not even the President had met Rusk until four days before announcing his appointment.

After 18 months on the diplomatic high wire, Rusk has demonstrated sureness of foot—if shyness of the limelight. He has earned the deep respect of diplomats, politicians, and newsmen alike. Yet he remains the quiet American, the most modest of statesmen, who prefers to make history behind the scenes.

Rusk simply isn't the type who produces anecdotes. There is nothing dynamic nor dramatic about him. He has a round, genial face, a few freckles like a shake of nutmeg on his balding head. He is a lithe six-feet-one, with legs too long to fit comfortably under a conference table. Although his mind races at double speed, he moves at an easy pace. He is steady, reasonable, unruffled. "Like Ol' Man River," says an aid, "he is deep and just keeps rolling along."

Rusk has never been heard to raise his voice, yet he speaks with a quiet authority that compels others to listen. Of a dozen personal secretaries, aids and advisers canvassed by PARADE, all agreed: "I have never seen him angry."

But his wife Virginia confides: "Only small things ever irritate Dean—petty annoyances, say, like taking a short cut that turns out to be the longest way around." Then he may show his impatience by puffing more quickly on a cigarette (he is a heavy smoker) or quickening his slightly limping step (he has a trick knee from an old basketball injury). But the surest sign he is upset, says Mrs. Rusk, is a sudden silence.

DAVID DEAN RUSK, urbane man of the world, came from a one-horse farm in Cherokee County, Ga. His older brother, Parks Rusk, now president of the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce, recalls: "Dean was born impressive. He weighed 10½ pounds. He also seemed to be born mature. He was always the leader with a crowd of other kids tagging around after him. He was a merry little fellow, yet serious and studious. He read all his first grade books before entering school and skipped the first grade entirely. He passed the second grade tests, except for spelling the word 'girl' g-a-l."

The Rusk parents, stern Presbyterians, called all their children by their second names. Thus, little David was always known as Dean, and neighborhood kids sometimes would shout "Dean, Dean, butterbean, stuck his head in gasoline." Years later, after he became faculty dean at Mills College for women in Oakland, Calif., students delighted in calling him Dean Dean. For dignity's sake, he tried going back to David D. Rusk, but finally abandoned the idea.

As a stand-out student at Atlanta Boys' High and Davidson (N.C.) College, Rusk won a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University, England, after declaring on his application that he wanted to pursue the cause of world peace. Yet he was a commander of R.O.T.C. both in high school and college, later kept up his summer training as a reserve officer. Asked to explain the paradox, young Rusk replied: "Look at our eagle. In one claw it clutches an arrow. In the other, it clutches an olive branch."

Rusk met his future wife, Virginia Foisie, in one of his classes at Mills College—an International Relations course. After a few classes, Miss Foisie found herself increasingly interested in both the subject and the teacher.

Rusk hired her to do research, which brought them together after class. Then, because a teacher-student relationship was frowned upon, they began dating secretly. Example: They would go on breakfast-picnics early in the morning, an unlikely hour for romance. Inevitably, their hand-holding was whispered around the campus, particularly after Virginia's father came to San Francisco and started sending her flowers and gifts. Says Virginia Rusk: "Dean was broke, but he got the credit for a dashing courtship."

THEY WERE MARRIED on June 19, 1937, now have three children: David, 21 (recently married), Richard, 16, and Margaret, 13. Adds Mrs. Rusk: "The pressures on my husband and the demands on his time are tremendous. Yet somehow he manages to make time for the children. The other evening, Dick wanted to play chess. Dean was absorbed with the Laotian crisis and had two speeches to write. But he took time out for a chess game.

"Another time he had promised Dick and a friend to drive them to a fishing camp in the West Virginia mountains. They were supposed to start at noon, but at 8 p.m. he was still at the State Department. They had given up hope when Dean arrived home. He drove them to their camp anyway, although he didn't get home until nearly two in the morning."

Rusk also offers to give daughter Margaret a lift to school in his long, sleek limousine. But she always turns him down unless she is late, then insists on being dropped off two blocks away. She won't take a chance on being kidded by the other pupils over her luxurious transportation.

Rusk runs the State Department with clockwork precision and chart-like organization. An enormous flow of papers passes over his desk, yet it is usually uncluttered except for the document he is working on. Everything is channeled and compartmentalized down to the private "worry list" in his desk drawer.

At staff meetings, he presents problems, listens to the responses, asks perceptive questions. Then he retires to his office to ponder the solutions by himself. He keeps out of abstract arguments even at White House meetings. He speaks his piece, but seldom participates in the discussion.

Although he always seems relaxed, Rusk has few relaxations. On the way home from a conference, he may play a few hands of bridge on the plane. At the recent Geneva parley, he startled aids by pausing for bridge in the middle of the negotiations. "This is the first time," he remarked, "that I have played bridge on land since I became Secretary."

Rusk also plays a little golf, goes fishing occasionally with his son. Not long ago he went bowling with a State Department team. It is unlikely he will go again, because it turned into a production, involving security agents, reporters and photographers. He sometimes takes a transistor radio with him to the State Department, so he can listen to baseball broadcasts.

A silent man himself, Rusk believes wholeheartedly in silent diplomacy. He will go down in State Department history as the Silent Secretary—and one of the most effective of the cold war.

JANE

by LLOYD SHEARER

AT THE STUDIO CLUB HERE, a branch of the Y.W.C.A. where screen-struck girls pay $21.50 a week for room and board, two young actresses were recently discussing the dire local unemployment situation.

Complained one, a pert little redhead from Nebraska, "I've had one week's work, and that in television." Said the other, "Let's face it, honey. There are two main ways of getting a break in this town. One is to team up with the right guy, and the other is to get yourself born to the right parents."

One girl on whom Fate worked the second method is Jane Fonda, daughter of Henry Fonda, millionaire stage and screen star, and his second wife, the late Frances Seymour Brokaw. Having taken advantage of her inheritance and background—"contacts can get you there," she says, "but they can't keep you there"—Jane Fonda at 24 has starred in four films (Tall Story, Walk on the Wild Side, The Chapman Report, Period of Adjustment), one Broadway play (There Was a Little Girl), and in stock. She now earns $50,000 and up per film, is under long term contract to director Joshua Logan, and is in demand by producers everywhere.

In addition to a famous father, Jane possesses a long-faced, blue-eyed photogenic beauty, a curvaceous, high-breasted figure—36-21-35, a nimble, lissome body—5 feet 7½ inches, 112 pounds, and a sharp, authoritative mind—I.Q. 132.

Moreover, she has the respect and admiration of her colleagues and the love of a young Greek director, Andreas Voutsinas, currently her inseparable fiancé and acting coach.

Despite all this—career, money, and love—Jane Fonda is not a particularly happy young woman.

She's Learning

For the past three years she has been alternating between two psychoanalysts, one in New York and one in Los Angeles, "because I want to be better adjusted than I am. Some people think," she declares, "that if you're in analysis, it's because you're crazy. But for me it's just a matter of understanding more about myself. If you want to lead a full life, and this is particularly important for an actress, then you have to learn about yourself.

"One thing with me, for example, is that I never could express my hostility as a child. I didn't know how. But there's a lot of hostility in me, and as a child it never came out, and my relationships were always pleasant with people. Analysis has taught me that you should know who to love and who to hate and who you just plain like, and it's important to know the difference. Because then you learn to love, to really love some people, really hate some people, and just become passive about others. Maybe if I weren't an actress, I wouldn't have this need to bring out certain things inside me. But I am an actress, and I have this need to search within me and find out and make myself a more complete woman and better actress.

"You ask why did I want to become an actress when my father did everything possible to discourage me—simply because I'm an exhibitionist, I guess. I want to express my feelings and thoughts.

"Being Henry Fonda's daughter helped me because if my name had been Jones it would've taken me much longer to have gotten a start in the business, and originally that was a psychological handicap. But it made me work harder to over-compensate for my success. And now I work well and function well."

From the above it should be apparent that Jane Fonda is primarily a mental creature, complex, inquiring and perceptive. To anyone who knows her father, she is unmistakably his daughter, both physically and mentally. The truth about Henry Fonda, of course, is that he is completely unlike the all-American, down-to-earth, Lincolnesque fellow he portrays on the screen. He is a comfort-loving, cerebral, reflective, studious, introspective and deliberate actor who has had four wives and will probably take a fifth. He has been known to argue with writers and directors for days demanding a deeper delineation of his stage characterizations. In the production of 12 Angry Men, he spent four hours shopping for precisely the exact seersucker suit a junior architect would wear in New York on a hot day.

Same Perfectionist

His daughter Jane boasts this same perfectionist instinct. Having worked as a cover girl and fashion model for a year before she tried acting, she knows her face is too long, so she insists upon the most careful makeup to give it an illusion of width. Says her makeup man, "If you're going to change anything on her, she always demands the reason. She wants to know exactly what is what." Jane Fonda was raised in Brentwood, an exclusive Los Angeles suburb, in a beautiful, hilltop mansion, tastefully furnished in early American by her mother, Frances Brokaw Fonda, a society matron. As a child she enjoyed the companionship of an older stepsister, Pamela, and a younger brother, Peter. She was sent to the Brentwood Town and Country School. Later when the Fondas moved east so that her dad could play the lead in Mister Roberts, she was sent to Emma Willard, a plush boarding school in Troy, N.Y.

Her mother, an alert, nervous, charming woman with periodic flights into euphoria, committed suicide when Jane was 12. Eventually the girl was looked after by both her maternal grandmother and Fonda's third wife, Susan Blanchard, Oscar Hammerstein's stepdaughter.

The third Mrs. Fonda was only 25 when she married Fonda, but Jane says, "She was a marvelous woman. She tried to bring me and my brother up well. She was very young herself, and I often think of the sacrifices she must have made for us. By the time my father married for the fourth time, I was already too old for it to make much difference to me. I had gone beyond the point of needing a mother."

After Emma Willard, Jane Fonda spent two years at Vassar, then left to study painting in Paris. Presently, like many rich, well-bred girls, she returned to New York where she took a fling at modeling, which taught her discipline.

A few years ago while her father was working in Hollywood, she flew out west to visit him, stayed in a Malibu cottage next to one rented by Lee Strasberg, head of the Actor's Studio and Marilyn Monroe's dramatic coach. She and Lee's daughter, actress Susan Strasberg, spent afternoons lolling on the beach, discussing acting. Jane had done some stage work in school, had played in summer stock with her father for a lark—"but he always emphasized the hardships of the profession."

That fall when Jane returned to New York, she enrolled at the Actor's Studio, shared a room with Susan Stein, daughter of Jules Stein, head of Music Corporation of America, applied herself to her studies with intense diligence.

Andreas Voutsinas, then a Strasberg assistant, says, "The thing about Jane is that she is in the process of finding herself, because basically she is extremely shy and does not want to be exposed, and for such a girl it's not easy. You say she sounds highly opinionated, and perhaps she is. But it's all part of her defense. People approach her with resentment, because she is Henry Fonda's daughter and she was born with a silver spoon in her mouth, so she has to define things very clearly and say what she feels and where she stands. Children of celebrities are always on the defensive."

A Los Angeles psychiatrist who has treated the offspring of many celebrities says, "The daughter of a famous actor who becomes an actress is inviting unhappiness for three reasons: (1) Acting is a dangerous profession for a girl because whatever role she plays she has to play it at least in part with the unconscious. This brings to the fore all her deep, inner conflicts; (2) It is dangerous to become a famous actress. A girl kills herself to become famous, then kills herself trying to remain famous ;(3) The child of a celebrity always has to fight people and public opinion. She has to prove over and over again that her success is based on merit, not pull."

In Jane Fonda's case her first big break was given to her by director Josh Logan, one of her father's best friends. He cast her in a play and then a film with Tony Perkins, Tall Story. Both were flops, but Jane proved she could act, and was subsequently signed for three more films.

Having just finished the movie version of Tennessee Williams' Period of Adjustment, she is now in Greece working on another MGM film after which she returns to the New York stage to star with Brad Dillman in The Fun Couple. The Broadway play will be directed by her fiancé Andreas Voutsinas. Says a friend, "If the play's a hit, they'll probably get married. If it's not, it'll be another experience for Jane. She's now in the process of acquiring hundreds of them!" ■

MY FAVORITE JOKES

BY JOE CONTI

EDITOR'S NOTE: Joe Conti, 37, of Marion, Illinois, began his show business career in Detroit as a child radio singer. He then moved on to Hollywood as a boy actor where he worked with John Garfield. In Hollywood he made four movies, then entered the Army. After his Army discharge, he began his nightclub career and played in one Chicago supper club for nine years. Conti is currently appearing in the Windy City's Playboy Club and keeping the customers happy with jokes like these:

Two tourists were looking at Niagara Falls and one exclaimed, "What a sight!" The other, naturally a Texan, replied, "Heck, where I come from we got plumbers can fix that."

These days they're making great strides in medicine—frozen Band-aids for cold cuts . . . and they have a new tranquilizer now called Damitol. It doesn't really relax you—it just makes you enjoy feeling tense.

I bought my wife a sports car, and she discovered it had three speeds—fast, very fast, and good morning, Judge.

You can't buy friends—but you sure can rent them!

George Washington, the Father of our Country, said while crossing the Delaware, "Row faster, men—we only got the boat for an hour."

Ponce de Leon, in search of the Fountain of Youth, once said, "If you want to look young, hang out with old people."

In school, I took up space. I was in the third grade for two terms—Roosevelt's and Truman's. My father used to walk to school with me. He had to—he was in my grade.

I thought so much of my father that I named my boy after him. We call him "Dad."

I tell everyone I'm happily married, but that's like saying I've got a wonderful disease. And although I've only been married once, I speak of the little woman as my first wife—it keeps her on her toes.

I bought a home. Nothing ostentatious. Our furniture is early Halloween. It has indirect lighting—there's a chop suey restaurant across the street. Our bathroom caught on fire—we're lucky it didn't reach the house. I went to the real estate agent and said, "I wanna talk to you about our roof." He said, "What about it?" I replied, "I want one."

Conrad Hilton is a shrewd businessman who is always attuned to the times. He heard about the booming divorce mill in Las Vegas and plans to build a hotel where about-to-be divorcees can establish residence. It'll be called the Jiltin'-Hilton.

John Glenn has really become the national hero of the hour. In fact, so many people are calling Glenn "Mr. Nice Guy" that I hear Perry Como is getting cranky.

People don't seem to know what the word "gratitude" means any more. Did you hear about the woman who went up to a man and said, "Are you the gentleman who saved my boy from drowning when he fell through the ice?" And when the man proudly answered, "Yes," the irate mother asked, "Well, where are his mittens?"

A woman with more money than brains decided to buy some antiques. The antique dealer started off by showing her a beautiful vase. He held it up and exclaimed: "This vase is over 2,000 years old."

"Don't kid me, mister," snapped the wealthy matron. "It's only 1962 now!"

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

Richard Wilding, Elizabeth Taylor's second husband, was asked by a newsman recently if actors were different from other human beings. "Without a doubt," Wilding declared. "You can pick out actors by the glazed look that comes into their eyes when the conversation wanders away from [illegible]." ■

SUPERINTENDENT RETIRING

Newcomb to Quit as Long Beach Schools Head

Superintendent of Schools Douglas A. Newcomb, architect of the modern Long Beach school system, will retire at the end of this month.

Newcomb said he officially will notify the Board of Education Monday of his decision to leave the $29,000-a-year post.

The "up-from-the-ranks" superintendent who started teaching in Long Beach in 1923 said he succumbed to the lure of retirement although his contract has another two years to run.

A successor is expected to be appointed by the board shortly, possibly at its June 25 meeting.

Dr. Walter H. Boyd, president of the Board of Education, said, "We all regret Mr. Newcomb's decision to retire. More than any other man he has kept the Long Beach Unified School District at the forefront of the nation's school systems for the past 15 years."

Newcomb, a leader in community affairs, guided the Long Beach District through the burgeoning postwar years which saw a doubling in attendance and in the number of schools.

Although he describes his educational policy as "progress with conservatism," he has brought to the system a nationwide reputation for successful innovations.

Among them are the remedial-reading program

DOUGLAS A. NEWCOMB
Up From the Ranks

with clinics, a special school for physically handicapped, the award-winning KLON noncommercial FM educational radio station, the free noon hour for grade-school teachers, the "very superior pupil" program, outdoor science, child-welfare services, dental-health emphasis.

However he points with greatest satisfaction to establishment a decade ago of the Nightingale School—the state's first school devoted exclusively to the mentally handicapped.

"We pride ourselves on providing a program for every child, no matter what his physical or mental endowments may be," Newcomb said.

To meet the attendance surge, the superintendent planned and directed a $100-million, school-construction program which saw an early end to postwar double sessions. He gives credit to "a responsive board, a responsive public."

"Four bond issues totaling $75 million were passed overwhelmingly. We bought land for $3,000 an acre which is worth 10 times that today. We built schools for half what they would cost us now."

To lure teachers for thousands of new pupils, Newcomb initiated nationwide recruitment in an effort to find the best.

Through the years, he has won a reputation among teachers, board members and public as being "hard but fair," kindly and considerate.

Newcomb obtained a law degree in his educational career but didn't take the bar examination and never wavered from his chosen profession.

The New York native served as an ensign in the U.S. Navy in World War I.

Strike Blocks Construction

Long Beach area heavy construction Saturday was gripped by a strike of operating engineers against four major contractor groups.

Full effects of the strike will not be felt until Monday.

* * * *

THE STRIKE, by Operating Engineers Local 12 hit the entire Southland construction industry with 14,000 heavy-equipment operators off their jobs.

The Long Beach and Orange County areas are in District 7 of the Local 12's jurisdiction. The district has 4,000 operating engineers on its rolls.

The walkout was called when Local 12 negotiators walked out of a session with representatives of the contractors at 2 a.m. Saturday and said they would not continue to negotiate with what they termed "errand boys" for the contractors.

The contract with the operators of bulldozers, tractors and other heavy equipment expired 15 days ago but the men remained on the job under a truce which expired at midnight Friday.

Union Business Agent Joseph H. Seymour accused the employers of failing to bargain in good faith.

The walkout would paralyze an estimated $200 million in work on freeways, homes, dams, reservoirs, schools and other projects.

Bob Hoffmaster, chief harbor engineer said it would freeze about $30 million in construction. A spokesman for the engineers said Pier J construction would be shut down. Pier J, under construction in Long Beach Harbor is to be the site for the future Long Beach World's Fair.

Castro Parades Might to Warn Underground

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The Castro regime sent troops and tanks to Cardenas Saturday in a display of force intended to crush what may be a rising tide of counterrevolutionary activity in the city 70 miles east of Havana.

It was the first time since Fidel Castro's seizure of power in January, 1959, that his government has taken such action. It appeared to indicate that underground opposition to his regime is gaining strength and now is regarded as a considerable threat.

Prime Minister Castro himself was not seen by television monitors here during the military parade and the other proceedings.

However, President Osvaldo Dorticos took the speaker's platform to deliver a fiery Castro-style speech in which he warned that from now on counterrevolutionaries will be given no rest nor truce.

It was clear from his words that a counterrevolutionary demonstration of some magnitude took place in Cardenas a few days ago. However, he gave no specific details as to its nature.

"To warn our enemies, we have staged this modest demonstration of the military force of a people in arms," Dorticos said.

"The enemy has once more made the error of underestimating the strength of our revolution and of our people."

The Cardenas show of force was televised to the nation and watched by monitors here.

A sizeable crowd applauded Dorticos and several times broke into shouts of "to the firing wall" as he lashed out at enemies of the revolution.

However, the throng failed earlier to respond to repeated appeals to display "revolutionary discipline" by clearing the way for the tanks to pass.

Wranglers, Bull in Pier Rodeo

PERFORMER BALKS AT SEA TRIP

COWBOY ROPES ANGRY BULL ON PIER

A 1,200-pound bull broke loose as it was being loaded aboard the Japanese freighter Havana Maru in Wilmington Saturday and ran wild while longshoremen and seamen scattered from its path.

The bull was one of 21 animals loaded at berth 176 for shipment to Japan on a rodeo tour.

Wranglers for the rodeo, headed by Casey Tibbs, 32, two-time world champion cowboy, hobbled the bull after a half-hour battle and dragged it, bleeding profusely, into its pen.

The bull was the fourth to be loaded aboard the freighter.

Two of the others had battered their pens before they could be lashed down.

The fourth crashed through its pen as it was being transfererd from a trailer.

Tibbs said his rodeo is the first to tour Japan.

Men who watched termed the bulls he is taking to Japan, "Some of the meanest animals we have ever seen."

Union Defies JFK; Airline Walkout Set

Exact Hour Still Uncertain While Leaders Confer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The flight engineers union brushed off a warning by President Kennedy and announced Saturday it will strike in its wrangle with three of the nation's biggest airlines.

But the union left up in the air exactly when the walkout will begin and whether it will be directed against all or one of the airlines—Eastern Air Lines, Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines.

"We will not be able to tell you until late tonight or early tomorrow," said a union spokesman. "We still have several people to get in touch with. We are doing this as fast as possible."

* * * *

BUT JUST before midnight, the union headquarters here called it a night and said any announcement would have to wait until today.

It was indicated, also, that when the strike call does come there will be little, if any, advance warning.

The decision to strike—made in defiance of Kennedy's strong appeal — was taken after a meeting of 400 flight engineers in New York and a flurry of across-country telephone calls to union officers.

A strike on the three airlines would ground 40 per cent of the nation's commercial airline service, amounting to an average of 60,000 domestic and 20,000 international passengers daily.

* * * *

DON BYRNE, press representative of the Flight Engineers International Association, AFL-CIO, said union officials had not been in touch with any government officials during the day.

"We don't believe the government has any interest in this any more," he said.

The calls that poured in and out of the union office, hot and airless with the air conditioning turned off, connected President Ronald A. Brown with union officials in New York, Miami and Kansas City.

N.Y. Judge Guilty in Bribe Case

NEW YORK (AP)—State Supreme Court Justice J. Vincent Keogh, a former William O'Dwyer aide who once aspired to his boss' job as mayor, was convicted Saturday night of trying to fix a federal court case.

A federal jury of nine men and three women debated three days to reach a verdict of guilty in a $35,000 bribery to lighten a bankruptcy fraud case sentence.

Convicted with the 56-year-old veteran of 12 years on the trial court bench were a former assistant U.S. attorney of Brooklyn, Elliott Kahaner, 36, and labor racketeer Antonio (Tony Ducks) Corallo, 47.

They face sentences of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine. Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld set July 17 for sentencing.

Algerian Terror End Rumored

ALGIERS (Sunday) (UPI)—Speculation ran high in Algiers today that the European Secret Army Organization might have reached an agreement with the Algerian provisional executive to end the terrorism in the territory.

There was no official confirmation that agreement had been reached or was near, and the SAO continued its scorched-earth attacks on public buildings Saturday night.

But reliable reports said Jacques Susini, a leading political theoretician of the secret army, was holding talks with Moslem leaders, including Dr. Chawki Mostefai, a member of the executive group governing Algeria until independence.

There was no SAO pirate broadcast Saturday night for the first time in a week. Observers said the silence could indicate the situation was too fluid to comment on.

200 Against 8 Million in 20-Year 'War'

TINY SOBOBA TRIBE WINS STRUGGLE WITH WATER DISTRICT

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The chief of the Soboba Indians is bent and sere. He wears the white man's glasses, and he walks with the white man's cane. His body is frail, his speech is slow.

For 65 years he has lived on the scrabbly land that is his tribe's reservation, and he has seen his ranks thin away to 200 persons, about 120 of them adults.

But he has led them to a smashing victory over 8,000,000 oppressors — in a contest as lopsided as the one that matched David with Goliath.

Last week the 8,000,000 oppressors—as represented by the Metropolitan Water District—meekly hauled down their colors and surrendered. For 20 years, Chief Anthony Mahajo had led his braves and squaws through a Twentieth Century Indian War, and now he has won.

The Metropolitan Water District, agreeing that the 13-mile tunnel it built under the San Jacinto Mountains hurt the Sobobas, has consented to pay $30,000 to the tribe, to admit the 5,000-acre reservation to the district without tax or charge, and to serve water to the Sobobas.

The Sobobas live on the unfertile southern slope of the San Jacinto, along the river by that name and near the town of the same.

Twenty-five years ago, when Colorado River water was ticketed for arid Southern California, engineers hacked that massive tunnel through the mountains.

As they did so, their boring operations tapped underground springs and reservoirs, draining them. As the springs were drained, the Soboba Indians began to find their wells drying up.

Twenty years ago Chief Mahajo, who speaks little but acts much, huddled with the Indian Bureau, then caused a suit to be filed against MWD.

The litigation dragged on. And on. Offers were made. The chief, though the numbers of his braves were thinning yearly, held his ranks together. Under his leadership, the tribal council turned down $10,000, and an offer to serve about half the parched reservation.

Last week the fortress of MWD capitulated.

For Chief Mahajo, the victory is Pyrrhic. Some of his musings:

"Once this was a large tribe. The Soboban (sic) had good land and good water, and he was something of a farmer. He raised what his family needed to eat . . .

"I remember, when I was a very little boy, hearing the older people talk about the tribe. It was large in numbers, many times what we have today."

The white man brought smallpox, Chief Mahajo recalls.

"After the smallpox, we were but a few."

The chief looks wistfully across the border of his reservation. On the other side, somehow, the white man managed to include the choicer lands in his share.

"After a while, the dry years came . . . and when this tunnel was built, our wells began to dry up . . .

"Now our tribesmen work in the cities and farms and factories around here, to earn the food their families must have . . ."

Under the chief's guidance, the tribal council has decided what it will do with the $30,000 check from MWD.

"Engineers have figured out that it will take $100,000 to put a water system into the reservation," the chief reports. "We will put the $30,000 into that project."

Then the water, pumped by the white man out of the distant Colorado River, will flow into mains under the Soboba village and, perhaps, the land will yield a little more return to its owners.

The chief, however, makes an exception.

"We would like to keep our own well," he muses. "It supplies good drinking water."

He gazes across the shale that lies between him and the MWD's tunnel, and a faint expression of distaste crosses his face.

L.A.C. Says:

Don't Like Doctors

A few years ago a public opinion poll indicated that the average family had confidence in and liked their own family doctor—but on the whole they did not like doctors. The present controversy over the President's medical bill for the aged has undoubtedly accentuated these feelings. The doctors are fighting to stop the socialization of medicine. In many ways they are pictured as selfish and not concerned over the welfare of their patients.

The people in the U. S. might well compare this feeling here with the feeling toward doctors in Britain where socialized medicine is in full swing. Recent reports we have read coincide with what we found a year ago when we were in London. There the people definitely do not like doctors, but for a much different reason.

The feeling in the U.S.—we are convinced—is due to the fact that virtually every family has experienced some medical care that has run into large costs. While the doctors fees are only 25 cents of the medical dollar costs for the average family, the doctor is blamed for the whole cost of medical care. In Long Beach we have about one doctor for each 700 of our population. In Britain the average is about 2,000 for each doctor.

The result is that in Britain the doctors are so overworked they cannot give the personalized care the American people demand. Over a third of the graduates from British medical schools leave the country rather than work in the overcrowded hospitals and conditions whereby they are paid about $2.80 a year for each patient assigned to them. They go to Canada, Australia or the United States. Their places are taken by poorly-trained doctors from India, Pakistan and other countries who go to England to gain experience.

Most British hospitals are 60 years or older—many 100 years old. Only a half dozen new hospitals have been built in the last 20 years. People have to wait six or eight months to get in. Here, too, the doctor is blamed because he is the individual who is closely associated with the patient. It is overlooked that it is the system that deprives them of the personalized services that are found only where the free enterprise system is practiced.

These are factors the American people should consider as the President's program is pressured. It covers only a minor part of the older people's medical expenses. But it would be the start of complete socialized medicine with the result inevitably being the same as it is in Britain and other European countries. It is important to realize that we have private insurance programs to protect people against catastrophic medical costs—and that the doctors' fees are only one-fourth of these total average costs.

This does not, however, answer the problem of caring for the aged. These people deserve to be protected from medical bills because their incomes are low and they have no chance of recovering income from future work. They should not be required to use up all their savings before they are given free medical attention. But neither should they be provided free medical care regardless of their ability to pay for it.

It is for this reason we advocate the deductible insurance program whereby the family would pay its total medical costs in any year up to 5 per cent of its total income—and that 80 per cent of all further costs be paid by the insurance. It should cover all persons over 65 years. The cost could be covered by a plan similar to that proposed by some senators whereby the older people would be given a $125 credit on the income tax they would pay—or the government would give this amount to those who pay no income tax. This $125 would have to go for a private medical insurance program—similar to many major medical programs now in force.

The issue cannot be solved by acriminious charges against, or by doctors. It calls for a cooperative effort to provide such a system. We doubt Americans would be happy with a socialized system—but they will have it if government gets into paying all the bills.—L.A.C.

REPLACES COL. DAY

Air Ace to L.B. Command

American fighter pilot ace Col. Glen T. Eagleston, 41, will take command of the southern sector of the Sixth Reserve Region with headquarters in Long Beach July 1.

He will replace Col. Robert S. Day, who is retiring after 31 years of service. A commendation will be presented to Col. Day by Brig. Gen. Andrew Cannon today.

A retirement party was given for Col. Day Saturday night at Allen Center, Long Beach Naval Station.

COL. EAGLESTON is credited with shooting down 18½ planes in World War II and for destroying 5½ others on the ground. (The ½ figures are for planes shared with other U. S. pilots.)

In Korea he destroyed two planes, was credited with another probable victory and damage of seven others.

Col. Day has developed the Reserve Recovery program — under which American bombers would be provided with emergency bases on return from a natomic attack—for Southern California, Arizona and Southern Nevada. He said his plans after retirement are undecided.

Col. Eagleston, his wife and five children, will live in Huntington Beach.

A reservist when he entered the Air Force, Col. Eagleston said "I was in two wars where reserve airmen were the main stay of the fighting force.

"Things have changed now in that the standing ready force must be capable of dealing with an enemy."

Rusk Sees Growing War Peril

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned Saturday night the danger of war by accident is being increased by the unchecked nuclear arms race and he appealed anew for an enforceable disarmament agreement.

"Only one breakthrough is required," Rusk said. "The Soviet Union must realize that it cannot eat the cake of disarmament and keep the cake of secrecy . . . It is our hope that the Soviets will come to realize that secrecy is a dangerous anachronism in a nuclear age."

* * * *

IN A SPEECH before the New Hampshire Council on World Affairs, Rusk blamed the Soviet's unwillingness to accept a disarmament inspection and control system for the total failure of all the East-West negotiations to halt the arms race.

He said the United States has tried many approaches to meet Soviet objections to inspection on the ground that it would only mean Western "espionage" inside the Soviet Union. He declared this country and its allies will go on trying and he expressed hope that some day "responsible statemanship" in Moscow will lead to accord.

Rusk reported that if the "upward spiral" of nuclear destructive power continues to grow it could "by 1966 be double what it is today."

* * * *

HE SAID ALL the nations of the world are caught in a paradox, declaring that while they are "pouring more and more resources and skill into are, on balance, enjoying less and less security."

Rusk said that as recently as last April 18 the United States had presented to the disarmament conference at Geneva major new proposals and he expressed hope that the Soviet might eventually agree to negotiate on these.

The Geneva meeting now is in recess under an agreement to return to work July 16.

No One Wants Minnie Any More

WHALE NOW WHITE ELEPHANT

IT'S A SAD THING for a poor dog when she discovers a bone of the magnitude of Minnie, the whale. But Minnie's bones do not cause quivers of excitement in the doggy breast, because the skeleton has been around since 1897.

By GEORGE ERES

Listen to the sad, sad story of Minnie the whale, once the pride of the city, but now only a garageful of bones gathering dust.

Minnie was beached near where the Villa Riviera now stands back in May of 1897, when two boys tied a rope to her tail and house movers brought in a team of mules to drag her ashore.

Crowds gathered and the Pasadena, Los Angeles and San Pedro Railway (now the Union Pacific) ran excursions to Long Beach.

But a couple of days later, Minnie died and the people downwind began complaining.

There was nothing to do but cut Minnie up and boil her down to bones.

But even then 63-foot-long Minnie was a sight to behold and the skeleton was strung together and put on public display.

She was pointed to with pride in Lincoln Park and for a time in the basement of the Main Library.

There was no rest for Minnie's weary bones, though. She was carted off to a sun parlor that in those days stood at the end of the old Pine Avenue Pier.

The glamor wore off Minnie at this point, too, and she was shunted over to the Colorado Lagoon.

The curious still went to see her, but they were fewer and fewer and Minnie, with hardly a word of protest, one day was dismantled, and placed in storage in a garage on airport land.

That would have been the end of Minnie, except that one day three boys digging in a barley field at Cherry Avenue and Carson Street, suddenly came up with some whopping big bones.

The scientists were called in to explain the find.

But it was for Dr. Frank Harnett, recently retired as associate director of the Recreation Department, to explain things. He had long lived with Minnie—knew practically every bone in her body. He made the identification and the possible prehistoric animal find was put in proper place—with the rest of Minnie's bones.

The bones, however, were shifted to a new garage location—possibly to keep others from suddenly discovering giant prehistoric animals.

Dr. Harnett, who felt a special affinity for Minnie—he came to work with the city a few days after Minnie was beached—kept the memoranda going in the Recreation Department about what to do with Minnie.

For a time, it looked like they might get State College interested. A student spent considerable time puttering around with the bones.

But State politely declined the offer. No room, they explained.

It would seem that Minnie is more white elephant than whale. She's all broken up; nobody wants her.

Maybe the decent thing to do is give her a proper burial.

BEACHED IN 1897, Minnie, the whale, was the pride of the city as crowds gathered to view the huge oddity from the deep.

JFK Aides Seek Reason for K's Direct Radiogram

By MARIE RIDDER
L. P-T Washington Bureau
(Related Story, Page A-9)

WASHINGTON — Soviet Premier Khrushchev's "unprecedented" use of commercial radio instead of regular diplomatic channels for his telegram to President Kennedy on Laos has puzzled Russian experts here.

The wire sent by Mackay Radio expressed the Russian leader's hope that neutrality finally had been achieved in Laos.

The telegram written in Latinized Russian came through in what is described as "the clear." In other words it was a direct personal message from Khrushchev to Kennedy which deliberately circumvented the usual procedure of sending a diplomatic message through embassy channels.

"The Russians," says a foremost authority on Soviet behavior, "never do anything without calculating the effect, so we must try to evaluate exactly what this seemingly simple action means. We are sure that the wire sent with maximum speed already translated from the Greek to Latin alphabet for easier American understanding was one the Soviets wanted read immediately. The direct method is conceivably an indication that Khrushchev wants another tete-a-tete with the President."

• • • •

EXPERTS consulting here with our ambassador to the Soviet Union, Llewelyn Thompson, feel the Russians are less cocky than they were a year ago when the two chiefs of state met in Vienna.

"Some of the wind has been taken out of their sails," says a department spokesman, "for two reasons. First, Khrushchev's belief that the Soviet economy was going straight up in one rising curve has been rudely shaken by the year's industrial lag and agricultural shortages. The points on the graph aren't continuing the glorious rise the premier was so confident of. The Russians now realize that they aren't overtaking our industrial lead at quite the rate they had expected."

Most disappointing to the Soviet leader are the agricultural failures. He is being forced to choose between arms or consumer goods — guns or butter — while he had expected the Soviet economy to produce both.

The second disappointment for the Soviets is the fact that the new nations have rejected Marxism.

"The Russians," says an observer, "seemed to have thought the underdeveloped nations would immediately communize. They have not. Ghana, the Soviets' foremost African hope, has just sent the Russian ambassador packing."

An ever-increasing problem for the Soviets is their relations with the Chinese. The difference in economic development of the two countries is a cause of constant bitterness. The Russians have reached a plateau of development while the Chinese are still at the bottom. The latter feel that the Soviets should give a generous helping hand. The Soviets, fearful of being dragged backwards, prefer to turn a blind eye on Chinese needs.

In this year of hunger the Soviets have shown no interest in sharing their wealth.

Tulsa Plant of Douglas Faces Strike

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Members of the Aerospace Workers Union voted Saturday to strike the Tulsa Douglas Aircraft Co. plant if contract negotiations break down.

Otis M. Womack, president and business agent for Local 1093 of the union, said the balloting found better than 97-per-cent support for the strike action if its is deemed necessary. The contract expired at midnight Friday.

Negotiations have been under way with the union at Douglas' Aircraft Division in Long Beach, Calif. Talks are to begin next week at Charlotte, N.C.

A strike would affect about 1,600 Douglas workers here. But both Womack and a company spokesman expressed hope that no strike would be necessary.

The last strike at the Tulsa plant was two years ago.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Viet Reds Slay 2 U.S. Officers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Heavily armed communist guerrillas smashed an armored South Vietnamese column Saturday near this capital, killing two U.S. officers and 15 Vietnamese.

The bold ambush 30 miles north of Saigon was carried out with 50-caliber machine guns, 57-mm recoilless rifles, land mines and small arms by a guerrilla band of from 300 to 400 men. Not a member of the armored column escaped unhurt, said U.S. sources, who estimated the number of wounded Vietnamese soldiers at 20.

One of the U.S. officers was identified Saturday night by the Army in Washington as Capt. Walter R. McCarthy Jr., whose wife, Nancy, resides at Columbia, S.C.

Lodge Endorsed

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) —George Cabot Lodge won the Massachusetts Republican Convention's official endorsement for senator Saturday, setting the stage for another possible Kennedy-Lodge race.

Lodge, 34, the son of former ambassador to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge, was defeated for the Senate by John F. Kennedy in 1952. Last week the Democratic State Convention in Springfield named Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, the President's youngest brother, as its official candidate to run against the Republican candidate picked Saturday. Ted Kennedy faces a party primary and Lodge may also.

Lodge beat veteran U.S. Rep. Laurence Curtis for the Republican senatorial nomination. Lodge polled 936 votes to 848 for the 68-year-old congressman on the first and only ballot.

McNamara Raps France

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara spelled out Saturday night the nuclear strategy the United States would use if major war came in Europe—including no city bombing unless driven to it by Soviet action.

At the same time, the U.S. defense chief sharply challenged, without naming names, President Charles de Gaulle's plan for France to go it alone with her own nuclear weapons and strategy.

He raised questions about the dangers created by a relatively weak nuclear nation, including the possibility that its very weakness might invite a preventive attack by Russia. McNamara setforth his views in a speech at the University of Michigan commencement.

Ford Talks End Early

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI)—A meeting between United Auto Workers union and Ford Motor Co. officials broke up early Saturday evening with company officials saying some "progress" had been made toward settling a strike which has idled 42,000 Ford workers nationally. The talks will resume today.

A strike by 3,200 workers in the key Ford plant at Walton Hills, Ohio, has resulted in shutdowns at all of the firm's assembly plants.

Korea Cabinet Resigns

SEOUL (AP)—Song (The Tiger) Yo-Chan, hero of the Korean war and postwar revolution, quiet as premier Saturday in what appeared to be a dispute over charting South Korea's economic future. His entire cabinet resigned with him. But the military junta accepted only the resignations of Song and Finance Minister Chun Byung-Kyu.

Strike Grips Southland Construction

COUPLED WITH the engineers' walkout was threat of another strike if negotiations fail between the contractors and other building trades unions.

The four contractor groups involved are the Associated General Contractors, the Engineering and Grading Contractors Assn., the Home Builder Assn. and the Building Contractors Assn.

Seymour charged the employer's negotiating committee did not have authority to bargain and said the associations were "fighting among themselves."

* * * *

HE SAID a letter was sent to G. R. Morrison, chairman of the employers' committee, advising him of the union's willingness to negotiate.

"We want assurance that a committee will be appointed which will have authority to negotiate," Seymour said. "We will not deal with these messenger boys any longer."

However, a contractors' spokesman said talks would be resumed Monday.

Negotiators for the Carpenters Union met Saturday with building representatives in an effort to avert a second walkout.

* * * *

UNION negotiator William Sidel said "not too much progress" was being made. No strike deadline had been set, he said.

Sidel said the contractors had informed the unions that a strike by one would be considered a strike by all.

"Possibly the action by the operating engineers will result in a lockout," Sidel said.

* * * *

IN OTHER negotiations, some progress was reported in various construction fields.

Spokesmen for the Teamsters Union and for the contractors reported a tentative agreement on a new work contract.

On May 17 the Union Laborers approved a new agreement calling for a wage benefit package equal to 15 cents an hour followed by other increases over three years.

Meantime, the strike was repoted to have not spread to San Diego, which has a separate local nor Southern Nevada which belongs to Local 12.

N.Y. Judge, 2 Others Guilty of Bribe Taking

long trial—until the tensions of the long jury deliberations began to break through his urbane manner—told reporters after the verdict:

"I am innocent. Nothing anyone can say or do can change that fact . . . my attorneys will press my appeal from this unjust conviction as soon as possible."

He apparently was stunned by the verdict and remained seated for 10 minutes after court was adjourned. His wife of 20 years, sat 30 feet away, her face turned toward a window to conceal her emotions.

KAHANER and his wife left the courtroom immediately without speaking to reporters. Corallo, who has a long record of arrests but only one conviction—a narcotics count—tipped his straw hat at a rakish angle and ambled from the courtroom with a smile.

J. VINCENT KEOGH
'I Am Innocent'

Dr. Robert M. Erdman, 43, an orthopedic surgeon of Manhattan and admitted go-between in the fix attempt, testified that he paid Keogh $22,500 and Kahaner $12,500 to use their influence in behalf of Sanford Moore. Corallo, Erdman said, helped raise the bribe money.

Moore, 44, a former New York city cop who went broke as operator of a chain of juke boxes on Long Island, admitted concealing $100,000 in assets from the receivers in his bankruptcy proceedings.

THE MOORE case was before U. S. Dist. Court Judge Leo F. Rayfiel, a friend of Keogh and former congressman with Keogh's brother, Rep. Eugene J. Keogh, D-N.Y.

When Rayfiel got wind of the fix, he revoked Moore's bail, refused to let him change his plea from guilty and sent him to jail for three years. This later was reduced to one year, which Moore now is serving.

Both Erdman and Moore were indicted in the conspiracy, but won severances of their trials for cooperating with the government's special prosecutor, William G. Hundley, whom Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy sent here from Washington especially to handle the case.

Judge Weinfeld continued Keogh and Kahaner on parole and Corallo in $50,000 bail. Keogh had voluntarily removed himself from the bench at the time of his indictment last December, but his $34,500-a-year salary was continued.

L.B. Superintendent of Schools Retiring

received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Rochester in 1918, his master's from Stanford in 1927 and his bachelor of laws from USC in 1938. He was awarded an honorary LL.D. degree from the California College of Medicine in 1955.

He taught in Ohio and New Jersey before coming to Long Beach where he started as a mathematics teacher at Franklin Junior High School.

He served as principal at Seaside and Lowell grade schools before being named principal at Will Rogers Junior High School in 1936. He was appointed director of elementary schools in 1941, assistant superintendent in 1943, deputy superintendent in 1944 and superintendent in 1947.

* * * *

NEWCOMB SAYS that only "the great challenge" caused him to take the superintendent's post. He wavered for a week and finally succumbed to pressure from community leaders.

He adds that he's never been sorry and never has considered leaving despite other offers. "Long Beach has been very good to me."

He feels fortunate in having had the support of an outstanding "hand-picked" staff. "We've tried very hard to develop individual potentials."

Newcomb opines that the biggest future problem for the school district is one of finance. Money for schools, he says, has become a statewide dilemma. The superintendent recently initiated a study of the problem and successfully enlisted cooperation of districts throughout the state.

* * * *

HIS AFFILIATIONS include Rotary, American Legion, Masonic and Elks lodges and the Congregational Church. He is a member of the American Association of School Administrators and served on the board of trustees and board of directors of Memorial Hospital. He was president of the Rotary Club in 1957.

The superintendent and his wife, Helen, who live at 256 Granada Ave., have three children — daughters, Mrs. Hugh Carter, and Jane Newcomb, who is attending Long Beach State College, and son, Douglas Newcomb Jr. M.D., an intern at St. Mary's Hospital.

Newcomb waited until conclusion of the school year to announce his retirement. He said he has no definite plans beyond the fact that he and his family will remain in Long Beach.

Hometown Welcomes Spaceman

MITCHELL, Ind. (AP)—Astronaut Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom became the shy boy from around the corner again Saturday at a homecoming celebration that attracted little more than the 3,552 residents of this town in the southern Indiana hills.

But, nearly all of them were there and America's second man in space appeared relaxed and happy as he renewed old acquaintances and made some new ones—including the crew of a slow-moving freight train.

Grissom smiled constantly — but had little to say — through formal ceremonies. The 36-year-old Air Force captain retreated quickly to his parents' neat frame house on newly named Grissom Avenue after telling the crowd:

"Thank you very much. It was an overwhelming day. You're all wonderful people."

After a long, hot afternoon of speeches and awards, Grissom rose to accept the plaudits of the home town folks on behalf of "my six teammates, who are working today while I am loafing in the sun."

But he appeared happiest when he was just another small town boy home for a visit—in a quiet corner chatting with high school buddies or dashing out of his parent's home to talk with friends who stopped at the curb.

Retail Sales Outlook Bright

NEW YORK (AP)—Retailers generally expect summer business to increase over a year ago, a survey by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association indicates.

An announcement of the findings shows 72 per cent of 221 retailers interviewed look for increased sales. The report said only five per cent feel there will be a declined.

Figures accompanying the report showed the percentage of optimists was the highest in the annual survey since 1950, when 78 per cent of those polled said they expected better sales.

BANGKOK (AP) — Thailand is expected to receive a $7 million loan from the U.S. Development Loan Fund for construction of three irrigation projects designed to boost the country's rice production by 45,780 tons annually, the newspaper Bangkok World said.

Construction will start in February and is expected to be complete in four years. The loan will be on a 25-year repayment basis.

SECOND-BEST ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH—!!

Not when the welfare and safety of you and your family are at stake! Self-interest, as well as civic pride, insists that our police, our firemen, and all other city workers be the best that can be hired. You want our city to be clean, to be well-planned, to be safe, to be beautiful. You hire people to provide these things, and they are good, capable, competent people — your City Employees.

These services cost money, and each year the cost is greater. This is caused not only by the general inflationary trend, but because each year further services are demanded and provided. As a result, more and more tax dollars are required to meet these costs.

Taxes are unpopular. We don't like them any more than you. But they are the price we pay for the civilization we enjoy. To get—and to keep—the best qualified people to work for the City of Long Beach, we have to pay salaries comparable to those paid in surrounding communities. All these cities are competing in the same labor market where, all else being equal, the highest salary captures the best qualified worker.

What is the salary picture in Long Beach? For City employees it is discouraging. Job for job, duty for duty, Long Beach City salaries are up to 25% lower than these same positions receive in either the City or County of Los Angeles. Based on prevailing salaries paid in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area.

This means the average Long Beach municipal worker is paying $65.00 a month for the privilege of working in Long Beach. Or, putting it another way, the average City employee is subsidizing the rest of the City's taxpayers to the extent of $780.00 a year in money that he is morally entitled to, but does not receive. As a permanent policy this can only result in Long Beach being staffed by the rejects of our neighboring communities.

To insure continuance of the past's high standards of service, and the establishment of still higher criteria in the future, it is imperative that Long Beach reassess its pay schedule and job classifications to become competitive with our surrounding communities. Only by doing this can we be assured that Long Beach is still served by the best personnel available. And for Long Beach, only the best is good enough.

Governors Clash in Lively Battle, Throw Statistics

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—My state has more new factories than your state, said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Oh no it hasn't my state can whip your state in new factories anytime, answered California Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

That, more or less, is the dialogue today in a battle between the governors of the nation's two most populous states. Each man is armed to the teeth with statistics.

Rockefeller made his statement Thursday, saying that more than three times as many new plants have been built or started in New York in the past year than in California.

• • • •

BROWN answered immediately in a letter, whose contents he released Saturday. After citing Rockefeller's factory statement, Brown said, "The reverse is more likely true, although I do not believe either state has an accurate record of new plants."

"A comparison of employment shows, however, that between February 1958 and February 1962 the number of wage and salary workers in New York increased by 3.4 per cent while ours increased by 14.2 per cent, four times more than New York. In the category of manufacturing employment, between 1958-62 New York's employment declined 3.4 per cent while California's increased by 11.2 per cent," Brown said.

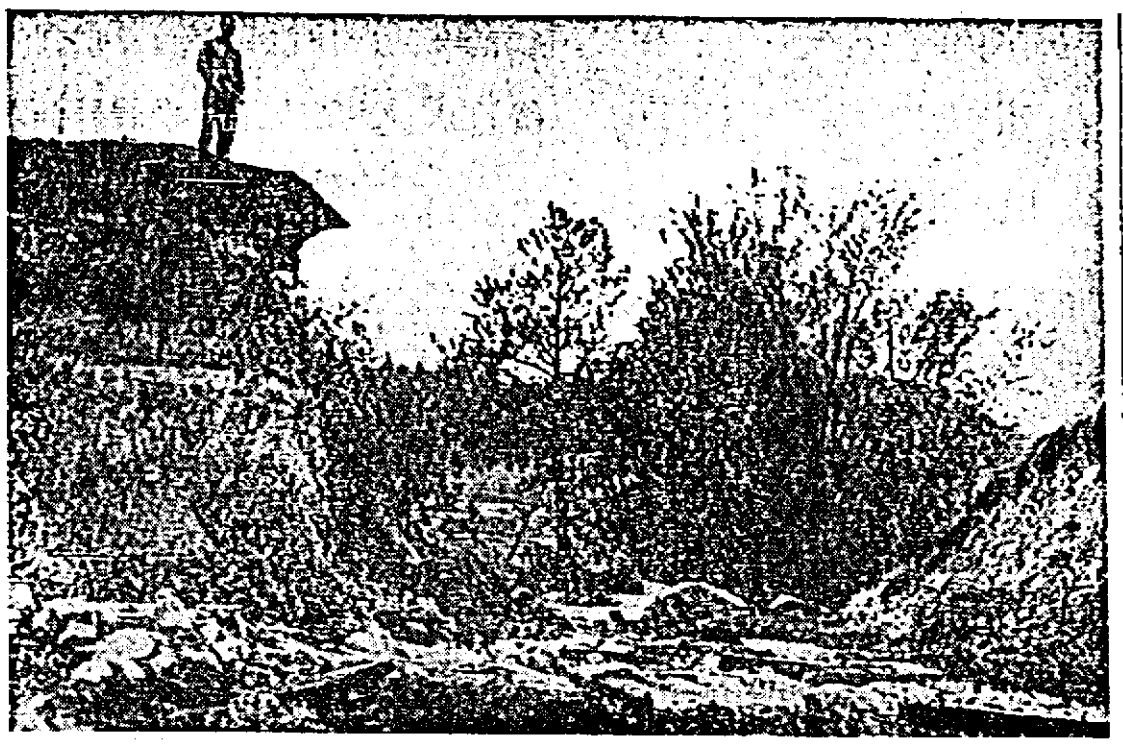

Brown seemed especially irked by Rockefeller's second contention: That California's indebtedness has been "soaring" while New York's has been dropping.

• • • •

HE SAID that "one of the reasons our bonded indebtedness is increasing (although it is still the lowest per $100 of personal income of the nine top industrial states, including New York) is that we are spending a great deal more on schools and education than you are."

Brown did congratulate Rockefeller on a "fine record of fiscal responsibility," but took the occasion to mention "my record in this field: Four consecutive balanced budgets."

"We did this, incidentally, in a period when California was growing at the rate of 600,000 a year, a pace which, as you know, will put our population at 17.3 million by December of this year, the largest among the nation's states."

HIGHWAY WASHED AWAY

Five Towns Hit by Flash Floods

United Press International

National Guard units were helping clean up Saturday after flash floods struck five communities in South Dakota's Black Hills.

Flooding also occurred on the North Dakota-Minnesota border and a tornado struck in Nebraska early Saturday.

About 400 persons were moved from their homes in the heart of South Dakota's resort area Friday night when heavy rains unleashed flash floods.

• • • •

SEVERAL persons were injured while scrambling to safety. South Dakota State Rep. Joe Dunmire, his wife, and a couple visiting from Oregon were rescued by National Guardsmen in a rubber boat after the four had climbed a tree when water reached their shoulders.

An unofficial report said Sturgis, S.D., received nearly four inches in less than six hours Friday night. Highways were closed around historic Deadwood, S.D., Saturday.

Other highways were closed by floodwaters and bridge washouts, but the roads were opening up rapidly.

• • • •

CROPS AND homes in the Red River Valley in northern North Dakota and Minnesota were under water, following a 12-foot flood crest. Additional flooding was expected, but the water was receding at some communities.

At Nenzel, Neb., a tornado destroyed the Catholic Church and two homes and damaged business buildings.

Several persons were injured, but the injuries were believed not serious.

• • • •

AN OLD lumberyard at Nenzel was hit by the twisters and pieces of lumber were strewn about the north-central Nebraska village. The lumber covered the car of Rev. Carl Ferris, pastor of the Catholic church which was destroyed.

Kilgore, Neb., received a severe hailstorm and 2.5 inches of rain.

Other tornadoes were sighted near Gordon, Neb., Valentine, Neb., and Lantana Heights, Fla.

Heavy raintalls Saturday included 2.8 inches at Ocala, Fla., and 1.41 inches at Pickstown, S.D.

Temperatures were on the cool side in much of the nation Saturday. Winnemucca, Nev., had a low reading of 37 degrees.

Bonfires Mark Date of '53 Berlin Revolt

BERLIN (AP)—West Berliner set bonfires near the Communist wall Saturday night on the eve of the ninth anniversary of the East Germans' abortive revolt against their Red rulers.

Similar fires crackled all along West Germany's zonal border with East Germany.

West Berlin officials said the bonfires were set to remind the people in East Berlin and East Germany of their heroic rebellion that was crushed by the might of the Soviet army.

• • • •

WEST GERMAN Chancellor Konrad Adenauer appealed to the Soviets in a Bonn television appearance to give East Germans more freedom "and the right to live the way they want to live."

Adenauer, who is expected in Berlin today, asked East Germans to be patient. Reunification with West Germany would not come very soon, he said, "but time will work in our favor."

"In the long run, the spirit is stronger than brutal force," the chancellor said.

Ernst Lemmer, West German minister for all German affairs, said in a radio broadcast in Berlin that the spiritual resistance of East Germans against the Communist regime had not diminished in the past nine years.

Across the wall, the East German Communists opened a two-day "National Congress" attended by 2,300 delegates from East and West Germany, according to the official East German news agency, ADN.

• • • •

COMMUNIST Boss Walter Ulbricht and East German Premier Otto Grotewohl attended the opening session.

The congress is regarded here as the East's answer to West Germany's anniversary observance.

In West Berlin, bonfires were lit a few hundred yards from the wall in nine districts bordering the wall or the barbed-wire frontier of East Germany with West Berlin.

They were set after memorial rallies in the districts, and torchlight parades or youths' rallies in memory of June 17, 1953.

No Hoffa OK for Governor

SACRAMENTO (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, said Saturday the international union will not endorse either Democratic Gov. Brown or Republican Richard M. Nixon in California's gubernatorial race.

Such an endorsement is a local matter, Hoffa said in an interview, and will be left to local labor organizations.

On May 9, Nixon said that Hoffa endorsed Brown. Brown called Nixon "dead wrong" and said he had only the endorsement of the Teamsters Union in California.

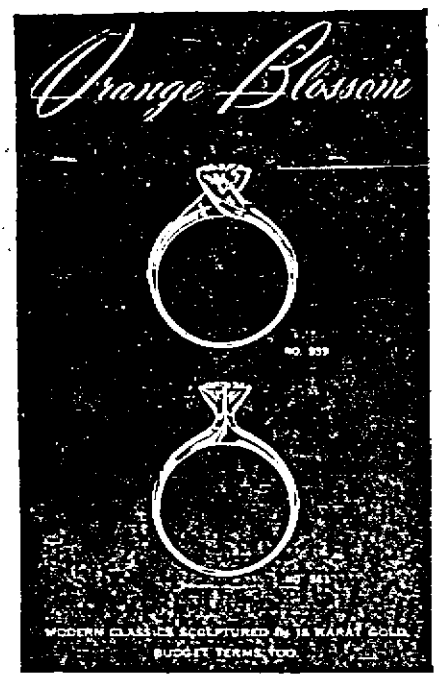

Hoffa was in Sacramento to open a membership drive for the teamsters' political education arm.

He said the international union will make endorsements in congressional races, although it will be done in conference with local unions.

ABANDONED INDIAN HOSPITAL
A 50-bed hospital once served the Sobobans. Abandoned to broken glass and beer cans, it reflects the dwindling fortunes of a once-proud California Indian tribe. See story on Page A-1.

Shell Raps Nixon Tactics

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Joseph C. Shell struck back Saturday in his running battle with Richard M. Nixon and the leadership of the California Republican Party.

Shell said Nixon, who defeated him for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, is harming himself by trying "to avoid the true issues involved in the race for governor."

And he charged that the former vice president is using "power tactics."

• • • •

SHELL'S latest blast followed publication of a remark attributed to Nixon by Caspar Weinberger, vice chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Weinberger quoted Nixon as saying, "There will be no deals of any kind, but I'll talk with any candidates or party leaders on their ideas for the party platform and program."

Said Shell: ". . . I have offered to meet Mr. Nixon and give him helpful advice on how to win in November. A week ago last Thursday he called and said he would meet me this week. So far he has not kept his word.

• • • •

"MY ONLY request is that the people of California who supported me be treated fairly. I am disgusted if Nixon calls this a 'deal.' My campaign was for the good of our state, nothing more. It was based on principle, not personal ambition. My loyalty will always be to my country, state, and party in that order.

Shell, a conservative, polled more than 671,000 votes, about half Nixon's vote.

CDC Hits Nixon on Campaigning

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

California Democratic Council (CDC) President Tom B. Carvey Jr. told his board members and club representatives here Saturday that the CDC will be armed with rebuttal and legal aid to counter Richard Nixon's "low road" attack against Governor Brown.

Carvey said numerous pieces of literature, including newspaper retractions and correction of reports on resolutions passed by CDC's 1960 convention, will be made available to council members and to all news media.

• • • •

CARVEY TOLD some 200 persons meeting Saturday and today in the Lafayette Hotel that these "phony resolution" stories were thoroughly discredited and repudicated at the time of their first use in 1960 but have been rcurring this year. He said the current usage follows that of 1960 in which reports of the CDC resolutions are in most cases "basically untrue, grossly distorted or out of context."

The controversial matter dealt with CDC positions on abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee, inclusion of Red China in negotiations to halt nuclear tests, abolition of state and federal loyalty oaths and unilateral disarmament, among others.

• • • •

CARVEY SAID CDC's corrective literature would include reprints of a full-page correction printed by the "right-wing" publication, Human Events, in answer to the charges used by commentator Fulton Lewis Jr. It also is scheduled to include a Congressional Record entry by Democratic Congressman James Corman entitled, "False Charges Laid to Rest," in answer to charges made by John Birch Congressman John Rousselot.

Leon Cooper, CDC's legal cunsel, "has mobilized almost every Democratic attorney in Los Angeles County" for the counterattack, Carvey said.

• • • •

DESPITE NIXON charges against Brown as a CDC captive and despite former GOP Congressman Donald Jackson's effort "to dignify McCarthyism" through the Anti-Communism Voters League, Carvey said, the CDC had impressive successes in the June 5 primary.

CDC member Roy Greenaway reported that the council endorsed 112 candidates of 136 seeking office and that 100 of the 112 won nomination. He said this accounting includes congressional, state senate and assembly races, not the state constitutional offices, which CDC-endorsees also won.

Greenaway pointed out that 55 of the 112 were unopposed Democrats but that among the 57 opposed candidates, 45 CDC endorsees won and 12 lost, for a 79 per cent achievement record.

Car Hits Girl, Breaks Arm

Four-year-old Debra Johnson of 2250 Willard St. suffered a broken arm Saturday when she was struck by a car near her home.

Police said the child apparently dashed into Willard Street from between parked cars and was struck by a car driven by Joseph T. Celia, 43, of 1726 W. Willard St. The child was reported in satisfactory condition at Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Moore Plans U.S. Hike to See Her 'Hero,' JFK

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Barbara Moore said Saturday night she is planning another marathon walk across the United States as "a personal tribute to President Kennedy."

The Russian-born dietician said she will mortgage her 25-room home in Surrey to pay for her new trek.

"There is no other way to finance the walk," said Dr. Barbara. "America is a very expensive country and it will cost at least $4,500.

"But I'm determined to raise the money to go to America as soon as I can. I'm hoping to see President Kennedy—he is my hero."

Dr. Moore said she is convinced that as long as Kennedy is in the White House there will be no war.

Trying to Cash 'Santa's' Check Leads to Jail

COLUMBUS, Ind. (AP) — "No, Harold, there is no Santa Claus," Columbus police told a construction worker Saturday as he was booked on a preliminary charge of attempting to pass a fraudulent check.

Officers quoted Harold L. Smith, 30, Indianapolis, as saying he found the check for $137 on a street here. Smith said it was signed Santa Claus and the payee line was left blank. The amount was written with a check writer.

Smith said he filled in his name, tried to cash the check in Indianapolis but was turned down. He returned here and presented it in a department store, where a clerk notified police.

Skydiver Injured Seriously

VENTURA (AP)—A skydiver suffered serious injuries Saturday when his parachute failed and his emergency chute dragged him after he landed.

Sheriff's deputies said he is Armand Eichwald, 32, a Santa Barbara laboratory technician. He was taken to a Santa Paula hospital with compound fractures of vertebra in the lower back.

Eichwald was injured when wind slammed him into the bank of the dry Santa Clara River near Piru, 30 miles east of here.

• • • •

THE HOSPITAL said Eichwald was conscious and seemed in good spirits. He reportedly was not paralyzed.

Eichwald told a reporter he jumped out of a four-passenger plane, as the second of three skydivers. He said the plane was at 2,500 feet.

Eichwald said he tried three times to open his main chute, then grabbed the emergency ripcord and opened the spare chute "below 1,000 feet."

The skydiver said he had planned to make a free fall, in which he would delay opening the parachute until he reached a certain altitude.

• • • •

"ALL OF A sudden I realized I had dived too low," said Eichwald.

"I grabbed my main chute cord with both hands but it still didn't work." Then, hurtling toward the earth, Eichwald pulled the cord on the emergency chute.

"It opened and broke the fall immediately."

Postal Unions' Voting Begins

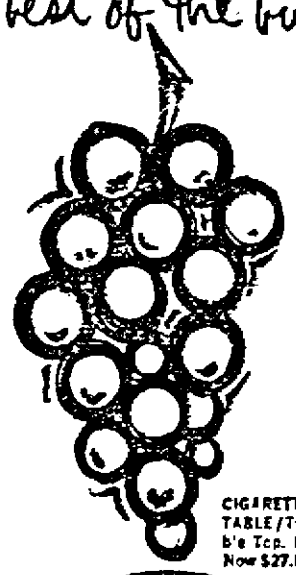

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mailing of ballots to nearly half a million postal workers in 25,000 cities began Saturday as the first step in conducting one of the biggest union-representation elections in history.

The ballots are to be returned to 15 regional offices by July 1. Counting begins July 9.

Ten employe organizations seeking to represent one or more of the seven postal crafts are listed on the ballots. There is also a place to write in other employ-organization names or to vote for no organization.

The crafts include clerks, carriers and mail handlers.

VICE DETAIL MAKES ARRESTS

Legion 'Recruiting' Party Raided

Sheriff's deputies called it one of the biggest vice raids in a long time.

But American Legion spokesmen protested it was just a "recruiting get-together."

Whatever it was, deputies put a stop to the stag proceedings being held by Legion Post 411, at 7613 Serapis St., Pico Rivera, early Saturday.

* * * *

ABOUT 150 members and guests were rounded up in the raid.

Two women arrested and charged were:

Betty Jean Anderson, 31, a cocktail waitress of 342 35th St., Manhattan Beach—suspicion of sex perversion and violation of the state narcotics act; Joy Ann Wise, 23, receptionist, of 347 33rd Place, Hermosa Beach—suspicion of indecent exposure.

Also booked on suspicion of indecent exposure were post members Robert Riddell, 38, of 14216 Ramshurt Dr., La Mirada and George W. Cain, 36, of 9017 S. Cord St., Downey.

* * * *

THE POST'S commander, Hazen Dewey Scott, 63, was accused of acting as lookout for an illegal act.

Scott said: "It was just a recruiting get-together."

Otto Albert Antenrieth, 34, of 8441 Sanger Ave., Whittier, the post's vice commander, was booked on suspicion of participating in a lewd show. Officers said he supplied the lewd films screened for the "get-together."

Post member Robert Pedersen, 33, of 11557 Baylor Drive, Los Angeles, was accused of being the projectionist.

* * * *

MOST OF the 150 post members and guests rounded up were cited and released.

Fifteen undercover men from the Norwalk Sheriff's station and Capt. Walter H. Howell's vice detail in the Los Angeles Sheriff's office, broke up the show. Officers saw men leaving for intermissions had red marks on their left hands. They put similar marks on their hands and infiltrated the action.

Capt. Howell said the two women arrested provided "entertainment" between film showings.

Square Dancers Plan U.S. Hoedown in L.B.

Twelve thousand delegates to the National Square Dance Convention in Miami Beach have accepted an invitation to convene here in 1964.

Howard Jones, chairman of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau, telephoned notice of the delegates' plans from Miami Beach Saturday night. Jones said the convention was scheduled for July, 1964.

He said local residents William Tickell and Norman Holloway headed a strong California contingent and presented the bid. "Heavy competition for the colorful event was generated by Dallas," added Jones.

Referring to Long Beach Arena, Jones said, "The new auditorium played a major role in the city's bid."

The event will be hosted by the Southern California Square Dance Association, headquartered in Long Beach.

Screwworm Factory Dedicated

MISSION, Tex. (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson told 2,500 persons at the dedication of a screwworm factory Saturday that the struggle against disease "is too great to be fought only by individual philanthropists and private associations."

Johnson helped dedicate the new federal-state screwworm eradication center at the deactivated Moore Air Force Base, 15 miles northwest of Mission.

* * * *

THE FACTORY is capable of producing 75 million screwworm flies a week. The screwworm flies, which include many males, will be rendered sterile by radioactive cobalt.

The sterile male flies will be released by airplanes and mate with fertile female flies that have reproduced in the affected areas. The eggs laid by the fertile female flies that have mated with the sterile male flies will not hatch.

* * * *

THUS, the screwworm, which attacks cattle and deer, will become eradicated.

"We can look at this achievement," Johnson said, "and hope our budget could be transferred to achievements of this kind instead of destruction.

"It cost more than $400 billion to win World War II," Johnson said, "since then, we have spent almost that much more trying to avoid war."

Slugger Gets Plane Ride; It Crashes

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) —Next time David Halverson, 12, hits a home run in the Little League he hopes his fans skip the rewards.

He was given a flight in a light plane for hitting a round-tripper and the aircraft crashed and caught fire. All four persons aboard were unhurt.

ELECTRONIC BLOODHOUND

Machine Sniffs Out Traces of Anything

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) —Scientists in San Antonio are working with an electronic bloodhound so sensitive it can detect alcohol in a man's saliva from a bottle of beer he drank the day before.

They plan on using the bloodhound to sniff out possible signs of life on the sun-seared deserts of Mars.

It is called the gas chromatograph. And if there was ever a scientific miracle in an ordinary black box, this is it.

Dr. Thomas B. Weber of the School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base holds a patent on a miniaturized version of the gas chromatograph that has a supersensative detection apparatus no larger than the end of a man's thumb.

* * * *

NO LONGER do scientists have to talk about traces in a mixture of chemicals in terms of parts in a hundred or thousand. With gas chromatography chemists at the school can detect a few parts in a million or even a billion.

"Here for the first time is a method that appears to be unlimited in its possibilities for identifying trace materials in minute quantities," Weber said.

* * * *

HOW DOES it work?

A small tube of plastic or metal is stuffed with something such as activated charcoal. A mixture of gases is forced into it. The molecules constituting each of the gases will have different physical characteristics — such as size and shape.

As the gases come out the other end of the tube they are measured with a supersensitive thermometer called a thernistor.

* * * *

A PEN makes a line on a moving piece of graph paper. The position of the humps on the graph paper tell the scientists what kind of gas molecule came through the tube and in what order.

The size of the hump tells just what percentage of the gas molecule is present in the mixture.

Weber predicts that in a few years every hospital in the country will have a gas chromatograph. A test on a reporter for example, showed a slight gum inflamation the reporter didn't even know about.

India Purchase of Jets Defended by Ambassador

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — India's ambassador to the United States defended Saturday his nation's proposed purchase of jet fighters from Russia as a "commercial deal with no strings attached."

Meanwhile, western capitals reportedly were greatly concerned over the possible acceptance of the Russian offer to build a plane plant in India and sell the jets to the government.

Ambassador B. K. Nehru, a first cousin to Prime Minister Jawaharial Nehru, in Columbus to address a midwest Indian student convention, said "the deal is very much up in the air . . . there is no finality about it."

He said he didn't understand the alarm created by the Russian offer.

"I wish people would realize Indians are not babies," he said. "We don't get subverted by contact with people."

Nehru added that India has purchased arms from Russia before.

871 in Capital for Boys' State

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A record 871 boys encamped at the State Fairgrounds Saturday for the 25th annual Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion.

The boys, high school juniors from all parts of California, will practice politics by staging campaigns and elections for mock city, county and state offices.

The governor and other constitutional officers will be inaugurated in the Capitol on Thursday.

Part Hair, or No Diploma at Rites, 2 Told

CHICAGO, (UPI) — Two elementary school students may not receive their graduation diplomas with their classmates next Wednesday because their hair isn't parted.

The mother of one of the boys protested the principal's ruling. She planned to meet with the principal "to discuss the whole matter."

"Why should my son change his hair style when he got a haircut just last week?" complained Mrs. Raymond T. Warchol, mother of Ronald, 15.

Ronald, and Wayne Tiess, also 15, face the possibility of getting their diplomas from the principal's office at Mark Twain Elementary School instead of on stage.

Miss Mary P. Mackin, principal, made the "trim or else" order after deciding the haircuts of the two students "did not come up to normal good grooming standards."

GRUNION RESUME RUNS TUESDAY

If You're Lucky Enough to Be on the Right Beach You May See Tricky Fish

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

This is the tourist season and that means that once again we must explain to our visitors that a grunion party is not a snipe hunt. A grunion, believe it or not, is a real fish, and enough of the tiny silversides will make a meal provided you are smart enough to be on the right beach at the right time of night.

Another grunion run, the second this month, is scheduled to start Tuesday. That run will be between 10:30 and 11:30 p.m. On the following three nights the times will be 11:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. midnight to 1 a.m. and 1 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Far too many visitors to this area have gone back east with the feeling that they were taken as suckers on those nights they stood on a cold beach and waited for the grunion to come ashore. Chances are that they, as kids, snared other youngsters into the the old snipe-hunt trick.

* * * *

THE LITTLE smelt-like fish are found only along the coasts of Southern California and Baja California, where on certain tides and only at night they come out of the water, dance on their tails and lay eggs in the moist sand.

Grunion are tricky little devils because they tell no one where they are going to lay their eggs. You may be standing on the beach near Belmont Pier and never see a single grunion, or any other fish for that matter, while downcoast at Newport Beach the grunion may come ashore by the thousands.

When they do come ashore, you are entitled to catch as many fish as you can with your bare hands only. You must not use shovels, nets, buckets or any other devices and you must not dig holes in the sand so that the grunion will be trapped.

* * * *

ALSO, YOU must have a state fishing license unless you are under 16 years of age. All of these regulations give the poor little grunion a sporting chance to get away with their nocturnal love-making and reporduce the species.

If you'd like to know where to expect the runs, more about the grunion, how to catch them and how to cook the fish, send 25 cents in coin to the State Documents Section, Printing Division, Sacramento 14, Calif., and you will receive a 22-page booklet, "A Guide to the Grunion."

Now head for your favorite beach and hope. Take your favorite girl with you and perhaps you'll forget all about the grunion.

Menzies, JFK Set Trade Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies meets with President Kennedy Monday for what could be a showdown on conflicting foreign trade policies.

Australia is bitterly critical of American opposition to the British system of preferential tariffs for Australia and other Commonwealth nations and to Kennedy's insistence that Britain should join the European Common Market at any price for the good of all.

Menzies will be seeking a way out that would be profitable to his country.

Australian Trade Minister John McEwan bluntly told American businessmen in Sydney last Monday:

"This I am angry about: That the United States should intervene (in Britain's common market negotiations), as I believe her influence is apparent today, to kill the system of British preferences on which we so much depend. If we cannot get American's help, then she should stay out of our hair and let us look after ourselves."

Menzies, although he is unlikely to be so forthright, is expected to try to convince Kennedy that if the Commonwealth countries do not get the same access to the common market that they now have to British markets, then Britain will not join the European Economic Community (EEC), or common market.

* * * *

NEW ZEALAND Deputy Prime Minister John R. Marshall who arrived here Thursday in advance of Menzies, told a press conference the common market's agriculture policy was restrictive and aimed at self-sufficiency. Like Menzies and McEwen, he said it was a gap that had to be bridged between British policy and the common market.

In current negotiations between Bitain and the EEC, proposals have been made that, should Britain be admitted, the system of commonwealth preferences should be scaled down gradually, finally to disappear in 1970. At that time Commonwealth products would be subject to the common external tariffs of the EEC.

In the case of Australia alone $452,000,000 of exports would be affected, half of them agricultural products. This, Australia says, would cripple her all-important exports of bulk commodities like wheat, meat, butter and sugar. It argues that all these would run up against the competition of the EEC's variable levy system which comes into effect July 1.

* * * *

THE SYSTEM is a device to adjust tariffs to the rise and fall of world prices, thus stabilizing prices and production within the common market. In addition, a small fixed charge will be imposed to ensure a preferential position for, say, common market grains.

The levies apply equally to American exports of these and other commodities.

One purpose of President Kennedy's pending freer trade bill is to make it possible for the United States to counter the levies by exchanging sizable tariff cuts for improved access to EEC markets for agricultural products.

Australia contends, however, that she is not in a similarly strong bargaining position, having little to offer the common market in return for a better deal.

* * * *

THE UNITED STATES has made no secret of its opposition to the British preferential tariff system, and still does not. It sees no justification for its continuance and holds that Commonwealth countries are unduly concerned.

Australia and other countries, the argument runs, would benefit from any trade deals the United States made with the EEC because tariff cuts conceded to the common market would be passed on to Australia and other third countries under most-favored-nation arrangements.

Australia, says this is pie in the sky, for it would not sell her wheat, meat, butter and sugar. Preferential trade with Britain is the reality of the moment.

See K Bid for Support in Romania

By ROBERT J. KORENGOLD

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev leaves here Monday for Romania on his second trouble-shooting swing into the Balkans in about a month.

Billed as a goodwill visit to an outwardly docile east bloc neighbor, the premier's trip appears aimed, at least in part, at winning Balkan support for the Soviet Union's new soft-line toward Yugoslavia.

But Khrushchev may want to use his expected eight-day stay to discuss with Romanian president and party chief Gheorge Gheorghiu-Dej such topics as de-Stalinization, Sino-Soviet and Soviet-Albanian relations, and general eastern bloc economic and agricultural problems.

Khrushchev, who probably will be accompanied by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, is scheduled to visit Bucharest and make several swings into the provinces before returning to Moscow about June 26. This will put him back in Russia in time for the visit here June 28 of Austrian Chancellor Alfons Gorbach.

Like his visit to Bulgaria May 15 to 20, Khrushchev's Romanian trip may produce some marathon speeches critical of western policies.

Certain to come under fire is the western stand on Berlin, and the allegedly aggressive intentions of NATO.

• • • •

THIS WOULD include a renewal of verbal blasts at Greek and Turkish participation in the Atlantic alliance and a call for the formation of a denuclearized Balkan "peace zone."

In Bulgaria Khrushchev noticeably failed, however, to touch on Moscow's problems with Balkan outcast Albania. Western observers here were waiting to see if he maintains his silence on the subject in Romania.

Moscow's anti-Albanian propaganda has fallen off to near zero in recent months in comparison to the violent attacks after last fall's 22nd Soviet Communist Party congress here.

The switch has been interpreted as part of an agreement between Moscow and Peiping to stop squabbling in public.

• • • • •

ALTHOUGH THE exact reasons for Khrushchev's sudden interest in the Balkans remain shrouded in mystery, it appears he in turn may be anxious to have Yugoslavia's neighbors stop squabbling with Belgrade.

In a speech May 16 at Varna, Bulgaria, the premier unexpectedly announced that better Soviet relations with once-ostracized Yugoslavia would benefit all countries building socialism and communism.

These were about the warmest words spoken about Yugoslavia by any Soviet leader since the last split between the two countries in 1957.

Both Romania and Bulgaria have been critical of Marshal Tito's allegedly "revisionist" views.

• • • •

ONE BALKAN diplomat in Moscow told a western reporter this week: "Romania and Yugoslavia have their ideological differences, but after all, they are neighbors."

While problems with de-Stalinization and a lagging agricultural program were two of the items believed on Khrushchev's look-see list in Bulgaria, the situation in Romania seems on the surface much better.

In many respects, that oil-rich nation is considered to have one of the healthiest industrial economies in eastern Europe, although living standards are still low by general west European norms.

Romanian agriculture, as in other bloc countries, is lagging behind plans, however, and this may be one area to which Khrushchev will pay special attention.

S.S. Catalina Asks Fare Hike

A public hearing has been set for June 25 in Avalon on an application by M.G.R.S. Inc.—operators of the S.S. Catalina—to increase fares for tripsh between Wilmington and Avalon.

The hearing will be at 10 a.m. in city hall.

The company has asked permission to raise one-way fares from $3.41 to $3.75 for adults and from $1.70 to $1.86 for children, plus tax. No increase has been asked for commuter fares.

The company says operation of the Catalina under present fare schedules would result in a loss of $62,855 for the year beginning June 1.

Chemistry instructor Charles O. Cunningham succeeded. Dr. Albert S. Derian as president.

Other new officers are Dr. Donald H. Scott, Charles R. Hoheisel, Mrs. Marion D. Farrell and Kenneth M. Nitzkowski.

Honored at the luncheon were Dr. Myron S. Allen who retired this month after serving in the LBCC physical science department since 1930, and Dr. John C. Pearce who has accepted the post of assistant professor of comparative literature at Occidental College.

Two Motorists Beaten

Two lone motorists were severely beaten by youths in separate incidents here Saturday police were told.

Marshal C. Nelson, 23, a shoe salesman of 1347 Termino Ave., was admitted to Community Hospital for treatment of serious head injuries suffered in a fracas at Anaheim Street and Ximeno Avenue about 2:15 a.m.

He told police four men in another auto forced his car to a halt, pulled himout and battered him with their fists in "an unprovoked attack."

Harrison Redden, 24, told officers he accidentally bumped another car as he parked in front of his apartment at 1309 E. 20th St. about 2:30 a.m.

Redden, who has a crippled leg, said two men jumped from the car, knocked him to the ground and kicked him several times. He was treated for extensive cuts and bruises on his face and body at Memorial Hospital.

Blaze Damages Norwalk School, Arson Indicated

NORWALK (CNS)—County firemen quickly extinguished flames at a Norwalk elementary school late Saturday.

The fire caused an estimated $1,000 damage to desks in the principal's office at the Grayland Avenue School. There also was considerable smoke damage.

Three fire companies responded to the call shortly before 6 p.m.

Fire officials believed the fire was deliberately set and requested an arson investigation.

30,000 Lions Meet in France

NICE, France (UPI) — The vanguard of some 30,000 Lions Clubbers and their families from 117 countries arrive today for a purple-and-gold-spangled convention featuring a three-hour parade and 200 long-legged drum majorettes from Mississippi.

The City of Nice got its face lifted for the $1.5-million convention with a special railway station with a double-length platform, and a newly installed reception center at Nice Airport.

Air France planned a 25-plane airlift to bring convention-goers in from the United States.

POWERS AVOIDS SPOTLIGHT

U2 Pilot Lives Quietly, Works for Central Intelligence, Writing Book

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four months after he walked to freedom across a Berlin bridge, former U2 pilot Frances Gary Powers remains an obscure figure around Washington—glimpsed occasionally, talked of more frequently, but always avoiding the public spotlight.

The 32-year-old pilot whose unsuccessful 1960 espionage flight over Russia toppled a summit meeting, has been living quietly in a modern apartment overlooking the Potomac River in suburban Alexandria, Va., generally unnoticed by most of his neighbors.

He is working for the Central Intelligence Agency at duties which are undisclosed but which apparently do not include flying.

* * * *

HE IS REPORTED writing a book on his flight, which ended deep inside Russia, his trial and 21 months in a Soviet prison, and his eventual exchange for convicted Soviet spy Rudolph Abel.

With a few exceptions Powers has gone quietly about his business here without publicity since his appearance before a Congressional committee shortly after his return.

One exception was when he ran into a local Washington reporter at a fish fry given at the home of a friend. Powers said on that occasion that he was able to walk around downtown Washington without being recognized but that once he visited Pope's Creek near the little town of La Plata, Md., he was discovered and people lined up to get his autograph.

* * * *

ANOTHER exception was in late April when his wife Barbara was taken to Georgetown University Hospital here with an acute stomach ailment which the hospital diagnosed as a "medication reaction." Police said she had taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

The director of the CIA, John A. McCone, has been attempting to have the agency show up somewhat less in the newspapers than did his predecessor, Allen Dulles.

All the CIA will say about Powers is that "he works for us."

* * * *

THIS ATTITUDE undoubtedly stems also from the fact that although the general story is known, there still are quite a number of undisclosed aspects of the U2 flight.

The CIA, on recommendation of a special panel appointed by President Kennedy, gave Powers full exoneration for his conduct during his flight and at his Soviet trial.

The CIA found he had "lived up to the terms of his employment and instructions."

* * * *

HE WAS GIVEN $50,000 back pay, and the Internal Revenue Service ruled he could spread the taxes on this over two years.

But no one has even completely cleared up publicly the mystery of how his plane was brought down.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev told the Russian people it was done with "a remarkable rocket."

* * * *

POWERS IN his Senate testimony said he did not know the answer. His first sign of disaster, he said, was when he "heard and felt" an explosion and saw an orange light.

Then his plane was falling in a spin, and after a struggle against the forces of gravity, he bailed out without being able to start the mechanism which would have destroyed the plane after he left it, he testified.

Playground Institute Set Monday

Preparing for the summer recreation program, 250 city and school district employes are enrolled for a three-day institute opening next Monday at Veterans Memorial Park Clubhouse.

They will supervise children's playground activities, scheduled to open the following Monday at school playgrounds and continue throughout the summer.

* * * *

INSTRUCTION manuals were distributed Thursday by Dale Hoskin, director of school and municipal recreation. The institute will end with a lunch next Wednesday at the Recreation Park picnic area. City and school officials have been invited.

Head of the instruction staff will be Duane George, who will succeed Dr. Frank Harnett as associate recreation director on July 1.

George was notified Thursday of his appointment as a member of the international professional advisory committee of the International Recreation Association.

Dr. Atkinson Elected by LBSC Staff

Dr. Gene Atkinson, associate professor of physics, has been elected chairman of the Academic Senate at Long Beach State College.

The senate, composed mainly of elected representatives of the general faculty, is the faculty's legislative body.

Dr. Atkinson, who lives at Los Alamitos, succeeds Dr. Jesse J. Thompson.

Other newly elected officers are Dr. Ottis L. Castleberry, vice chairman, and Dr. David E. Gray, secretary.

Dr. Elizabeth E. Nielsen has been re-elected secretary of the general faculty.

Penn. Senator Clark Addresses 'Myth'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., talking to a near empty chamber about a proposed Senate rule change to require better attendance:

"The picture of the Senate as a great deliberative body sitting around debating national issues is a myth."

Story of Heartbreak in Making and Testing of Powerful Missile

By BILL BROOM
L. P-T Washington Bureau

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The heartbreak and frustration of making missiles were exposed to merciless view Thursday when the Army's much-vaunted Pershing missile fizzled at its first public showing.

Now in the last stages of development, the Pershing had an unmatched success record of any missile during secret tests of the past two years. Out of 37 flights, only six had been less than 100 per cent successful.

The missile system itself accepted by the Army and will be in the hands of troops early in 1963. The 38th firing Thursday was to be evidence that four years and $470 million worth of effort had given the American field commander the most advanced weapon in the arsenal of ground troops.

• • • •

GLEAMING white in an arc cut through the Florida darkness by floodlights, the Pershing stood on its launch site, a monument to proud effort by thousands of men and scores of contractors. The countdown was untroubled. At the precise present moment, the missile thundered aloft from the Atlantic missile range.

But the second stage failed to ignite several miles above the earth and the missile destroyed itself before reaching target. Thirty-six hours later, engineers and technicians were still trying to determine why.

It was a bitter moment, all the more so because outsiders were there to witness it.

• • • •

OFFICIALS of the Martin Co., prime contractors for the Pershing were disconsolate. So were representatives of the FMC Corp., which makes the tanklike vehicles that give the Pershing battlefield mobility, the Bendix Corp., which makes the guidance system, Army officers and all the other contractors who had done their bit.

Over a loudspeaker, the voice of Capt. William Walker broke the sultry, tropical stillness.

"I'd like to point out," he said, "that if this had happened under combat conditions, we'd have another missile in its place in a matter of very few minutes."

The Pershing is a remarkable weapon, despite Thursday's mishap. It gives an Army commander a tactical weapon comparable in some respects to the Navy's Polaris missile. And it gives him the longest punch of any ground commander in the world—about 400 miles in advance of his front lines.

• • • •

PERSHING is a shoot-and-scoot weapon carrying a nuclear warhead. Mounted on tracked vehicles manufactured in San Jose by FMC Corp., it can move steadily on roads or across country in friendly territory. The enemy will never know from whence Pershing comes until it is fired.

All that's needed to drop a nuclear charge on an enemy target hundreds of miles away is a plot of land 20 feet by 40 feet and about 15 minutes for preparation.

The Pershing fills a requirement handled in the past by tactical air support planes. It has many advantages.

It can operate day or night in foul or fair weather, which planes cannot.

IT IS DIFFICULT to defend against, because it has no fixed launch sites.

It can be put into action within minutes at the command of an Army headquarters, whereas planes present operational, administrative and command problems and create a much longer time lag between command and execution.

Its solid-fuel propellants simplify firing problems. The simplicity of its design makes it usable by average troops with a minimum of training.

Of one thing the disappointed creators of Pershing are certain. Their weapon will be in the hands of troops on time and reliable.

• • • •

"NOT ONE BASIC concept has had to be changed throughout development and testing," said Herm Staudt, Martin's project director. "We've hit no blind alleys, and the Thursday test is no exception.

"Pershing doesn't have 100 per cent reliability, but we believe it's perfectly reasonable to have it, and we expect it will."

FMC Corp. has delivered 20 XM474 tracked vehicles for the Pershing tests. Thursday's firing was conducted from one of these. A total of 112 of the vehicles are now in production. The first two will be delivered by the end of this month.

Hams Set Annual Test Days

Twelve antennas, erected on portable aluminum towers, are being constructed in Palos Verdes this weekend preparatory to area participation in the world-wide amateur radio operators field days June 23 and 24.

The annual exercise, under rugged emergency conditions, is held to test equipment and procedures that could be of help to such agencies as the Red Cross, civil defense, police and public utilities when normal communication channels are not available.

The American Radio Relay League sponsors the event. Locally the operation is under the sponsorship of the Associated Radio Amateurs of Long Beach, which uses the call W6PMO. The Long Beach group's operation is under the direction of Al Lee (W6KQI) of Lakewood.

• • • •

TWELVE amateur radio stations will be set up at the home of Dr. Edgar E. Daniels, 3003 Palos Verdes Dr. East, Palos Verdes. All stations will be powered by an emergency generator and all will be transmitting simultaneously, said Lee.

Lee invited all licensed amateurs who would like to participate to take part in the Field Day directly or by making contact on the air.

More than 15,000 United States and Canadian radio amateurs will take up stations in such places as tents, log cabins, fire towers, barns and even on floating rafts for the test.

The event is held in the form of a contest. Club groups score points for the number of contacts made and simulated emergency messages exchanged.

Vandal Toll $6,563 at SA Schools

SANTA ANA — Vandals delivered a costly blow to the Santa Ana city schools the past year.

Business Manager Harold Nichols reported that vandals caused $6,563 in damage to various schools in the district. He added one hopeful note; the damage was $2,000 less than occurred the previous school year.

He noted that most damage was done to elementary schools. Glass breakage was the leading item and the district suffered a $1,529 loss.

Theft was second highest, with $1,016 loss.

He said insurance and private parties have paid $3,768 of the damage, but the rest remains uncollectable.

Fuchsia Show at Auditorium

California National Fuchsia Society is presenting its eighth annual fuchsia and shadeplant show today in Municipal Auditorium from noon to 9 p.m.

Competing in the show are designers of garden plots from 30 branches of the society and over 500 individual entrants.

The show's queen, crowned Saturday night, is Debbie Barlow of Venice. Her princesses are Cheryl Silvers of Westminster and Elaine Hughes of Orange.

TWO-THIRDS OF TOTAL FROM NON-TAX FUNDS

City Budgets to Top $100 Million Mark

By GEORGE WEEKS

Although the figure is admittedly misleading, Long Beach's municipal budgets will amount to more than $100 million for fiscal year 1962-63.

Appropriations of $100,938,051 are listed in budgets for general city operations, the Gas Department, Water Department, Harbor Department and Tideland Oil Fund. Revenues and carry-over surplus are detailed in the same amount. The figures are given in the preliminary budget document submitted to the City Council last week by City Manager John R. Mansell.

But the over-all total is inflated, city officials pointed out, for at least two reasons.

• • • •

THE FIRST is that all money on hand and anticipated in the Harbor Department and the Tideland Oil Fund is budgeted annually, although the progress of capital improvements each year falls far short of the appropriations.

From a standpoint of tax liability, a second reason is that the Gas, Water and Harbor Departments are supported entirely by non-tax revenues, as is the Tideland Oil Fund. (Most of the harbor income comes from tideland oil, but the Tideland Oil Fund is a separate account expendable for shoreline use outside the harbor district.)

General governmental operations call for less than one-third of the total—$32,400,654 in the unadjusted total, $30,923,701 after accounting refinements to limit the figure to tax-supported funds.

• • • •

OTHER BUDGET segments are: Gas Department, $19,261,101; Water Department, $7,104,630; Harbor Department, $20,412,500; Tideland Oil Fund, $26,115,507. Allowance for interfund transactions brings the gross figure of $105,294,392 down to $100,938,051.

None of the budgets has been approved as yet by the City Council. Water and Harbor Department budgets will be tackled first because these will become effective as approved by the respective boards unless the council modifies them before July 1.

THE SILHOUETTE'S THE SAME

Long Beach Pair Sponsor Brigitte Bardot 'Double'

By VERA WILLIAMS

The typical French face, the long blond hair, the sultry mouth are unmistakable.

So is the silhouette. . . .

But she isn't Brigitte

She's Colette Andre, 20, Brigette's "double" and she has just arrived in America, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie M. Dreis, 1943 Pattiz Ave. She hopes to be a model or a movie or TV actress here.

"But you have so much beautiful girls," she says, "Do I have a chance?"

BORN IN Dieppe, the daughter of a newspaperman, and reared in LeHavre, her resemblance to Brigitte was discovered in 1957 by a LeHavre newspaper photographer, who chanced to stop in at a cafe operated by her family on Rue de Richelieu.

His picture of her appeared in the LeHavre Libre, then was widely republished.

Solette appeared opposite George Ulmer of "Pigdale" fame in the Music Hall Miracle in March, April and May, 1960 in the Alhambra Theater in Paris.

SHE HAD THE supporting role to Colette Descombes in the film all about a boy and girl who fall in love," she played opposite Jacques Brel in several TV shows; she posed for the jackets for long-playing records, notably "Vienne et la valse" played by Rapha Brogiotti and his orchestra.

Then on the scene arrived a representative of a Manhattan manufacturer of lingerie. He wanted the name Brigitte Bardot to advance the sale of lingerie, but BB did not want to be bothered posing for it.

In the Ritz Hotel, Bardot signed a contract (allegedly for one million dollars over four years) for the lingerie to bear her name, but for Colette to pose for advertisements and publicity. The silhouettes are the same, remember?

LES DREIS, retired Long Beach police inspector, and his wife Veda, met Colette last year in her parents' cafe where the Le Havre newspaper photographer had discovered her.

She told them how much she wanted to come to America. She was studying English, she explained, and she often went to the harbor to watch the big ships come and go and imagine that she was on one of them coming to America.

The result was that the Dreis' arranged for her passage to America. She crossed the United States, by choice, by bus, so that she could see the country.

"IT IS so big and so clean. I saw much scenery, mountains and deserts," she said.

She is here on an immigration visa and expects to become an American citizen.

About her career, Les says "Lighting could strike twice. It struck once. No reason why it couldn't again."

THE BIG man stops and grins. "There are a lot of young bucks in my neighborhood who never even saw me before. But since Colette came you should hear them say 'Good morning, Mr. Dreis.'"

Colette loves American food, and she has gone wild over fruit-flavored ice cream. But she has to watch it. She is 5 feet 4, 115 pounds (perhaps a little more because of the fruit-flavored ice cream mentioned above), and her measurements are 35½, 25, 35½.

No, she hasn't had a date yet in America.

MISS NEW ZEALAND

IBC Entry Scored as Top School Athlete

The prettiest basketball player west of the NCAA, Maureen Kingi, 19, has been crowned as Miss New Zealand, according to International Beauty Congress.

Miss Kingi played basketball in Auckland while studying to be a radio operator. She also swims and plays softball, and was awarded the Maori Purposes Fund for the top Maori girl in school.

Her great-grandfather was Te Whaaiwi, who owned several island areas off New Zealand—including Ngaruahoe, Ruapehu and Tongariro.

She will come to Long Beach for the Miss International pageant Aug. 9 to 19.

Acre of Ground Given Hospital

More than an acre of property was given to Memorial Hospital of Long Beach during the observance of its second anniversary, Henry H. Clock, president of the board of directors, announced Saturday. The property fronts on Atlantic Avenue between 28th and Columbia Streets immediately adjacent to the hospital.

The gift was given as a permanent memorial in remembrance of Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich H. Barbour by their daughters, Mrs. Harriet Barbour Bare and Mrs. Theresa Barbour Clarke.

Barbour and his family came to Long Beach in the early part of the century, and in 1912 built their home on Columbia Street adjacent to the present hospital site. Barbour purchased property in the area before oil was discovered on Signal Hill, and this property was later inherited by his daughters.

• • • •

IN PRESENTING their gift, Mrs. Bare and Mrs. Clarke said they were pleased to see the efforts of the people of Long Beach culminate in the building of such a medical center as Memorial Hospital. They felt that no finer memorial could be established in their parents' name than to give their property for the continued expansion and growth of the hospital.

Clock said the hospital's planning and expansion committee will give immediate consideration to the best use that can be made of the property to further advance new health services and facilities for the benefit of the people in the area.

A Great School Leader Retires

THE ANNOUNCEMENT BY Douglas A. Newcomb that he will retire at the end of June as Superintendent of the Long Beach Unified School District is received with mixed emotions. His retirement is well-earned, but the citizens of the school system regret losing his splendid leadership. He has been one of the truly outstanding school superintendents in the nation during one of the most difficult eras for school administrators.

NEWCOMB INHERITED the job shortly after World War II, and it was his duty to guide the district through the staggering post-war years when the school-age population inundated the land.

While hundreds of school systems throughout the country had their students on half-day sessions because of classroom shortages, the Long Beach district under Newcomb solved its shortage and provided a seat for every child.

He planned, directed, and implemented a $100,000,000 school construction program and, though many other districts were voting down school bonds, obtained voter approval of four major school bond issues. These feats were possible because the school system under his leadership had earned the confidence and support of the taxpayers.

IT WAS, ABOVE ALL, a leadership of good common sense. It was progressive without being faddish. Newcomb instituted a remedial reading program with clinics, a special school for physically handicapped, an educational radio station, and child welfare services. It was a fundamental without being backward. (He emphasized the 3 R's and placed ever greater emphasis on foreign languages and science.) And it kept in touch with the people.

We doubt that any school system ever had a more intelligent public relations program. Newcomb stressed the importance of letting the citizens know at all times what their system is doing, and this information program has been expertly operated—not as a propaganda agency but as a public service.

Realizing that a school system can be no better than its teachers, he maintained a strong recruitment program that attracted the best teaching talent from all parts of the nation.

IN THE END, OF COURSE, the product must speak for itself. And we are proud to say that the Long Beach system ranks as one of the greatest school systems in the nation—a system that has solved its building problems, obtained good teachers, held its costs within reason, and produced students who can compete successfully with students of any system.

The man who has had the major responsibility of the system deserves the major part of the credit. Superintendent Newcomb enters the record as one of the remarkable schoolmen of modern times.

Byrd Obstacle to Bill on Debt Limit

By THE I. P-T WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON—There appears to be trouble ahead in the Senate for the administration's bill to raise the national debt limit to $308 billion. The trouble, so far as the President is concerned, is the courtly, soft-spoken man from Virginia, Harry F. Byrd, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Passage of the bill in the House was too close for comfort, by administration reckoning the final outcome, 210 to 192, was not inspiring of confidence.

While raising the debt limit has become habitual and is justified as a bookkeeping device which would allow the expenditure of obligated funds, its accomplishment this year reached several peaks of emotion, not the least of which were some charges of Pentagon blackmail.

Some congressmen charged that the Defense Department exerted improper influence with its own lobbying for the measure. Congressmen were reminded of defense projects in their district and told that if the debt limit were not raised it might be necessary to scale down some of the programs.

It was estimated during this period that about $1 billion might have to be trimmed out of defense programs. Rep. John W. Byrnes (R., Wis.), chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, has urged an investigation to see if "people in the Defense Department engaged in criminal blackmail."

And now Byrd.

He is on record in opposition to a hike to $308 billion.

"A federal debt approaching $308 billion," he stated, "would be the greatest national debt in history, in war or peace. . . . Federal debt and deficits are the prime factors in inflation which continues to reduce the value of the dollar."

There is a stiff fight ahead in the Senate, in other words, where the mood has been unruly at best during the past few days.

• • • •

YOU NEEDN'T BE AFRAID of expressing an opinion on the behavior of the stock market. Even if you know nothing about it you will probably find authority on your side no matter what theory you might develop.

A New York broker, asked if recent statements by administration figures were affecting the market, said: "No. And I wish they'd shut up."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, who says he owns no stock, feels that the Kennedy administration's hostility to business is to blame.

Sen. Stuart Symington, who says he was hit hard by the drop, scoffs at this and points out that in 1929 no one would have called that administration hostile to business nor could anyone look with horror at a national debt or government spending.

Sen. Everett Dirksen came up with this happy comment:

"I met a man the other day who said, 'I haven't lost my confidence I've only lost my money . . .'"

He did not say what the man was smiling about.

MAN ON A TIGHT ROPE

DREW PEARSON

United States Conducted Hydra-Headed Policy in Laos

WASHINGTON—It has now been exactly one year since President Kennedy returned from conferring with Premier Khrushchev in Vienna with their only accomplishment a joint agreement that they would work for peace in Laos.

PEARSON

It has taken one year to work out that peace, and the case history of how it was worked out is important for the American people to know. The fault has not been all on one side. We were responsible for a lot of it. And if we are to win the battle against communism we must examine our mistakes as well as our virtues.

The basic fault of the United States is twofold:

1. A dual system of conducting our foreign relations, partly by the State Department which is officially charged with the job, partly by the Central Intelligence Agency, which is not charged with the job but has not hesitated to undercut State Department policy.

2. A group of officials, in a minority but potent, who are willing to bog the United States down in another Korea-type war in the jungles of Asia.

Both Eisenhower and Kennedy have been opposed to such a military bog-down. But in 1954, Ike was almost pushed into a Southeast Asian war by energetic Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; while Kennedy was pushed into sending troops to Thailand by faulty intelligence and overexcited advisers.

The hydra-headed direction of our foreign relations is illustrated in Laos by the fact that Central Intelligence in 1960 proceeded to kick out the duly constituted neutral Premier Souvanna Phouma, and replace him with a puppet behind whom was strong man Phoumi Nosavan.

It had been decided by the Geneva treaty of 1954 that Laos was to be neutral. But when Laos installed a neutral prime minister, CIA proceeded to undermine him and throw him out of office.

Now, after months of headaches and heartaches in all Asia, we are right back where we started before the CIA agents took over the foreign policy of the United States. We have the same premier they kicked out.

Right up to the last minute, before the recent agreement of the three Laotian princes, CIA agents kept the United States—and Laos—in hot water. Its hand-picked strong man, Gen. Nosavan, deliberately tricked American military advisers into believing that the Communists had attacked in Northeast Laos.

It was later learned that they had not. According to a report by India's highly respected Avtar Singh, chairman of the Neutral Commission, it was Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the right-wing leader, who broke the cease-fire. He deliberately provoked the attack on the pro-Communists, then turned and executed a pell-mell retreat.

This hasty retreat, Gen. Nosavan hoped, would scare the Americans into rushing troops into Laos. It almost did. The retreat was so fast that two American generals, supposed to advise the Laotian royalists, couldn't keep up with their scurrying troops.

• • • •

PRESIDENT Kennedy, alarmed by the reports, rushed U. S. troops to the Thai border, then learned, too late, of the faked report. He almost hit the ceiling.

The faked incident, however, did cause Kennedy to put the heat on Gen. Nosavan so vigorously that he finally agreed to a neutral government—though not until after making a tour of Formosa and the Philippines trying to drum up support from Chiang Kai-shek and President Macapagal.

The American public does not realize it, but all this makes us look like fools abroad. It puts the President in the position of not being able to control his own military and his espionage service any more than ex-President Frondizi of Argentina.

Careers at Stake in Special Session

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The special session of the California legislature which Gov. Edmund G. Brown has set for June 26, is shaping up as a meeting of considerably more significance than the possible financing of higher educational facilities with another bond issue.

The decisive defeat of Prop. 3 at the primary election, which would have provided $270 million for state construction — including about 80 per cent of it for higher education facilities—has left a big gap in Brown's program. Not only would it interrupt the building of college and university facilities for two years but it leaves some $90 million in projects in the new budget with no money to finance them.

Most observers feel this was a very embarrassing turn of events for Brown, as it knocks part of the props out from under his main reelection platform—that his administration is building for the future without raising taxes. The same observers felt that, were Brown forced into calling a special session, he could not help but suffer further embarrassment at the hands of the GOP minority in the legislature.

But there's a strong feeling now that this shoe may fit more than one foot and that pitfalls of the Republicans lie ahead as well.

For one thing, a number of Republican legislators are openly irked at Richard M. Nixon, the GOP gubernatorial candidate, for getting into the act so promptly and urging Brown to call the special session. They not only feel that Nixon thereby let Brown at least partially off the hook but that Nixon should have consulted with them before making such a hasty statement.

Now they feel that, as long as Nixon didn't "shut up," it's now up to him to "put up."

Assemblyman John L. E. Collier of Los Angeles, a veteran and conservative Republican member of the legislature, put it this way:

"As long as our leader, Dick Nixon, has prevailed upon the governor to call a special session of the legislature, then I feel that it is his responsibility to be in Sacramento before and during this special session. He should meet daily and counsel with Republican members of the legislature to solidify their thinking and actions. Nixon owes that to the Republican members of the assembly and to the Republican party statewide."

• • • •

COLLIER WAS quick to point out that he will support Nixon in the election. However, he said the special session of the legislature will provide the first test of whether the harmony considered necessary for a Republican victory in November can be established.

In other words, if the Republicans wind up in a squabble over whether a higher education bond issue should be submitted to the people in November, it may work to split the GOP even wider.

There are a number of legislators—probably in both parties—who have seen the vote in their districts against Prop. 3 and are not too anxious to go against this vote by putting the issue back to the people in such a hurry.

Not All of Shell's Attacks Went Unanswered by Nixon

RICHARD NIXON was jabbing back at Joe Shell as early as five weeks before the primary although the general impression was that Nixon, by his own choice and declaration, didn't lay a glove on Shell.

This information was supplied by Nixon's camp a little less than two weeks before the primary in the form of background material and a campaign article by free lance magazine writer Oliver Carlson.

HOUSER

Referring to Nixon's declaration of candidacy, the information intimated the power of anti-Nixon sentiment in his own party by noting that Nixon found himself the center of attack from three other GOP contenders, Goodwin Knight, Harold (Butch) Powers and Shell. Each of the three "seemed more determined to impute the motives and to question the abilities" of Nixon than to prosecute their own campaigns or to attack Governor Brown.

It pointed out that Knight later pledged support to the GOP nominee, as did Joe Shell, "who stubbed his toe and had to retract his latest headline-making charges." Adding that Shell's campaign was well financed, the piece said Shell "has the backing and support of the ultra-conservative wing of the Republican party as well as that of the right-wing extremists. He has been endorsed by the Californians for Goldwater and by Robert Welch, president of the John Birch Society."

THIS "BACKGROUND" information virtually charged Shell with giving aid and comfort to Democrats by attacking Nixon and using an "old political device," a less-well-known candidate attacking one widely-known—a device which almost automatically draws party dissidents together. "Joe Shell has deliberately made himself the lightning rod to attract the support of every GOP 'aginer' to Nixon, Eisenhower, Dulles and Warren."

Again stressing that the "right wing element in California is stronger than anywhere else in the nation," the information pieces recall that the ultra-conservative, politically unknown Thomas H. Werdel polled 33.6 per cent of the vote in running against Gov. Earl Warren in 1952, even though the Warren presidential slate had the backing of Knight, Nixon and former Sen. William Knowland.

WHILE CITING this Werdel vote and the anticipated 35 per cent Shell vote merely as polarization of the "aginer" turnout, the Nixon releases depicted the expected 20 per cent vote against Brown by three unknowns as "handwriting on the wall" sealing the means for Brown's defeat by Nixon."

Through Carlson's article, the Nixon camp took further occasion to stress Nixon's policy of refraining from inflicting party scars by tearing down GOP opponents, but added Nixon's quote: "Of course, I could answer the attacks that have been made upon me, and don't think the temptation isn't pretty great at times when I think of some of the whoppers that are being told about me."

This pre-primary backgrounder on Nixon also tied Shell's prospects for a "bright political future" to his post-primary support of Nixon: "His (Shell's) opportunity to make his point of view felt on the problems of state government would be greatly lessened if he were to withdraw to the sidelines in the final campaign. People would call him a bad loser."

ON ALMOST the same date the Nixon background material was being released, Joe Shell was speaking (May 23) over statewide TV, saying "Richard Nixon is a loser," and depicting him as a "falling star" against a background of "rigged deals, closed slates, kingmakers, absentee political landlords and smear tactics."

Against this broadside, the Nixon camp still saw hope for accommodation in noting that "Shell's differences with Nixon are miniscule when compared with his differences with Pat Brown."

PUBLIC FORUM

Voters as Dumb as Brown Thinks?

EDITOR:

Are we voters as dumb as Gov. Brown seems to think? I refer to his blaming the defeat of Proposition 3 to the way it was worded on the ballot. He seems to say that the voters didn't know what they were voting for and that the proposition would have passed had it been worded to say it's for schools.

Permit me to differ with those who so lowly rate the intelligence of the voters. Included with each ballot was a booklet from the Secretary of State that gave the wording of each proposition and arguments for and against.

• • • •

ARGUMENTS for Proposition 3 state, "Over 80 per cent of this bond issue will go for increasing our college level facilities." So the majority of the voters knew the money might be used for schools. But they weren't fooled. The falseness of the above quote is revealed in the wording of the proposition. Specifically, section 2 includes, "Nothing in this act is intended to prevent the legislature from deviating from the specific projects mentioned . . ." and "Nothing in this act is intended to bind the Legislature to follow the system of priorities contained in said report." In other words, the voter has no idea where, when or for what the money would be spent. To vote for an issue containing such wording is like signing a blank check for $270,000,000.

• • • •

LET GOV. BROWN and the legislators properly interpret the resounding defeat of this proposition as proof that the voters know what they are voting for, and that they can see through the sucker bait of saying that bonds are for schools. If money is urgently needed by the state for school construction, a new proposal should be placed on the November ballot. But such a proposal should be specific and contain safeguards to prevent squandering of school money on pork-barrel projects, for I am convinced the voters will continue to veto such transparent frauds as Proposition 3.

Seattle Fair Head Answers Criticism

EDITOR:

We were disturbed by a recent letter to your paper by Mr. Jim Bentson of Seal Beach, California, asserting that "the 'scalpers' and profiteers have seemingly already secured a comfortable little monopoly in Seattle."

The only thing the few scalpers and profiteers of Seattle have achieved is an unwholesome reputation among an overwhelming majority of our residents.

• • • •

MR. BENTSON'S letter indicated that he based his charges on word from his travel agent that reservations made for him in January would not be honored. The letter implied, it seems to us, that the only way for a Californian to visit the World's Fair is to sign up for a package tour that includes mandatory extras.

This is not the case. Expo-Lodging Service, the Fair's official, non-profit housing agency, makes thousands of reservations every week at prices ranging from a $3 dormitory bed, to an average price of $14 for two persons at a good motel or apartment-hotel, to suites that are worth the $20 or $25 charged.

• • • •

WE DEPLORE Mr. Bentson's experience with one Seattle lodging, through one travel agent, and we are investigating the incident. We also offer him, and all Californians, lodging at reasonable cost, through Expo-Lodging.

Mr. Bentson had every right to be furious at his treatment, but I believe we have every right to be annoyed at the implication in his letter that everyone heading for Seattle will get a similar raw deal.

To anyone wishing to visit the Seattle World's Fair, I give this message:

Expo-Lodging may not be able to book you in the specific hotel you request, for the specific dates you request. But if you will write to Expo-Lodging, stating the general type of accommodations you desire, and the general price range, Expo-Lodging will do its best to fill your needs.

If the response from Expo-Lodging does not satisfy you, I believe that it will at least convince you that we do have a variety of accommodations available, and that you do not have to sign up with a "package tour" to get good lodging at Seattle.

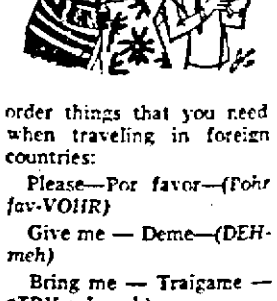

JOSEPH E. GANDY
President
Seattle World's Fair.

REPRESENTS 9,000 STORE EMPLOYES

Retail Clerks Union 324 Dedicated to Serving Members and Community in Long Beach-Orange County Area

Occupying a prominent place in the community as well as in the circles of organized labor is Local 324 of the Retail Clerks International Association (AFL-CIO), 8530 Stanton Ave., Buena Park.

Having grown from a membership of less than 2,500 in 1950 to more than 9,000 today, Local 324 has members working in retail stores in Long Beach and throughout Southeast Los Angeles County, as well as all of Orange County. The Buena Park headquarters is centrally located to best serve the union's members.

Key to the success of Local 324 is its basic philosophy of providing, through collective bargaining, a better standard of living for union members. This in turn, the union members feel, brings a sounder economy to the entire community, for by achieving better wages and working conditions for its members, the union not only attracts new members, but it also creates more purchasing power which in turn promotes community growth and well-being.

Recognize Responsibility

"We don't seek anything which would adversely affect the community or the economy of the community," says Local 324 Secretary-Treasurer Arthur Z. Berland. "We recognize our responsibilities not only to our own members, but also to the various communities we serve. On the other hand, we're totally dedicated to the principles of trade unionism, without which our country would not have achieved its present-day standard of living."

Proof that the union has achieved its aims of an improved way of life for its members is contained in the contracts under which the members work. Two major contracts which have stabilized wages, conditions of employment, and benefits are in the Food and Drug industries, where agreements have been negotiated on an industry-wide basis. These contracts not only set an excellent wage standard, but also provide union members and their families with a complete medical and hospital plan, including surgery, X-ray, laboratory work, home and office doctor calls, and maternity care. In addition, many contracts include dental and psychiatric care for not only the union member but family members as well.

Benefit Payments

Also included in many Local 324 contracts is provision for benefit payments to supplement state unemployment and disability payments, so that if union members are unemployed or disabled, they can still maintain a decent living standard.

Pensions for retiring union members are another proof of the effectiveness of the union in negotiating beneficial contracts. In addition to Social Security, retirees at age 65 with 30 years' employment in the industry covered receive over $100 per month as well as continuing medical care and a cost-of-living adjustment to their pensions. Those members reaching retirement age with fewer years of service to the industry receive lesser amounts, depending on length of service.

"We're both proud and humble because of what Local 324 has done for the Retail Clerks," Secretary Berland says. "We're proud of our improved standard of living, and we're humble in the realization that the members themselves have accomplished their goals simply by working together for the common good of all. The end result has been an improved community not only for the clerks but for everyone living in this area."

Many Services Provided Members From Modern Business Office

Inside the beautiful building, shown below, you'll find efficiency at work—a modern, departmentalized business utilizing the latest IBM equipment and methods to maintain up-to-the-minute records on more than 9,000 union members, without sacrificing warm human relationships.

In addition to necessary membership records and data on eligibility for various negotiated benefits (health care, pensions, etc.), the union maintains many services to its members—a credit union, job placement, grievance processing, insurance claims, and other departments.

The union publishes its own monthly newspaper, the Local 324 Reporter, which keeps the members up-to-date on all phases of union activity. The Reporter has been praised by labor leaders and government officials as an outstanding example of labor journalism.

One of the most recent special services to the union members and their families was inauguration of a college scholarship program, with $5,000 set aside to provide 14 scholarships for the 1962-63 academic year.

Eligible to compete for the scholarship awards will be Local 324 members, children of members, and wives or husbands of members.

One award of $750 will go to a graduate student; a similar award ($750) will go to an undergraduate student; two awards of $500 each will go to undergraduates, and 10 awards of $250 each will also go to undergraduates.

"We'd like to see the day when every high school graduate can look forward to attending college if he wishes," Secretary Berland says. "If we can assist a number of students in continuing their education, we feel the union is making an important investment in the future of our country."

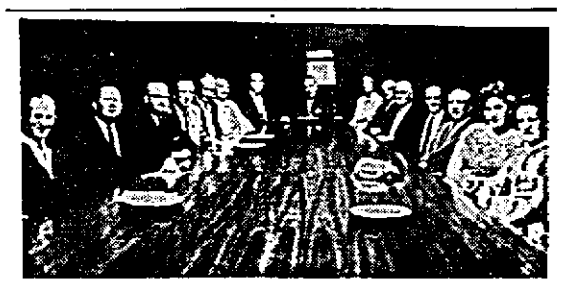

BIG UNION AUDITORIUM WILL SEAT 1,200 PERSONS

Big Auditorium Source of Pride Among Members

A source of great community pride is Local 324's beautiful auditorium, the largest and most modern in Orange County. In almost constant use, it serves not only for the monthly meetings of the union's members and for their social events, but also for important public and charity functions. In addition, it is available, at nominal rental, for use by conventions, trade shows, large or small meetings, and other group activities.

Seating 1200, and complete with catering kitchen, full stage facilities, and an expansive parking area, the auditorium is looked upon by Local 324 members as one more way in which they can prove their value to the community. They take great pride in their auditorium, just as they take great pride in their union and everything it stands for.

BOARD APPROVES ACTIONS

Any actions by officers of Retail Clerks Union Local 324 must be approved by the 18-member executive board and the membership. This, the union stresses, is democracy in action in its truest form, for it keeps all members closely interested in the union activities.

Democracy In Action

Operating under democratic by-laws which call for membership election of all officers and representatives and members of the executive board as well, Local 324 projects its total democracy into every phase of union activity.

Actions of officers are subject to approval of the 18-member executive board and the membership. Thus, the union carefully plans all its activities to provide maximum benefit to the entire membership.

"We feel that Local 324 is a classic example of democracy in action," Secretary Berland says. "We're proud of our membership participation and we want to keep it that way. As long as our members have confidence in their organization, we'll continue to progress and to improve our services to the members. It's their union—dedicated to a better way of life for all."

Personal Friendship Is One Key to Success of This Big Organization

WORK, PLAY TOGETHER

In the vast organization of 9,000 members, Local 324 of the Retail Clerks International Association (AFL-CIO) members are not treated as just names on a roster. Activities are planned and conducted so that all members may participate and develop personal friendship. One means of this is a dance held at the big hall. "Family Night" at union meetings is another.

Local 324's success story goes much deeper than the basic elements of better wages and conditions for those working under union contracts.

The union personalizes much of its activities. The 9,000 members are not just so many names on a roster; Local 324 looks on them as members of one big family, with mutual goals and mutual problems. And as a result, an unusual number of special social and fraternal events are scheduled to bring members and their families together.

On Labor Day last year more than 5,000 union members and their families gathered at Disneyland for a gigantic picnic that featured food, fun, and frolic, and—on the serious side—a major address by Gov. Brown. This year the Labor Day get-together will be highlighted by a circus at the Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa.

"Family Night" Held

Last Memorial Day, Local 324 held a successful dinner-dance, serving dinner under the stars to some 2,000 members and guests, with dancing both in the union auditorium and under the stars.

Another innovation has been "Family Night" — a union meeting at which husbands and wives, and sons and daughters of members can see how a democratic union functions. The union feels that by bringing the family into the picture in this manner, everyone will have a better understanding of just what Local 324 accomplishes in behalf of the member and the family.

"A business corporation may be an impersonal thing to its thousands of stockholders," says Secretary Berland, "but a union can never be an impersonal organization to its members."

Ill Are Remembered

The union sends birthday greetings to all members, and flowers and get-well cards to those who are hospitalized or ill. And when a member needs direct financial assistance he may turn to the union's "Aid and Assistance Fund," set up specifically to help members when unexpected financial difficulties are encountered.

"We're here to help our members," says Secretary Berland. "In helping them, we help the community. That's what unions are for."

ARTHUR Z. BERLAND

Secretary Is Executive Head

Guiding its destinities as administrative head of the 9,000-member union is Arthur Z. Berland, secretary-treasurer of Retail Clerks Union Local 324.

As executive head of one of the largest Retail Clerks' unions in the country, he is dedicated to rendering the maximum service to its membership and establishing a standard of living which benefits not only the members but the community as a whole.

Berland's dedication to trade unionism, the guiding force in his personality, led to service as an elected Business Representative, Head of the Textile Division, and ultimately to his present position as Secretary-Treasurer.

Knows Management

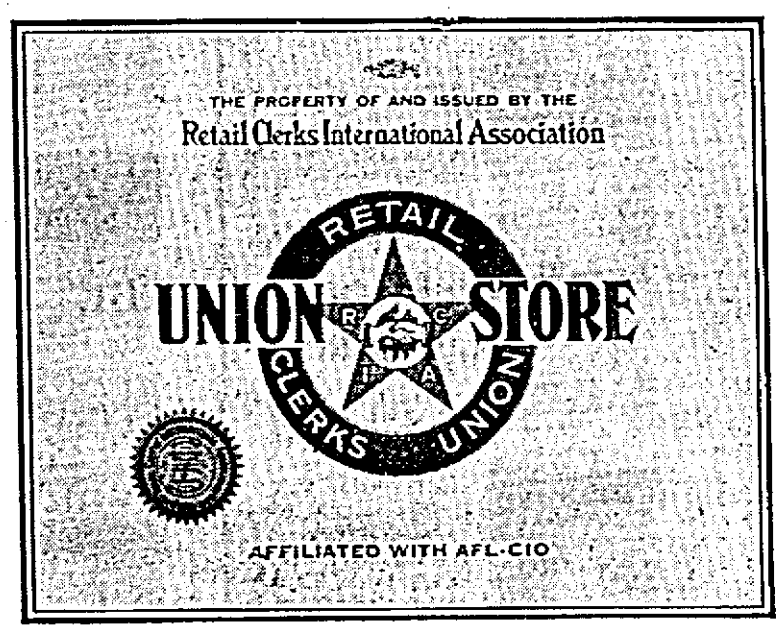

Berland's background embodies management as well as union administration, leading to an atmosphere of mutual respect and understanding between this union and employers in the field of labor-management relations.

Berland's management experience is also reflected in the administration of Local 324's office, in which the most modern business procedures have been installed to provide maximum efficiency and service to the union members.

"We are proud of our business-like approach in the conduct of our union affairs," Berland says.

"After all, meeting the needs of more than 9,000 union members is big business in itself and it has to be approached this way."

STORES UNDER UNION CONTRACT ARE IDENTIFIED BY THE "UNION STORE" CARD, SYMBOL OF INTEGRITY FOR THE STORES THAT MERIT COMMUNITY SUPPORT.

Retail Clerks Union Local 324 proudly points to these stores by an advertising program designed to promote both the "Store Card" and the stores which display it. A nine-week campaign of newspaper advertisements was recently concluded in six daily newspapers in Local 324's territory, including the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram.

Better understanding of the Union and its accomplishments as well as public acceptance of the "Union Store" has been the goal of the advertising campaign, which is scheduled for continuation and expansion this fall.

"We want to bring our union and the community closer together," Secretary Berland says. "We feel that by advertising ourselves and our product — service to the community — we'll help everyone to understand the importance of not only Retail Clerks Local 324 but also the entire labor movement as well."

Boy Turns Self In as Bomb Planter

A 15-year-old Torrance High School student surrendered himself to police Saturday as the perpetrator of a postgraduation prank that touched off Torrance's fifth bomb scare within the past two weeks.

Juvenile Officer A. L. Jackson said the youth was turned over to his parents pending further action after he turned himself in to police when he learned they were investigating a bomb found on the roof of a shop building at the high school earlier in the day.

The bomb consisted of a clock, wires, batteries and a can filled with gunpowder. The clock had stopped running some four hours before it was set to go off at 11 a.m. Friday.

• • • •

THE BOMB was found by four boys playing on a nearby tennis court. Sgt. Philip Wilson and Officer James Farquhar dismantled it and took it to the police station.

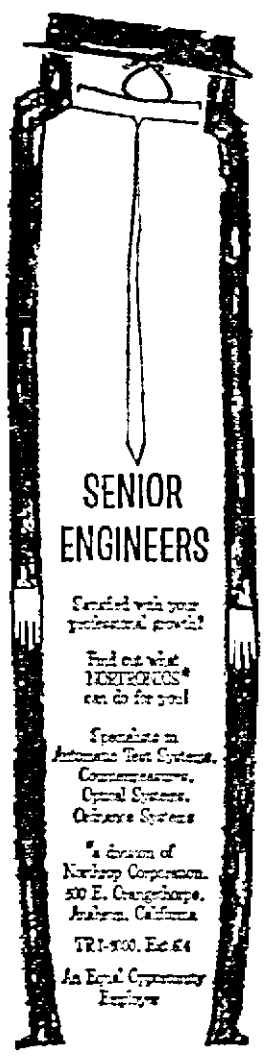

A telephoned bomb report had been received at the school last week, and two bomb reports, one of which caused the school to be evacuated, were received during the week at Torrance City Hall.

Two weeks ago, the Stadium Theater, at 1651 Cravens Ave., was cleared in a bomb scare.

• • • •

POLICE SAID a 17-year-old boy, who was with the 15-year-old when he placed the bomb, also would be picked up for questioning. The 15-year-old had served as an usher at graduation exercises Thursday night and placed the bomb later in the evening, police said.

Officer Jackson said the bomb didn't contain enough powder to do much damage but that it would have created a big flash if it had gone off.

HEARING SET

Orange Assessor Fires 3

By KEN KNIGHT

Three Orange County auditor-appraisers, dismissed from their jobs by Assessor Hugh J. Plumb have been described by their attorney as "conscientious eggheads trying to save money for the taxpayers."

But Plumb in formal letters of dismissal accused the men of "disloyalty and improper conduct".

Plumb fired the men orally Tuesday after they refused to sign resignation papers. After sending the letters of dismissal Thursday, Plumb indicated that the firing was the result of political activity.

• • • •

ALL THREE of the men, Roy Hallberg of Corona del Mar, Robert Kaneen of Downey and George Roundsley of Garden Grove, have denied the charges and hired attorney Arthur V. Jones to represent them at a formal hearing next week.

The three auditors have denied any political activity and Kaneen said he felt the political charges were the result of the trio attending a luncheon May 1 at the Los Coyotes Country Club where Plumb's primary opponent E.J. O'Brien was speaking.

Plumb was an easy winner in the election, defeating O'Brien by a wide margin.

• • • •

"ALL WE learned at the luncheon was that O'Brien shot a pretty good game of golf. I would say that our reaction to him was lukewarm."

Replying to the other charges, Halberg said that they did not resent supervision as charged by Plumb but that they had been told to make four or five audits a day.

"It often takes four or five days to make one audit," said Hallberg.

• • • •

KANNEN SAID that a proposal by him and his associates in 1959 saved the county $10,000 and resulted in a more efficient assessing operation.

The three men cited their records of efficiency in answer to the charges of disloyalty.

After the men received their letters, which Plumb said he [illegible] Thursday, they have five days to demand a hearing before the County Retirement Board which they say they will request.

The Board cannot order the men reinstated but it can restore them to eligibility in comparable jobs with other departments.

'Y' to Have Real Cool Boys Camp

It promises to be a real cool outing.

That's the way the weather shapes up for the opening of the Long Beach YMCA's summer camping program scheduled to begin Monday.

Nearly 130 boys are poised for the trip to the Y's mile-high spread, Camp Oakes, located near Big Bear. They are the vanguard of the ten-week program which will attract, in all, close to 1500 youngsters for one-week outings, according to Al Holladay, director of camping.

For the past week night temperatures in the Big Bear area have dipped into the 20's.

Gun-Trap Kills Man Who Set It in Home

LEXINGTON, Ga. (AP) — A trap designed to foil suspected pantry raiders is believed by officers to have claimed the life of its designer.

Sheriff W. T. Howard said an investigation showed that Frank Hubbard, 57, who lived alone in an isolated rural home, bled to death from a leg wound inflicted by a single-barrel shotgun he rigged inside a pantry door. A string was tied to the door so that anyone opening it would trigger the gun.

READY WITH A SONOBUOY

Target is located and this Navy crewman is ready to drop a sonobuoy to report the exact location of an enemy submarine. He and three other members of the four-man crew of a S2F-3 anti-sub tracking plane can go through the entire range of the actual plane and weapon system capability without leaving the ground, thanks to a simulator training device which duplicates the actual conditions without the risk of using a plane and submarine in training.

SIMULATOR THOROUGH

Antisub-Training Mockup Realistic

By HERB SHANNON

Navy flight crews are receiving training in far-ranging aerial antisubmarine warfare without leaving the ground at North Island Naval Air Station, San Diego.

One of only two incredibly complex flight and tactics simulators built for this purpose makes the training program possible. The other machine is in use by Atlantic Fleet units at Key West, Fla.

In addition to providing extremely realistic flight conditions in the grounded cockpit of a four-man, twin-engine S2F3 aircraft, the device also reproduces the exact detection signals emitted by a submarine attempting to escape.

* * * *

COMBINATION of these two artificial environments makes the simulator, built by ACF Electronics at a cost of $1.3 million, the most complicated military training device of its kind ever made.

In spite of its cost, the machine pays for itself every three months in the cost of actual sonobuoys if used at the rate the electronic trainer simulates them, according to Navy spokesmen. This is without considering the possible loss of lives and aircraft in accidents during actual flying training.

"In many ways, the trainer is more valuable to us than the actual aircraft," says Capt. Arthur F. Farwell, commander of the Fleet Airborne Electronics Training Unit at North Island.

"The pilot and his crew work better as a team and are more capable of taking over an actual airplane after safely forming their flight habits in the simulator."

* * * *

A FOUR-MAN crew in training in the simulator can search for, detect, classify, localize, attack and destroy simulated underwater targets. The device is so sensitive it will distinguish between calm water and a turbulent wake, tell the number of cylinders in a submarine's engine and account for varying degrees of salinity in the sea—the same as the equipment on the real plane.

All weapons are simulated, including advanced homing torpedoes and an atomic depth charge. So realistic are these simulations that the explosions are heard in the grounded cockpit in the same way sonobuoys would report explosions to the plane in flight.

Physical conditions of a flight also are simulated. These include lightning, clouds, thunderstorms and similar effects created by seats that bounce during "rough air" conditions, vibration during engine-trouble and the screech of tires during touchdown.

65 OR OVER? LAST 4 DAYS TO JOIN!

NEW! GOLDEN 65 Health Insurance offers up to $15,000 in benefits!

Anyone 65 or over can have this wonderful protection, no matter what their past or present health!

- EVERYBODY ACCEPTED
- NO HEALTH QUESTIONS
- NO PHYSICAL EXAM

This is the final opportunity for anyone and everyone 65 or over to choose the kind of in-hospital and out-of-hospital benefits they want from Continental's great GOLDEN-65 health insurance program! Enrollment ends Midnight, June 20, 1962. Join now!

65-PLUS offers basic protection

The 65-PLUS plan, introduced back in 1957, was the first Hospital-Surgical plan of its kind. Today, hundreds of thousands of senior citizens across the nation now have this protection.

10,000-RESERVE is for the big bills

10,000-RESERVE is designed for really big expenses and to start paying benefits when bills get "too big" for you to handle, or most of the benefits of your basic plan have "run out." To do this, 10,000-RESERVE has a "deductible" feature that works very much the same as the "deductible" feature used in auto collision insurance. Each calendar year after you, or 65-PLUS, or any other basic plan you may have, has paid the first $500 of eligible expenses, the 10,000-RESERVE plan goes into effect and pays 75% of all further eligible expenses during that calendar year up to a lifetime maximum of $10,000. Then, after any proven continuous 6-month period without treatment, you are eligible again for another $10,000 in benefits. As you can see, the 10,000-RESERVE plan in no way conflicts with any basic plan you may now have. It is the perfect "companion" policy to add to any basic plan.

5,000-MEDICAL plan is for out-of-hospital expenses

Anyone who joins either 65-PLUS or 10,000-RESERVE, or both, has the extra opportunity to join the 5,000-MEDICAL plan. This extra plan offers protection against out-of-hospital expenses and also features a deductible. Each calendar year after your eligible out-of-hospital expenses have reached $100, the 5,000-MEDICAL plan takes over and pays 75% of all further eligible expenses during that calendar year up to a lifetime maximum of $5,000. Then, after any proven continuous 6-month period without treatment, you are eligible again for another $5,000 in benefits. This is the first plan of its kind ever offered to anyone and everyone 65 or over!

This is your Guarantee

As long as you pay your premium, your policy will never be cancelled, no changes will ever be made unless done so to all policyholders in your state. Of course, you have the right to cancel your policy at any time. MONEY BACK GUARANTEE: After you have received your policy, or policies, and examine it, if you are not 100% satisfied, return it within ten days and your first month's premium will be refunded.

Under 65?

If you are 64 now, plan to join one or more of these plans when you reach 65. Clip the coupon now and save it. Mail it to us within 30 days before or after your 65th birthday and you will be enrolled.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS ENROLL YOUR PARENTS

If you have an older relative in your family, many of you will want to give him or her one or more of these policies and make the premium payments yourself. It's a wise and wonderful idea. Just fill out the enrollment blank and indicate where the premium notices are to be sent.

Income Tax Note: If you declare a parent or relative as a dependent on your Federal Income Tax, your payments of premiums for this health insurance are 100% tax deductible.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Teamwork Sought to Make National Economy Click

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy offered big business the olive branch last week. In effect, he said let's quit dealing in bugaboos and politics and team up to make the nation's economy click.

He also appealed to Republicans to support him on "matters of great national import," including his surplus-cutting farm bill, other key legislative proposals, and the state of the economy.

* * * *

THE TIME to argue politics, the President told a nationally televised press conference, is during the next presidential race. "Right now," he added, "it would seem to me that we should be concerning ourselves with the real problems of the country." He said they would still exist even if he weren't in the White House.

Once again Kennedy was seeking to free his administration from the anti-business label attached to it by some business and political factions after his controversial steel price increase rollback.

He made no secret of his worry over an economy that lags while most evidence, such as booming automobile sales, tends to show it should be in high gear. He wanted it made clear that neither he nor his administration are enemies of free enterprise.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT told newsmen he did not accept the view voiced in some quarters that Republican-tinged big business engineered the stock market slump to discredit his administration. What is needed, he said, is an end to personal dialogue and "a dialogue on what tax, budget and fiscal policies we should pursue."

He twice pointed to recessions during the Republican Eisenhower administration to emphasize that the nation's welfare was not a matter for partisan politics. The most important thing, he said, is to avoid recessions.

Republicans have jumped on the President's difficulties with charges he had destroyed the confidence of business in the economic outlook. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said for example that Kennedy's fiscal policies were slowing down the economy and hence "he should fire the whole bunch of crackpot college professors whom he calls advisers."

BARRY GOLDWATER
'Crackpot . . . Professors'

In a commencement address at Yale University, the President said: "The solid ground of mutual confidence is the necessary partnership of government with all the sectors of our society in the steady quest for economic progress."

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, met secretly in his office with a dozen business leaders in a further effort to dispel any hostility toward the administration.

THE CHIEF executive made a frank plea for Republican votes in Congress. He said that on matters of great importance the Democrats had some right to expect a degree of support. "I would hope," he added, "that those who are on the opposite side would be willing to sustain us or give us assistance."

The House, meantime, approved the President's request to raise the national debt ceiling to a temporary $308 billion. It now stands at $295 billion. The increase is necessary to tide the government through next fall when tax collections are seasonally low.

The Senate passed and returned to the House a $48.4 billion defense appropriation. This was $590 million more than the House voted. The Defense Department was directed to spend $491 million developing the RS70 reconnaissance bomber which in this nuclear age it does not deem feasible.

Democratic congressional leaders said there would be no election campaign recess. They mapped a speed-up drive for Kennedy's program and said "we are going to stay here and go straight through."

California Democrats met with the President and told him they were going to "permanently retire" former Vice President Richard M. Nixon from politics in the November election. Nixon is GOP candidate for governor.

IN OTHER news spheres: Kennedy told reporters there could be a lessening of tensions between the U.S. and Russia if there is "good will on both sides." This was after Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev charged that U.S. nuclear weapons tests in the Pacific were preliminary to "a surprise attack" on Russia. Kennedy reiterated that the United States was building for its own security and that the world knew that. Russia has sent a fourth electronics-laden ship to spy on the tests.

The President and Khrushchev exchanged congratulations over formation of a coalition national government in strategic Laos. But Kennedy used the occasion to warn that "untoward actions" to upset the peace in southeast Asia would not be tolerated.

The President made a personal plea to the flight engineers' union to abandon a threatened strike against three major airlines and seek a peaceful solution. He said a walkout would seriously damage the economy.

JACK NICKLAUS

ARNIE IS FLYING

—Associated Press Wirephoto

WAVING HIS putter and jumping for joy, Arnold Palmer watches ball go into cup on 17th hole for an eagle-two during Saturday's third round of the U.S. Open. Putt traveled 25 feet after he had hit big drive over protecting trees on to green.

Arnold Fails in Birdie Bid for Open Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Rookie Jack Nicklaus surged back with a final round 2-under-par 69 Saturday and tied heavily favored Arnold Palmer for the 62nd National Open Golf Championship with a 72-hole score of 283. They meet in an 18-hole playoff today.

The fabulous Palmer, who has pulled a half-dozen titles out of the fire with miraculous finishes, came to the 462-yard 18th hole, needing to sink a 15-foot putt to take it all.

But this time his comeback magic failed him. He stroked the putt boldly and it spun past the cup, rolling three feet away on the lightning fast greens.

He could have missed it—under the most intense of pressures—but he didn't. The muscular Masters champion from Latrobe, Pa., banged the ball into the back of the cup and he thus finished with an even par 71.

Thus, one of the Open's oldest traditions was maintained, no man has ever come to the final hole, needing a putt to win and sunk it.

Palmer Favored Over 22-Year-Old Rival

Palmer will be favored today over his 22-year-old rival, a pro less than a year, in the head-to-head duel, which could bring him the second leg in his bid for an unprecedented professional "grand slam."

Palmer is shooting for the Masters, U.S. and British opens and U.S. PGA titles in a single year—a sweep which even the great Ben Hogan never achieved. Hogan won three of them in 1953, but failed to play in the PGA.

Palmer and Nicklaus, two of the biggest hitters and fiercest competitors in modern golf, were paired in the opening two rounds of the tournament. During this stretch, Palmer had an edge, shooting 71-68 to Nicklaus' 72-70.

The battle for the 62nd Open, played in sweltering heat over the Oakmont's awsome string of furrowed sand traps and rolling table-top greens, developed into a two-man battle in the afternoon after other challengers had fallen off the pace.

Television: Channel 4, 1:30 p.m.

Phil Rodgers, the ruddy-faced ex-Marine and son of a San Diego, Calif., auto salesman, made a strong run for it, but took bogeys on the 69th and 70th holes for 72 and 285. This tied him with Bobby Nichols, the handsome, 24-year-old Kentuckian, who shared the lead with Palmer at the 54-hole mark.

Nichols finished with a 73, after going over par on two of the last four holes.

Record Crowd of 25,000 Roots for Palmer

An all-time record crowd of nearly 25,000, shouting encouragement to their neighborhood hero, Palmer, added to the intense pressure of the rigorous, excitement-loaded 36-hole windup.

"Come on, Arn, you can do it."

"We're with you, Arnie boy, go get 'em."

This was the baseball stadium atmosphere that prevailed on this 6,894-yard, par 71 course carved out of the hills of western Pennsylvania.

Palmer tried to oblige, but it was an uncomfortable position for him. He was out in front. He likes it better when he is behind.

At one time during the afternoon round, he was 3-under-par for the tournament and had a three-stroke lead over his nearest rivals.

Then he came to the 480-yard ninth hole, one of Oakmont's so-called "hell holes" which doesn't play too hard. After a booming drive, he hit a strong second shot but pushed it to the right of the green into the 3-inch rough.

He seemed to have an easy wedge shot at the flag, but he appeared to lose concentration. He scuffed the ball only a few feet, still short of the putting surface. His next chip also was weak—unlike Palmer—leaving him about 8 feet short.

Palmer Shaken by Series of Mistakes

Shaken by this strange series of mistakes, he muffed his putt and took a bogey after being in a good position for a birdie.

This plus a bogey at the 161-yard 13th where he drove into a deep trap cost him the championship—at least temporarily.

Coming into the finishing holes, with a television audience looking in, both Palmer and Nicklaus had to sink good-sized pressure putts.

On the 17th, where he had an 8-footer for a birdie, Palmer paused and turned around, asking for "quiet." Then he missed.

"I heard the television announcer summarizing my putt," he said.

The Latrobe pro said he could hear shutters clicking almost every time he bent over a putt and this affected his concentration.

Asked what he thought about playing Nicklaus today, Palmer said in a post-tournament interview:

"I wish it were somebody else—that big strong dude. I thought I was through with him yesterday."

Then he closed the session with the plea:

"Are there any good putters in the crowd? He can give me a lesson tonight."

Oregon NCAA Champ...Easy

'No Contest' but 3 Records Sent Tumbling

By HAL WOOD

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Three new meet records were set as Oregon won the NCAA track and field championship Saturday on the fleet feet of Harry Jerome, Jerry Tarr, Mel Renfro and Dyrol Burleson.

With Tarr collecting 20 points by winning the 120 yard high hurdles and the 440-yard intermediates; Jerome capturing the 220 and finishing second in the 100; Burleson winning the mile and Renfro finishing second in the high hurdles and third in the broad jump, it was a no-contest team meet.

But the performances were outstanding, with these meet records:

Mile—Burleson won a pushing-and-shoving race in 3:59.8.

440-yard hurdles—Tarr, in 50.3.

3,000-meter steeplechase — Pat Traynor, Villanova, in 8:46.8.

Another record was cracked Friday when Dallas Long of USC heaved the shot 64 feet 7 inches.

Oregon scored 85 points, to second-place Villanova's 40 3/7th. Defending champion Southern California finished third with 27 3/7ths.

• • • •

THE MILE run turned into something of a rodeo. Burleson was pushed and stumbled at the start. About 100-yards later his own teammate, Keith Forman, stepped on his heel after being elbowed.

But the Oregon runner stayed near the front after a slow first quarter of 62.2 seconds and a half of 2:02. Then he had to put on a brilliant run down the home stretch to catch Bill Cornell, an Englishman, representing Southern Illinois.

Burleson won going away, with Cornell finishing second in 4:00.5.

Traynor's performance in the steeplchase broke the NCAA meet record of 9:01.1 set by John Lawler of Abilene last year. Lawler finished 13th in the field this year.

• • • •

PROBABLY the biggest upset of the meet came in the high jump where Roger Olsen, University of California sophomore, won with a leap of 6 feet, 10 inches. Included among his vanquished foes were John Thomas of Boston University and teammate Gene Johnson, both conquerors of the seven-foot mark.

"It was the first time I ever beat anybody," said the sur-

Coach Lauds NCAA Bids by 49er Trio

EUGENE, Ore. (Special) —Long Beach State College had three men in the NCAA track and field championship meet and all, competing in four events, advanced through the trials, with two men reaching the semi-finals.

"I think the school can be extremely proud of these boys," said 49er coach Jack Rose. "Both Jim Richardson and Gary Patterson actually finished as the ninth best men in their events in the entire nation."

Richardson did a 9.7 century for fifth place in the semifinals. Only four in each heat advanced to the finals.

• • • •

PATTERSON, in the 120 high hurdles, finished his semifinal head in a photo finish for second place, but the pictures showed him to be a nose out in the four-man dead heat and he was placed fifth with a time of 14.2.

Darryl Taylor finished fifth in the 880 quarter-finals, didn't make the semis. Richardson set a school record with a 21.5 furlong (on curve) and placed sixth in the semis.

Dodger Skid Continues as Colts Win

By GEORGE LEDERER

Dick Farrell and Jim Golden, unwanted by the Dodgers this year, are untouchables for the Houston Colts today.

Farrell followed Friday's shutout by Golden with an equally impressive three-hit, 4-1 triumph Saturday night to run the Dodgers losing streak to three for the second time this season.

A near-full house of 51,530, including 6,384 ladies, watched Farrell as he sliced the Dodgers' league lead to one game while extending the Colts' winning streak to four.

DODGER OF DAY

WILLIE DAVIS had two of Dodgers' three hits in 4-1 loss to Houston Colts.

• • • •

THE Dodgers couldn't hit Golden with a canoe paddle and their stroke against Farrell wasn't much better. In fact, the Dodgers are finding it difficult to stay afloat. They have scored only two runs in the last 31 innings, while losing four out of their last five games.

Johnny Podres was driven to cover for the seventh time in a row as three Dodgers errors made two Houston runs unearned. Podres (3-6) trailed 2-0 when he left for a hitter in the sixth. The last two runs were charged to Ed Roebuck, who faced only three Colts and failed to retire any in the seventh.

• • • •

THE defense, or lack of same, was to blame, primarily, for Roebuck's difficulty. However, two excellent plays by first baseman Ron Fairly had saved Podres at a critical time.

Willie Davis had two of the Dodger hits and ruined Farrell's shutout bid with a triple in the seventh inning. He

No Relief as Angels Again Fall to Chisox

By ROSS NEWHAN
U. P-T Staff Writer

CHICAGO—If Bill Rigney is not at Comiskey Park this afternoon when the Angels and Chicago White Sox meet in a doubleheader, he'll be found at the Billy Graham crusade at nearby Soldier's Field.

The Angels' skipper needs some divine help in finding out what's happened to his bullpen and Ryne Duren, in particular. The spark has left the "Flame."

Duren was tagged with his seventh defeat and fourth in his last seven appearances as the Angels dropped a 4-3 decision to the Go-Go Sox Saturday before 21,511 fans, 7,135 of whom paid their way in.

ANGEL OF DAY

FELIX TORRES continued hot hitting with double and single, driving in two runs as Angels lost to Chicago, 4-3.

• • • •

GRAHAM is expected to draw 100,000 today, the Angels and White Sox slightly less. Dean Chance (4-3) will attempt to break the Seraphs' four game losing streak in the opener against Juan Pizarro (3-5).

This one will be televised into your living rooms over KHJ-TV (9).

If Chance (who promised he wouldn't go for any drives with Bo Belinsky Saturday evening) fails, then Eli Grba (2-3) will try his luck against Johnny Buzhardt (6-6) in the nightcap.

Duren took over in the 11th after Ted Bowsfield, making his first appearance since May 23, had held Chicago in check during the ninth and 10th. But, like June, the Windy City nine came

Darlene Hero as U.S. Wins Wightman Cup

WIMBLEDON, England (Special to the Press-Telegram)—Darlene Hard may have been too ill to play in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships last year, but she showed Saturday that nothing is going to keep her out this time.

The blonde lass from Long Beach provided the U. S. Wightman Cup team with the power to win the huge trophy, which is the symbol of international women's tennis supremacy. She fought off an upset stomach and leg cramps to become the heroine.

After winning the opening match on Friday when the U.S. girls coasted to a 3-0 lead, Miss Hard breezed to victory in the opening match Saturday to clinch the trophy. Then the English girls staged a strong rally—too late.

• • • •

AFTER Miss Hard had defeated England's Christine Truman, 6-2, 6-2, to give the U.S. an insurmountable 4-0 lead, the American girls lost the last three matches of the final day's competition.

Ann Haydon defeated Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Texas, 10-9, 7-5, and Deidre Catt beat Nancy Richey of Dallas 6-1, 7-5, in singles. Then, in doubles, Miss Haydon and Miss Truman defeated Miss Hard and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, 6-4, 6-3.

The victory was America's 25th in 34 Wightman Cup tournaments. The U.S. won the Cup last year, too.

• • • •

"I WAS playing very well," said Darlene. "My legs hurt all over yesterday and I was a bit worried about them but they were only a little sore today and didn't slow me down."

With the Wimbledon tennis tournament — the unofficial world's championship — little more than a week away the play of the rest of the American girls was disappointing.

Picture on Page C-3

Miss Moffitt, who won the Wimbledon doubles crown last year paired with Mrs. Susman, was overpowered by the British duo Saturday.

The 18-year-old Long Beach girl scolded herself aloud several times for her mistakes.

• • • •

THE CAPACITY crowd of 6,000 laughed at the obvious relief with which Mrs. Dupont, captain of the American team, clutched the tall silver cup, thoughtfully filled by the British with a bouquet of American Beauty roses for the presentation ceremony.

Prove It Does in Comeback

By ERNIE MASON

Prove It did. The Rex Ellsworth entry who sometimes does and sometimes doesn't, came up a winner Saturday.

The hero of the 1961 winter racing season when he won two hundred-granders at Santa Anita, Prove It captured his first stakes since those sparkling efforts when he ran the fastest mile and one-sixteenth of the season to take the $55,950 Inglewood Handicap in 1:41 flat before a crowd of 48,814.

It was an exciting moment for owner Ellsworth and trainer Mish Tenney, whose faith has never wavered in their handicap star. But it was just as exciting for jockey Henry Moreno as he ended a 10-year Hollypark Stakes drought, picking up his first added-money triumph at the Goose Girl oval since winning the 1952 Hollywood Gold Cup with Two Lea.

But before Prove It and Moreno could be certain they

INSIDE MOUND CONFERENCES!

What Does Manager Say?

By GEORGE LEDERER

It happens in eight ball games out of 10. The manager walks slowly to the mound. The pitcher picks up the resin bag, drops it and turns his back to the dougout. The catcher and an infielder join the huddle. The umpire becomes impatient.

What does the manager say? How does the pitcher react?

With the Dodgers leading 5-1 at Pittsburgh recently, Joe Moeller walked two of the first three batters in the bottom of the ninth inning to bring manager Walter Alston to the scene.

As if he needed to know, Moeller glanced at the scoreboard in left field, then nervously scratched the dirt with his spikes. Alston looked the other way, toward the Dodger bullpen. Then he broke the tension.

Reaching in his back pocket, Alston produced the remains of a package of chewing tobacco. "What's the matter, Joe?" Alston asked. "You want a good chew?"

Moeller, barely 19 and a non-smoker who disdains even the sight of tobacco juice, was startled. "No, Skip," he said, "I think I'm all right."

"Well, then relax and throw the ball over the plate," said Alston to end the conference.

Moeller did need help to save a 5-3 victory, but the Alston version of a "chewing out" put him at ease temporarily.

If the manager is Leo Durocher, who now serves as Alston's chief mound executioner, the conversation under similar circumstances can be rough.

• • • •

NEEDING ONE win to clinch the pennant for the Giants in 1954, Durocher started Sal (The Barber) Maglie against the Dodgers at Ebbetts Field. Maglie had a 2-0 lead when he made his first pitch, but proceeded to walk two of the first three Dodgers.

Leo stormed to the mound and asked for the ball. "You no-good so-and-so. You dumb fathead. You ——. Gimme the ball. If you don't want to win this thing, I got other pitchers who do.

"I really got him mad," Leo recalled, "and that was my whole idea. I had no intention of taking him out. Besides, he wouldn't give me the ball. He tried to stomp on my foot to get me off the mound.

"He got Snider to hit into a double paly that ended the innings. Then he came into the dougout, took a big gulp of water and spit it all over my shoes. I knew then that he was in good form. He went on to win, 7-2."

• • • •

OCCASIONALLY, a manager will consult his catcher if the pitcher is in trouble. Such was the case of manager Frankie Frisch and catcher Bill DeLancey of the 1934 Cardinals, better known as the Gashouse Gang.

A rookie pitcher, making his first start, yielded a single, a double and a home run on his first three pitches. "Bill," said Frisch, "has this kid got anything today?"

"How in the world would I know," said DeLancey. "I haven't caught one yet." their minds made up whether to yank a pitcher or leave him. Only rarely will a pitcher influence the decision.

• • • •

BOBBY BRAGAN, then managing Ft. Worth, was swayed into making a change during a Texas League playoff game. Eddie Chandler, later with the PCL Los Angeles Angels and now a Beverly Hills stock broker, had pitched eight brilliant innings against Shreveport.

"Suddenly, things got a little rough in the ninth," Bragan recalls. "Shreveport had two on base when I went out to talk to Chandler with half a notion to take him out. I had Chris Van Cuyck, a lefthander, in the bullpen and their next hitter was Hal Simpson, also a lefty.

"Eddie, do you know who their next hitter is?" I asked. "Yes," said Chandler. "It's Simpson and I know Chris can get him out."

What to do? "I let Chris get him out."

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Anyway, the tourney is the greatest ever to hit Long Beach. Such top rollers as Don Carter, Billy Welu, Steve Nagy, Ray Bluth, Buddy Bomar, Carmen Salvino, Harry Smith and 100 other pros will be here for the four days. Local amateurs have a chance to haul down some loot, too, during a pro-am July 5. The winning amateur will drag down $500, while even the 42nd finisher will bag $50.

. . . "Our main problem is filling the amateur end of the tourney," writes the Ocean Laner. "If we can only make the average enthusiastic bowler aware of this end, we'll have a fine tournament." (Okay, Average Enthusiastic Bowler, the address is 25 Chestnut Pl. Got it?)

. . . Incidentally, Hugasian came up with a great line when asked if his new bowling venture was keeping him busy. "I wish I could go back and join the Bears to relax," he sighed. "At least George Halas gave me a good seat on the bench."

. . . A message from Bootin' Ben Agajanian to the effect that he receievd a PLAYER'S contract from the Green Bay Packers for next season. The 42-year-old Armenian businessman was more tickled than a kid with two Dodger tickets. He had resigned himself to the role of an instructor.

. . . Belated congratulations to Tom Shaheen, Fred Miller, Stan Weiss and Art Edwards for wrapping up the financial end of Long Beach's initial American Basketball League franchise. The city would have lost considerable face throughout the nation if its already-awarded franchise would have been forfeited for lack of financial security, but when the above group stepped in, all was rosy again.

CLYDE THE OFFICE BOY clipped a Los Angeles newspaper's story on Bo Belinsky's latest episode and attached the note, "How do you like this for ad placing?" Right next to the story of Bo's early morning escapade with an older woman was a Cadillac agency ad featuring Bo's picture and this comment: "I saved $1060." (Not on THAT night, Bo-Bo!)

. . . Note to myself: If the Angels don't watch out, they'll be known as the Rams of baseball. At least they're in the lead for baseball's playboy-of-the-year trophy. Or the last two years, for that matter. Remember the Eli Grba-Ron Kline early hours safari in '61?

. . . Sandy Koufax, the Dodger lefthander, informs that he's opening his Tropicana Motor Hotel, 8585 Santa Monica Blvd., Tuesday. Which proves that all southpaws aren't eccentric, I guess.

. . . Bob Pestolesi and Dick Perry message that plans are clicking merrily along for the first annual L.B. Invitational Basketball Tourney in December in the new Arena. Oklahoma State and Drake are in the fold for this year's classic, but while they attended a recent coaches' convention in the East, Pestolesi and Perry were approached by representatives of Iowa State, Utah State and Oklahoma City University, among others.

MRS. FRED GATES, 5831 Blackthorne, Lakewood, drops a note about her son, Airman First Class Fred Gates, who coached the Bitburg Air Force Barons in Germany to second place in the USAFE Boxing Championships. This was Bitburg's first boxing team in six years. When you're paroled, Fred, maybe you could come home and handle the Century Club team.

. . . No better way to close than to quote Bo Belinsky's FORMER roommate, Ed Sadowski, who told us a few months ago that Bo was a good roomie. "He'd be my second choice after Jerry Casale," said Ed. "Bo jokes about lots of things and gets quoted and when he reads the stories he laughs. But he's serious about baseball." Now I'm laughing.

. . . See you in a few weeks. A vacation is beckoning.

Caught in middle of rundown, Cleveland's Tito Francona breaks for home, darting past Yankee catcher Elston Howard (32) and Clete Boyer gloves throw. Howard moments later disputed umpire's call when Tito scored. Howard was ejected.

Mantle Returns With Home Run but Yanks Lose

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Jerry Kindall hit a two-run homer in the last half of the ninth inning Saturday to give the Cleveland Indians a 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees despite a three-run, pinch-hit homer by Mickey Mantle.

The home run, which knocked the Yankees out of first place in the American League, was Kindall's fourth hit of the day and boosted his batting average to .450 against the Yankees. Kindall connected against Jim Coates, the seventh New York pitcher, after Woody Held was hit by a pitched ball.

Mantle made his first appearance in nearly a month in the top of the eighth. The slugger, who suffered a muscle tear in his right thigh May 19, slammed a tremendous 450-foot homer with two on to give the Yankees a 9-7 lead. The blow climaxed a Yankee rally from an early 6-0 deficit, John Blanchard and Roger Maris hitting two-run homers during the comeback.

Twins' Drive Stalled by A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Diego Segui, Kansas City's ace relief pitcher, starting his first game, beat Minnesota 6-2 Saturday night and foiled the Twins' chance to take over the American League lead.

While Segui subdued the Twins on seven hits, Dick Howser and Ed Charles led the A's bombardment against starter Joe Bonikowski and two relievers. Each hit a solo home run and each got three hits.

The Athletics got their eventual winning runs in the second inning when Segui singled, Howser tripled and scored himself on a sacrifice fly.

The Twins could have gone into a one percentage point lead over Cleveland with a victory.

Tigers Continue Slide, 7th in Row

DETROIT (UPI)—Earl Wilson scattered six hits in seven innings and helped his own cause with a two-run bases-loaded double Saturday to pace the Boston Rex Sox to a 4-2 victory over the slumping Detroit Tigers, who dropped their 7th straight game.

The 6-3 Boston righthander was tagged for a pair of solo Rocky Colavito, his 11th and 12th of the season, but except for those two lapses Wilson had things pretty much under control.

Wilson left the game after seven innings, with reliefer Dick Radatz finishing up, and recorded his fourth victory against two defeats.

Burdette Handcuffs Bucs, 2-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Juan Marichal shut out St. Louis 5-0 on two hits Saturday as the San Francisco Giants ended a three-game losing streak.

Felipe Alou's two-run first-inning homer and Willie Mays' two-run fifth inning double formed the Giants' power.

Marichal, pitching his 10th triumph against four losses, allowed only one hit until Charley James doubled down the left field line opening the eighth. James reached third on an infield out but died there as Marichal put down pinchhittter Red Schoendienst and then Curt Flood.

• • • •

ALOU smashed his 10th homer over the right field fence with Mays on base via a walk after two were out in the first.

Larry Jackson, Cardinal righthander who took his seventh loss against five victories, was touched for two more runs in the fifth. Marichal reached first on a batting interference call against catcher Carl Swatski.

Chuck Hiller singled off Ken Boyer's glove. Mays drove in Marichal and Hiller with a double to the left field corner.

The Giants added their fifth run in the sixth when Felipe Alou beat out an infield hit, stole second and scored on Willie McCovey's line single to right.

A Candlestick Park crowd of 24,844 saw the Giants win only their third triumph in 12 games.

Hernandez Posts TKO Over Rosi

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lightweight contender Carlos Hernandez of Venezuela zoomed toward a title bout Saturday night by flooring former challenger Paolo Rosi of New York three times for an automatic technical knockout in the first round of their television fight at Madison Square Garden.

Referee Mark Conn stopped the scheduled 10-round bout at 2.11 of the opening session.

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Right-hander Lew Burdette and shortstop Roy McMillan teamed up to give the Milwaukee Braves a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday night, snapping the Pirates' seven-game winning streak.

Burdette pitched an eight-hitter in improving his record to 5-4. He was in frequent jams, but was tough when he had to be.

McMillan provided all the Braves' firepower, socking a solo homer, his seventh, in the first winning and driving in the winning run with a seventh-inning single.

Pittsburgh had tied the score at 1-1 in the fifth when Bill Virdon's fly ball dropped between McMillan and left fielder Lee Maye for a double and Dick Groat followed with a single.

• • • •

BUT IN the seventh Joe Adcock singled, advanced to third on a single and infield out, and scored on McMillan's single.

Vernon Law was the loser. He worked seven innings and gave up only four hits, but walked four as his record evened up at 2-2.

The Pirates got a double followed by a single in the second inning but couldn't get the run across as Burdette pitched like the Burdette of old, pushing his record to 5-4.

The Pirates also threatened in the first and third when outfielder Bob Skinner cracked two-base hits in each frame, but Burdette tightened, went all the way and walked only one.

WYNN

Man to Man

ROZELLE

By JERRY WYNN

Pete Rozelle is the American dream come true . . . Long Beach area version.

Once the "boy next door" as he grew up in Lynwood, attended Compton College and worked part-time in the sports department of The Press Telegram, Rozelle today earns $60,000 a year as commissioner of the National Football League.

And he is 35 years old.

During the past year, Rozelle carried the ball himself to score two brilliant victories for the NFL. He helped secure a $9.3 million two-year package television contract, and he led the fight to defeat a $10 million anti-trust suit filed by the American Football League.

You have had many important positions, Pete, among them NFL commissioner, Rams general manager, public relations director for the Rams, University of San Francisco and a private firm, and last, but not least (it says here), sports deskman for the Press-Telegram. Which one have you enjoyed the most?

"It's difficult to answer because each one gave varying kinds of enjoyment at different ages. Primarily because of the time spent on the TV and court cases and the subsequent satisfaction with the results of each, I would probably say my present job."

Which of the jobs was the most difficult?

"Learning to write sports headlines under Bob Hall, Dick Zehms and Maxwell Stiles when I was working Saturdays at the Press-Telegram."

Almost a month later, how do you view the decision by Judge Thomsen in the AFL anti-trust suit?

"As one of the most satisfying moments of my life, and a decision that will have a far-reaching and beneficial effect on clarifying the unique aspects of sports leagues of all kinds."

Was winning this case tougher than obtaining the television contract?

"No, the television package deal was more difficult because of complexities involving clubs, sponsors, network, courts and Congress."

Last year, sports writers voted that pro football is replacing baseball as the national pastime. Do you agree?

"Naturally, we feel our sport has no peer. However, I do not feel that any one sport dominates on a national scale. I think it varies on a local or regional basis dependent largely on the home team's success."

Will the NFL ever go to a two-games-a-week schedule to take advantage of the surging fan interest?

"I don't believe the physical and mental stamina required for the game would permit a two-a-week schedule. The standard of excellence and performance would suffer greatly."

When you were with the Rams, they drew crowds of 100,000 several times. Do you think the competition from baseball and other pro sports will make such crowds impossible in the future?

"No, I fully expect the Rams to draw as large as they once did in the near future. Southern California has demonstrated again and again that its fan support for good entertainment is insatiable."

How do you view the Rams owners' decision to give Elroy Hirsch full control of the team this season?

"It was an excellent and selfless decision that I feel will be an important factor in club success."

What was your reaction to the recent Sport Magazine article "Jon Arnett Sounds Off on the Flaws of Pro Football?"

"They were, in part, intelligent comments. Some difficulty may have been encountered in the phrasing of particular questions."

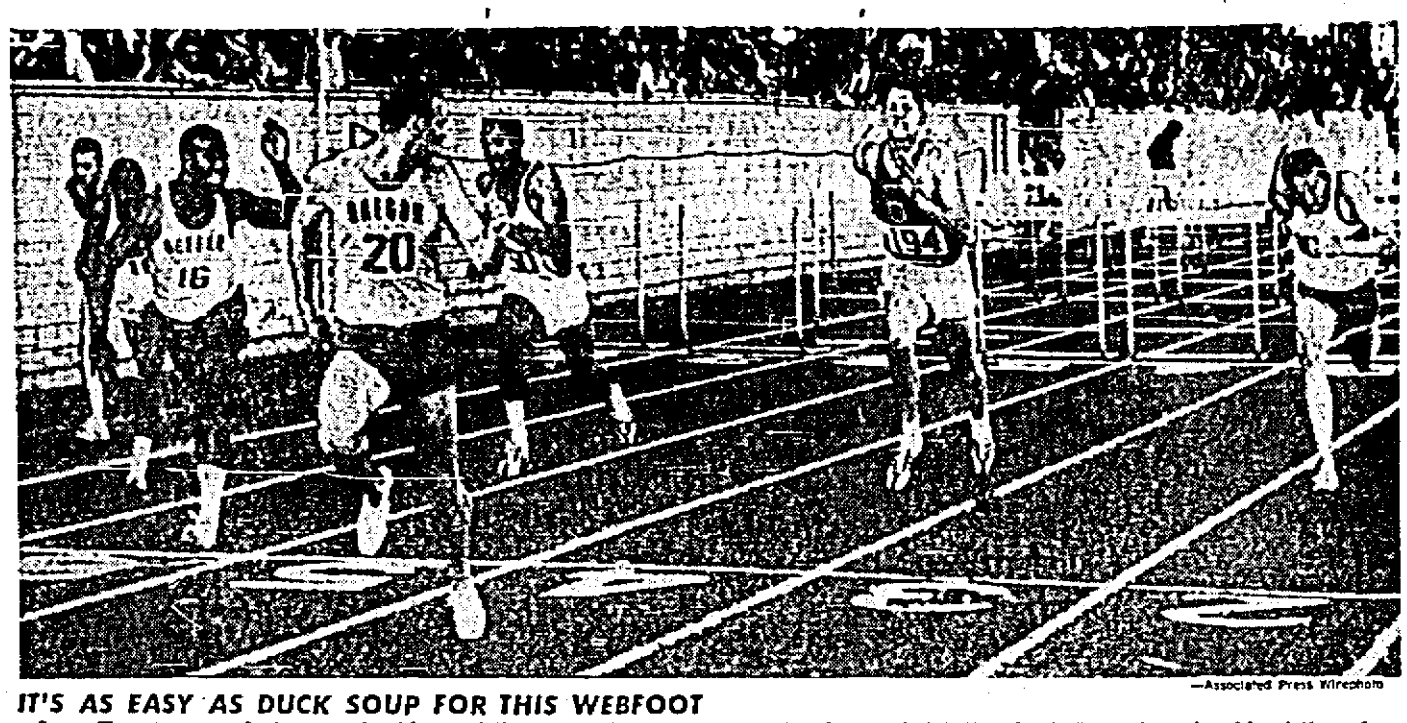

I have been told that you work at a break-neck schedule. What do you do for leisure?

"I will let you know better in a year, Jerry. The TV and court cases have taken so much of my time, there has been little left for anything but reading, primarily newspapers. I do intend to take up playing tennis again for exercise."

What advice do you have for a young man who wants to succeed in business by really trying?

"Try to work hard, forget the clock and give extra effort and have good friends."

And for Pete's sake, support the Rams!

IT'S AS EASY AS DUCK SOUP FOR THIS WEBFOOT

Crew Title to Cornell; Wash. 2nd

SYRACUSE, N.Y., (UPI)—The East regained rowing prominence after three lean years Saturday when Cornell won the varsity and freshman races and missed by a whisker a "sweep of the river" in the 60th annual Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta.

A sun-drenched crowd of 15,000 was treated to an awesome display of versatility as Cornell churned to a two-length victory in the 3-mile varsity race on calm Onondaga Lake after the formidable freshman crew won the 2-mile opener.

Darkhorse Navy spoiled Cornell's bid for a sweep by nipping the Big Red junior varsity by a quarter length over the 3-mile course.

* * * *

THE TWICE-beaten Cornell varsity oarsmen, concentrating on distance all season, finally lived up to the potential everyone said they had.

Harrison (Stork) Sanford, at the helm of the Cornell varsity eight for 26 years, seemed to take the performance in stride.

"We rowed the race as we planned," he said. "I knew we had it won after two miles."

* * * *

CORNELL'S mastery of the 3-mile varsity race produced these results:

—The Big Red will travel to Philadelphia, Pa., on July 4 for the Independence Day Regatta billed as a world struggle between America and the mighty Russians.

Cornell ruined the hopes of Washington for an undefeated season and snapped California's two-year hold on the Challenge Cup.

Cornell won its 20th varsity title since the IRA was inaugurated in 1896 and its first since 1958.

For Washington, it was a dismal climax to a year that promised to bring the Huskies their first IRA title since 1950. Washington, never a winner on Onodago Lake, relied on a high stroke to beat out California for second place. Wisconsin was fourth, followed by Penn.

Strung out behind were Dartmouth, Brown, Navy, Columbia, Princeton, host Syracuse and MIT.

Frank Budd of Villanova retained his crown as the fastest 100-yard dash man in the world by winning the event by about three inches from Jerome. He was clocked in 9.4, against the 9.3 he took Friday in winning an eased-up trial.

Tarr's 20 points made him the high-point man of the meet. Jerome had 18 and Renfro 14.

Jan Sikorsky of USC, getting off a 249 foot, 4 inch heave on his last throw, won the javelin.

Tony Watson of Oklahoma won the broad jump with a leap of 26 feet, one-half inch. Only one and one quarter inches separated first and third places.

Hubert Brown, a Panamanian running for Morgan State, pulled a mild upset in the 440 when he came home in front with a clocking of 46.9. Favored Adolph Plummer of New Mexico finished fourth.

Don Myers, Colorado senior who won the broad jump last year but failed to place in that event this year, atoned for his failure by finishing in a first-place tie in the pole vault. He and three others cleared 15-3. The others were John Belitza of Maryland, Fred Hansen of Rice and Dexter Elkins of Southern Methodist.

L.B. AREA RELAY TEAM TRIUMPHS

National Prep Record Falls to 'Mountain Boy'

By JOHN CASH

Doug Brown, an 18-year-old mountain boy from the quaint-sounding pine-shrouded hamlet of Red Lodge, Mont., ran only his second competitive two-mile race Saturday night, but it was good enough to grab the brass ring at the third annual Golden West Invitational track meet at Los Angeles State College.

Brown's 9:16 clocking, before 5,384 onlookers, is the fastest ever run by a prep and betters Danny Murphy's national record of 9:25.5 at Mira Costa in 1960, and earned for him the Stewart Baughn memorial trophy as the outstanding athlete of the meet.

Three meet records fell and two others were equaled but all races were into a 5 mph wind which accounted for the comparatively slow marks.

* * * *

ED MOODY of McClymonds in Oakland was the meet's only double winner with record-equaling marks of 9.7 in the hundred and 18.8 in the 180 low hurdles, nipping Tom Hester in the closest race of the meet.

John Yancy, Wilson broad jumper, pole vaulter Mike Lindsay and the CIF No. 2 sprint-medley relay team were the only area performers to place high in their respective events. Yancy was second in his specialty with a leap of 22-9½, George Jan-quardt of Jordan, Poly's Dave Campbell, Chuck Kanoy of Dominguez and Millikan's George Davis teamed up to win the relay in a meet-record time of 3:30.2.

* * * *

LINDSAY tied for top spot in the pole vault at a meet-record height of 14-4¼, but lost in a run-off to Jim Farrell of Tulsa, Okla.

Ron Pascarella, Miami, Fla., hurled the discus 183-4 to establish another meet standard.

Poly shotputter Jeff Smith failed to place when his best effort of 57-10½ gained a sixth place.

City Golf for Ladies on Monday

By JERRY WYNN

There is nothing more uncertain than a woman, so it figures there should be plenty of question marks attached to the 35th annual Long Beach City Women's Golf Championship beginning Monday at Skylinks. For instance:

Is Ruth Miller ready to crack the mammoth jinx that has kept her from winning at home?

Can Jane Becker, once the finest of fems as she won titles in 1955 and 1957, make a successful comeback?

Is Harriet Glanville prepared to repeat her brilliant 1960 victory at Skylinks when she set a course record?

One question mark removed concerns the prowess of defending champion Dora Donaldson. She proved her mettle by capturing the California State title this year.

A new contender for the City crown is Karen Oldham of Recreation Park, who was a member of the U.S. Olympic track team in 1960 as a javelin thrower.

Qualifying will be held Monday with the low 16 of the field of 96 entering the championship bracket. Match play rounds begin Tuesday and continue daily through Friday. Qualifying times:

Pasadena Golfer Wins British Amateur Title

HOYLAKE, England (UPI)—Richard Davies, handsome 31-year-old real estate broker from Pasadena, Calif., pulled his faltering game together on the final seven holes Saturday and won the British Amateur Golf Championship with a 1 up, 36-hole victory over John Povall of Wales.

After wasting away a morning 4 up advantage and falling behind by 2 during the afternoon round, Davies won the 30th, 32nd and 33rd holes in par-birdie-par to earn America the huge silver championship trophy for the 15th time.

The tall, dark-haired Davies thus became the 13th American to win the British Amateur crown. Lawson Little and Frank Stranahan each won it twice.

And it balked 23-year-old Povall's hopes of becoming the first Welshman ever to win the British championship since this tournament was begun on this same Hoylake course back in 1885.

'Star' Nine Plays Hawks Tonight

These Hollywood entertainers must like Long Beach . . . last week golf, this week softball.

Loaded with two full teams of movie and TV talent, the Hollywood Entertainers play the seven-time world champion Long Beach Nitehawks tonight at Park Ave. Field starting at 8:15.

But although the personalities are the main attraction, the game itself may turn out to be a real battle. The Entertainers have lots of outstanding ballplayers including former major leaguers John Berardino and Michael Dante.

Heading the glamor list are batgirls Keely Smith, Leslie (Daisy Mae) Parrish and Joan Staley.

Keely postponed a committment in Chicago in order to attend the game.

Among the more well-known of the group are Soupy Sales, Bud (Ripcord) Pinnell, Peter (Lawman) Brown, Mark (The Detectives) Goddard, Doug (Checkmate) McClure and comedian Sheckey Smith.

* * * *

SOME OF the other notables are Phil Crosby, Ronnie Smith, Max Baer Jr., Bob Lepore, Don Edwards, Jack Gilardi, Dick Bakalyan, Sandy Dvore, Jimmy Harris, Norm Alden and Frank Faylen.

Ronnie Smith will pitch for Hollywood, and the Entertainers claim he's one of the best softball pitchers in the area.

The Nitehawks will open with their regular lineup with both Jack Randall and Eddie Waymire available for pitching duty.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor,

Race Horses are Strange Creatures

Race horses are strange creatures. Each has a different personality . . . a different story. In fact, their stories are among the most interesting to be found in the world of sports.

Race horses, for instance, pine for the race track once they are taken back to the ranch. We related an incident of this kind recently when we told about Stranglehold, a fine stakes runner of a few years ago, being unhappy on the farm where he wasted away to almost a skeleton.

Now the 13-year-old gelding serves as the stable pony for trainer Dale Landers, is thoroughly happy and has fattened out like a butterball.

There are many strange, humorous and warm stories about race horses and while we recall a few, we sought out R. E. (Lanny) Leighninger to fill us in on some more. Lanny is head placing judge at Hollywood Park, a steward at a couple of other tracks and regarded as one of racing's outstanding historians.

DAVE LEWIS

One of the most unusual stories recalled by Lanny concerns a horse by the name of Toombeola, who became a big winner after he and a one-legged seagull formed an alliance of sorts.

For over a month, the one-legged seagull would show up at the track whenever Toombeola raced and perched on the backside rail. When the field would break from the starting gate, the gull would soar over the horses to the first turn and on around the track.

Toombeola won five straight races during the time the seagull followed him. This story has been verified by many trainers and officials.

ONE OF THE GREAT HORSES in racing history was Exterminator. When it came to off tracks, he was the undisputed "king of the mudders."

Many horses love beer and soft drinks, but Exterminator went them one better. He drank champagne from a silver bucket after all his later-day victories.

Almgren was just a poor plater until one day his trainer introduced him to Pisco Punch. From then on he enjoyed a quarter a day. He quickly turned into a 28-1 winner, followed up with two more victories and was claimed for triple his value. His new owners, however, took him to New York where no one knew the secret of his success. Without Pisco Punch, Almgren soon faded into oblivion.

Happy Issue, who won the Hollywood Gold Cup a few years ago, loved Hershey bars and trainer Frenchie Pinon fed them to her daily.

One day in Chicago, though, the Hershey showed up in a urine test as "caffeine" and Frenchie was suspended. So Happy Issue had to be content with carrots after that.

BULL REIGH, A BELOVED campaigner at Hollypark and Santa Anita a few years back, was a shrewd old fellow who used to drive his trainer, Hank Ross, crazy on occasions.

Bull Reigh would fake lameness everytime he paraded to the post. He would stumble and seem about to fall time and again. However, the track vets soon got to know about this trick and therefore never scratched him. As soon as the field broke, the "lameness" quickly disappeared.

Phar Lap, the great Australian horse which died soon after winning the old Coffroth Handicap in Tijuana, hated roses. He was one of the most mannerly horses of them all until roses appeared in the winner's circle.

Phar Lap also was a lonely soul and required a pony at all times in his stall. Handlers would tear down the wall between two stalls so Phar Lap and his pony could be together.

The great Stymie one day took a liking to a banty rooster that strolled into his stall and wandered off.

Stymie almost tore down his stall until handlers realized he wanted the rooster back. The rooster became his pet and they became inseperable.

THE ACUTE HEARING OF HORSES often can be observed by their actions. Many, of course, become fond of music and listen to a radio outside their stalls by the hours.

One campaigner at Hollypark a few seasons ago took a liking to a popular western ditty sung, as I recall, by Johnny Cash. He would sway back and forth like a swooning bobby soxer whenever the song was played.

Band music, however, will disturb most horses. In the old days, there were bands at all tracks and owners used to stuff cotton into the ears of their horses so they couldn't hear.

Calumet Farm's Bull Lea, one of the greatest sires of all-time, was the favorite in the Kentucky Derby many years ago. But when huge massed bands blared as the horses went to the post, Bull Lea and several others went frantic, fretted and washed out. He was badly beaten.

There has even been cases where blind horses have won races. Kinglike was one of them. His trainer stuffed his ears with cotton so noises wouldn't cause him to bolt and under a strong ride he scored a smashing win in a sprint race.

Yes, horses are strange creatures . . . but no more so than we humans.

Water Polo Club Sets Fund Event

In an effort to secure funds for two projects, Long Beach Nu-Pike Water Polo Club will stage a rummage sale Monday at the House of Sales.

The club needs funds to (1) attend the National Water Polo Championships in San Francisco next month and (2) bring Mexico's championship team to Long Beach for three international matches immediately after the nationals.

Anyone interested in assisting the poloists is urged to attend the rummage sale.

busting out against Rapid Ryne.

CHARLIE SMITH, who earns his salary against the Angels alone, doubled to open the final frame. Camilo Carreon then layed down a sacrifice bunt which Duren fielded in perfect position to go to third, but instead fired to first, nailing the Chicago catcher. Pinch-hitter Bob Farley promptly rifled a single to center and the "Flame" was extinguished.

The victory went to Eddie Fisher, the fourth Chicago pitcher, who lullabied to sleep the Angel offense over the final two frames. In fact, the Angels collected only three hits after scoring two in the sixth. Turk Lown limited the Cherubs to only one safety in three innings prior to Fisher's entrance.

• • • •

DURING THE current string of defeats, however, the Angels' attack has not been silent. All of the losses have been registered against the bullpen and in three of the four games the Angel starter has left with a lead.

Don Lee departed with the score 3-2 in his favor in the sixth only to watch Jim Landis tag his 13th home run off Art Fowler in the seventh to deprive the newest halo hat of his third consecutive win as an Angel and set the stage for the extra sessions.

After Lee and Ray Herbert had battled through three scoreless rounds, the Angels hit pay dirt in the fourth on a walk to Leon Wagner, Lee Thomas' single and Bobby Rodgers' double.

• • • •

NELLIE FOX' single and Landis' triple evened matters again in the fifth, but the Angels streaked in front in the sixth when Felix Torres doubled with the bases loaded. The Angels lost a run when Rocky Bridges sent Earl Averill, running from first, home on the blow. As a sprinter, Averill never leaves the blocks. He was out by plenty.

Chicago came right back in its half to send Lee to the showers—which was a favor since the temperature was in the high eighties. Carreon's single following a single by Joe Cunningham and wild pitch, made it 3-2 and brought forth Fowler.

• • • •

THE "HUMMER" prevented further damage, but Landis' homer into the centerfield bleachers one round later made it a new game again.

Rigney indicated he may take Duren with him to the crusade today. Graham has a chance for the biggest "save" of the season.

Osuna, Nagler Play for Crown

SEATTLE, (UPI)—Raphael Osuna of Mexico City and Larry Nagler of Los Angeles, Saturday advanced to the finals of the men's singles in the National Hardcourt Tennis Championships.

Osuna, 23, outlasted the veteran Vic Seixas of Philadelphia 7-9, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2 and 7-5 in the most crowd-pleasing match of the day.

SANTA CLARA BEATEN 5-4 IN 15 INNINGS

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Relief hurler Jim Bobel smashed a triple with two out in the 15th inning to drive in a run and then scored himself on a wild pitch to give Michigan a 5-4 victory over Santa Clara in the finals of the NCAA national baseball tournament.

Bobel, normally a weak hitter, slammed the ball deep into right centerfield and scored Harvey Chapman from first base. The ball got between the center and right fielders and rolled to the wall as Bobel raced into third.

He scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

Santa Clara came back with one run in the bottom of the 15th but fell short.

Dodgers Defeated Again by Houston

scored as Fairly grounded out.

The third Dodger hit was a sixth-inning leadoff single by Daryl Spencer that prompted Podres' dismissal. Duke Snider popped up for Podres and Farrell also disposed of the next two.

• • • •

A POP fly double by Carl Warwick and the first of two errors by Maury Wills produced Houston's first unearned run after two were out in the fourth. Wills' wide throw on Norm Larker's grounder pulled Fairly off the bag. Larker scored from first when Warwick placed his blooper ingeniously between Wills and W. Davis, who peeled off to avoid a collision in shallow center.

Fairly rescued Podres briefly in the fifth after singles by Bob Aspromonte and Bob Lillis. Fairly charged Farrell's bunt and forced Aspromonte at third, then made a backhand catch of Jim Busby's foul in front of the Houston dugout.

• • • •

A LEADOFF double by Jim Pendleton and a single by Larker gave Houston a 2-0 edge in the sixth and Roebuck took over in the seventh.

Roebuck's wildness and Wills' second boot filled the bases befre manager Walter Alston had a chance to say "Ron Perranoski," the third pitcher.

Roebuck hit Aspromonte with a pitch and walked Lillis. Farrell bounced a double-play ball to Wills, who dropped it in attempting to block and tag the sliding Lillis at second. Alston's claim of interference was not allowed and the bases were filled for Perranoski's entry.

• • • •

AL SPANGLER, batting for Busby, tagged the first pitch for a two-run single to center and continued to second when W. Davis allowed the ball to get past him.

When Davis made amends with his triple in the same round, it broke a string of 17 scoreless Dodger innings, begun at Milwaukee Thursday.

Farrell (5-6) turned in his fourth complete game and already has pitched more innings than he did for the Dodgers last year.

Joe Moeller (5-4) and Ken Johnson (4-6) are the pitchers in this afternoon's series windup.

DIS AND DATA — Johnny Berardino pitched and batted Nat (King) Cole's Hollywood TV-stage-screen stars to a 4-3 win over the sportscasters in their annual prelim . . . Berardino's single broke a 3-3 score in the third and final inning . . . Tom Harmon was the losing pitcher . . . Elroy Hirsch hit his customary inside-the-park homer for the sportscasters, with an assist from right fielder Bob Newhart . . . Dean Martin, playing shortstop for the All-Stars, turned in the best defensive play with a backhanded stop . . . Buzzie Bavasi was tempted to give him a contract.

Houston's victory Friday night was its first at the start of a trip . . . Conversely, Dodgers are only team to win a series opener at Houston . . . Colts' publicity chief Bill Giles wonders who has NL's best pitching staff . . . He makes a good point for his club . . . Four Colts are among league's 11 earned run leaders: Farrell 2.64, Jim Golden 2.54, Johnson 2.77 and Bob Bruce 3.11 . . . Comparing Colt staff to Dodgers, Giles points out that Houston pitchers have allowed fewer runs (270-308), fewer hits (544-571), fewer walks (173-251) and fewer homers.

HORSE RACE ROUNDUP

Kelso Breezes to First Win of Year for Shoe

(Combined from Wire Reports)

Champion Kelso toyed with five rivals Saturday in the $7,500 Clem McCarthy Memorial Purse at Belmont Park, turning on the power in the final eighth of a mile to win by 2¼ lengths from Garwol.

It was the first victory this season for Kelso, who brought Horse of the Year honors to Mrs. Richard C. DuPont in 1960 and 1961. Trainer Carl Hanford surprised Belmont officials by entering his 5-year-old ace in the one-mile race, named for the late sports telecaster, instead of the featured $25,000 Nassau County Handicap.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker, who flew here from Southern California to ride Kelso, took the son of Your Host-Maid of Flight in hand and took charge midway down the stretch and won easily.

* * * *

AHOY, FROM the Jaclyn Stable of Dr. Leon Levy of Atlantic City, kept his record unblemished by winning the 11th running of the Tyro Stakes at Monmouth Park at 5½ furlongs Saturday.

Flaming Page, 3-year-old filly, won the 103rd running of the Queen's Plate at Toronto's Woodbine Park. A crowd of more than 30,000 including Britain's queen mother, watched.

PROVE IT---

had made the comeback, they had to withstand a claim of foul lodged by Bill Harmatz, who finished fifth aboard front-running Winonly.

The stewards ruled, that while Prove It did brush with Winonly in the stretch, the incident was minor and that it had no effect on Winonly's final placing, and therefore the original order of finish would stand.

* * * *

IT WAS THE fourth time at the meeting that Tenney had saddled both Prove It and Olden Times in handicap competition. And the two have taken turns at beating each other.

After his victory in the recent Golden State Breeders' Handicap in which Prove It finished fourth, Olden Times was considered to be the stronger of the Ellsworth hopefuls. But Olden Times finished a sagging eighth.

The triumph was a hard-earned one for the comeback champ. It took all of his speed and courage to repel the blazing stretch spurts of Sea Orbit, the defending champion, and Rablero, the longest priced horse in the field of 10 at 37-1.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Pertinent Questions About Boating

For a change of pace from fishing to boating today, let's take a look at a letter from Art Knowles, of Newport Beach, who, in the beginning, says "FISHIN' AROUND makes sense and your treatment of Newport Harbor is such that I'm sure you are just as respected here as one of the Newport natives." (Thanks for those kind words; we need 'em.)

Art submits a list of eight questions, mostly about boating, but still vitally connected with fishing in a boat at the offshore banks. Here are those questions:

"(1) Where can we get a RELIABLE weather report in the early morning as to conditions in the open water for the day? Sounds simple? Try it!

"(2) How valuable for local use is an electronic fish-finder?

"(3) What constitutes good etiquette regarding privately owned boats running the chum lines of party (or charter) fishing boats? How far can we go?

"(4) What is your opinion of the reliability of the Coast Guard in answering a call of distress?

"(5) Name the dangers of fog, running short of fuel, submerged rocks, surf, etc.

"(6) How about a lightweight anchor for bottom fishing? I have darned near killed myself heaving the old standard-weight hook.

"(7) Any special wrinkles for fishing the kelp beds?

"(8) Tell us latest in new-type fishing gear as opposed to the old time-tested variety."

THAT'S A BIG ORDER, MR. KNOWLES. But with the help of oldtime boating friends, here we go at the answers (by your own numbers):

(1) Call ORchard 0-0234, the automatic weather recording station that gives you the latest report 24 hours a day. The recording is changed from hour to hour or as conditions demand. Watch the weather flags, which are flown at points of vantage in all harbors. A coastal warning facilities chart is obtainable through stores selling geodetic charts. It gives all names of radio stations that broadcast weather and the hours.

(2) The Fathometer used on party boats and other similar instruments (all expensive) are valuable in finding fish schools. However, it takes much training to be able to read such instruments. The cheaper varieties for small boats may not work so well. Don't expect a thousand dollars worth of performance from a fifty-dollar gadget.

(3) I would never run a small boat close enough to a party boat to interfere with their fishing lines. I see nothing wrong in anchoring or trolling at a distance farther than that. Here again, it's the point of view. If you are on the party boat, the small craft is a stink pot; if you are on the small craft, the party-boat boys, passengers and crew, are a bunch of bums.

(4) I AM PURPOSELY SKIPPING this one so that it may be discussed in a full column later this month. I'm 100 per cent for the Coast Guard, but there are some circumstances that need clarification.

(5) Any boater who values his life and those of his passengers should know the danger of fog. If not, he'd better take a safe-boating course with the Coast Guard Auxiliary or the U. S. Power Squadron. Running short on fuel is not an emergency; mostly it's carelessness. Submerged rocks are a small danger because they are few. Coastal charts showing such are available from all stores that handle U. S. Geodetic maps. B. and B. Supply Co., Bahia Marine Sales and Long Beach Marine Hardware are dealers in this city. There are numerous others in nearby cities.

(6) I'd try a Danforth, by far the lightest and best holding anchor of all, but there are others. Consult your marine supply dealer.

(7) STAY OUT OF THE THICKEST part of the kelp; fishing is good there, but your chances of getting a big one out of a kelp tangle are small. Try to fish the edges of the kelp patch.

(8) I can stick my neck out and get into real trouble with this one. I have conventional, spinning, flyrods, bait-casting rods and find a use for each. If you have a good conventional outfit, stick with it. I'm not going to knock any type of outfit because I have too many friends in the fishing-tackle trade, and they are trying hard to make a living by selling every kind of rod, reel and terminal tackle.

I'd like to end with this statement: Be certain that your fishing outfit is balanced, so that rod and reel feel like a part of your arms when you cast.

There will be future columns describing new products in fishing, as well as in the other outdoor sports.

Ban-Bombers Interrupt Macmillan

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan promised Saturday to work for new East-West summit talks in an apparent bid to halt the slump of public confidence in his conservative government.

But even as he lashed his opponents at a political rally, ban-the-bomb campaigners demonstrated against him and fresh electoral setbacks threatened his government.

• • • •

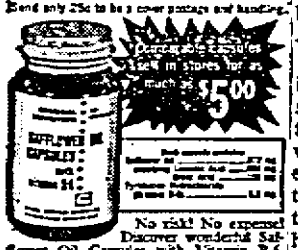

OPPOSITION labor leader Hugh Gaitskell challenged the prime minister publicly to stake the life of the government in an immediate general election. Macmillan is not required to call an election before the fall of 1964 unless he is beaten in Parliament on a vital issue.

A day packed with political incident brought these quick-fire developments:

1. Macmillan warned Tory followers at Bromley that a Labor or Liberal government would ruin Britain — and so, too, would a Labor regime leaning on liberal support. He went on to speak about the need for East-West understanding on disarmament and peace.

2. When he stopped speaking a shouting nuclear disarmer handed him a letter protesting Britain's H-bomb policies. Then as he and Lady Dorothy Macmillan prepared to drive home, 24 demonstrators squatted in front of and behind his automobile. As fast as police removed them they returned, delaying his passage for 10 minutes.

SUMMER SEMINAR

JFK to Explode 'Myths' of Government to Students

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will welcome 6,000 college students to Washington this week and launch them on a summer-long seminar he hopes will explode "some tired old myths" they may believe about government service.

The students, who are coming to work at various agencies during their vacations, will hear speeches by top government officials, the leaders of Congress and Chief Justice Earl Warren.

The White House, announcing the seminar Saturday, said it has been established to give the students a broader view of the workings of government. Students have had temporary jobs in Washington for years, but have never had an opportunity before to learn much about agencies other than those in which they worked, the White House said.

• • • •

KENNEDY will greet the students of the White House lawn at 10 a.m. (EDT) Wednesday. The seminar sessions will be held at intervals throughout the summer, ending on Aug. 28 with an address by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

In a welcoming letter to the students Kennedy listed some of the "myths" he hopes the seminar will dispel.

"You may have been told, for example," he said, "that government workers are clock-watchers; you will soon find that the vast majority of them are dedicated not to their paychecks but to the job to be done.

• • • •

"YOU MAY HAVE heard that government positions involve nothing but plodding, routine tasks; you will see some of the most exciting, interesting work in the world being done here.

"You may have read that public servants are unimaginative, security-seeking, uncreative, skilled in only at the techniques of empire-building; you will quickly discover that we have far more than our share of lively minds, endowed with vigor and courage."

Kennedy said he hoped the students, on returning to their colleges, would act as missionaries to "attack the cloud of prejudice and suspicion which still enshrouds so much of what goes on here and so many of us who work here."

And he expressed the hope that some, at least, of the students would be inspired to make government service their careers.

The seminar program will be filmed by the National Educational Television and Radio Center for presentation on its affiliated educational TV stations.

The seminar sessions will be held in Constitution Hall.

Dutch Say Indonesia Troops 'In Bad Way'

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea (AP)—Rear Adm. L. H. Reestern, commander in chief of Dutch forces in West New Guinea, said today Indonesian paratroops who surrendered to the Dutch recently "were physically and psychologically in a bad way."

He told a news conference the Indonesians had been told they would be contacted by regular Indonesian troops within two days but no reinforcements showed up "and the paratroops did not even receive food by air."

Alice Wright Feted at Retirement Dinner

By VERA WILLIAMS

Alice Wright, a peppy little gray-haired, hazel-eyed woman who for 11 years has taught creative writing at Long Beach City Colege, was feted at "An Appe for ITeacher" dinner Saturday night at the Woman's City Cub.

ALICE WRIGHT
Teacher Retires

It was quite an affair, spearheaded by Frances Edelman, pupil, emceed by Beth Norman Harris, attended by 150 persons.

Alice Wright is retiring, and the dinner offered pupils and former pupils an opportunity to tell her what it has meant to them to learn to put one word after another on a typewriter, and get checks for doing it.

At the dinner were pupils who make "hobby money," selling occasional jingles and quips; people who make "eating money" selling stories and articles to run-of-the-mill magazines, every once in a while hitting a pretty good market. And pupils who are deep in writing novels.

Present were many who every year gain inspiration from the Long Beach Writers' Conference, sponsored by City College — a conference that is the brain child of Alice Wright.

Mrs. Wright, who was born in Big Timber, Mont., received her BA from the University of Montana, her MA from Columbia, and taught in Montana, New York and Ankara, Turkey, before coming to Long Beach.

"I try to teach pupils to write well, and sell if they can, of course," she says, "but I also try to help them observe — become aware of the world they live in."

Floods Claim 18 in East Pakistan

DACCA, Pakistan (AP)—Floods caused by days of rain have cost the lives of at least 18 persons in the Chittagong area of East Pakistan, officials here reported. In addition, hundreds of cattle have been swept away and crops badly damaged.

Banned Book on Marines Receives OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Naval Institute said Saturday the Pentagon has cleared a controaversil history of the Marine Corps which originally had been scheduled for publication last fall.

The book is "Soldiers of the Sea," written by Marine Col. Robert D. Heinl, chief of a U.S. Naval mission in Haiti.

The conrtoversy flared in January when the Pentagon refused clearance of one chapter of the book for publication as a magazine article. The chapter had been submitted for Pentagon review last September.

A Defense Department spokesman said that chapter appeared to impugn motives of former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, as well as others.

The spokesman said, in effect, the article seemed to charge that a conspiracy existed among several former officials to kill off the Marines. The Marine Corps had joined in Defense Department objections to the chapter.

The institute, which is not an official Navy agency but which is headed by top-ranking Navy officials, plans the publication through its publishing agency, the "Proceedings."

TRIP ASSURED

Students' Kindness Rewarded

GLEN LAKE, Mich. (AP)—The 33 Glen Lake Community High School seniors who had scraped and saved since 1956 for a graduation trip to Washington — then canceled it all to aid a cancer-stricken classmate—will leave Tuesday for the nation's capital.

Kind-hearted folk, particularly in Washington, who read of their charity just wouldn't let the class miss its long-cherished trip. Donations rolled in. President John F. Kennedy invited them to the White House, promising a personally guided tour.

And 17-year-old Duane Richardson, a basketball star who learned a few months ago he had cancer, plans to go with the classmates who voted to turn over $700 toward his hospital and medical bills, rather than see Washington.

• • • •

THE SCHOOL'S bus will leave at 9 a.m. Tuesday to make a train connection in Detroit. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has set aside a special car for the group, departing Detroit at 6:15 p.m.

The 21 boys and 12 girls washed cars, sold popcorn and candy and worked at odd jobs to pay for the scheduled trip. But they changed plans when Duane learned he had cancer in the right shoulder.

They had raised approximately $2,500, but when the $700 was gone there wasn't enough left for Washington and no prospect of replacement.

So the class voted to place the balance where it would do the most good and it is gone. They gave $620 to the school's annual yearbook fund. Another $300 went for needed athletic equipment. For $125 the seniors bought flowers for their parents and decorations for their June 1 graduation ceremonies.

ON THEMSELVES they spent only $200 — the cost of a senior banquet and bowling party.

When newspapers reported the class donation to Duane and the scrubbing of its Washington trip, residents of Washington responded with offers of money, lodging and food. Radio station WWDC said it would send $700 to the graduates.

Other offers of assistance topped $600 and the Empire State Bank of nearby Glen Arbor offered to advance $2,500.

Shattering Welcome for Queen Mother

TORONTO (AP) — Toronto welcomed Queen Mother Elizabeth Saturday with official ritual, cheers of affection and a thunderous artillery salute—so thunderous that it shattered two store windows in the neighborhood of City Hall.

The queen mother is winding up a nine-day visit to Canada.

U.S. Charges Negro Fired Over Voting

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The Justice Department filed a federal court suit Saturday charging a Negro teacher was fired because of voter registration activities and demanded reinstatement with reimbursement of lost pay.

A Justice Department spokesman said it was the first time a court order had been sought to restore a job lost in connection with civil rights action.

Mrs. Ernestine Denham Talbert, 33-year-old college graduate from Lucedale, was fired from the Greene County vocational school staff April 25. County Supt. Evans T. Martin said the action was in the "best interest of the school."

• • • •

CONTACTED at his home in Leakesville, Martin repeated his earlier stand that the action was taken "in the best interest of the school," but quickly added:

"She was not fired. Her contract simply was not renewed for the 1962-63 school year. It looks like the Justice Department is trying to take over the administration of our local county schools."

dropped from employment as an apparent results of efforts to register to vote and her testimony about those efforts in a civil rights suit.

• • • •

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL M.A. Hayes contended there had never been complaints about her work as commerce teacher and librarian.

Mrs. Talbert was one of six Negroes whose affidavits appeared in a Justice Department voter registration suit against the George County election commission and circuit clerk.

Mrs. Talbert resides in George County and commuted to Greene County.

Saturday's suit asked for a temporary injunction against the board of education's hiring of a replacement until the case has cleared the courts. U. S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox will hear the case next Saturday in Biloxi.

• • • •

THE SUIT carried affidavits from Mrs. Talbert and a letter from the school principal, which said she was recommended for another year. She was the only one of 22 teachers not approved by the county board.

The complaint said the "action was without justification and is an act to intimidate, threaten and coerce Mrs. Talbert and other Negro citizens to become registered to vote."

The firing "was not based on her ability or performance as a teacher . . ." the suit charged.

• • • •

MRS. TALBERT charged in an affidavit that she and her husband were arbitrarily denied voting privileges after being given the "run around." She said she had been paying poll taxes for seven years.

In addition to asking reinstatement of Mrs. Talbert, the suit asks that the defendants be enjoined from failing to deal in good faith with the Negro teachers of the county for the purpose of interfering with their right to vote or for the purpose of discouraging them from giving testimony in respect to being deprived of their right to vote.

Named as defendants were the board of education of George County; chairman Oscar G. Rounsaville; board members Willie E. Brown, Douglas W. Daughdrill, Lewis M. Henderson, and Carlos McLaine and Supt. Evans.

China Refugees Barred by Bonn

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chinese refugees will not be admitted to West Germany, West German Labor Minister Theodor Blank said. He was replying to a question asked in parliament.

He said Germany already has admitted 620,000 Italians, Spaniards, Greeks and Turks and their number would reach an estimated total of 700,000 by the end of the year. Chinese are not wanted because of high transport costs and language difficulties, he added.

The question of bringing Chinese into West Germany arose several weeks ago when the Association of Hotels and Restaurants in West Germany reported negotiations in progress to import 3,000 Chinese cooks from Hong Kong.

Russian Police Receive Little Public Support

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nobody wants to be a witness when police make an arrest, a letter in the Soviet newspaper Izvestia complained Saturday.

The letter, written by workers in a factory, said, "We often see cases when militiamen seize a thief, a hooligan or a drunkard." But when the people's militiamen ask the assembled crowd to give their names and appear as witnesses, the crowd "seems to disappear into thin air," the workers wrote.

They said the people's militia "deserves more trust, support and help from citizens."

THE BUSINESS WEEK

New Sharp Stock Slump, Deficit Share Spotlight

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Another sharp slump by the stock market, further bids by President Kennedy for business cooperation and the question of whether a federal budget deficit would benefit the economy held the spotlight this week.

All were interwoven in the fabric of the nation's business picture.

The market, pummeled by discouraged selling, sank through the bottom of the May 28 "Black Monday" level to its lowest point since Nov. 2, 1960.

• • • •

PRESIDENT Kennedy said in a speech at Yale University commencement exercises it was a "false issue" to assume "any and all unfavorable turns of the speculative wheel —however temporary and however plainly speculative in character—are the result of lack of confidence in an administration."

Later, at his news conference, Kennedy said, in response to a question, he could not believe that big business would want an economic slump just to get back at a President.

A newspaper column had indicated some business men hoped to take advantage of the market decline for that purpose.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, said some investment analysts believe stock prices have fallen to about the right levels in relation to share earnings.

• • • •

KENNEDY used his Yale speech and his news conference to outline his views on government-business cooperation and the possible result of an unbalanced budget.

"The solid ground of mutual confidence is the necessary partnership with all the sectors of our society in the steady quest for economic progress," he said at Yale.

He called it a myth that "federal deficits create inflation and budget surpluses prevent it . . . persistent deficits for the last several years have not upset our basic price stability."

At his news conference he elaborated, saying deficits are not necessarily harmful. He added that what the country must be concerned about is maintaining the vitality of the economy.

• • • •

KENNEDY said while most business men are Republicans traditionally, the important point is that they and all other groups recognize the necessity of the government working out a policy that will aid in generating economic growth.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg told a convention of the hatters union in New York "we are not anti-business and it is nonsense to believe that a president of the United States committed to our institutions can be."

Federal Budget Director David E. Bell said in New York spending and tax policies may have to be changed this year if the economy begins to lag seriously.

"The biggest question," he said, "is whether we are heading into a budget surplus too quickly."

Newly reported business statistics painted a mixed picture.

• • • •

SECRETARY OF Commerce Luther H. Hodges announced retail sales in May declined 1 per cent from April, corporate profits dropped in the first quarter and personal income showed a smaller-than-usual advance.

Even so, he said, over-all economic figures "still look awfully good." For the rest of the year he predicted good business but not full economic activity.

The Labor Department reported earnings of factory workers reached their highest peak in May and non-farm employment was the greatest for the month.

However, indications were for an increase in unemployment in June and a poorer-than-expected job situation in construction and soft goods manufacturing.

• • • •

WILLIAM McCHESNEY MARTIN, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said in an address to the Harvard Alumni Association that the United States needs to accelerate economic growth.

"The American economy today is at the highest level in our history, and it is still moving up," he said. "Yet, too many people are still unemployed, too much of our business structure is still operating below most efficient levels and our growing population needs more job and business opportunities.

"Growth has now become the focal point of attention in economic affairs because, if we can increase the size of the pie speedily and steadily enough, everyone can have a slice or a still larger slice, and none will have to yield any of his present share to his neighbors."

• • • •

A SURVEY by the magazine Engineering News-Record indicated large companies are going ahead with spending plans despite the stock market slump. Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., was quoted as saying he considers the market adjustment a short-term affair and Ford spending plans are unchanged.

Ford, in a separate statement, predicted good automobile sales for the rest of this year and at least the first part of 1963. Earlier he had forecast sales of 6.9 million to 7 million cars which would make this year second only to 1955, when 7,169,908 were sold.

Sales in the first 10 days of June totaled 161,969, compared with 150,596 a year earlier. Production this week fell off to an estimated 147,000 from 150,077 last week but was well ahead of the 129,274 of a year ago.

• • • •

THE SITUATION in the steel industry remained discouraging with production last week down for the 10th consecutive week. Mills turned out 1.58 million tons of steel, off 0.4 per cent from the previous week and representing about 52.5 per cent of estimated capacity.

Producers said indications are production will continue to decline for a while longer.

Bethlehem Steel Co., which received an order for 92,000 tons of steel pipe for a petroleum products pipeline, recalled 750 employes at its Steelton, Pa., plant.

Briefly around the business scene: Highway users paid a record $5.5 billion in state taxes last year . . . Actress Arlene Francis was elected a director of the 721 Corp., owner of the Bonwit Teller specialty store chain . . . National Cash Register Co. is introducing a battery-powered portable adding machine . . . Sears, Roebuck & Co's fall and winter catalog prices are up one-half of one per cent from a year earlier but unchanged from the spring catalog.

DUTY IN TOGO

Peace Corps Looking for Fishermen

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Wanted: Eight French-speaking fishermen to teach modern techniques in Togo. Should be hardy outdoor type. Apply at Peace Corps.

This call went out from the Peace Corps for what it said was perhaps its most unusual project to date.

The volunteers are needed to help ease a famine situation and to improve the fishing industry in Togo, Africa's smallest republic.

They will work for a man who gained Togolese President Sylvanus Olympio's confidence because he is, the corps said, "a practical man who brings a dried fish in and puts it on the president's desk when he wants to make a point."

Two of the experts will be based in Dacpango to help cultivate fish in the 400 small ponds, 40 reservoirs and several rivers in the north, where famine is feared.

• • • •

THE OTHERS will be assigned to Togoville and Anecho.

The Peace Corps fishermen will introduce new methods of smoking, salting, and drying fish, and demonstrate such techniques as trap fishing, gill netting, beam trawling and oyster culture.

HERE ARE THE FACTS

The used cars we have at our huge plant are the cleanest and best in the world. We say this without fear of contradiction. Here is the procedure for our cars at:

MARSHALL DUFFIELD COMET-MERCURY

1. Wash Motor and Chassis.
2. Inspection by foreman.
3. Motor compression test for rings and valves.
4. Transmission and rear end tested and checked.
5. New rings, bearings, pistons, arms, clutches, replaced as needed.
6. Carburetor, distributor checked and tested.
7. The car is road-tested.
8. Oil changed and lubed.
9. All parts properly lubricated to factory specifications.
10. Wheels pulled to check the brake lining.
11. Front end examined and necessary corrections made.
12. Necessary bumping done in dented dept.
13. Polish and clean up.
14. Upholstery completely renovated.

Sybil Does Fine Job as 'Opal'

Sybil Reed's name isn't "Sybil" any more at Community Playhouse.

It's "Opal."

As smoothly as fingers ever slipped into a glove, she slips into the role of Opal, disheveled, warm-hearted collector or trash, in "Everybody Loves Opal," which opened Friday night at the Playhouse. She does some of the best acting seen hereabouts in many moons and she lifts the play from a "prank in three acts" to real drama.

Dolly O'Neil, who never has been in a play before but who is pretty and what the boys call "well-stacked" is the feminine member of the crook trio, aided by Bill Becker and Pat Waddick. All turn in competent performances, as does Michael Lakin, as the officer pal of Opal. Don Kroll does a lot with a bit part as a doctor. One of the funniest scenes of the play comes when the doctor examines Opal for the insurance.

Larry John directs. Ruth Crail, Elsie Crail and Janet Roach did a yeoman job of collecting the props for the play. —Vera Williams

HIGH COST OF LIVING DOLLS

Marilyn, Liz Cost 20th Century-Fox Studio Cool $12 Million--and the End Is Not in Sight

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Two beautiful females, perhaps the most expensive dolls in the world, have cost a major movie company $12 million thus far and the end is not in sight.

They are Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe. The battered studio is 20th Century-Fox, which is flirting with financial ruin.

Sickness and scandal have delayed the studio's "Cleopatra" for many months. Miss Taylor's escapades with Richard Burton and her delicate health have been responsible for increasing the cost of the picture from an estimated $20 million to $30 million or more. "Cleopatra" still is limping along.

• • • •

MISS MONROE'S continued absence from the set of "Something's Got to Give" forced 20th Century-Fox to scrap the picture at a loss of $2 million.

At the moment only one picture, "Celebration," is shooting on the lot, leaving the other stages empty and hundreds unemployed.

To staunch the heavy flow of dollars studio chiefs have cut scores of employes from almost every department at the studio and in its New York headquarters. Executives have taken hefty pay reductions.

• • • •

WALTER WANGER, producer of "Cleopatra," learned last week that he had been taken off salary although he continues in his post. Miss Taylor, however, continues to draw her handsome salary which already has far surpassed the million-dollar mark.

To make matters worse at the studio four of its network television shows were canceled this spring.

Gone are "Adventures In Paradise," Bus Stop," "Margie" and "Follow The Sun." Only "Dobie Gillis" continues shooting for next season.

ONE EXECUTIVE expressed fears that the studio may be forced to close temporarily, "thanks to the caprice of a couple of actresses who couldn't care less about the movie industry or their fellow workers."

• • • •

Still another 20th-Fox topper said:

It's the star system that has caused all the trouble. There is no point in our fighting with these people. We want to get the pictures finished.

"If we raise too much hell with some of those nitwits they'll never want to work for us again."

• • • •

A BULWARK of motion pictures during the early years of the television invasion, 20th Century-Fox has finally been victimized by ruthless stars who demand so much money it is difficult, if not impossible, for some pictures to show a profit.

Jerry Wald, a producer on the lot, says:

"There are between 15 and 20 top stars that everyone wants for their pictures. Between here and Europe there are 100 producers willing to meet their prices. So it's a seller's market.

"The stars know this and it is only natural that they are out to get all the money they can. It's human nature I guess.

• • • •

"THEY CAN'T keep all the money, but it is good for their egos. Each one wants to be known as the highest paid star in the movies, and that makes it pretty tough on the studios and independent producers."

Wald named off the stars who are in demand and who demand the highest prices—John Wayne, Rock Hudson, Kirk Douglas, Cary Grant, Tony Curtis, William Holden, Burt Lancaster, Frank Sinatra, James Stewart, Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor, Natalie Wood, Marlon Brando, Sophia Loren and Audrey Hepburn.

"There may be a few others," he added, "but major motion picture producers are dependent on this limited number of stars.

• • • •

THE interesting thing to me about that group is this—how many of them are 30 years old, and how many of them are over 50. None of them, with the exception of Natalie Wood, are youngsters anymore.

"I wish more of them would take Jimmy Stewart's attitude. He takes only a $200,000 guarantee for salary and a percentage of the profits, if there are any.

"But others, like Bill Holden, want a $750,000 guarantee going in. Liz demanded a million dollars for 'Cleopatra,' and Brando isn't very far behind. To me it is all out of reason."

• • • •

WALD SEES no solution to the problem except for development of new talent.

It was suggested that newcomers such as Warren Beatty arrive on the scene and within a picture or two are demanding almost as much as the older established stars.

"That's true," he agreed. "The only answer is for the studios to take a tip from baseball and develop their own farm systems so they have a constant supply of young bushleaguers coming up to star in major pictures.

L.A. Harbor Terminal Rising

CONSTRUCTION of a new $6,000,000 combination cargo and passenger terminal in Los Angeles Harbor is scheduled for completion early in 1963. This network of steel girders form part of the $1,500,000 cargo terminal of the structure while in the background is the two-story portion fronting the main channel.

THIS IS THE waterfront view of the big new cargo-passenger terminal in Los Angeles Harbor. The terminal will handle two large passenger liners or cargo ships at once.

NELS G. SEVERIN, president, announced that Palomar Mortgage Co., San Diego based nationally operating mortgage firm, has negotiated an agreement with American Mortgage Services for a merger. Subject to the Palomar board's approval the American stockholders will exchange their shares for an undetermined number of Palomar shares. The Palomar board will consider the plan Wednesday.

Severin said that American Mortgage Services, which has headquarters in Costa Mesa, has a loan servicing portfolio of about $28 million. American has offices in several cities including Van Nuys. This would be a further penetration of the Los Angeles area, he added.

Under the terms American's president and treasurer, John A. Hess would join Palomar's administrative staff.

TRANS WORLD AIRLINES recorded a 33.3 per cent increase in revenue passenger miles on international routes during May plus a 1.7 per cent rise on domestic schedules, L. P. Marechal, vice president and general sales manager announced.

In May, TWA's 140 passenger jets flew 99,143,000 revenue passenger miles internationally compared to 74,394,000 the same month last year. Domestically, TWA flew 351,070,000 revenue passenger miles compared to 345,036,000 in May, 1961.

Operating revenues increased 29.3 per cent on international and 5.5 per cent on domestic flights, a combined 11 per cent revenue boost for TFA's entire system during May.

Marechal attributed the trans-Atlantic increases to a lessening of world tension plus new business attracted by TWA's economy group fares for travel to Europe.

Homes on P.E. Right-of-Way Planned for Newport Beach

Macco Realty Co., subsidiary of Macco Corp., one of the west's largest construction firms, will make another contribution to the fast-growing Orange County area by developing acres of prime real estate property in Newport Beach-Balboa.

The development of the Pacific Electric right-of-way in Newport Beach into 100 residential duplex homes was awarded to Macco Realty Co. in competition with at least 100 leading builders and developers in Southern California.

• • • •

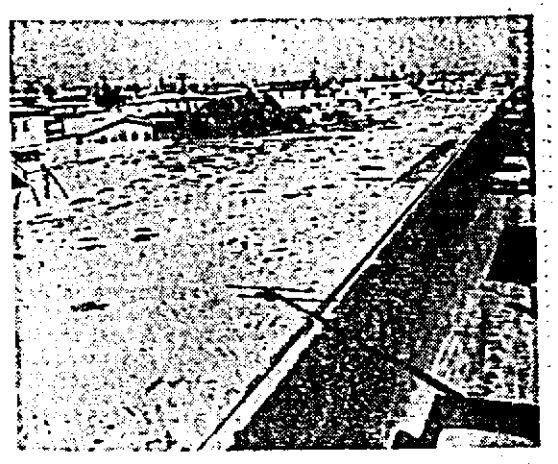

THE RAILROAD has approved the acquisition of this property with Macco which will end the last trace of more than 50 years of rail service to Newport Beach. The Newport Line was originally a well-traveled link in Pacific Electric's system which, as early as 1904, had declared itself "The Greatest Electric Railway System on Earth."

John MacLood, chairman of the board for Macco announced that this new project is the result of combined planning and effort on the part of Macco Realty Co. (Macco's home building subsidiary) and Harbor Investment Co.

• • • •

PLANNING IS PRESENTLY underway to develop a $2,707,000 seashore colony of attractive residential duplex homes on 100 lots. These homes will be designed for both year-round living and as vacation homes with a minimum amount of maintainance. The development is located between 33rd Street and 57th Street and bounded on the west by Seashore Drive and on the northeast by Neptune Ave., within 200 feet of one of Southern California's most beautiful beaches.

As for Newport Beach, the Pacific Electric rails into the city have been removed and now it becomes Macco Realty Company's task to create the new subdivision. While this event signals the end of an era, it is also the beginning of a new phase of land utilization in one of Southern California's most desirable areas by a company who continues to realize greater volume and to enjoy a solid, secure reputation within the home building industry. Macco Realty Co. Beach-Balboa area with 411 Company now leads the build-lots presently under improveing industry in Newportment.

SEASHORE COLONY SITE

Macco Realty Co. announced it will build a seashore colony on the vacated Pacific Electric right-of way, shown here, in Newport Beach.

Government Showing Concern Over Home Foreclosure Jump

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has officially expressed "concern over the rising number of home foreclosures."

Two agencies are teaming to find out what is behind the steady upward trend in home loan defaults. Their fondest hope: To discover a pattern in the foreclosures which will help lenders avoid making loans doomed to go sour.

The inquiry is being made in six major cities: Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York and Philadelphia.

Census Bureau employes are checking lenders' files for conventional loans foreclosed within the past year. After taking down pertinent information about the loans the bureau researchers will try to interview the borrower who couldn't keep up his payments.

• • • •

BASIC DATA on foreclosed FHA and VA loans has been obtained from those agencies.

The bureau is making the study for the Housing and Home Finance Agency. The agency has hoped to check on a dozen cities, but found that for the $50,000 it had available the Census Bureau could include only six. The survey is supposed to cover about 3,000 foreclosed mortgages.

Henry Schechter, head of the Housing Agency's division of housing analysis, is the economist in charge of the survey. He expects the basic information to be collected by late summer. Then will come several months of tabulation and study and finally a written report.

• • • •

LIKE MANY government officials, Schechter believes a major cause of the sharp rise in home loan foreclosures in recent years was an ebbing of inflationary pressures in the housing and land market. When prices were rising, it was easy for a home owner who fell behind in his payments to sell out and cover his delinquency. In a stable or declining market, the owner with only slight equity in his home avails himself little by selling.

Even thought it has been known for months that foreclosures climbed by 22,000 last year to a 21-year high of 73,074, no responsible official in government has seemed disturbed. When asked, several experts have dismissed the 1961 increase—and the upward trend of recent years—as a result of a slowdown in inflation. Always it was emphasized that even though rising, the total number of foreclosures is small in relation to the number of mortgaged homes.

• • • •

FINALLY, the Census Bureau announced it was making the study in response to concern over the increase.

There were about 20.2 million mortgaged, non-farm one-to four-family homes in 1961. The number of foreclosures amounted to 3.6 per 1,000 such dwellings, compared to a rate of 2.65 in 1960. A jump of 11,000 in FHA foreclosures accounted for half of the overall foreclosure rise.

The Census Bureau survey, Schechter is hopeful, will permit sketching of a composite picture of the home owner who defaults.

Six Double Patio Homes Ready Now in Golden West Estates

A GOLDEN WEST HOME
The beautiful front room of this model of a Golden West Estate overlooks the front entry patio at far right through large sliding glass doors.

"Six of our new double-patio homes have just been completed at Golden West Estates in Huntington Beach," announced Jim McCarthy, vice president of McCarthy Co., co-builders with Sant Construction Co.

"These new homes are clean, bright, and sparkling throughout—ready this minute to receive their buyers."

The popular Golden West double patio plan includes both a front entranceway court and a secluded side patio. Lifting the "boat door" in the rear of the garage creates a readymade cabana for the pool area. Interior of the plan features a formal living room for entertaining guests while children play in the spacious separate family room. A large dining area adjoins the modern built-in kitchen.

• • • •

GOLDEN WEST homes are also offered in a wide variety of other plans and elevations, all including three or four bedrooms, family room, two baths, and an oversized two-car garage. The homes may be purchased with FHA, conventional, or VA no-down-payment terms. Down payments from $875 accompany the 35-year, 5¼ per cent FHA terms, while conventional down payments range from $695. Pricing is from $17,800.

Quality features include: modern breakfast bar, ash kitchen cabinets, floor-to-ceiling sliding glass doors, forced-air heating, large service area and center entry hall.

From Long Beach, the homes may be reached via Seventh St. east to Golden West St., then right.

Dads Get More Gifts Than Moms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fathers get more presents than anybody — which should console them while they dig in their jeans to pay for them.

A study reported by Bulova Watch Company, Inc., shows that, contrary to general belief, more gifts are given on Father's Day than Mother's Day. Mothers usually get somewhat more expensive presents, but in terms of numbers of gifts, Father's Day ranks next to Christmas and birthdays as the biggest gift occasion of the year.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT!

Miles P. Shook's "The Flintstone" has received much comment from viewers of the apartments at 2165 E. 21st St. in Signal Hill. Shook has built some unusual units in the past but this one is unique. Every apartment has a built-in electrically cooled beer keg, the "Tar Pit" is the big black swimming pool. Bright wild colors decorate the units and some have Chinese bird-cage chairs that swing from the ceiling. There are 28 units in the new structure and all are rented, Shook said.

LAW IN THE NEWS

Different Deeds on Co-op Apartments

In large cities with a land shortage for regular homes you now find more and more "subdivisions" that look like skyscrapers. In fact they are skyscrapers. Such "cooperative" apartments have some features of old-fashioned home ownership.

Such apartments have different legal set-ups. Some are profit corporations. The owner gets building stock and a permanent lease. If you buy one of these you are a "tenant-owner," and have a right to use it as yours as long as you hold stock. You share in the expense of keeping up the halls, grounds, and the like. Directors elected by the tenant-owners run the place.

• • • •

ANOTHER set-up is a trust: Here a trustee owns and manages the building. Tenants have a permanent right to their apartments as trust beneficiaries.

More recently ownership is the "condominium," from ancient Roman law. The buyer owns the air space inside his apartment. All air space owners then jointly own the walls, hallways, and the building and elect the management.

Purchase agreements may restrict the use, sale, or transfer of ownership. Long contracts set forth the buyer's rights and duties.

• • • •

TENANT-OWNERS share financial responsibilities. Creditors who work on the building may have claim on the whole project. If one tenant-owner fails to keep up his maintenance costs, others may have to bear his share. In a condominium real estate taxes may be assessed on the whole building or on the separate units. If one tenant-owner fails to pay, a tax lien might well be put on the whole project.

Some co-operative apartments allow "owners" the right to sell only with the consent of the board of directors or of the stockholders.

Some usual terms: One may use the apartment only as a private home, the owner must keep the inside in good repair, and make major changes only with the director's consent. The directors might make house rules about noise, pets, the use of common facilities, etc.

Will Build Space Craft Air Monitor

Beckman Instruments, Inc., has received a $240,000 contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to design and build a miniaturized gas chromatograph — an instrument for chemical analysis and identification — to monitor the closed atmosphere of a manned spacecraft.

Walter Donner, project manager for Beckman's Scientific and Process Instruments Division, Fullerton, said the instrument will weigh less than 15 pounds, about one-tenth that of standard laboratory gas chromatographs, and will be less than 10 inches wide and high. The instrument will be delivered to NASA at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.

• • • •

DONNER SAID the instrument will be designed to separate and identify individual components of the atmosphere of a vehicle large enough to carry three men. He said it will monitor for oxygen, nitrogen, carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide and certain specific trace gases.

He said the instrument will monitor the atmosphere of the space vehicle automatically and continuously, and that any variation will be detected immediately, thus telling the astronauts of any change in their breathing supply before they themselves can detect it.

To Direct Marketing of Realty

Don McMullen has been named marketing director for the real estate firm of Walker & Lee, Inc., Frank R. Hart, executive vice-president, announced.

A long-time associate with Walker & Lee, McMullen has been active in the new house and resale division and presently manages a number of subdivisions in Orange County.

Don McMullen

"Southland builders and developers all look forward to a substantial upswing in residential sales, perhaps as much as 20 per cent during the next four months," McMullen said.

The executive added that the real challenge in his new post will be development of new business through predictive research of the homes market and working with builders and developers as subdivisions are opened to public purchase.

Walker & Lee sold 1,053 homes during the first quarter of this year, representing a 20 per cent increase over the same period in 1961, according to Hart.

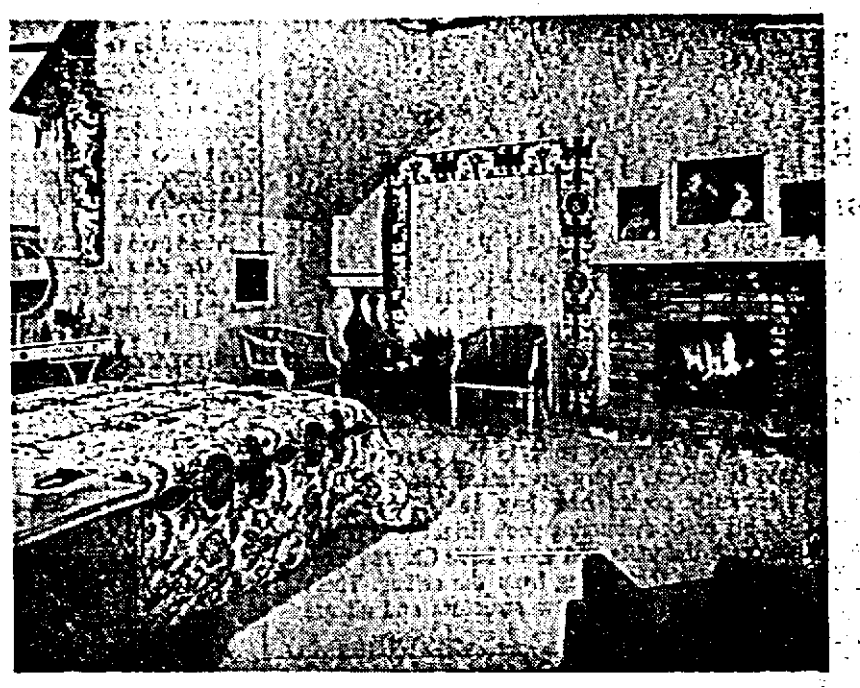

The homes sold had a total dollar value of nearly $23,000,000 for the period to reflect sales in Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura counties.

Crowds See New Store

Highly successful was the two-day grand opening Friday and Saturday of Ritner Furniture, 6414 E. Spring St. in the Plaza Shopping Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ritner, the owners, said the crowds exceeded expectations by far. The new owners were associated with McMahon's Furniture Stores 20 years before opening their own. The store carries a complete line of home furnishings in both early American and modern styles as well as appliances, carpeting, patio furniture TV and radio sets.

Garden Park Estates Has Wide Range of Plans, Size

FIREPLACE IN BEDROOM

Charming bedroom shown is in one of the new two-story luxury homes in Garden Park Estates' all-new unit at Knott Avenue and Garden Park Estates. The second-floor master bedrooms as well as the spacious living rooms have fireplaces.

Boasting an exciting selection of diverse one and two-story contemporary and conventional elevations, Garden Park Estates' new unit of luxury homes also presents an exceptionally wide choice of floor plans ranging from two bedrooms with den to five bedrooms, officials of this community at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway report.

This five-bedroom is the handsome two-story dwellings just introduced into Garden Park Estates "family" of attractive homes. A true two-story design (not a "split-level"), these homes are created for today's larger families.

From the inviting entry hall the stairway rises to the three bedrooms and bath on the second floor where the master bedroom has its own charming fireplace. The first floor is designed so that the other two bedrooms are away from the areas of activity and the second bath is convenient to the entire first floor. There is a front facing kitchen and dining room and the spacious living room overlooks the garden area. The living room as well as the master bedroom, has a fireplace.

• • • •

ATTRACTIVE features included in Garden Park Estates' new one and two-story homes list sliding walls of glass, forced-air heating and luxurious baths with Italian mosaic tile, colored plumbing fixtures and pullman lavatories. Kitchens have built-in color-matched gas wall oven and range with matching hood, light and fan, semi-automatic dishwasher, natural ash cabinets and countertops of colorful superamic tile.

Flexible financing includes veterans terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs or Cal-Vet loans; and for non-veterans, excellent conventional loans or choice of 30 and 35-year FHA loans. Full prices are from $17,800.

Furnished models are reached from Long Beach by driving east on Seventh St. past Long Beach State College to the corner of Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway.

John A. Nasmyth of San Gabriel and Elvin "Al" Berquist of Downey also were acclaimed. It was under their direction that Western Gear's Systems Management Division designed and built the "ice dozer."

Kaiser, Union Agree on Pact

Negotiators representing Kaiser Steel Corporation and the United Steelworkers of America announced they had reached agreement on two-year contracts affecting some 7,000 employes at the steel mill at Fontana and iron ore mine at Eagle Mountain.

The new agreements, to go into effect July 1, will cost the company approximately 10 cents an hour and will incorporate terms similar to those reached between the union and 11 major steel companies earlier this year. There are no provisions for wage increases at this time.

Mobilehome Groups Plan Anaheim Meet

The National Conference of State and Regional Mobilehome Associations, representing the Mobilehome Associations throughout the nation, in cooperation with the Trailer Coach Association and the Western Mobilehome Association, will hold a Mobilehousing Conference at the Charter House, in Anaheim, July 15, 16 and 17.

Objectives are to bring into closer relationship individuals, organizations and enforcement agencies active and interested in Mobilehousing — to furnish the means of collecting, exchanging and disseminating information, experience and ideas on all phases of mobile living — to evaluate the new mobilehomes and mobilehome parks code and the rules and regulations promulgated under the California Administrative Code for its enforcement—to evaluate the mobilehome as a housing unit and the mobilehome park as an acceptable part of the community, a spokesman said.

• • • •

WMA'S ADVISORY mobile housing committee will serve as the conference advisory committee. The program committee will include technical representatives of all phases of the industry and from the enforcement agencies.

Philip J. M. Doyle, managing director of WMA, said the meeting will open with an address by John F. Henning, director, Department of Industrial relations, State of California.

The Conference will also include industry exhibits, motion pictures and guided tours of manufacturing plants and mobilehome parks.

In addition, he said the beauty of the Bolsa Park community, the warmth and elegance, the expensively detailed exteriors give to the overall project, make it the ideal place for any family to watch their children grow. "The smog-free location and cool ocean breezes are a pleasure during the hot summer months," Merrill reminded homebuyers looking for complete comfort in a home.

Handicapped Taught Building Designing

A group of nine handicapped veterans at the Long Beach Veterans Hospital are learning a new profession in what is believed to be the only course of its type available to patients in hospitals throughout the country.

Under the guidance of Joe W. Passero, a Long Beach building designer and originator of the unique class, the men are obtaining practical experience in the building design field during a free once-a-week evening class in the manual arts section of the facility's physical medicine and rehabilitation service.

Students include an electrical contractor who was injured when he crashed his airplane; a crane operator who suffered an on-the-job accident and a forest ranger, are only taught the "basics" of the building design profession, Passero said.

• • • •

"WE'RE NOT TRYING to make 90-day wonders for our profession—it simply can't be done," he commented.

However, initial graduates, who are in the hospital's spinal cord injury and amputee sections, can look forward to a job procurement service set up by the Long Beach AIBD group.

Importance of the program, which is not specifically offered to place a student in a building design position, is pointed out by the fact that the building design course for hospitalized veterans is a pilot class and is being eyed with interest by the Veterans Administration.

Earl Clifton, chief of manual arts therapy for the Long Beach VA Hospital commented, "This is a tremendous thing Passero has started here and the interest in the course has spread through the hospital."

• • • •

THERE IS A VERY good possibility the course may be given in other U.S. veteran's hospitals' rehabilitation and vocational programs, Clifton said.

The initial course will last from four to six months.

Assisting Passero, vice president of the Long Beach chapter of AIBD, is Robert Greig, himself a past president of the Long Beach Chapter.

Other members of the Long Beach AIBD chapter act as instructors in the event Passero or Greig can't attend a class session. All teaching services are free and on volunteer basis.

As soon as the first class is finished, another will be launched. And with reason—there's a waiting line for "next semester."

STUDENTS IN HOSPITAL

Win Realty Honor Again

Two men who had won the honors twice already this year, took the awards for multiple listings for May, the Board of Realtors announced through Lawrence Toner, contest chairman.

Joseph A. Messina, Realtor, with offices at 76 Atlantic Ave., secured the most listings and "Ric" Owen, with the Rex L. Hodges Co., made the most sales.

"RIC" OWEN

J. A. MESSINA

• • • •

MESSINA, a native of Massachusetts, came to Long Beach in 1954 and operated a restaurant and bar several years. He received his broker's license in 1961. Charles Persinger is associated with him.

Owen, who has a record of over $10 million in real estate sales during 10 years with the Hodges Co., works out of the downtown office. He attributes much of his sales success to his dedicated confidence in the future of California real estate and particularly the growth value of Long Beach property.

Big Luxury Homes Will Unveil Today

Spectacular ocean views will greet home seekers today as Seaview Terrace unveils newly completed models, it was announced by Smith, Wilson & Kleefeld, builders of the custom-type residences.

Seaview Terrace comprises 20 homes of two-story and split-level designs fronting on Paseo de la Playa near that street's intersection with Palos Verdes Ave. in the Hollywood Riviera, just north of Palos Verdes Estates.

The uniqueness of a private beach for each home is vieing for viewers' favor with floor plans offering 3,100 square feet of actual living area, the builders stated. Unobstructed view of the surf below, as well as of nearby palisades and city skyline, characterize the setting.

• • • •

TO KEEP SOARING land costs in the picturesque location from influencing home purchase price, the models are being sold on land-lease arrangement, it was noted. The homes are being sold from $39,950, with 10 per cent down payment, the buyer obtaining a long-term use of the land site by paying only the equivalent of interest charges. Families with $18,000 or more annual income qualify for the terms, it was stated.

All Seaview Terrace models offer four bedrooms, three baths and two fireplaces finished with dolomite, Palos Verdes or "driftwood" stone. Bedrooms of some models boast a third fireplace of travertine design.

• • • •

TWO-STORY STYLINGS feature a first-floor terrace and a roof garden, both facing the ocean and extending the full width of the house. A front patio adds to indoor-outdoor enjoyment. Split-level models feature double terraces, which may be entered via sliding glass walls from living room, family room and master bedroom.

IN SEAVIEW TERRACE

Homes with 3,100 square feet of living area, on lots directly overlooking the ocean and sloping down to private beaches, are being offered in the Hollywood Riviera. Home sales are being directed exclusively to families with $18,000 minimum annual income.

Attorney to Talk on Estate Taxes

Norman Rasmussen, local attorney and CPA, will address the Estate Planning and Trust Council of Long Beach at the final meeting of the year Thursday at the Petroleum Club. Rasmussen will discuss preparation of the federal estate tax return and calculation of the gross taxable estate.

Also scheduled is the election of officers. Robert A. Fenberg, Frank D. Lawrie and Charles P. Boyer have been nominated for the offices of president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

161 Huntington Village Homes Are Open Today

OFFERED IN HUNTINGTON VILLAGE
Grand opening of Huntington Village's Unit 10 will be held today with furnished and decorated models open for the public's inspection. Unit 10 is a new edition of the famed Sea Breeze series of big three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes.

Grand opening of unit 10 in the Huntington Village Sea Breeze series of homes will be held today, according to Dan Mytinger, sales manager for the building and development firm of Doyle and Shields.

"The 161 new three and four-bedroom homes of unit 10 join more than 800 homes already occupied in the Huntington Village community," Mytinger said, "and in keeping with the Doyle and Shields policy of constantly improving their homes, new features have been incorporated into the unit 10 homes, such as: RCA Whirlpool dishwasher is now standard in these homes (joining the RCA Whirlpool built-in range and oven); gas log lighters in the fireplaces; built-in phone outlets; glass-lined water heaters; custom slate entryways; and new exteriors and floor plans are but a few of the many additional features in the new homes."

• • • •

THESE ADDITIONS join the outstanding features previously found in Huntington Village Homes: Big family room and living room, two baths with marble pullman tops, wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, halls and master bedroom, central forced air heat, all rooms color-coordinated, including the big, roomy kitchen with ample counter and cabinet space to go with the RCA appliances in decorator colors, plus a host of others.

"The new homes in Unit 10" Mytinger went on, "will sell from $395 down, plus costs, with full prices starting at $17,150. The down payment includes a grant deed to the property and title insurance. There are no due dates or balloon payments."

• • • •

"OUR IDEAL location," Mytinger continued, "has had much to do with the unique success of the Huntington Village community. We're just minutes away from Southern California's finest beaches and newest small boat harbors; the Meadowlark Country Club is adjacent to us, a new shopping center, with a major market, is within walking distance of most of our community's homes. There are grade schools within the community with children walking to school on streets engineered for their maximum safety; a new high school will be located adjacent to Huntington Village; and the new immense Douglas Aircraft Co.'s research and development center is to be built within one mile of us.

To visit the model homes from Long Beach, drive east on Seventh St. to Golden West, turn right to Edinger, right on Edinger to Springdale, then left a short distance.

Homes for Retired Are Now Selling

The third unit of Sun Park Retirement Homes was opened recently in Hemet.

Constructed by Frazar Brothers, Inc., experienced builders, these are custom quality homes that invite comparison. Home buyers today are finding great differences in the quality of location, design, construction, total costs and other factors of great importance to those selecting homes for their retirement years, a spokesman says.

Results of research showing a preference by those of retirement age for smaller communities placed near established cities, the size of Sun Parks has been limited, the most recent having 116 homes. All these homes have access to the recreational area and it is here residents find complete facilities for entertainment and community activities. The air conditioned clubhouse has a kitchen, fireplace, hobby shop, billiard room, and facilities for all forms of indoor recreation and entertainment. Surrounding the clubhouse is a large recreation area with shuffleboard, croquet, and bocci ball courts, barbeques, putting green, and horseshoes as well as a large heated swimming pool.

Located at State and Johnston Sts., just a few blocks from downtown Hemet, the recreation center and three furnished model homes are now open.

Pacific Sands Ideal for Home Near Surf

Home seekers with a zest for California Beach living are delighted with the advantages offered by Pacific Sands, a private residential community located just one minute from the ocean in Huntington Beach, according to Ben Deane, speaking for Deane Brothers and N. J. Brock and Sons, builders of the homes.

In further describing the homes Deane stated, "The homes offer luxury items such as mahogany paneling in the living room, wall-to-wall carpeting, sliding glass doors, birch cabinets in the kitchen, oversize two-car garages, some with boat doors, and many other quality features not usually found in the Pacific Sands price range.

• • • •

"THE MOST outstanding and eagerly awaited feature of the development is the Pacific Sands Cabana Club and Community Recreational Area which will be opened in early July. The Cabana Club features an Olympic-size swimming pool, tennis courts, children's playground, shuffleboard, cook-out facilities and a spacious Clubhouse for meetings, dancing and parties. It's Reigning Dads and Dogs

So you're thinking of getting a dog! Sounds simple, doesn't it? And maybe it is if you don't give a thought to tomorrow.

But if you're an apartment dweller, you're liable to find that the cute pup of today becomes the ponderous behemoth that threatens to crowd you right out of your home tomorrow.

Or that the equally cute-pup the boys expected to bound over your ranch acreage with them as they hunted rabbits, turns into a timid, 10-inch prancing little darling as an adult. So a little discretion now may lead to a happier situation in the family a few months hence.

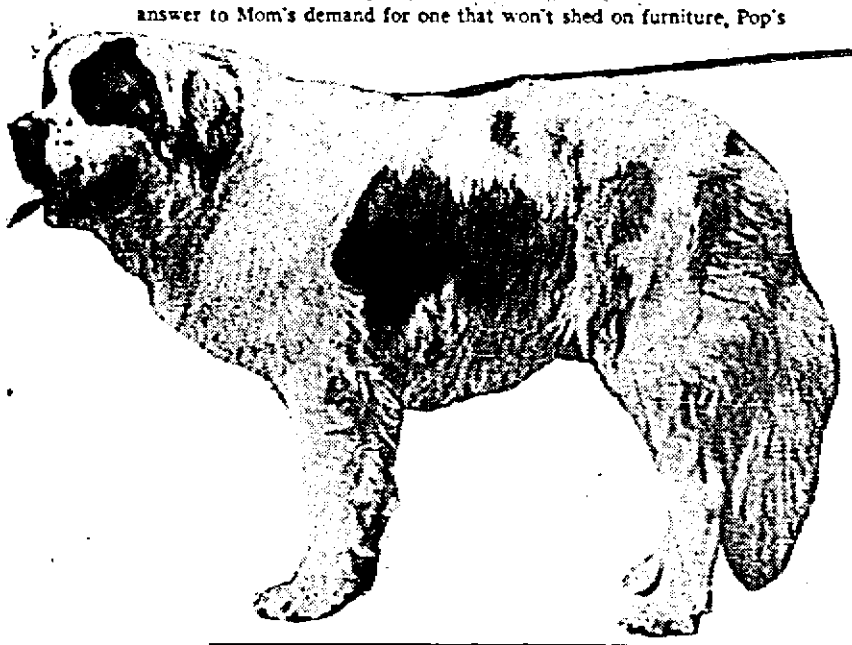

What do you do? Of course you might go from dog owner to dog owner asking questions. You might, that is, if you had nothing else to do for a couple of months. There are more than 100 different breeds of dogs on the American Kennel Club rolls.

Well, then, how DO you go about finding a dog that combines the answer to Mom's demand for one that won't shed on furniture, Pop's desire for a hunting companion, Junior's wishes for one that will romp with him and sister's hopes for a cuddly playmate?

• • • •

ON THIS FATHER'S DAY, as Dad and the family ponder the problem, Long Beach dads have the easy answer . . . and the one recommended by the professionals. They can plan to go to a dog show and do the job right.

Next weekend (June 23-24) brings the second largest dog show in the United States to Long Beach. Some 2,500 prize blueblooded dogs of at least 90 different breeds will be on hand at the 27th annual Harbor Cities Kennel Club all-breed dog show and obedience trials.

Independent-Press-Telegram
Women
LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JUNE 17, 1962 SECTION W

Show site will be 15 acres adjacent to Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

So going to the show, we thought, solved the problem without further ado . . . but quickly found it still isn't as simple as that. "To do the job really right," frowned our old-pro consultant, "there are some things you first must know. Otherwise you're liable to get awfully confused."

• • • •

THE DOG WORLD is divided into six parts. The names of the six alone permit a quick preliminary job of elimination.

Under "sporting breeds," for example, come such dogs as pointers, retrievers, setters, spaniels and weimaraners. "Hounds" run the gamut of perhaps 20 varieties, most with hound somewhere in their names.

Then there are "working breeds" encompassing boxers, collies, dobermans, Great Danes, St. Bernards, German shepherds and 20 or so others. The classification "terriers" speaks for itself—more than 20 of them. "Toy breeds," too, hardly need further explanation . . . they're the little fellows of a host of types.

And finally comes "non-sporting breeds" where you encounter bulldogs, chows, Dalmations and several others.

With that as a starting point and a preliminary elimination made, you're ready to advance on the exhibition where the horde of canine aristocrats of every sort, all groomed to the ultimate degree, await you. In the case of the massive Long Beach show, some breeds await you on Saturday, the balance on Sunday.

• • • •

FIRST THING to do is drop by the show superintendent's office and pick up a schedule of judging. At various hours, the dogs of each particular breed enter a show ring and go through their paces for the

THERE'S NO RESISTING Kabu, and happy to be taken in tow by the handsome St. Bernard are Cecil Evans and his daughters Mary, 11, and Gale, 8. These mammoth dogs are famed for life-saving work on Swiss Alps; make wonderful pets, too. This one is owned by Edward McCarthy, Long Beach.

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH Johnny (Champion John William of Cypress, no less) are Attorney Bob Bergmann, daughter, Gretchen, 19 months, son, Christian, 3. They have just learned that although Johnny is officially called a silky terrier, he nonetheless is classified as a member of the toy breeds, information of importance to prospective buyer. Experts on all breeds will answer your questions next weekend during huge Long Beach Dog Show.

SEEING EYE TO EYE, and loving every minute of it, are young dog-shopper David Griffiths, 5, and a golden retriever by name of Young Clyde of Golden Veil, a member of dogdom's sporting breed. OK, Clyde, you've completely captivated Dave, now better turn your charm on the others; Karen, 4, and dad, Dr. Robert Griffiths. Dad looks like he'd go for a retriever but Karen appears doubtful.

LENDING AN EAR is no problem at all for prize winning beagle, field champion Vi Jo's Hardly Able . . . "Abe" for short. Here he demonstrates what a good listener he is as Mottell Peek, his young charmers, Abigail, 4½, and Amanda, 3½, chat with him (Amanda pressing for his attention somewhat). Affable Abe and his brother beagles are classified as hound dogs in canine world.

BEWARE OF THE PUPPIES! They'll steal your heart every time. Then the difficult part comes—choosing between them when each is irresistible. Even the rational approach of science tends to be shaken when a cuddly puppy looks you in the eye. So discovered Robert Henderson, professor of chemistry at Long Beach State College when he held the miniature poodle, L'aprico. His dilemma is shared by daughter Katy, 11, who has succumbed to wiles of silky terrier, Willy. There'll be many other charmers at dog show.

Planning Begins for Deb Ball

Junior League of Long Beach will present 11 outstanding young ladies at its Debutante Ball Dec. 29 in Pacific Coast Club.

Purpose of the deb event is two-fold: to give a gracious family party during the Christmas season and to provide money for Community Trust Fund which finances community service projects sponsored by the league.

Debutantes and their mothers will be honored at a tea in the garden of Mrs. James Wood's home Thursday. Table decorations will consist of pink flowers surrounding a fountain from Venice. Mrs. Harriet Wood will provide background music on the harp.

• • • •

JOINING the honorees and mothers in the receiving line will be Mmes. James Kresl, Junior League president; Donald Wallace Jr., ball committee chairman; James Wood, debutante coordinator, and Clare Hamman, ball coordinator.

Ball precedure and plans were discussed last Friday when presentees and mothers met at a get-acquainted coffee in the home of Mrs. Hamman.

Debutantes and parents are Sharon Elizabeth Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davidson; Bonnie Demler, Mr. and Mrs. Edison J. Demler; Eileen Desmond, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Desmond; Jorie Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Eastwood; Mary Fontana, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Fontana; Carol Jean Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hancock.

Also Patricia Farrell Horan, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Horan Jr.; Kathryn Reed, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Reed; Sandra Ruth Silk, Capt. and Mrs. Francis W. Silk; Sandra Weissker, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Weissker; and Emily Wiltse, Dr. and Mrs. Leon L. Wiltse.

"RELAX, IT'S A BALL—that's all," says Dr. Arthur Buell as he and Mrs. Donald C. Wallace Jr., debutante ball chairman, show two nervous dads of debs-to-be how to pace-out a presentation. Dr. Buell has flurry of Junior League Debutante Ball behind him by a year as his daughter made her debut last December. Daughters of (far right) Capt. Francis W. Silk and Dr. Leon L. Wiltse will make their bow Dec. 29 at Pacific Coast Club. So, to shine as debs' dads, Capt. Silk and Dr. Wiltse are practicing ball protocol. Each will have pleasant duty of escorting daughter.

Dates for Dads and Dogs

judges who, incidentally, are coming here from as far away as Australia, Canada, Mexico and various eastern states.

After judging, the dogs return to their benches and remain on exhibition. When one or another strikes your fancy, jot down the number worn by the handler in the ring. There's a show catalogue in which corresponding numbers indicate where to find him on the benches. The catalogue also gives name of dog, other information.

Don't be timid; go to the benching areas and talk to the dog's owner or handler . . . ask all the questions you like.

The exhibitors expect and welcome such inquiries. These people will probably know where pups can be obtained either immediately or at some future date.

• • • •

IN GENERAL, the toys, terriers and non-sporting breeds will occupy the Saturday show here, with the sporting breeds, hounds and working classifications appearing on Sunday. Both days will have champion parades, obedience trials and numerous other activities.

So there you are and we hope you find just the companion you want. We're strictly neutral. You can criticize the human members of a family, with discretion, and survive as a friend. But say a derogatory word about a dog and you're in trouble! So we hereby solemnly state that we think they're all wonderful up to and including that little fellow down the street without benefit of any pedigree at all.

It's just a case of fitting the family to the dog and the dog to the family.

S.F. Opera Sets L.A. Season

San Francisco Opera will open its 26th Los Angeles season Oct. 26 in Shrine Auditorium with Puccini's "La Boheme." Victoria de Los Angeles, Spanish soprano, will sing the role of Mimi; Marilyn Horne will portray Musetta and Sandor Konya, Rodolfo.

The company has completed casts for the 21 performances of 14 operas to be given.

FROM POLITICS TO P-T.A.

The Mayor Is a Very Busy Mrs.

By MARY NETH

Bellflower's mayor is a Mrs.

A very busy Mrs.

She heads the council (all men), signs the proclamations (about one a week), attends groundbreaking ceremonies and banquets (sometimes two to a day) and still manages to remain (at all times) the picture of calm dignity.

Some might think being a mayor a man-sized job, not Ruth Caruthers. It ties right in with her two main interests: city government,—Bellflower in particular, and civic leadership,—women in general.

For Bellflower she has big plans. Included, a try for the All American City Award.

"It's not so important to win as to enter," says Mayor Caruthers. "It's a fine way of upgrading existing programs and adding new ones.

"The main thing is progress."

• • • •

AND PROGRESS is the key to her interest in women politicos, too. She thinks gals in government are a must for the future.

"We might be further along today if the fair sex had been given a fair chance," she says.

She holds that women are particularly qualified for civic work: tend to be more thoughtful about social welfare, have a seventh sense (in understanding people) that men don't possess.

"But, to win leadership status they'll have to live down lots of pet (male, of course) preconceptions."

Men tend to believe women too talkative, too petty, too willy-nilly for work which takes concentration and stamina.

"Not true," says Mayor Caruthers. And, Bellflower councilmen vote right along with her. In fact, they voted her right into office.

"Here we elect five councilmen and they in turn elect the mayor from among their ranks," she explains.

• • • •

AS MAYOR Mrs. Caruthers will try to see Bellflower, which incorporated in '57, through its transition from a quiet rural area to a boomingly busy city.

And she takes the responsibilities of this gavel wielding work very seriously. "It's not like running a home or a business," she says. "A wrong decision in government affects not few, but many innocent parties."

How did this Mayor Mrs. first get into government?

By dint of lots of civic, social and community work.

"No matter how good your ideas, how well suited you might be to civic office, you can't get in unless you're elected and you can't get elected unless you are known."

• • • •

HER ADVICE to feminine office seekers. "Be a joiner. Become well known as a good worker at the organizational level."

Mrs. Caruthers has done that and more. A schoolteacher for 18 years, she's been active in every facet of community work one could name from P-T.A. to running a business of her own for more than 10 years.

She campaigned on a platform of economy, honesty, and far-sightedness and she's standing firm on just that.

Whether it's throwing the first ball for the Little League play-off or setting up a committee to unsnarl traffic, she's always in there pitching.

Mayor Ruth Caruthers

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

IT WAS A rice and Lohengrin kind of night Saturday and star of the party "show" was Civic Light Opera favorite Betty Burkett. Don't recognize the name? It was Betty Kimber before she and Bill Burkett eloped to Las Vegas.

"Bloom"

After friends were able to get their mouths out of the oh-is-for-surprise position they quickly broke into smiles. Then party plans began with Jessie Lee and Dr. Don Malcolm feting the newlyweds at a cocktail buffet last evening, co-hosted by Jackie and Harvey Waggoner and June and Jim Doherty.

With the guests leaning largely to the talented musical sort, you can be sure the rafters rang with plenty of the old ring-a-ding, ranging from a touch of Mendelssohn to a lot of Rogers and Hammerstein.

KISSIN' cousins of blazing excitement today are LBSC coeds bound for a fabulous summertime trip. Diane Eldred, Kitty McCoy and Melody Carr leave by plane Monday for New York where they'll board a Norwegian ship bound for Copenhagen.

Diane will then fly to Helsinki, where she will be guest of Marja Ryona, Miss Finland in our IBC contest last year and a guest at that time of Diane and her parents, Mae and Cliff Eldred.

Kitty and Melody both have signed up for summer studies at Oslo University. All three of the girls are planning to rendezvous for travels around the continent before they return next fall. Sharon Hunt is flying over June 30 with hopes to join the others for at least part of the summer.

• • • •

AN AROUND the world trip deserves a special bon voyage. For teen-agers Carol and Linda Hancock, a pre-travel highlight was the breakfast party given for them by good friend Roberta Pettit and her mother, Betty (Mrs. George) Pettit last Sunday at Virginia Country Club. The girls, with their parents, Bea and John Hancock, fly to New York to board the S.S. France for Europe. They'll fly, a la Carpenter only closer to the ground, clear around, returning home in September.

• • • •

BEFORE SHE knew what was happening to her Thursday night, Anne Stanley was in the midst of a surprise bon voyage party in her honor. The shindig was arranged by her son and daughter-in-law, Jack and Lee Stanley, to give Anne's trip to Europe (she leaves June 30) a proper sendoff. Guests included Zela and Gene Dodge, who came down from Bakersfield for the affair, Janet MacIntyre of Pasadena (all formerly of Long Beach), Pat and Walt Gilkey, Elizabeth Gibson and Alice Driver.

• • • • •

BOUQUETS to the Long Beach Yacht Club which played gracious host to the many participants from the world of entertainment in last weekend's celebrity golf tournament. And believe thee-me, that doesn't hurt little old Long Beach's reputation one bit with a bunch of people who, if they choose, can be plenty good press agents.

"Famous funsters"

The Yacht Club offered all courtesies of the clubhouse to the visitors and boy, did they take advantage of them!

Saturday night found the club bulging with famous faces. Desi Arnaz took to the drums like a duck to water, spurring on a gala until - closing - hour party. Player-stars and sportswriters who mingled with the regulars included Buddy Rogers, John Payne, Curt Massey, Forrest Tucker, Jerry Wynn, Al Larson, Jack La Laine, Sid Miller and Tony Martinez, to name a few.

• • • •

IT'S A garden party luncheon, see? Being also St. Mary's Hospital Guild's annual installation of officers, it's all a very swish, swank dress-up day for members and most graciously being given in the home of Ferrel (Mrs. Richard) Schug.

So the ladies are sitting there, see, in their Sunday best with everyone being so gay and polite to each other and all when without a word of warning from the weatherman it started to rain pitchforks. Someone forgot to mention about the ladies to the automatic sprinkling system.

Well, you never saw ladies turn into girl athletes so fast in your life with Ferrel fastest of all, racing against the rainbirds to the turn-off point. In fact, she unofficially set a new record for the 15-yard dash. The ladies? Wet. But not madder than.

• • • •

YIKES AND YOWPS!

Have you talked to Fran Cavaliere since her return from St. Louis? She drove back to see daughter, Bunny, graduate from university there, her car packed with her nicest clothes, best jewelry, graduation gifts plus gifts that had been given her, personally.

Well, she parked out front of Bunny's dormitory and ran in to announce her arrival. She wasn't gone more than 10 or 15 minutes but when she returned her car (which had been locked) was bare. Fran stood there with just the wig she was wearing and what she had on. As if that wasn't bad enough, her itinerary included traveling on to Detroit for a bang-up reunion of her sorority's alumnae. Now how could a woman face the old crowd with just a wig and one dress? She couldn't, naturally. There was hasty shopping in St. Louis.

The thieves were seen but not apprehended. At least it was clear that they were teen-age boys; not members of the Shop in Downtown St. Louis or Else Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Durant

FITNESS AFTER FORTY

Boost Strength, Tune Body

By BEN ZINSER

An exercise program that requires only 90 minutes a week can boost your strength and endurance by 175 to 200 per cent in only six weeks a doctor said during a visit to Long Beach.

The program, developed by the Illinois State Medical Society, draws upon the latest research findings relating to exercise, according to Dr. Clement G. Martin, Chicago, medical director of Continental Casualty Co.

Dr. Martin, now on tour of the country to explain his firm's "Fitness after Forty" program, said that a jump rope is the only piece of equipment needed.

• • • •

OLDER PERSONS can safely perform the exercises, provided they start out slowly and not overdo, he said.

"Many of us are killing ourselves with inactivity," Dr. Martin said. "An exercise program such as this can tune up the body and in many instances bring down blood pressure of those with high blood pressure."

The three-point "minimum maintenance of fitness" program employs six exercises to build strength and a jump-rope and running schedule to increase endurance.

The strength exercises include those scientifically known as isometric exercises. They pit one muscle group against another.

• • • •

DR. MARTIN said that the greatest strength gain results from one maximum muscle effort of 30 seconds or less while performing each of the six exercises.

"Each individual should make each exercise strenuous for himself," Dr. Martin continued.

Three times a week is sufficient for the performance of these exercises (see cuts), Dr. Martin said. However, five times a week is preferable.

At the outset, strength will increase at the rate of 5 per cent a week.

The rest of the program calls for five minutes of jumping rope three days a week plus 20 minutes of running.

• • • •

A FREE BOOKLET tells how to work up to 20 minutes of running at a time, and also describes the exercises in detail. It also explains how to tell whether or not you're exercising too strenuously.

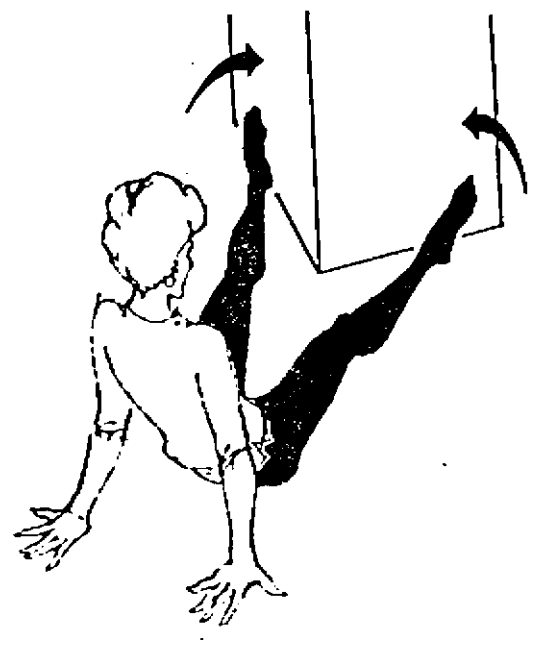

Dr. Martin said the pamphlet, "Fitness After Forty," may be obtained by writing Continental Casualty Co., 310 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Dr. Martin says that exercise, combined with good nutrition and periodic medical examinations, can increasse longevity. As for diet, he recommends the eating of less meat, more fish and poultry and more unsaturated fats (vegetable oils).

HANDS AGAINST HANDS

To develop upper chest, hold interlocked hands at chest level with arms up and elbows straight out. Push as vigorously as you can. Then reverse the direction and pull as hard as possible.

FEET AGAINST WALL

Sit on floor before door, attempt to push out jamb with feet, letting structure resist. Shift to a corner with one foot on either side of wall (right). Pull legs together, letting structure resist.

Convention Is Scheduled

Long Beach chapters of Kappa Delta Phi, non-academic sorority, will attend its national convention at Hotel Fort Des Moines, Des Moines, Iowa, Thursday.

Members attending from Eta Alpha Chapter will be Mmes. Gordon Gann, national vice president and candidate for national president; Germaine Harris, D. R. Jackson and W. R. Martin. Mrs. Claude Vatter will represent Eta Pi Chapter.

Mrs. Earl Parker

Legion Unit Will Install

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Path Is Boulder Strewn

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school junior and am in love with a 19-year-old boy. He says he loves me and wants to marry me as soon as I finish school. The only things stopping us are age, religion and money. I am Catholic and he is Jewish. His parents are so mad at him they don't even want to meet me, and mine are also against our marriage. He still doesn't know what line of work he is going to follow, but can get most any kind of selling job because he has a nice appearance and a gift of gab. Do you think we have a chance of making a go of marriage?—SUE (not my real name)

ABBY

DEAR SUE: If you and your boy friend are two in a million, you can make it. But I'd advise you to WAIT! Neither one of you is equipped for marriage. And money, and the blessings of your parents are very important.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for three years and I feel like nothing but an unpaid housekeeper. When we go grocery shopping, I sit in the car and my husband goes in with the grocery list. I am not allowed to have a milkman or a bread man. I haven't been to a beauty parlor since we've been married. Abby, what's a woman supposed to do when she looks like a sheep dog and is kept practically bare footed?—BLUE

DEAR BLUE—A man who keeps his wife broke, looking like a sheep dog and practically bare-footed is sick upstairs—and a woman who holds still for this kind of abuse is sicker than he is.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor and I have a complaint. Every week-end two religious fanatics come to our doors and try to preach to us. They have magazines and pamphlets and they want us to stop everything and let them read to us from the Bible. Now we have nothing against these people or their religion, but why do they try to preach to the people who have their own religions and are not interested? We've tried telling them in a nice way that we haven't time, but this doesn't seem to discourage them. Then next week another pair comes and we have the same thing to do all over again. What can we do?—ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: They are probably sincere people who are dedicated to their religion and want to spread the gospel. If you tell them frankly that you are not interested, you will not be bothered again.

• • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO "N": Don't be naive. A man doesn't have to travel to stray. If he's so inclined, he can manage it on his lunch hour.

Vicki's in Good Form—Fashion, Too

She 'n Skis Fly Off to Japan

By Mary Ellis, L P-T Fashion Editor

TEEN-AGE VICKI VAN HOOK, shown during slalom course run, is holder of 12 national, two international water ski titles. She began skiing at age of 8; at 18 is traveling to Japan to give instruction to Nippon skiers.

By MARY ELLIS
L P-T Fashion Editor

About-to-be-18 Vicki Van Hook is going places in the world. Again, that is.

This time to Japan. And with water skis yet.

But this is par for the slalom course. Vicki's been going places on skis since 11, when she won her first title (national trick ski champion) during competitions at Lakeland, Fla.

That, of course, shattered a record—quite a few skiers, too. She was youngest femme ever to swish off with that—or most any—national title.

Now, 12 national and two world championships and 350 trophies later (she was woman's world champion at 15 — another record), Vicki is off to demonstrate her prowess to would-be champions on the other side of the world.

• • • •

QUITE A FEAT—and treat—for a teen-ager who just this week received her high school diploma during commencement exercises at Poly High.

And what an outgoing way to commence after-high-school days . . . with a flying trip to Japan just three days after graduation.

How did she ski jump into such an international opportunity?

It all started last summer at the VII World Water Ski Tournament when Vicki met Kimiko Shiba, a member of the Japanese team. The two girls became fast friends and through this friendship came the invitation for Vicki to visit Japan, where she will instruct boys and girls in the techniques of water skiing.

Vicki's instructing—to take place at Lake Hakone, near Mt. Fugi—will be in anticipation of the VII World Water Ski Tournament scheduled for August, 1963, in France.

Also, Vicki and 28-year-old Kimiko, who has given up her job, as she says, "to go tripping for the summer with Vicki," will tour major cities of Japan with several of the country's top boy skiers to put on water ski exhibitions.

• • • •

AND NOT ONLY will teen-age Vicki be in good form ski-wise . . . she'll be in good style fashion-wise.

Fact is, she's probably set another record—this one unofficial. The Long Beach teen-age ski whiz is possibly the only globe-trotter who ever toted 20 swimsuits on a plane trip.

She figures they should cover the situation adequately—since she wears out 15 a season.

All were fashioned by Mary Ann DeWeese, California swimwear designer, who scissors a fashion-with-function suit expressly engineered for the rigors of water skiing.

Suited to a "T" (or ski), Vicki's swimwear lineup includes several show suits, including an ultra gold mylar lastex, an all-velvet model, and one of white lace accented with rhinestones.

Also, she took along 10 handsome DeWeese beach towels (a gift from the City of Long Beach), three sun dresses (she plans to buy more daytime clothes in Hong Kong) and several pairs of capris.

• • • •

MEANWHILE, on the now-quiet B. E. Van Hook homefront, 4157 Gardenia Ave., the family (mother, father and children—Roger, 19, Sunday, 16, and Yvonne, 12) is recuperating from an action-packed week of getting Vicki graduated and sent off to Japan.

Mrs. Van Hook, reflecting on past ski trips taken by her talented daughter, noted that "wardrobes are pretty important when you're traveling to another country."

She cited an example: "When Vicki went to Milano, Italy, for the world championships in 1959, she lost one of her bags. Besides swimsuits, the only thing she had to wear was a blouse and a pair of walking shorts which, unfortunately, exposed her knees.

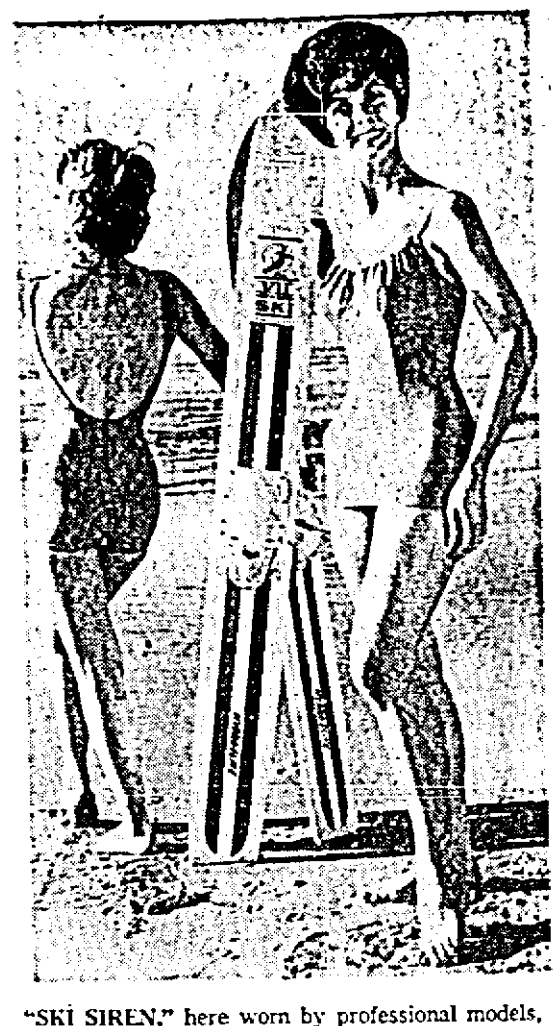

"And for street wear in Italy, that's against the law. A fact which Vicki found out—in no uncertain terms—when accosted by the police

"Thereafter, she draped herself in a bath towel, from waist to ankles, when going to and from competitions."

Most forelorn of the Van Hook stay-at-home clan is Vicki's dog, Kookie.

He's keeping vigil in Vicki's Hillman (bought with revenue from her TV commercials), waiting for his mistress to take him shopping—an every-night ritual to buy the gum-chewing canine his supply of chewing gum.

But doggone and chop-chop: she's gone skiing again!

"SKI SIREN," here worn by professional models, is suit designed by Mary Ann DeWeese for all active water sports—from skiing to surfing to serious swimming. A lastex princess sheath, suit has unique stretch-strap, which rims scooped neckline and plunging back, also keeps boneless inner bra securely in place. Its name inspired by Long Beach ski champ Vicki Van Hook, "Ski Siren" comes in round dozen colors, including pastels, brights, black and white. Local skier has taken 20 DeWeese suits, all identically cut but in a variety of colors and fabrics, on ski trip to Japan.

After a Fashion

Vicki's Tips for Tyros

For the novice water skier, Vicki Van Hock has a few important bits of advice:

1. Be sure to have a competent "boat driver." Even a good skier can be dunked by a person not accustomed to towing a skier.

2. As to type of water skis the beginner should have, this depends on person's height and weight, also the type of boat used. Example: behind an outboard motor boat, the skier needs a wider ski.

3. Most common mistake by tyros is the tendency to pull too hard on the rope. Result: a prompt spill.

4. In the proper position, the skier's knees are bent, the ski tips lifted a bit, the arms are straight forward.

Marvin Miller expects summer students at Long Beach State to ask him, "Where's my check?"

Everyone else does. And the 30-year veteran of radio, movies and television is happy to oblige. He has given fans more than 100,000 autographed "million dollar checks."

Miller, guest artist in LBSC's summer theater workshop, is best known for his TV portrayal of Michael Anthony, the man who delivers the money on "The Millionaire."

July 17 through 21 Miller will star in LBSC's production of "He Who Gets Slapped," by Leonid Andreyev. In the 1910 Russian drama about circus life, Miller will be the clown whose heart is breaking.

Miller last appeared on a campus stage during his own college days at Washington University in St. Louis. He was working in radio by the time he got his degree in 1934.

MEMORABLE EVENING HONORS VISITING CRITIC

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Recently I had the privilege and honor of being invited for dinner with three Los Angeles music critics in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willem P. Hasselman. The hosts were honoring the music critic from Rotterdam, Holland, Eugene Eberle, who was in Los Angeles attending the Los Angeles International Music Festival. Hasselman is the Consul General of the Netherlands in Los Angeles. The whole occasion was like going back to the old world in Europe where I lived for eight years.

One would never suspect that in the heart of Los Angeles is a private park of some 75 mansions. Quiet and elegant, the atmosphere here is far removed from the immediate noisy environment.

Arriving at the appointed hour of 7:30 we mounted the steps, lighted with torches on either side, to the house that looked like a young Versailles. We entered the enormous drawing room where already the guests were laughing and chatting. Our host soon joined us and told us something of his life.

• • • •

"THE NAME Hasselman is German and originally our family came from Germany," he said, "but for four generations we have lived in Holland."

His grandfather owned a coffee planation in Java and that is where Hasselman was born.

"I love the Orient," he said, "and when I retire I want to live in Japan."

In his professional diplomatic life, Hasselman has lived all over the world.

"Our son, now 21 and a student at Columbia University, is a naturalized American citizen," he said. "He visits Holland frequently, but he prefers the wide open spaces of America."

Mrs. Hasselman joined us and we learned that she is a pianist and a painter. A charming woman, she enthused about Southern California, the Los Angeles International Music Festival and Americans in particular. The beautiful original oil paintings on the walls were mostly by Dutch artists.

• • • •

"MY HUSBAND and I rattle around in this huge house," she said. "On the third floor is the ball room which will accomodate 150 dancers.

She regretted we had brought no music as she loves to accompany singers, especially in the songs of Brahms, Schubert and Schumann.

Dinner was announced and 15 guests were escorted by our host to the beautifully appointed dining room. The long table, glistening with cut glass and silver, was a nostalgic reminder of the European days. Two huge silver candelbra flanked a gorgeous centerpiece of cut flowers. Eberle admired particularly an exquisite sailing ship of silver with masts of mother of pearl which was on the table.

• • • •

TWO MAIDS served the dinner while the butler served the wine. As I glanced at the fish knife and fork at the top of my plate I was glad of my European experience. I was at no loss as to how to apply them to my cold lobster and shrimp with mayonnaise, the first course. Then came oxtail soup, and I bet I was the only critic who knew what it was! In huge silver platters came filet mignon with tiny new potato balls, even tinier French peas, green beans and broiled mushrooms. And, oh, the dessert! Lemon chiffon pudding in the shape of an angel food cake was smothered with whipped cream and luscious red, ripe strawberries.

After this sumptuous repast, our genial host arose and in a well-worded speech welcomed us, in the name of music and in the name of the Netherlands. (I was dismayed that none of my countrymen responded.)

European-like, the men retired for smoking and liqueurs, while the ladies went back to the drawing room for liqueurs and coffee until the men rejoined us. It was an evening I shall long remember.

Amati Quartet to Play at Musical Arts Installation

The Amati String Quartet will present a concert for Musical Arts Club installation dinner Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Supper Room, Lafayette Hotel.

Clayton Barrie has been re-elected as president. Others to be installed are Margaret K. Woodruff, Rose Ann Wood Johnson, Ferne Branstetter, Adelgathe Morrison, Ethel B. Fleming, Thelma Paynter, Margaret Jameson, Elinor Knox, Aren C. Zahl, Frances R. Davis, Arthur Carah, Mrs. Oliver G. Boyd and Elizabeth R. Derry.

IZORA BRANDT, program chairman, has arranged for the appearance of the Amati quartet. Members are Richard Leshin and Shirley Marcus, violinists; Maxine Johnson, violist; and Harold Schneier, cellist.

The group, formed in 1955, is widely known for its concerts and recordings. Each musician is an artist in his own right and has filled principal positions in leading symphonies. The quartet is especially acclaimed for the performance of works by Haydn, Mozart, Debussy, Bartok and Bordin.

L.B. Tenor Competes for Award

Tenor Robert O. Day, 27, of 7071 Olive Ave., is competing against 18 other vocalists in regional auditions being conducted by Young Musicians Foundation in its 1962 competition for the state's best young pianist, vocalist, string player and composer.

Also competing from this area is soprano Joanne Lathrop, 26, of 10661 Woodbury Road, Garden Grove.

The three-day auditions close today in Schoenberg Hall, UCLA. Two winning pianists, vocalists and string players will compete against five finalists chosen in Northern California regionals. Statewide finals will take place Saturday in Schoenberg Hall. The panel of judges will include such famous musicians as violinist Jascha Heifetz, cellist Gregor Piatigorsky, who is the foundation's honorary president, violist William Primrose and singer Rosa Raisa.

'West Side' Will Open Run June 28

The award winning New York musical, "West Side Story," will open June 28 at Frank Sennes' Moulin Rouge, Hollywood.

Chita Rivera, who created the role of Anita in the original Broadway company, will be starred, as will Carla Alberghetti in the role of Maria.

Leonard Bernstein composed the musical score and Arthur Laurents wrote the book for "West Side Story."

The policy of the Moulin Rouge will be that of theater-restaurant, with the price of admission including dinner and show. Performances will be nightly at 9 o'clock, except on Saturdays when shows will be given at 8:15 and 11 p.m. The house will be closed on Mondays.

Curtain at 8

"And Quiet Flows the Don," epic Russian film based on Mikhail Sholokhov's classic novel, will be shown on Bay Theater's Curtain at 8 series Tuesday through Thursday.

The color film is being distributed at the request of the U.S. Department of State in connection with its cultural exchange agreement with the Soviet Union.

Palos Verdes Group Show Is Stimulating

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Palos Verdes Community Arts Association has an elegant group snowing by three painters and a sculptor. The exhibit will continue through June 28. While each brings to his work an entirely different approach, all are in contemporary idiom and live happily together in the large, one-room gallery.

Roger Williams' sculptures are on pedestals in the middle of the room. He works primarily with shaped sheets of aluminum soldered together. One piece is of patined brass sheet (attached with screws) and one is done with small welded bronzed rods. Except for the latter, all of Williams' works enclose space with no open areas within the sculpture. They are vertical, between 2 feet and 3 feet high, but do not resemble persons, rather they seem to be a wide variety of abstract baroque and complex ideas.

While several sculptors are working in sheet aluminum, and it is certainly a material identified with contemporary life, it seems cold to me and is a poor conveyor of light and shadow, which are the basic elements of sculpture.

• • • •

JO WERTS covers canvas with carefully-painted random areas of color related in size, harmony, and key. "Color Composition," for instance, is all yellows and reds with a touch of complementary blue. The effect is bright and happy, whereas "Musical Composition" in turgid reds, greens, and blues conveys a feeling of deep involvement.

Lillian Miller does portraits, profoundly expressive of personality. "Regression" looks like a nasty little child who has gotten himself in a corner. "Blonde" is a 12-year-old girl in the agony of being the center of attention with no self-assurance of being either child or woman. These highly-glazed and skillfully drawn portraits are most attractive and provocative.

• • • •

WARREN Monahan is abstract on a monumental scale. Several of his works concern a canyon, going into, being in, or coming out of same. "Thru Titus Canyon" is mostly black, with a pattern suggesting squares across the bottom, and three circular blobs within the black area; these are tan. "Into the Canyon" is the most powerful, with bright red and purple areas against neutral tones. Monahan harks more to the "New York School" or Motherwell than to types of approach usually found in the West.

This group show is very challenging, cerebral, and alive.

El Camino to Stage 'Teahouse'

"Teahouse of the August Moon," will be El Camino College's summer theater workshop production, announces Fred West, director. Performances are slated for 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. July 27.

Registration is scheduled Monday and Tuesday for the College's Summer Community Choir, which Crist Mikkelson will direct. The class, open to anyone who enjoys work in choral music, will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m. June 20 to Aug. 1.

Boys Chorus to Sing Out in 'Carmen'

Ten boys, most of whom have never set foot on a theatrical stage, will dress as street urchins and join voice with some of the finest professional singers in the world, in the Festival of Opera presentation of "Carmen," Aug. 24 and 25, at Laguna's outdoor Irvine Bowl.

The boys, who range from 10 to 14 years, will comprise an All-Boys Chorus and be on-stage some 15 minutes, often singing right along with such New York Met Opera stars as soprano Margaret Roggero and tenor William Olvis, "Carmen's" leads.

Sounds tough? That's not half of it. Bizet's "Carmen" is sung in French. None of these boys speaks a word of French. Nor do they sight read music. Not one of them knows what musicians call "note value." But—according to chorus master Doris Shields, who is not only teaching the boys their roles but is tutoring them in phonetic French at the same time—they all have "exciting" voices. Mrs. Shields expects her chorus to be one of the high spots of the Festival's "Carmen."

Ticket information for the following productions of "La Traviata," Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, and "Barber of Seville," Sept. 7 and 8, may be obtained by writing the Festival of Opera, 650 Broadway, Laguna Beach.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

McCook Cooks Up a Quickie

By Mildred K. Flanary
L.P.T. Food Editor

That vague facial expression isn't due to the fact that Nelson McCook Jr. is cooking, but because he'd just learned the stock market had dropped a cool sixty-million, and that the Harbor Department and World's Fair committee were doing a bit of fancy sparring. Today's Chef of the Week is usually a happy mixture of thoughts of past and present.

He has combined ideas from Long Beach of the past with its potential for the future, and the results have been accumulative. With courage and fortitude to spare, McCook has assumed the presidency of the International Exposition for Southern California, Inc., which will be responsible for the proposed 1966 World's Fair to be held in Long Beach.

Genuinely civic minded, and known as "one of the nicest guys in the world", McCook has been a source of strength for the City of Long Beach.

• • • •

WITH A fashion for smoothing out rough edges, the faculty for understanding people, and being big enough to do the little extras, he had done an excellent job as chairman of Long Beach Economic Development Committee. Through its combined efforts, new businesses are given the red-velvet-welcome.

That his interests have paid dividends, is evidenced by his having won the John Paul Jones award for most outstanding work in the membership department, Downtown Long Beach Associates. The presentation was made at its installation last week.

Vocationwise, McCook keeps busy, too. He's vice president and director of the First National City Bank of Long Beach and manager of the McCook Investment Co., as well. He, with his late father and brother, Fonda, organized the bank in 1948.

• • • •

BORN IN Sumner, Iowa, he moved here with his family in 1918. A graduate of Poly High, class of '27, he is well remembered as captain of its golf team, and for his "divine" Olds convertible, which he drove sans top and with hair a-flying. To return to golf a moment — he was champion of Virginia Country Club in 1934, and his love for the game has remained paramount ever since.

The University of Oregon and Southwestern University Law School both preceded his entry into the Fourth Air Force in World War II.

Once back on terra firma, however, he was made administrative assistant, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, handling surplus military real estate. In this capacity, he negotiated for the sale of "Victory Pier" to the City of Long Beach through the Harbor Department.

A past director of Long Beach Realty Board, McCook is currently first vice president of the Independent Business Mens' Organization. Active in the Chamber of Commerce, he is outgoing treasurer, Downtown Long Beach Association.

A member of the Pacific Coast and Virginia Country Clubs, he also belongs to Mounted Police, American Legion Post 445, and Beta Theta Pi Alumni Association.

THOUGH not in any sense a kitchen pioneer, according to his wife, Dorothy, our "chef" is one of those rare individuals who IS a big help in the kitchen—even to the clean-up detail.

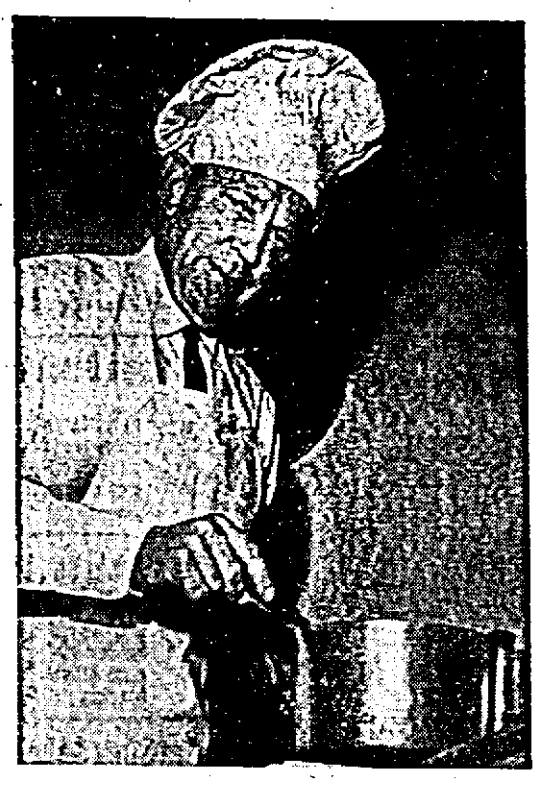

He has a mania for polishing things — anything. Gets completely carried away with it. Apparently it all started in the Air Force when he began polishing brass.

Simply mad about cheese, his imagination knows no bounds when it comes to dreaming-up new ways for using it. Today, the dream resulted in Cheese Soup.

CHEESE SOUP

1 medium onion
1 small can green chiles chopped
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 tsp. oregano
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
1 cup grated mild yellow cheese
2 tblsp. corn oil

Fry onions and chile peppers in oil until the onions are soft. Add tomatoes and simmer. Add two cups water and bring to a boil. Add parsley and oregano, simmer for 5 to 10 minutes. Grated cheese is put into individual soup bowls, about ¼ cup to a serving. Add hot soup mixture and serve. Quick and SO good!

Sly Defense Upsets Bid

Here is a hand from the Silodor-Tierney book which shows what deceptive defense can do to upset a declarer.

Silodor points out that North's two club Stayman bid was wrong. He should have jumped right to three no-trump with his 4-3-3-3 distribution.

South ducked the first heart, but had to take the continuation. Most declarers would go right over to dummy to take the diamond finesse, whereupon they would wind up with 10 easy tricks and possibly 11 if they played exactly right.

• • • •

THIS particular South decided that he might not have to try the diamond finesse at all. The queen of spades might drop, so South cashed his ace and king and sure enough East dropped the queen. Now South could count on four spade tricks so he led the deuce and finessed dummy's nine. East produced the 10 spot together with the remark, "I just found it among my clubs." Back came a heart and another game bit the dust.

I want to add my fervent amen to Silodor's remark that North should not have used Stayman. When your partner opens no-trump and you have 4-3-3-3 distribution there is a good chance that you will make as many tricks in no-trump as in a 4-4 major fit and if you don't find that fit, you will help the defense. Thus, East knew surely that South did not have four spades and felt safe in making his brilliant play on the second spade lead.

Time and Money Savers

What's new? Lots of new items to save time and money.

The following are on the market or headed that way. Our favorite: the grocery goods calculator. A nifty way to compute costs—and save.

Under $1

Any old line won't do these days. Not where the girls are concerned. They'll take a line that isn't a line at all — it's a translucent sewing thread. This nylon thread solves many problems. No longer does the harried housewife have to go on that last-minute, frantic search for thread of the right color. Translucent thread's always right — it blends with the fabric.

For the most for the (grocery) money—calculate. Purse-size dial translates puzzle of fractions-of-ounces versus price-per-pound. Even those who balk at supervising a first-grader's homework will find it easy to use.

In canned goods, it shows instantly whether value offered by large economy size is really better than jumbo or king size. Shows which of two brands packaged in odd sizes is better buy. Also, gauges price comparisons for items weighing between two ounces and eight pounds and costing a dime and a dollar.

It's must in these days of misleading packaging and high-powered advertising. Now, at last you'll really know if you're getting a bargain. Dial, only 4 inches in circumference, is flat and easy to carry.

Preparing children's clothes for camp? Gluing name tapes to clothing with new liquid fabric mender is speedier than sewing, just as permanent, and adhesive does not change "feel" of the fabric. Name tapes affixed in this fashion will withstand repeated washings and ironings. Also, useful in mending children's clothing, upholstery in homes and autos and for reinforcing garments.

This is "Sweetpea" (Sitzmark's Moan'a Lisa), a one-hound welcoming committee to the big Harbor Cities Kennel Club show and obedience trial scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday at Municipal Auditorium. "Sweetpea" is also one of the famous Beck's Bassets that rocketed their owner to fame in national magazines, on post cards, and on TV. Five years ago, Rosemary Beck of Cucamonga dashed off some puppy names on the back of a tomato soup label in a contest and won a basset hound puppy as second prize. A few bassets later, Rosemary acquired a camera. Before she started snapping she read that Walter Chandoha, famous animal photographer, advised an electronic flash and a speed of 1/500 of a second in order to freeze motion. Giving her bassets a loving look, Rosemary thought, "What motion?" and proceeded to photograph with three floodlights and a speed of 1/60. For more about Sweetpea and her pal, Smiley, turn to Page 7.

More and more landlubbers are learning the difference between port and starboard, and the water traffic is becoming terrific as boating gains in popularity by leaps and bounds. Mooring space (that's "parking" to landlubbers) is growing scarcer and scarcer. This is the seagoing situation as Southland sees it next week in "Give a Man a Ship He Can Sail."

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: would you give a brief genealogy on HODSON—G.H., W.H., Long Beach.

G.H., W.H.: HODSON was formed from Hodge, a nickname for Roger. The ancient English warrior title Roger meant "Famous spearman." William Hodson, a descendant of the primary ancestor, "Hodge-son," was a Yorkshire land owner in 1379. This family's coat-of-arms, granted in Cambridge in 1590, has a golden chevron placed between three flying golden falcons or hawks on a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the source and shield on MEANS. — Mrs. J.T., Long Beach; A.P., Compton.

J.T., A.P.: MEANS has been the object of extreme spelling changes ever since this family's proud and valiant forefather arrived in England with William the Conqueror in the 11th Century. This gentleman was known as Judael de Mayenne, the owner of a baronial castle and large tracts of land in northwestern France. His surname "De Mayenne" was taken from the River Mayenne; the river name in turn was from the Latin word "magnus" meaning "great." The Sire de Mayenne was awarded a large estate in Devonshire by William the Conqueror. He became an important English baron. The surname was subsequently shortened to Mayn, Meyn, and by the 1500s it became Means. The family shield is red, emblazoned with two red horseshoes as emblems. The American Means family ancestors came from north Ireland to the state of Maine in 1718; they moved to Lancaster County, Pa., in 1720.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze SHEPHERD. — H.S., Long Beach; B.S., San Pedro.

H.S., B.S.: SHEPHERD, Shepard, Sheppard, Sheperd, are all English variants of a surname that originated from the occupation of herding sheep Walter Le (the) Schepherde lived in Cambridge in the late 13th Century. One of the many Shepherd coats of arms symbolized the name-meaning with two gold shepherd's crooks crossed between three silver lambs on a green shield. Edward Shepard of England, whose oldest son John was born in 1627, was among the founders of Hartford, Conn.

DEAR MISS RULE—Have you data on HUGHES?—E.M., Seal Beach.

E.M.: HUGHES, an ancient Welsh lineage, is traced back 32 generations to Roderick the Great, a 9th Century king of Wales. Hughes extended from Hugh, a baptismal name meaning "of brilliant mind." The Hughes coat of arms is that of King Roderick, a black rampant lion centered on a silver shield. Titled branches of this lineage lived in Anglesey and Merioneth, Wales. Descendants were 18th Century residents of Cumberland, Buckingham, and King George Counties, Virginia.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like data on MARTIN.—Mrs. D.F., Paramount.

D.F.: MARTIN originated in France. A nobleman called Martin, whose name was from the Latin word "Martinus" meaning "warlike one," was the owner of estates near Bayeaux, Normandy. After the Norman-French conquest of Britain, he became the owner of estates in Pembroke, Wales. The ancient Martin shield is silver, crossed by two red bars in the center. The family motto is "sure and steadfast." Christopher Martin and his wife sailed from England to Massachusetts on the Mayflower in 1620.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you give the origin of RUIZ. —A.R., Long Beach.

A. R.: RUIZ translates from Spanish as "Son of Ruy." Ruy, a Castilian nickname taken from Roderick, meant "Wealthy and famous one." The Ruiz coat-of-arms, granted in medieval Castile, is a shield divided into four quarters. The upper left and lower right sections are blue with a gold band across the center; the other two sections have a green tree with a black wolf standing before the trunk, on a silver background. Far back in the lineage was the celebrated Spanish poet Juan Ruiz, born in 1283.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the brief genealogy for POWELL.—Mrs. C.C., Long Beach; M. P., Anaheim.

C.C., M.P.: POWELL, a Welsh surname, is a contraction of Ap-Howell, deciphered as "son of the man with the active mind." Ap-Howell is traced to a famous forefather, the Welsh King Howell the Good who ruled from A.D. 916 to 950. The Powell shield is red, emblazoned with a gold rampant lion in the center. New England forebears include Thomas Powell who settled at New Haven, Conn. in 1638.

DEAR MISS RULE: Do you have the origin of DALGLISH. — Mrs. L. S., Bellflower.

L.S.: DALGLISH originated in old Scotland. This name was locational in background, derived from the Scotch-Gaelic phrase "dail-glaise meaning "from the brookfield." The clan coat-of-arms has a green tree placed crosswise between three blue arrowheads on a silver shield, accompanied by the Latin motto "Delicise mei" meaning "My delight."

How to Display Holiday Treasures

By Lorena Fleissig

Shell collectors find many arrangements of interest such as one shell fastened to another by gluing, a natural arrangement; paper weights made with jar lids.

ACQUIRING souvenirs along the way is a great American pastime, shared by children and adults alike. Many Long Beach area youngsters delight in walking along the beaches, picking up shells and stones. Hikes to the mountains also result often in a "harvest" of brightly colored or oddly shaped rocks.

Those who go to the beaches may return with some shells as treasures. Or flat or transparent stones. The desert and mountains have many such treasures.

If you go to both mountain and beaches and have an assortment of rocks and shells, you might think about how you could put them together in a way that would be both decorative and useful. Combining your souvenirs into useful doorstops and paperweights could solve some of your gift giving problems.

FIRST THING to do is to wash your collections with soap and water until they are sparkling clean. Sort them, keeping the small items separate from the larger pieces.

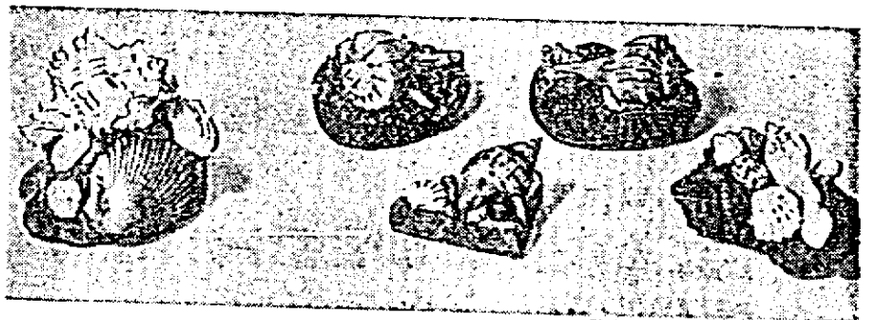

On a flat stone, arrange a shell in the center with smaller shells or stones around it. Experiment until you decide on a good grouping, then lay aside the shells or stones and prepare the stone base with white glue. Over the glue spread a thin web of cotton pushing it down until it is thoroughly saturated. Replace your decorative arrangement, pressing the stones or shells firmly into the gluey cotton. Where areas of cotton show between the pebbles, drop on some grains of fish gravel and a scant sprinkle of glitter. The gold glitter will give the same effect as the gold we see in the sand grains and will add a lot of glamour.

In case your larger stones are rounding, set them on the flattest side. Select smaller shells for a close grouping on the rounded tops of your stones. Use cotton and glue as mentioned. To hold the shells firmly on the top, wrap in foil or wax paper tightly and secure with rubber bands. Give them a week to dry thoroughly.

IF YOU HAVE shells as a reminder of summer fun and they are dull, try covering a shell with pink water color or use yellow color if the shell is slightly yellow. Remove most of the water color until just a delicate tint remains on the shell.

Shells while living in the water, often fasten upon each other and grow together. In copying nature fit two shells together with the larger one as the base. A spiny shell will contrast beautifully with a clam type shell as a base. If the base shell needs to be weighted, pour white glue inside and fill with gravel. Spraying with lacquer will give a translucent brightness and a finished look to your arrangement.

You will probably have many leftovers of shells and small stones and these are quickly made into simple paperweights. Jar or cheese lids filled with glue and cotton will hold groups of interesting objects. Besides the colored shells, add bright sea beans and one or more colored glass marbles, or beads. Finish the outside edge with a strip of paper to cover any printing.

—Photos by Larry Reichner Studio

Shells may also be glued to stones to enhance interest in both types of collections.

Safety Stressed

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

SUMMER is a time of joy in the heart of youth—but it is also a time of hurt and tragedy.

Hundreds of boys and girls will die and thousands more will suffer serious injuries during the next few weeks because they violate common rules of summer safety.

Because of a more congested society and a wider variety of activities, today's youngster is exposed to more dangers in a single day than children of a generation ago experienced in a week.

Help your child develop summer safety habits. Here are some rules that may save his life:

1. Never go swimming alone. Drowning was the cause of one out of every 25 deaths by accident last year. If you can't swim, take lessons from qualified teachers, and don't go into water over your head until you do know how to swim. Whether you are a beginner or an expert, never swim without a companion.

2. Avoid excessive exposure to the sun. Sunstroke and sunburn can be serious, even fatal.

3. Learn boating safety. More and more boats are in use in this country every year—and more and more deaths are occurring at sea and on the lakes and rivers. More than half the fatalities of pleasure boating result from the negligence of the operator and from capsizing. Before you get in a boat, make sure that it is properly equipped and that its skipper knows what he is doing.

4. Make use of available public playgrounds, especially those under the protection and guidance of skilled playground directors. A fenced playground may save a child's life by preventing him from running thoughtlessly into the street in pursuit of a baseball.

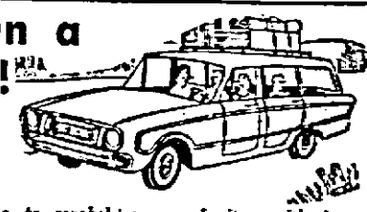

5. Observe bicycle safety rules. Each year hundreds of young bicycle riders are in collisions with motor vehicles. The great majority of these accidents result from traffic violations by the bicycle rider. If your son rides a bike, make sure he knows the rules of the road.

And finally, here is a special reminder:

Make sure your child has received all his polio shots. No child need die or suffer crippling paralysis from polio in today's world. Miraculous immunity, achieved at great expense and by many long years of scientific work, is now available. Give your child the protection medical science now provides at a very reasonable cost.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

IT SHOULDN'T EVEN HAPPEN TO A CAT:

The Basset Blues

By Eleanor Avery Price

FOR GIRLS, it's fun to dress up. For boys, okeh, if it's cowboy suits.

For dogs, some love it, some don't—but for bassets, who knows? They always look so sad, naturally!

And that's the way it is with Beck's Bassets, also known as Sweetpea & Co., as they give their version of the dress-up business, and just a dull day in general. The dogs belong to Rosemary Beck of Cucamonga, photographer and mother of five children. The pictures on today's cover and this page are hers.

Basset owners—members of the Basset Hound Club of Southern California—will have their specialty show next Sunday at the Harbor Cities Kennel Club show and obedience trials at Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. The show is a two-day affair, starting Saturday.

Basset clubbers aim at improving the basset breed. But just how they go about improving a breed that is stacked like a stack of sand with four legs and ears (and what ears!) is a science best left to them. Anyway, they have fun doing it, and the dogs seem to enjoy it. (And should any of the dogs think we're making fun of them, heavens-to-Betsy no! They're beautiful!)

TO GET BACK to the show: Saturday specialties will include Golden State Bull Terrier Club, Western Fox Terrier Breeders Association, United States Lakeland Terrier Club, Scottish Terrier Club of California, Silky Terrier Club of America, and Chow Fanciers Association of Southern California.

Sunday specialists other than bassets will include English Springer Spaniel Club of Southern California, Weimaraner Club of America, American Bloodhound Club, Borzoi Club of California, Sierra Dachshund Breeders Club of Los Angeles County, Irish Wolfhound Association of the West Coast, Rhodesian Ridgeback Club of the United States.

EMERGENCY IN THE SKY:

Trouble Talks . . . in a Soft, Sexy Voice

Out of an 8 pound package of electronics comes a soft, sexy voice to warn Air Force pilots of trouble as they hustle along at twice speed of sound. The sexy voice is that of Gine Drazin, Nortronics secretary, shown with warning tape.

By Ev Hosking

"ANY WOMAN can get anything out of any man at any time she desires." is a quote that has been attributed to many sophisticated ladies from the time of Cleopatra to the present.

Modern electronic engineers, being what they are, seized on the idea, tacked "instantly" to the phrase and proceeded to prove their point.

Their achievement is a soft, feminine voice bottled up in an eight-pound box that today is saving the lives of the pilots of the Air Force's 1,300-mile-an-hour B58 Hustler bomber.

The device, known as VIPS, was developed in the research facilities in Palos Verdes Estates of Nortronics, a division of the Northrop Corp.

VIPS is a highly versatile, compact warning system capable of handling 50 hazard situations by means of pre-recorded warnings.

THESE WARNINGS combine common hazards into single terse statements of malfunction. The messages are recorded by a pretty, vivacious employe of Nortronics.

The Air Force tested the woman-powered warning system against conventional red light emergency signals. It found that pilots averaged 12 seconds reaction to lights and sometimes took as long as a half an hour to notice them.

The sexy voice reduced the reaction time to an average of only three seconds.

It was decided to use the feminine voice for the safety warnings to separate them distinctly from messages being transmitted by the crew.

And the sexy safety device is working very well, according to the Air Force.

Managing 80 tons of aircraft at twice the speed of sound is a full-time job for a single pilot in a multi-engine aircraft.

IN THE B58, for instance, there are 44 inputs to the emergency warning system. The information from these inputs has been transmitted to the pilot by a light warning system.

Such systems have two shortcomings—first, they tend to leave pilot observance and response to chance. Second, should two or more emergencies occur at the same time, they provide no means of classifying the trouble by priority or degree of urgency.

VIPS solves both these shortcomings. It audibly warns the pilot and in the case of multiple emergencies, the most critical is transmitted until corrected. When the correction has been made, the lesser items are automatically transmitted to the crew.

The Air Force points out that the psychological value of the feminine voice warning system should not be overlooked. A pilot is relieved of the strain of monitoring warning lights in addition to his instrument panel and the extra burden to his memory if multiple dangers demand quick decision as to priority of actions. And there is definite comfort in knowing that all crew members will be made immediately aware of any malfunction.

RECENTLY, a B58 was returning to its base following a successful test flight. The crew was faced with rapidly deteriorating weather.

As the pilot started his Ground Control Approach, he told his electronic systems operator to forget about the VIPS they were testing.

A few moments later the pilot heard a female voice say "Left manifold pressure low," followed by "alternator failure," and a few seconds later by "hydraulic pump failure."

Busy with his GCA, the pilot was in no mood for games and told the electronics officer to quit the gags. The electronic officer retorted that this was for real.

The crew, well versed in VIPS operations, had heard the voice before and their emergency procedures were correct and immediate.

A probable accident was averted.

The Federal Aviation Agency has said that it has no plans at present to adapt VIPS for commercial airliners.

Recently, however, an FAA official actually proposed recording the voices of celebrities to use at radio checkpoints.

THE OFFICIAL suggested that a pilot hearing the familiar voice of Bob Hope, Bing Crosby or even Marilyn Monroe would never miss a check point signal.

One commercial pilot, however, pointed out there was a hazard that the pilot might try to loop the 285,000-pound jet after hearing Marilyn's voice.

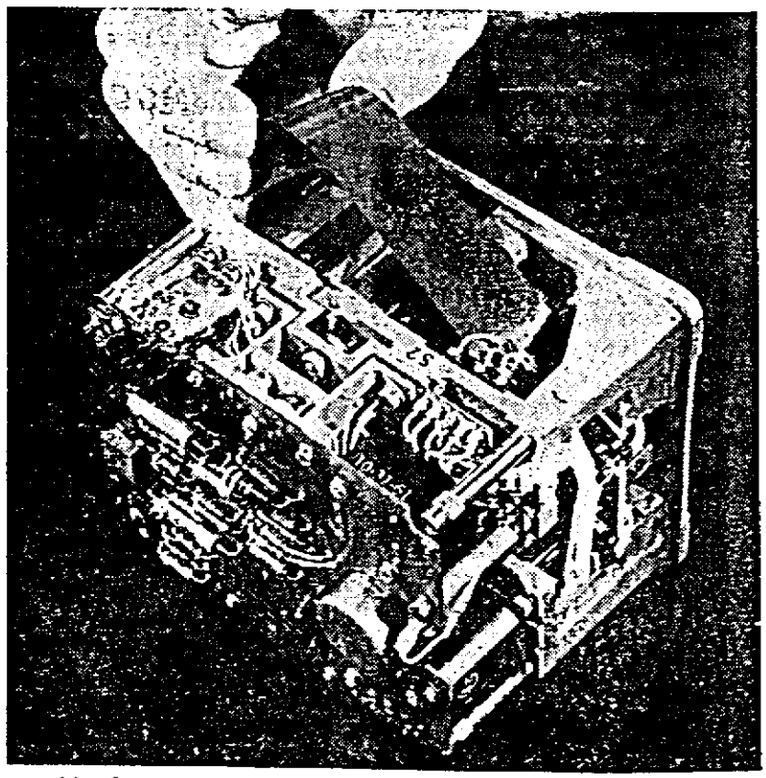

Another, a Douglas test pilot, pointed out that despite the comforting qualities of the soft voice, the gimmick had all the dubious qualities of a back-seat driver.

Airline pilots, although maintaining their blood is just as red as that of their male counterparts in the Air Force, insisted that the device might lead to ridiculous extremes.

"For instance," one said, "the next thing you know, the stewardesses will want their own warnings recorded by Rock Hudson."

Another pilot, a trifle on the cynical side, maintained that it all depended on what woman or women made the recordings.

"You know the FAA," he complained, "we'll ask for Marilyn Monroe and we'll get Zasu Pitts."

It's only a small box but its taped warnings of trouble cover 40 danger situations for the busy pilots of 1,300 mile-an-hour B58 Hustler bombers.

Fairies Frolic for Cinerama

Russ Tamblyn makes friends with two of his fellow actors, a rabbit and a fawn.

CASTLES OF Weikersheim and Neuschwanstein, the quaint walled city of Rothenburg and the Rhine River, come to life as the camera rumbles over cobbled streets, travels on an ancient paddle-wheeler, hops aboard a train for Berlin and careens down a winding mountain road with a runaway coach and four!

These are high, dramatic episodes in "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm," a new Cinerama production which opens Aug. 8 in the Warner Hollywood Theater.

More than five years in preparation, this is the story of Wilhelm and Jacob Grimm, who 150 years ago introduced the folk tale as a literary form. Much of the film was photographed in the Bavarian locales where the brothers gathered their fund of stories.

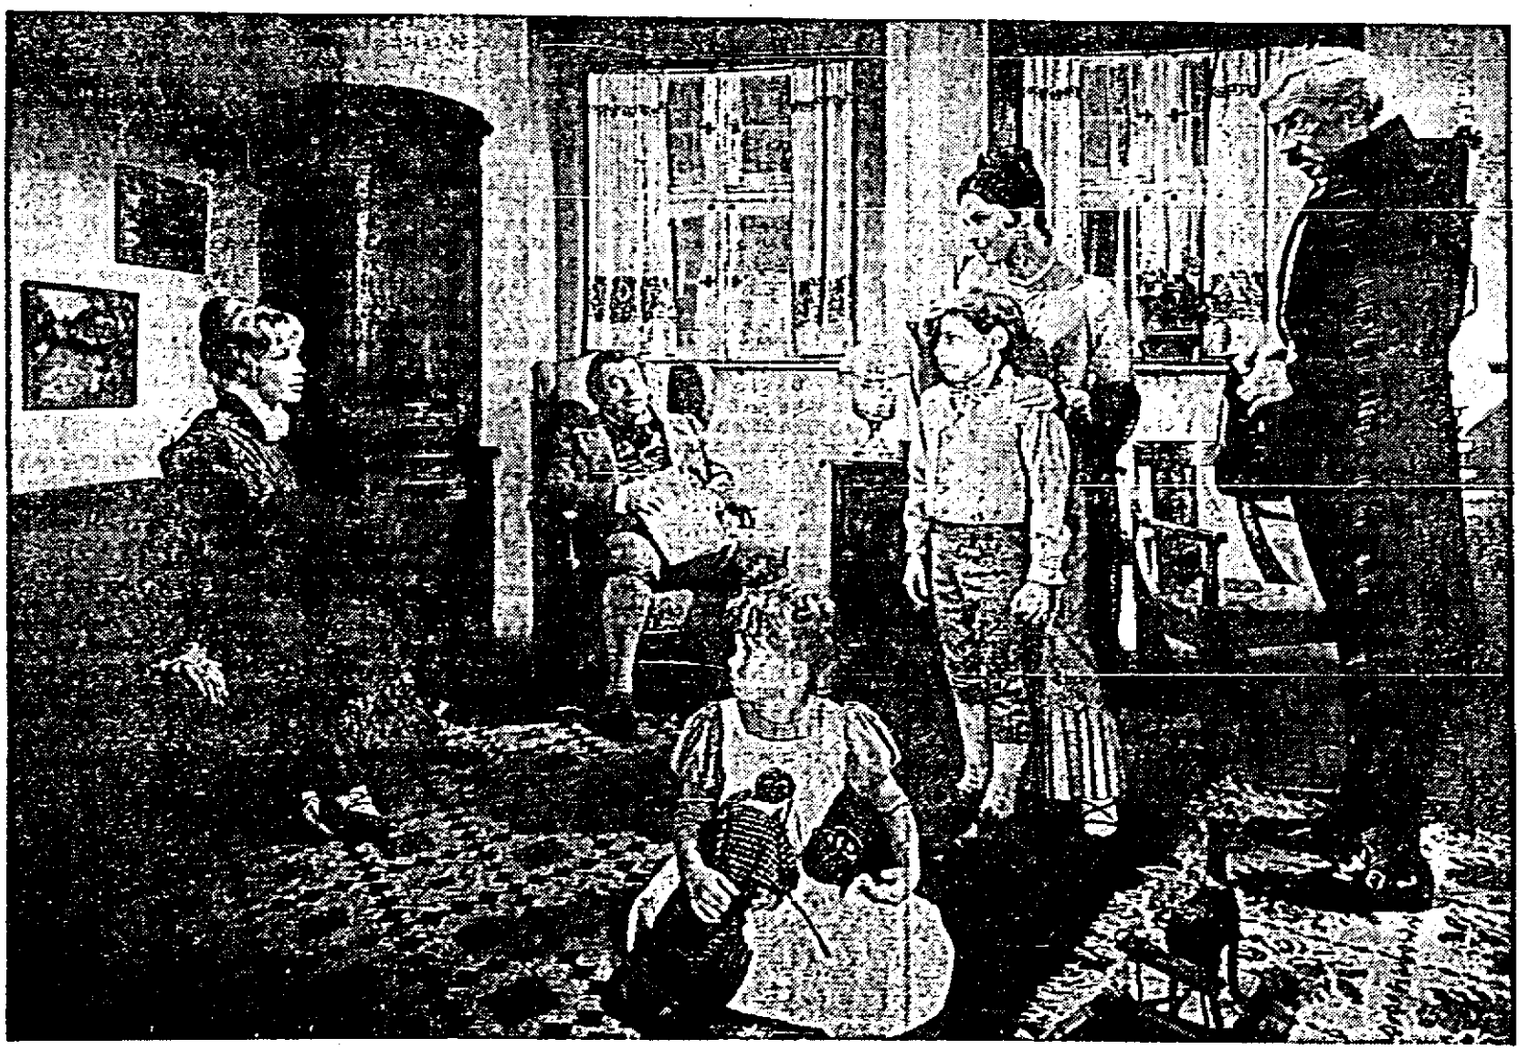

Talents of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Cinerama; George Pal, producer; a great cast and the greatest story-tellers the world has ever known combined to bring this tale to the screen in Metrocolor. Into the biographical and dramatic narrative are woven three of the Grimms' famous stories, "The Dancing Princess," "The Cobbler and the Elves" and "The Singing Bone."

LAURENCE HARVEY, one of the newest and most sought-after leading men in pictures, plays the younger brother, Wilhelm, whose impractical dreaming leads to heartaches as well as eventual literary fame. Harvey comes to this new assignment from "Butterfield 8," "Summer and Smoke" and "A Walk on the Wild Side."

As the family doctor reports on Wilhelm Grimm's condition to the family and friends, this is a scene from MGM's presentation of "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm." Players who are shown here are Barbara Eden, Walter Slezak, Claire Bloom, Tammy Marihugh and Brian Russell.

Taxation's Greatest Dividend

By Virginia Crill

First school built in Long Beach was located on site at the corner of Sixth Street and Pine Avenue in 1886.

FROM THE TIME "Taxation Without Representation" pushed us into the Revolutionary War until today's multibillion dollar national budget through which we are pushing ourselves into space, taxes have always been of primary importance. They provide not only our government upkeep, roads, parks, public buildings and institutions, but the best basis for continual grumbling known to man.

No one agrees with all the uses of the tax dollar, but each enjoys its benefits. If you think the wrong party is in power at the moment you can still travel over tax-built freeways to relax in tax-protected national parks. You can even use your tax-supported education to study present ways of spending money in order to better contest them if you so desire.

There was a time, however, when people not only paid the taxes asked of them, but dipped into private reserves and worked against numerous problems to speed one of our biggest tax dividends on its way. This was in the late 1800s when what is now Long Beach was still a bright, warm pastureland partially bordered by an uncluttered, white sanded "long beach."

THE EARLY pioneers who came to Southern California for a good life determined that their children should have it also. They knew that the quotation, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free" (John 8-32), was as dependable as it was old. So they demanded schools. They paid some of their first and highest taxes for their schools and when this seemed not enough, gave extra time, income and land to speed learning for their youth. Basic educational needs were seen even more clearly then than now for they had no schools and knew that they could have no worthwhile settlement or city without them.

William Erwin Willmore, the founder-promoter of Willmore City—later renamed Long Beach—specifically designated in his 1882 townsite of 350 acres, locations for a city hall, church, park and school. On land overgrown with wild mustard and with squirrels racing everywhere, streets were marked simply by plowing through the yellow-flowered mass. The park which he designated is still the location of Lincoln Park.

But it takes more than a site to start either a city or a school. The first school of this locality actually began in 1885 through the efforts of Mrs. John Bixby and Mrs. W. W. Lowe, who were not satisfied with promises from the county superintendent and supervisors that a school district would be established the following year. With a total budget of $75 they hired Miss Grace Bush, 16-year-old high school graduate, to teach for three months.

OTHER PROBLEMS arose. The first school meeting place was an unoccupied building on the corner of Pine Avenue and Second Street (now Broadway) and, two weeks after classes began, the building was sold. The pupils were then moved to a tent provided by Postmaster W. W. Lowe and set up on the corner of First Street and Locust Avenue.

Any school at all was news in those days, and word of the "tent school" began to spread. The next year (1886) the first school building, a two-story "magnificent" structure was completed and staffed (with tax money as promised by county supervisors) at Sixth Street and Pine where Willmore had mapped it out. It was promptly overcrowded. Settlers were already searching out this beautiful ocean-rimmed town as it spread north, and the over-populated school was too far away for many small feet to walk.

A meeting was called by the trustees to conduct a bond election to build a school in the north end. Once more eager parents speeded the issue. Mr. and Mrs. L. Saunders, owners of a ranch, offered to give a site for the school free, provided it be built at the northwest corner of Hill Street and Atlantic Avenue. The offer was accepted in 1888, the same year Long Beach was incorporated. The school was completed and opened in the spring of 1889 with 30 pupils, and serenaded by the coyotes. It first was named Signal Hill, but renamed Burnett in 1897 in honor of Peter H. Burnett, first governor of California.

LIVING NEAR this school today and still interested in and attending some of its more important functions are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Lewis of 2321 Atlantic Ave. Mrs. Lewis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders who donated the land for the school, was one of its first pupils. She recalls a small but attractive and well-planned building. At recess time boys used to chase coyotes and rabbits in the slough and there were very tall willow trees everywhere for squirrels and other small animals as well as children to climb.

As the city spread up and down the beach and inland it

First classes were held in Long Beach in a store building, believed to be the location that is partially hidden by the wagon at left in this Pine Avenue view in 1886.

You Ask We Answer

By Hanlin

Q. How did Greek warriors hold their big round metal shields? K. G.

A. In the time of Homer, the Greeks used a belt to support the shield. Later, a crossbar of metal or wood or leather was fixed across the inside center of the shield, and a leather thong was nailed around the inside rim so that it formed a succession of loops. The soldier thrust his forearm between the crossbar and the inner surface of the shield, and steadied his hand by grasping one of the leather loops along the inside rim.

Q. What would happen if all insects were destroyed? J. A.

A. The human race would probably soon perish in a world entirely free from helpful as well as harmful insects. Flowering plants, which require cross pollination by insects and make up a large part of our diet, would soon disappear. Stock animals would die from lack of forage. Many waste products normally destroyed by insects would accumulate and breed disease.

Q. How can an organization get a charter from Congress? H. B.

A. A Congressional charter is obtainable only through an act of Congress. A resolution for the passage of this act must be brought through a senator or representative on petition of the parties involved.

Q. Please give the title of the poem that ends, "But is it art?" F. W.

A. This is Kipling's eight-stanza poem "The Conundrum of the Workshops." The first stanza tells of Adam sitting under a tree, scratching with a stick in the mold: "And the first rude sketch that the world had seen was joy to his mighty heart, Till the Devil whispered behind the leaves: 'It's pretty, but is it art?' "

Q. What is the best way to clean pewter? C. A.

A. Since pewter is a soft metal, do not use harsh abrasives or metal polish. To remove tarnish, apply silver polish with a soft brush. While the polish is still wet, add soapsuds and work up a lather of polish and soap. Dry with a flannel cloth, and rub to produce a soft luster. For regular care, wash the pewter in hot soap suds, rinse, and dry.

High, wide and handsome is the 40x20-foot living room in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters. Mrs. Waters gave imaginative touches to the decor. Above right, a view of the interesting exterior.

Imaginative Is the Word

By Stella George

MASTERFULLY planned on an expansive site, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters, 1485 La Perla Ave., has many features on the grand scale. Ed Killingsworth, the architect, created and developed many ideas for the home that are outstanding among things architectural.

An entrance hall has 24-foot ceilings of glass.

The living room measures 20 by 40 feet.

Walls of glass overlook a wide and spacious balcony.

Glass is used wherever possible—above doorways, in the ceilings, in place of walls, and as huge picture windows in smaller bedrooms. Entry hall, living room, master bedroom, and dining room-kitchen area are all on a high, wide and very handsome scale. The home is one in which a decorator's skill and talent and imagination might know no bounds. Mrs. Waters chose to do her own decorating, and her ideas have resulted in a unique and original personality being given to the home.

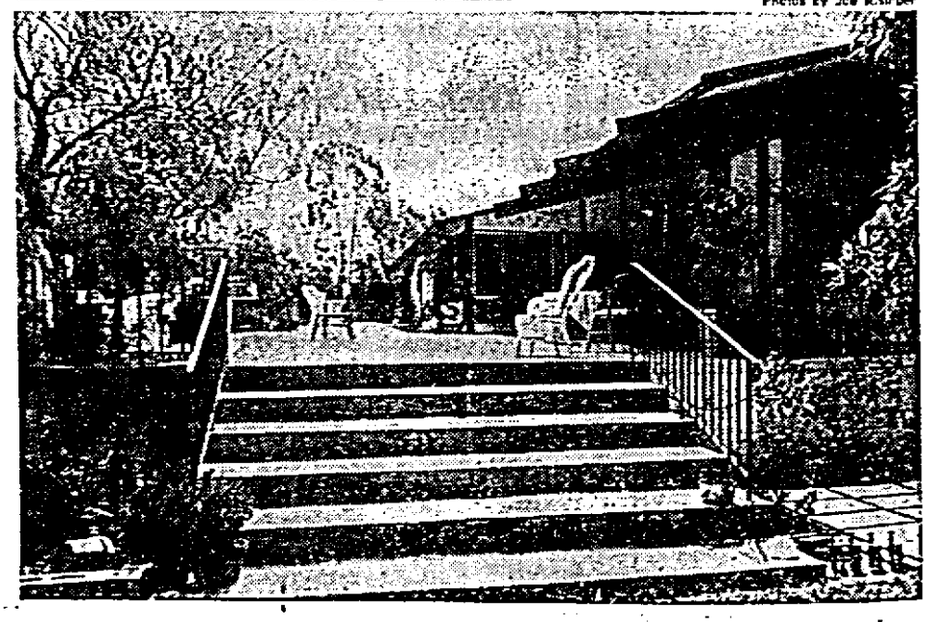

Every piece of furniture in the home is second-hand! This does not mean that pieces were bought as expensive antiques, or pseudo antiques to be used as a decorative theme. Second-hand pieces were sought for their worth to Mrs. Waters herself. Endowed with great imagination, she liked to picture the background of certain treasures she found and see them recapture some of their former elegance in their new surroundings. Many items had a functional value of their own.

Entrance hall in the Waters' home is dramatic and gives a sweeping view through the house to glass wall and huge, stuffed lion (seemingly looking out on the garden) at the far end from the front door.

Taking advantage of the large site, the Waters installed this extensive balcony as a part of outdoor space.

A DRAMATIC high light of the entrance hall to the Waters' home is an out-sized chandelier centered above the area under the glass roof. From the front door, the view is straight through the home to the glass wall of the master bedroom in the far rear where a huge stuffed lion stands majestically viewing the garden beyond.

The immense living room at the right is carpeted with an over-sized Persian rug. Two walls are an art gallery, with flowers the predominant theme. Mrs. Waters found many of the pictures, unframed, in out of the way places, and bought many very inexpensively. She then had them suitably framed, and the results, in some cases, seem like masterpieces.

Twin leather, wing-back chairs flank the fireplaces. Individual furniture treasures are everywhere, but the room is so large there is no clutter.

THERE ARE countless little functional touches everywhere in the home. The desk is one corner of the living room, for instance, is placed just under the mail slot so that incoming mail drops into the proper receiving basket.

The large dining room-family room is adjacent to the open kitchen. The dining room set, another treasured bargain, opens to accomodate fifteen. A useful part of the set is a butler's cabinet which encloses choice bric-a brac. In the family room end, a blue naugahyde couch faces the TV which, in turn, can be viewed from the kitchen.

In the kitchen, evidence of Mrs. Waters' skill and ingenious practical thinking are everywhere. The eating bar is not a built-in as is usually the case. Rather, it is a movable unit which fits in place between the rooms for everyday use, but which can be moved to the desired area when entertaining takes place. Trash is no problem in this kitchen. A small trap door above the work area near the sink opens to a large trash bin below, thus, there are no waste baskets in the room. Floor sweeping is easy. A small trap door in the floor lifts up to a long metal container under the floor which, when full of dust, can be taken out and emptied.

SIZE OF THE master bedroom is emphasized with the glass wall overlooking the garden. The fine chandelier in the room came out of an old church is Redlands. The adjoining bathroom is elegant with fine fixtures, and the bath itself views the garden. The closet is open above to allow for constant ventilation; too, this adds space to the room. The long closets that line one side of the room have shutter doors, a feature used throughout the home.

The study, to the left of the main entry hall, is leathered and masculine, a private retreat for Dr. Waters. Children's bedrooms are down the hall, each furnished with carefully selected pieces. The girl's room has a brass bed. Her doll's furniture is in white wicker.

The huge balcony off the living room (and with access to the dining room) is grand and ample for entertaining on a large scale. The Waters have loaned their home for many important business and social functions, and the place is never crowded. The outdoor furnishings are all white wicker, picked up at bargain prices and sprayed white by the adept Mrs. Waters. Pieces even include a wicker doghouse!

The home is located on nearly an acre of land. Beyond the balcony, the expertly landscaped garden stretches to a wooded area. A children's play hideaway is delightfully private surrounded by trees and bushes.

Deft use of brick or stone in front and roof line broken by the extended garage gives this 1,178-square-foot ranch home appearance of much larger house.

11-foot, 4-inch by 14-foot master bedroom, but with its second entrance it is convenient to the kitchen and rear terrace—just the thing for outdoor entertaining or children playing in the back yard.

York's design provides excellent circulation for a house of this size. The extra bath contributes to it, serving as a quick passage to the kitchen or rear entrance from the master bedroom.

OTHER FEATURES which aid circulation are the entrance from the garage direct to the 11-4x12-6 family room, the other three entrances to the family room—off the living room and kitchen and through sliding glass terrace doors—and the entrance vestibule.

Dimensions of B-69 are 47 feet 10 inches wide by 33 feet 6 inches deep, well suited for a 60-foot wide lot.

The family room is two steps lower than the rest of the house, setting it apart from the kitchen and living room as a private dining area if desired, but at the same time allowing it to function as a spacious unit with the kitchen.

A railing between the kitchen and family room provides a balcony effect for a dining area, which the 9x16-foot kitchen can accommodate easily. The kitchen also is well planned as a control point for supervising play both indoors and out.

STORAGE SPACE is no problem in B-69. It has a full basement, plus ample bedroom closets, a coat closet off the entrance vestibule, and a linen closet convenient to the main bathroom.

York has done some tricks with the exterior of the house, too, giving it an appearance of a larger home.

He extended the garage beyond the front of the house, preventing a box-like effect too often found in smaller homes and giving it an attractive roof line.

THE SIDE walls suggested are vertical boards, but a shingled horizontal line could be substituted if preferred.

For added interest, you also could use a different material for the cantilevered bay section which forms the bedroom seats. "However," said York, "you shouldn't use more than three different materials on the side walls."

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-69.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Anyone who can drive a nail can build this modern secretary by following an easy and detailed plan.

By Ursula M. S. Dadras

THERE'S A hidden bonus in modern furniture design that more and more homeowners are discovering.

Modern furniture is so easy to build!

Take the secretary shown here. It has a wide writing surface, convenient bookshelves and two handy drawers.

Because of its clean, straight lines anyone who can drive a nail can make it. Only tools required are a saw, carpenter's square, measuring tape, screwdriver, nail punch and hammer. Even the sawing can be eliminated if you have your lumber dealer cut parts to the measurement given in the plan.

Fir plywood, or plywood with a hardwood finish, is used on desk top. Clear pine or hardwood are used for the two risers and shelves. The modern legs can be purchased at any hardware store. They are factory-turned and screw into easily attached mounting brackets.

If you wish to eliminate the legs an alternate design shows how to mount the unit directly against the wall.

The Sketchbook plan includes a complete list of parts, with exact dimensions of all pieces and step-by-step instructions in words and pictures on the simple assembly procedure.

TO ORDER, specify Secretary Plan S-61 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Aid to Happy Vacation

WHATEVER your plans for vacationing this summer, if you are driving you will have more fun and less worry if you have a safe place for your luggage. For a rain, snow, dust and wind proof luggage compartment that can be locked and carried on top of your car, consider the unit pictured with this article. It's good looking, can be painted to match car colors and the top is hinged for easy packing and unpacking. The size may be varied according to individual needs.

This handsome and useful item may be made easily by any amateur do-it-yourselfer by using a full-sized pattern with list of materials, directions and illustrations. To obtain the pattern—it's No. 228—send name and address and $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Car-top luggage compartment built from a full-sized pattern is demonstrated by John Ericson of NBC-TV.

Delft Is a Delight

By Helen L. Gillum

Delft ware from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Lee of Long Beach includes pieces made in Germany and England. A rare piece is reclining cow, a milk pitcher.

DELFT WARE, with its pretty blue coloring and quaint designs, is a never-failing source of interest wherever it is found. Its ability to blend harmoniously with most any type of home decor also makes it popular among antique lovers. A collection of blue delft, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Denver Lee, of 4444 North Bellflower Blvd., adds taste and distinction to the Early American and Victorian furnishings of their home.

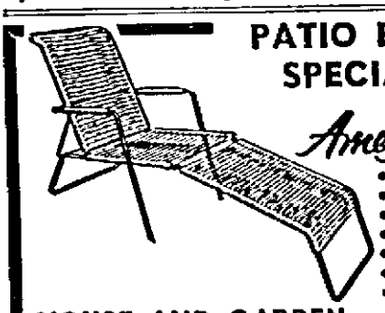

"Old Delft," sometimes referred to as the "faience of the Netherlands" was made in Holland as early as 1550. Like its counterparts, majolica and faience, delft was actually another early attempt to imitate the cherished Chinese porcelain, that popular goal of European potters from the time of the Crusades onward. And, as happened in the case of majolica and faience, the resulting ware, while not exactly accomplishing the coveted goal, did develop into an excellent product in itself.

NAMED after Delft, the town of its manufacture in Holland, this was first an earthenware coated with a lead glaze rendered opaque by the addition of tin ashes. Eventually, the tin glaze was abandoned in favor of translucent glaze.

But the term "delft" continued to be used long after the tin glaze was abandoned. Likewise, the name of "delft" has been used down through the years for this type of pottery manufactured in other countries in imitation of the early Dutch potters. The industry did well until the end of the 18th century, when competition by Wedgwood's cream-ware in England finally caused all but two Delft factories in Holland to close.

PLEASING features to be found in all delft ware are the decorative motifs of landscapes, seascapes, Biblical themes and Oriental scenes. While the deep blue coloring of most delft endears it to many collectors, others prefer the not-so-easy-to-find items in red, yellow, green, brown, black and varicolored. The small and unusual objects to be found in delft, particularly the English and Dutch products, make for interest and variety, too.

Most of the pieces in the Lee's collection are German, with several bearing the crossed swords of the Meissan factory. A covered soup tureen with windmills and sail boats is English delft. Two plates and an old salt box with hinged wooden lid feature windmills and canal scenes. There is an interesting dripolator-type coffee pot eleven inches high with country views on it. Among the smaller objects is a rare "reclining cow" cream pitcher, seven inches long by two inches high.

Hers Is a Desert Refuge

By Ellen Saunders

PEACE and security have entered the life of a Eurasian beauty who, twice in a decade, was evacuated from Shanghai in the face of Japanese and Communist invasions, and who now lives in Coachella Valley.

"The last time was in 1949," says dark-haired Mrs. Lillian Chang of North Palm Springs, former wife of a high-ranking Chinese government official. "The Communists were surrounding Shanghai and I was given two hours in which to leave my $60,000 home.

"I arrived in Japan aboard the SS Tucker with only a fur coat and two rose quartz elephants. I realized afterwards the things which I had saved were those which had a sentimental value for me."

Lillian Chang was born in Minneapolis of a Finnish mother and a Chinese father and was taken to China at the age of seven to be reared by her paternal grandparents. With the exception of two years spent in the United States while in her early teens she lived continuously in China until 1941.

"IT WAS a bewildering experience at first," she explained, "but the Chinese people are very gentle with children. We lived in the country and I learned to cook, to embroider and to weave. In our province of Toy-Saun the women did most of the work in and outside of the home because, as was the custom in those days, the majority of the men had emigrated to the 'golden mountain,' as America was called. A portion of their wages would be sent back each month and saved against the day they would retire and return home."

Shanghai was Mrs. Chang's home after her marriage at 17 to the head of China's Foreign Trade Commission. She and her husband later separated.

"Those were the days," Mrs. Chang reminisced, "when many world notables were visiting China. I toured the cities with them acting as guide and interpreter to Dr. Roscoe Pound of Harvard, Claire Luce, Nehru and Cameron Forbes, the founder of Boston University.

"I served as president of the Women's Club of Shanghai and introduced Doris Duke Cromwell to society there."

Shortly before Pearl Harbor Mrs. Chang and her young son Ronald caught the last boat out of China for the United States. During the war years they lived in Hollywood where Mrs. Chang manufactured the first plastic dinnerware produced in the United States.

THE WAR OVER, she returned to Shanghai just as inflation was reaching its peak.

"Both Mr. Chang and I were living there," she said, "although we did not meet at the time. It was a fantastic life. Money depreciated so quickly that people carried large rolls of bank notes with them all the time. 100,000 yen wouldn't even buy an egg. You would order a dish of noodles in a restaurant and before you could pay the bill the price would have risen fourfold."

Mrs. Chang's husband, novelist F. S. Chang has used the Shanghai of those years as the background for his latest novel, "Nameless School," which is now in the publisher's hands.

Chang is the scion of a family of scholars (his cousin is Dr. Wei Taoming, former governor of Formosa and one time ambassador to France and the United States) practiced law in China before serving as chancellor of the Chinese Embassy from 1942 to 1948.

"My writing career actually began in Washington," he recalled, "when my English instructor liked the way I wrote up an old Chinese legend of the Milky Way and urged me to expand it."

THE RESULT was "The Sky River," a book for teenagers which won the Boys Club of America award.

During the decade that elapsed between the publication of his first book and his move to the desert two years ago, Chang authored two other successful pieces of fiction, "Until the Phoenix" and "The Two Women of Lee Ho," toured the world, did library research in China, owned and published Freedom Magazine in Hong Kong.

"Cooking has always been my hobby," said Chang, "so when Lillian and I were married we moved to the desert and opened China Inn where we serve only dinners leaving me the rest of the day to write. We don't have any great ambitions, we just want to make a living."

"And give thanks every day," said his wife, "that we are living in a land of peace."

Lillian Chang relaxes beside a portrait of herself, painted from memory by a British artist who met her in Hong Kong in 1950, was impressed by her beauty.

Time to Dine Al Patio

Setting a mood for fun and relaxation, this colorful meal with Calypso Chicken is something special for outdoor dining. With the chicken, named for the tasty marinade used, go hominy-peas-onion rings in combination, potatoes browned with butter over coals, and 2-tone salad. A relish bowl eases waiting time.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent Press Telegram Home Economics Editor

NOW IS THE TIME of year when the great American public takes to the outdoors, with mealtime in the patio or at a picnic site providing high lights for summery days. Whether dining is to be "al patio," or al fresco wherever the wandering charcoal broiler may be set up, Chicken Calypso with its peppy marinade suits the hungry mood.

Versatile canned foods save work in preparing the vegetable dishes and a tasty make-ahead salad. A delightful extra is the snack platter for munching while the chicken grills.

Calypso Chicken

1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon ginger
½ cup canned apple juice
⅓ cup soy sauce
¼ cup canned or bottled lemon juice
3 cloves garlic
6 to 8 chicken legs
Salad oil

Mix sugar, dry mustard and ginger. Add apple juice, soy sauce, lemon juice and finely minced or crushed garlic; mix well. Pour over chicken legs; let marinate several hours or over night. Drain chicken legs (saving marinade) and dry on paper toweling. Brush chicken legs with salad oil. Cook over hot coals about 5 minutes, turn and brush them generously with the marinade. Continue cooking until done, turning the chicken legs frequently and brushing with the marinade. Six to eight servings.

Vegetable Trio

1 medium size onion
2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
1 can (1 lb.) hominy
1 can (1 lb.) peas
½ cup light cream
Salt, pepper

Cook thinly sliced onion in butter until tender but not brown. Add drained hominy and peas, cream, and salt and pepper to taste. Heat. Six to eight servings.

Grilled Potatoes

2 cans (1 lb. each) whole white potatoes
¼ cup butter, or margarine
Salt, pepper
Paprika

Roll drained potatoes in melted butter and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Put in a wire clamp holder and cook over hot coals until browned, turning once. Brush occasionally with remaining melted butter. Six to eight servings.

Two-tone Molded Salad

Tomato Aspic Layer

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¾ cup canned tomato juice
⅔ cup canned tomato sauce
2 teaspoons canned lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 tablespoon grated onion

Cottage Cheese Layer

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ cup diced cucumber
¾ cup light cream
2 cups creamed cottage cheese

Tomato Aspic Layer . . . Sprinkle gelatin over tomato juice in a saucepan to soften. Heat slowly until gelatin is dissolved, stirring. Add remaining ingredients, mixing well. Pour into a mold and chill until firm.

Cottage Cheese Layer . . . Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes, dissolve over hot water. Add to remaining ingredients, mix well. Pour over tomato aspic layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving plates and garnish with salad greens and lemon wedges. Pass mayonnaise. Six to eight servings.

The Princess and the Indian Chief

By Helen Smith

MANY tales of lust and passion in the Old West have come down through the years but perhaps none can rival the little-known episode of a beautiful young lady of royal blood and the head of the Suisunes Indians.

It has all the earmarks of a Grade B scenario, casting as the heroine, Russian Princess Helena De Gagarin, blonde, lovely and described as a "lady of 20 Aprils."

The hero is Chief Mighty Arm, baptized Francisco Solano, a handsome brave with long braids of inky black and standing an even seven feet tall in his colorful blanket and feathers.

The "heavy" could be Mexican Gen. Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo who did all he could to forestall the budding romance. Or it could even be Count Alexander Rotcheff, General of Siberia, and the young lady's husband, but history books have little to say about his reaction to the affair.

IT ALL STARTED in 1841 when the golden-tressed princess married Count Rotcheff one spring day in St. Petersburg. For all her delicate gold and white beauty, Princess Helena had a sturdy constitution and a whim of iron. So instead of choosing to honeymoon in the luxurious atmosphere of the palace, she capriciously announced the wedding trip would include the Russian otter hunting outpost of Fort Ross on the rugged Northern California coast.

Bundled in wolfskins the young people and their servants began the sleigh ride across the icy wastes of Siberia. They then made a stormy crossing of the Bering Straits in a small sailing vessel, finishing the final leg of their journey in a bumpy stagecoach.

Princess Helena reached Fort Ross still enthusiastic about adventure—and ready for more.

She found it as she was carried to the beach from the shore boat and deposited, all French ruffles, laces and perfume, at the feet of a towering Indian.

Her eyes traveled up the length of his seven-foot frame and she cried in a voice as radiant as an aurora borealis, "Oh, what a splendid savage!"

MIGHTY ARM did not understand her words but the tone was unmistakable. Wearing his blanket with the dash of a Spanish cloak, he helped the party unload their belongings.

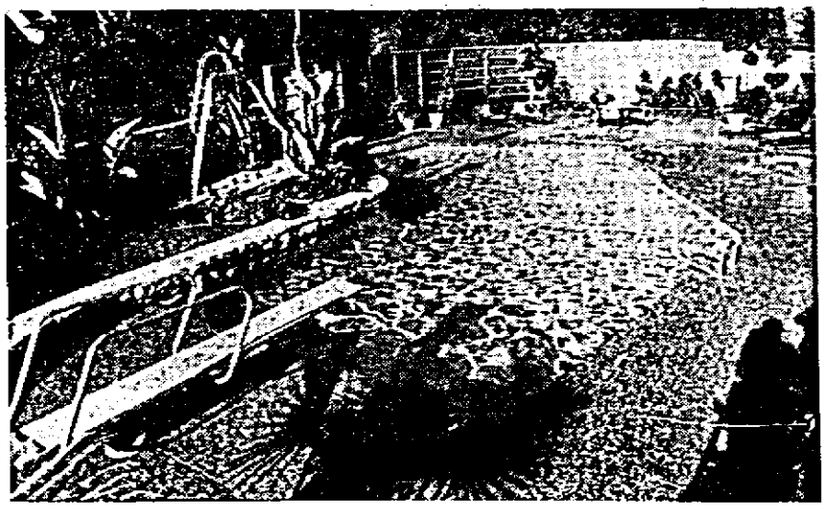

Gen. Vallejo was also on hand for the arrival of the

A NEW ACHIEVEMENT IN SANITARY PROTECTION!

5 reasons why new Confidets make other leading sanitary napkins out-of-date, ill-fitting and inadequate...

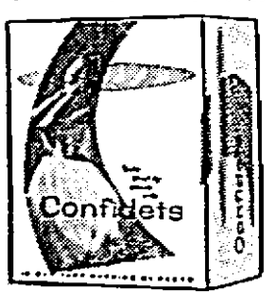

1. Only true anatomical shape. Confidets® are the only sanitary napkin fully tapered and shaped to fit body contours. Wide in front for more protection—narrow in back for greater comfort—don't bunch or bulge. Confidets can be worn with any standard belt . . . fasten easily, fit securely.

2. Only one with proportioned depth for more protection. No other napkin has extra thickness in middle where greatest absorbency is needed. Protects like a super pad with less bulkiness than a junior size.

3. Only accident-proof inner shield that's full size and securely held in position. Moisture simply cannot penetrate this feather-light shield, so under part of this new napkin stays dry, soft.

4. Only multi-layer filler with this unique arrangement. It holds 8 times its weight in moisture as proved by laboratory tests. The pure, fine quality materials absorb at maximum speed. You're blissfully secure with Confidets!

5. Exclusive ultra soft-strength cover. Only Confidets has a cover so comfortably soft against the skin yet has so much flexible strength in use. Try Confidets—developed and patented by Scott Paper Company.

Karl Boehm, young Viennese star, is seen as Jacob, the elder, more practical and serious-minded Grimm. This is the second Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film for Boehm who also stars in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Claire Bloom, acclaimed for her performance in "The Brothers Karamazov" as well as her recent London stage hit "Altoona," appears as Dorothea Grimm, wife of fantasy-minded Wilhelm. Also lending romance to the lives of the brother-team is the young star, Barbara Eden, remembered for her work in "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea."

ROUNDING OUT the cast are Walter Slezak as bookdealer Stossel, Oscar Homolka as the blustering Duke, employer of the Brothers Grimm, and Ian Wolfe as the duke's right-hand man.

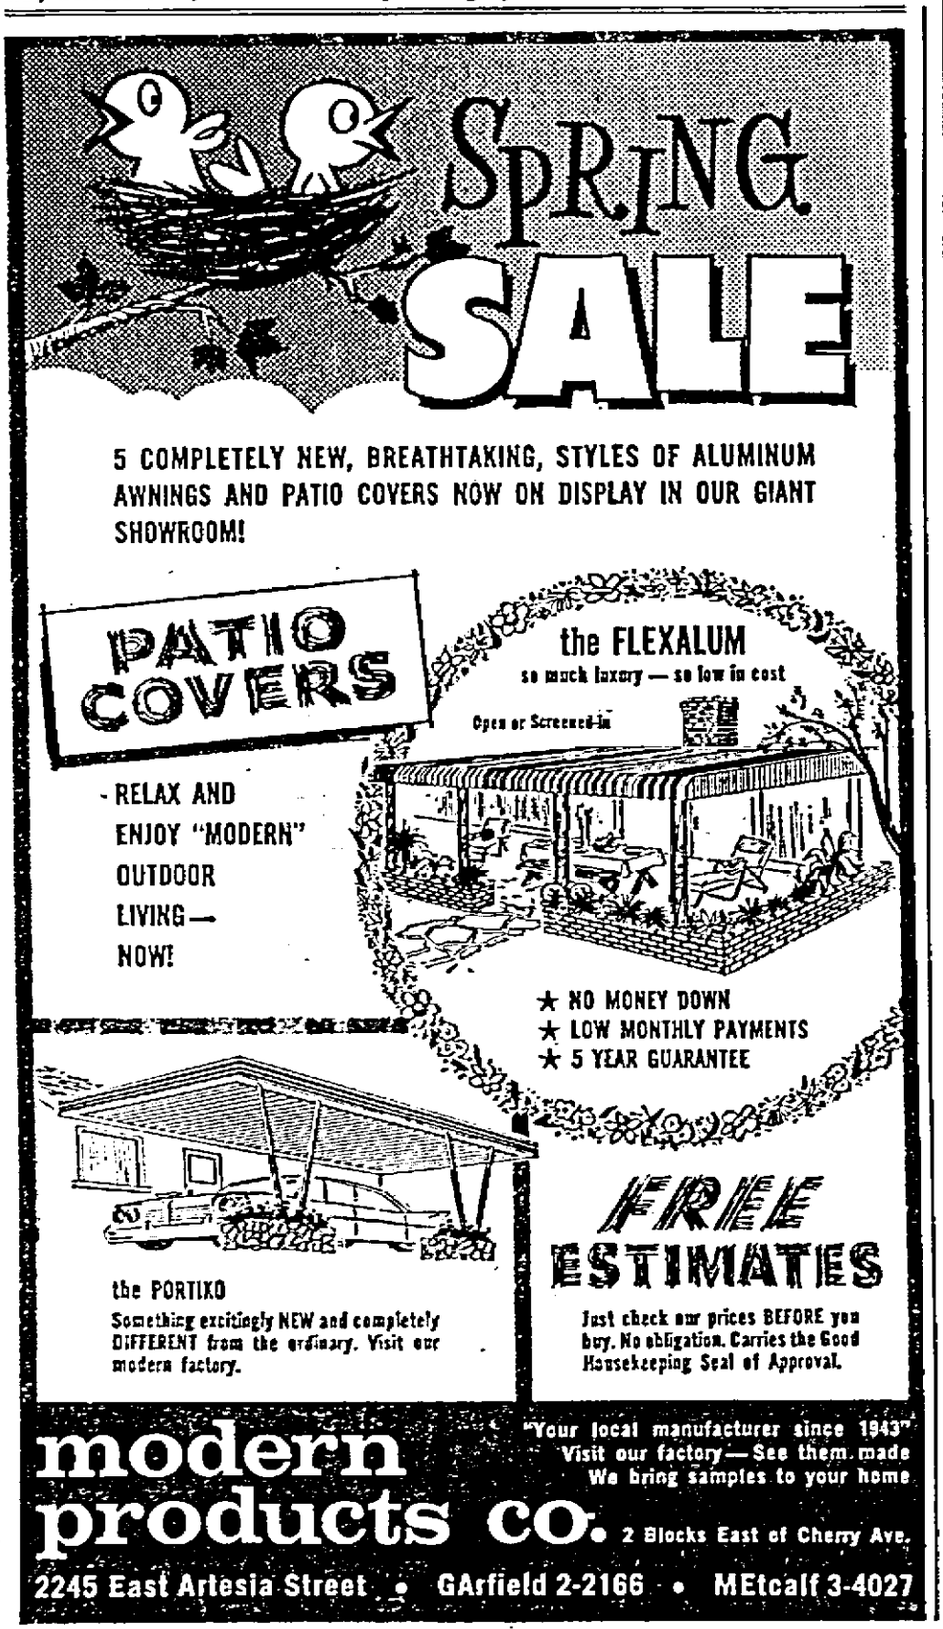

Elisabeth Neumann, Betty Garde, Cheerio Meredith, Walter Rilla, Martita Hunt, Tammy Marihugh and Bryan Russell make up the remainder of the cast of the story's biographical section.

Similarly star-studded are the fairy tales.

In "The Dancing Princess," Yvette Mimieux is the beautiful princess who sneaks out of the palace nightly to wear out dainty slippers dancing at a gypsy camp. The young woodsman who steals her secret — and her heart — is Russ Tamblyn.

ALTHOUGH THREE fairy tales appear intact, other Grimm characters are not forgotten. Appearing in one sequence are Tom Thumb, Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Hansel and Gretel, the Frog Prince, the Queen Bee — and Rumpelstiltskin, who is portrayed by Arnold Stang.

Enhancing the fairy tales are songs written by Bob Merill, whose musical, "Carnival," proved a Broadway hit.

every direction, the newly formed government began taking giant steps. Problems now met regularly by city planners would astound Willmore with his dream. New suburbs can emerge too quickly into a chaotic tangle of narrow traffic-filled streets leading to inadequate business sections where schools and parks are not wanted. So outlying sections are preplanned.

One of the city's newest suburbs, Los Altos, although mainly 8 to 12 years old, was actually expected much earlier. Werner Ruchti, city planning commissioner, declares that "Long range planning for East Long Beach was begun and put on record as early as 1931. Plans for the schools were prepared by the regional planning commission and the school authorities."

THESE EXPERTS worked together and planned well—but not without extra help, for the pioneer spirit of the Bixbys, the Lowes, and the Saunders still lives. It may relax in an easy chair at home while bridges are built, huge loans are made to other countries, and rockets are sent hurtling into space, but it rises quickly in a P-T.A. or school board meeting when new school plans are in progress.

The foresight of authorities and constant interest of the parents has provided this city with its biggest tax dividend. It is now equipped with and constantly adding to a school system whose excellence would reassure the Bixbys, Lowes, Saunders and other early settlers that their efforts and gifts as well as taxes were not in vain. A beatiful new State College for which city money provided the land, now brings added prestige and benefit as it grows each year, on a hill in East Long Beach, in size, attendance and variety of subjects available. Even now several of its pupils may be contemplating the design of the first passenger rocket to the moon. May the tickets soon be available.

The Princess and the Indian Chief

Russians and he, wise old campaigner, knew what a bonfire had been kindled in the breast of the warrior. Nothing like Princess Helena had ever been beheld before in this land of few women. Vallejo determined to be watchful — no telling what scandal could result from the meeting of these two.

Mighty Arm and Vallejo had been friends and allies for almost ten years as the Indian and his 1,000 braves helped keep the peace in the area north of San Francisco which now includes Marin, Sonoma, Lake and Solano Counties. Vallejo knew that this friendship was now in danger of being broken for he could not allow the smitten Red man to do anything that would endanger Mexico-Russia relations.

Vallejo and his wife Francisca Benicia opened their lovely hacienda, Lachryma Montis, in Petaluma, to the visitors and Solano was a frequent visitor there.

AFTER BAPTISM, Solano had learned fluent Spanish. In buckskins and beads, he was seemingly at ease in the thickly carpeted rooms, sipping French wines and listening to the music of Mozart. He was almost a gentleman at times like these and he knew he preferred blondes.

His gaze would rest for hours on the yellow-haired princess as she played the harpsichord or worked on needlepoint. They exchanged few words but always the Princess was aware, and delighted by Solano's stare as she flaunted the satins and low cut designs of her Parisian wardrobe before the glance of this primitive man.

One day, capricious as ever, Helena began to weary of her game. The memories of lavish parties in St. Petersburg and the gay shops in Vienna returned and made her dissatisfied with her present surroundings. The simple life of the raw frontier and her guache admirer had both lost their allure.

She abruptly announced that her group would return to Russia beginning the next day.

THAT NIGHT Vallejo was awakened by the sound of pebbles being thrown against his casement window. He found Solano requesting a private audience.

It seems Mighty Arm, strong and fearless in battle, could not face the realization the Princess was going out of his life. He had decided, he informed Vallejo, to stop the carriage as it went through the pass to Bodega Bay and take the Princess by force.

Vallejo was horrified by this announcement but not too much surprised. He had been expecting it to happen before this. He smoothed his white hair and side whiskers searching for words to prevent this act which could end only in disaster for all.

Through the long hours Vallejo gestured and ranted while Solano sat as stone. Vallejo tried every argument and finally made a plea for the sake of his own honor as the host of the Russians.

DAWN WAS NEAR when the proud chieftain stoically indicated his surrender and agreement not to kidnap the "lady of 20 Aprils" who had captured his heart and was preparing to carry it off to a land he would never see.

To make sure the agreement would be kept, Vallejo ordered the chief to head for Napa Valley until the carriage was safely through the pass.

Princess Helena gave a coquettish laugh and feigned a swoon in appreciation of the story later told of her rescue from the "splendid savage."

And what of Solano?

Was he in Napa Valley when the carriage traveled the narrow road to the coast? Or was he silhouetted on some nearby hill—still fighting the love in his heart and wanting to give the story a happy ending?

AND INCREASE YOUR VALUE

Freighter passengers aboard a Matson vessel visit chart room for first-hand navigation information.

Long for Adventure?

IF YOU love ships and long for adventure, travel by freighter may be just what you're after.

It's relaxing, it's economical and you visit ports off the regular track of the passenger liners, according to Matson Lines, which operates four cargo-passenger ships regularly between California and Hawaii, and two to the South Pacific.

The steamship line also provides luxury liner service to both areas.

The Matson cargo-passenger ships carry a maximum of 12 passengers. It's an informal sports shirt and shirt sleeve atmosphere, day or night. And at mealtimes everyone gets to sit at an officer's table. Passengers dine in the officers' saloon.

FREIGHTER STATEROOMS are equipped with two and three berths; they're all outside rooms with private baths and portholes, and situated amidships.

Freighters have no laundry or bar facilities. It's a good idea to take along adequate changes of clothing and your own supply of liquor, should you desire an occasional drink of something stronger than coffee, tea or milk.

Planned entertainment goes by the board, too. On freighters, you make your own fun—loafing in a deck chair, playing cards, chess or checkers, or simply watching the sea, a fascinating pastime as any old salt can tell you. And should you feel like "raiding the icebox," go right ahead.

ABOVE ALL, freighter passengers need to be flexible. Departure times and even the ports of call are determined strictly by cargo, and always subject to change.

Rates on Matson freighters range from $180 to $225 one-way to Honolulu, and $455 to $600 one-way to Australia.

Fair Film Tip

Don't plan on many outdoor movies after dark at the Seattle World's Fair is the advice of Charles Whaley, manager of the Kodak Photo Information Center on the fairgrounds. There just isn't enough illumination in most of the exhibit area, he explains. An exception is the amusement zone, known as the Gayway, which is brilliantly lighted.

For still pictures, however, there are many colorful nighttime possibilities, using a flash or taking time exposures. Whaley recommends a tripod and light meter.

An important function of the Information Center is dispensing exposure information and suggesting vantage points for many of the interesting structures on the grounds, including the much-photographed Space Needle. There are also a variety of interesting fountains and pools to attract the shutter bug. A wealth of interior shots are possible with flash equipment.

Going to Israel?

If, like many Americans, you plan a trip to the Holy Land this year, first read "Everyone's Guide to Israel" (Doubleday & Co., 575 Madison Ave., New York 22, $4.95). Written by Joan Comay, this handsome book covers the history, economy and government of Israel as well as detailed travel information for the entire country. The foreword is by David Ben-Gurion.

Combat Fatigue Slow to Heal

By Ben Zinser
Independent, Press Telegram Medical Science Writer

COMBAT FATIGUE, once thought to be a transient condition, can persist for years, new research shows.

Bay Area researchers have found that many World War II veterans still have their original symptoms of recurrent nightmares, irritability, headaches and startle reaction.

In the group of veterans studied, 82 per cent said their symptoms were severe enough at times to interfere with their ability to work.

LABORATORY rats, after drinking coffee, did not recover more rapidly from the effects of alcohol, Indiana University researchers say. Instead, the coffee prolonged the degenerative behavior produced by alcohol. Tests now are being conducted on human subjects, says GP, journal for family physicians.

STILLED HEARTS that do not respond immediately to a surgeon's massage sometimes can be aided by injections of a substance called THAM. This chemical appears to correct an acid imbalance associated with heart standstill, according to American Surgeon. Heartbeat was restored in 14 of 15 patients who got THAM after standard methods of resuscitation had failed to restore heart rhythm within 15 minutes.

WOMEN UNDER 40 suffering from a condition called endometriosis can often be spared surgery by a drug treatment that induces a pseudopregnancy.

So says Dr. Edwin C. Hamblem, professor of endocrinology at Duke University Medical Center.

Endometriosis is the appearance of cells that usually line the womb in such unusual places as the intestinal wall or the bladder. It can produce irregular or painful menstration.

Dr. Hamblem, in the journal "Consultant," says the use of such hormonal drugs as Enovid or Depo-Provera can make the body react remarkably like it does in real pregnancy. The drugs bring about a destruction of endometrial tissue.

THE STERILE woman, says a New York doctor, often is found to be an overprotected child with repressed hostility toward her own mother. She fears that she would treat her child as her mother treated her.

The observation is that of Dr. Irving C. Fischer of New York Medical College in a report to the American Society for the Study of Sterility.

PROLONGED and uninterrupted television viewing under a condition of poor posture can lead to pain in the tailbone area.

So says Dr. Donald S. Miller of Chicago Medical School in the American Journal of Proctology.

Overstuffed chairs usually are a factor in the development of the condition.

"A hard, firm seat is more comfortable to the coccyx tailbone) than an upholstered chair," Dr. Miller says.

TV viewers should attempt to maintain a proper sitting posture, he adds.

CAPSULES: A vaccine against trachoma, an eye infection that may lead to blindness, is being tested on 400 Indian children in Arizona. . . . An enzyme called Chymoral, taken as a tablet, aids bronchitis patients unable to cough up tenacious sputum. The drug thins out mucous secretions to facilitate expectoration, doctors say in British Medical Journal.

A dentifrice containing the enzyme inhibitor sodium N-lauroyl sarcosinate has been able to reduce tooth decay by 30 to 55 per cent in six tests, a dental journal reports. . . . A new drug called B 633 shows promise in the treatment of leprosy.

Frustrations at the Wedding

By Vera Williams
Independent Press-Telegram Book Editor

IF YOU read only one book of fiction this month, let it be Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "DEARLY BELOVED" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $3.95). It is her first prose book since "Gift from the Sea" and it is well worth the seven-year wait.

Offhand, it is difficult to think of another woman who writes as subtly as Mrs. Lindbergh or who handles the English language as well as she does. The appeal of "Dearly Beloved" is universal—perhaps a little more to women than to men because Mrs. Lindbergh seems to understand women better than men.

Set in the framework of a June wedding, the book explores the consciousness of persons at the wedding, revealing their hopes, fears, frustrations.

Sally is marrying Mark "in the sight of God and the face of this company." We come to know the young people, but better yet we know Deborah, mother of the bride, seeking to establish communication with her husband after years of a so-so marriage; Frances, mother of the groom, who dallies with affairs; Chrissie, the bridesmaid with love and adventure ahead, and her mother who unexpectedly has found happiness in a middle-age marriage; Aunt Harriet, spinster who knows more about the family than they know about themselves. On the periphery are a psychiatrist, an alcoholic artist, a musician, a college professor, a young college student, and Timothy, the bride's grandfather who knows enduring happiness.

All, listening to and watching the service, gain new insights in love, marriage—and their lives.

This reviewer has only one criticism. I should have liked to know more about John, husband of Deborah, father of the bride. It would have been interesting to know how he thought and felt, too.

THIS IS SCRUFFY, the last remaining ape on Gibraltar and unwilling hero of Paul Gallico's "SCRUFFY" (Doubleday, $4.50) about a misanthropic ape which perpetuated a legend and saved the British Empire.

WILLIAM FAULKNER departs from his usual theme of the decadence of the Old South to frontier humor in "THE REIVERS" (Random House, $4.95). "Reivers," it should be explained, are plunderers; characters and incidents are familiar to Faulkner readers.

This plot has to do with three reivers who in 1905 "borry" Boss Priest's automobile, drive it from Jefferson, county seat of Yoknapatawpha County, Miss. to Memphis. The car is traded for a horse named Forkid Lightning. And Faulkner goes on from there.

A wonderful paragraph about Parsham Hood, elderly Negro: "He said grace, briefly, courteously but with dignity, without abasement or cringing: one man of decency and intelligence to another: notifying Heaven that we were about to eat and thanking It for the privilege, but at the same time reminding It that It had had some help too."

SIMONE DE BEAUVOIR, French novelist of considerable stature, tells about France, Jean-Paul Sartre and her associations with the writer of the existentialist school in "THE PRIME OF LIFE" (World, $6.95).

The "prime of life" to which she refers is the years after she was out of school until she was in her 30s. The period was 1929 to the liberation of Paris, shortly before the end of World War II.

Careers of the author and Sartre developed almost simultaneously, and they rejected the normal conventions of life to live a Bohemian existence of their own. The story is about French people, very French people—and it is pretty decadent.

MILOVAN DJILAS once was No. 2 man in Communist Yugoslavia, bosom comrade of Tito. But the corruption proved more than he could stand. He wrote a book, "The New Class," and exposed it. For that he was stripped of all offices, expelled from the party, thrown into prison. In prison he wrote more along the same lines, and smuggled it out.

Finally released by Tito, he could not be kept silent. He wrote "CONVERSATIONS WITH STALIN" (Harcourt, Brace and World, $3.95). Back to prison went Djilas, as he surely knew he would. Tito has indicated that Djilas is in this time for a long term. Probably beyond the eight years and eight months to which he was sentenced on May 14.

No one in the anti-Communist camp has been so close to Stalin, to the whole Kremlin, Djilas writes, with great power and skill, of his missions to Moscow in 1944, 1945 and 1949. Stalin is presented by a master portraitist as are Beria, Malenkov, Molotov, Zhukov and Khrushchev.

When told Soviet troops were killing all German civilian refugees Stalin is quoted as saying "Why lecture our soldiers too much? Let them have some initiative."

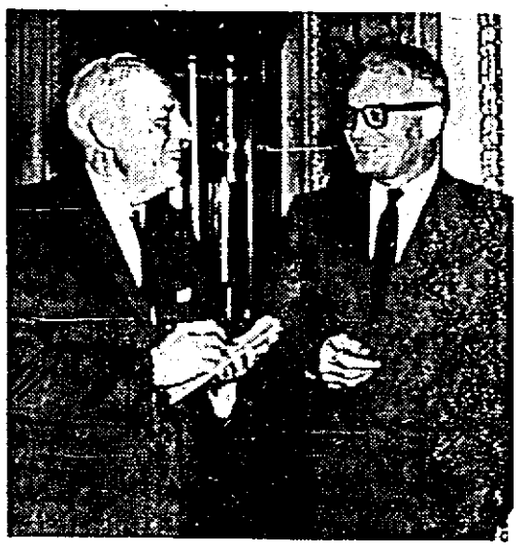

OF COURSE the British were shocked by the savage ease with which the Nazi war machine overwhelmed Poland in September, 1939.

But the horror passed as the western front remained quiet and Britain settled into that fumbling, tragi-comic period variously known as the sitzkrieg or "THE PHONEY WAR" (St. Martin's, $5).

E. S. Turner, a Briton who has authored numerous social histories of his people, vividly recalls the halcyon days when issues included whether fox hunting should be continued and whether soldiers' mistresses should receive Army allowances.

Turner turns his penetrating eye on every spectrum of English life during those confused months which ended when the panzers smashed from the Ardennes to prostrate France.

Then the British, nearly defenseless, rallied to the Churchill summons to expend blood, sweat and tears to defend their homeland on the beaches and in the streets.

Jack Bell (left) interviews Sen. Barry Goldwater for Bell's new biography "MR. CONSERVATIVE" (Doubleday, $4.50). The book, already widely quoted, tells the personal and public stories of the nation's leading conservative. Bell is chief political writer for the Associated Press.

Tiniest Official Park

Mill Ends Park, an official park in the City of Portland, Ore., is said to be the world's smallest. It was founded and is carefully tended by Dick Fagan (above), newspaper columnist, much to the amusement of Portland residents. Only regular users are leprechauns and press agents. Seems an 18 inch hole was left in a concrete traffic island for a power-line pole but, when plans for the pole were scrapped, Fagan and gardeners took over.

"How do you tip railroad and airline porters in European countries?"

AT SOME airports the company pays the porter. Some places there is a standard charge and they'll tell you—this includes railroad porters.

Usually you go to the airport bank to change money. What I do is ask the man at the desk what the proper tip is. They tell you—it's always the local equivalent of the way we'd use a quarter in America. Once you've got this coin in mind, it works for railroad porters, bellboys, etc.

". . . a hideaway town without many tourists in Mexico by car"

Go down the central highway—Guadalajara to Queretaro to Mexico City. Below Queretaro, you come to San Juan del Rio. Turn off here to Tequisquiapan.

Nine little inns of good quality. Nice high country.

Not too far from Mexico City. Tourists pass by usually in a hurry to get to the city.

Good new books on Mexico City, by the way: "My Mexico City and Yours" is a Dolphin paperback guide (95 cents). By Pepe Romero, the best-known columnist south of the Border.

"We are taking a trip around the world by ship and would like to hit the 'free port.' Does this mean you pay no duty when you come back? Or must we declare what we buy?"

You declare what you buy when you come back to the U.S. You are allowed $100 duty-free. (But while you are away you can also send back as many presents as you like duty-free if they are marked "value less than $10.")

Free ports only mean you pay no taxes or customs duties of THAT country. Therefore, they are cheaper. Lots of times cheaper than the country where they are made. Because if you bought them in that country, you'd pay local taxes.

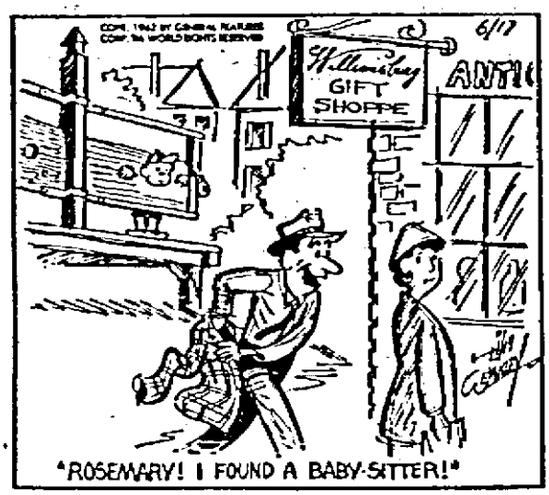

There's no list that I know of free ports. But the ones I can remember off-hand are: Hong Kong, Singapore, Amsterdam Airport, Shannon Airport, Montego Bay and Kingston, Jamaica. (They sell it to you in town. You get it aboard ship or airplane.) The Virgin Islands, Barbados and Trinidad have something similar to Jamaica.

London has a system of no tax, no duty if you have the things delivered at the ship or airport. Copenhagen airport and a number of others around the world sell liquor and cigarettes on a free port basis.

Best free ports for choice and easy shopping are Hong Kong, Singapore, the Jamaica towns and Shannon.

TRAVELING LIGHT by the Sloanes

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

TO MANY travelers, Washington is at once a gracious and lovely city, and a strangely cold one. It is often compared with Paris for its tree-shaded boulevards punctuated by circles where history's great are commemorated in stone and bronze. Its imposing government buildings are impressive and dignified.

Yet there is a uniformity and a sense of impermanence about Washington that deprive it of much personality—with one tiny exception.

That exception is a 10-square-block area in the northwest corner of the city known as Georgetown, a fiercely independent last stronghold of traditionalism. Georgetown is, in effect, the "old city" of Washington, and it was a thriving place when the Capitol was still a swamp.

When history bypassed Georgetown in the 1800s, the area became a slum. Its handsome examples of Federal architecture, with unique salmon-colored scored bricks and fan-shaped doorway windows, fell into disrepair. Inevitably the pendulum swung back, and interest in restoration grew. By a few years ago, Georgetown had become probably the most exclusive residential area in the United States.

THOUGH Georgetown is technically part of Washington, its residents are so influential that they control virtually all their own affairs according to their own lights. A Georgetown, D. C., mailing address is quite legal, as are traditional street names. Georgetown also has its own

The Newest View of Alcatraz

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent Press Telegram Travel Editor

SOMETHING new has been added to the tired old hills of San Francisco.

Not a new kind of weather: the creeping fog hasn't moved out on little cat feet, and the cutlass-like edge of wind at dusk hasn't dulled.

And it's certainly not the attitude of San Franciscans who still believe their city has it made.

It's the Crown Room, atop the newly completed Fairmont Hotel Tower, a rival for the Top o' the Mark, the tourist trap that has endured for, lo, these many years.

The view is almost a dead ringer of that from Top o' the Mark, only maybe a little more so.

Nineteen stories up, Top o' the Mark commands a tremendous sweep of the captivated 44-square-mile area that is San Francisco, and the Golden Gate, Alcatraz and beyond. The Crown Room surveys the same breath-taking scene from a 29-story height; but since the Fairmont Tower's base is lower than the Mark's, the difference in height is equivalent to only about four stories.

To get there, gaping visitors may board an "outside" elevator and watch the city drop slowly away from them as they crawl the outer Tower wall in their glass-enclosed cage to their rendezvous with the view and a highball.

The Crown Room's decor is extravagant in a way that San Francisco loves to be extravagant. The big room is built on three levels with the two higher levels turning slowly in a clockwise direction. To italicize the name of the room, a 12-foot glittering chandelier, in gold wrought iron and shaped like a crown, is suspended from the ceiling.

The more naive visitors look up (with a soft whistle) to notice this decoration for the first time when a cocktail waitress dressed in an abbreviated skirt and powdered wig brings the bill for the drinks.

They're a buck a throw.

A WINTER CRUISE to the summer lands of South America is offered by Swedish American Line for next January-March when the cruise liner Gripsholm, Scandinavia's largest and most modern cruise ship which often calls at Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbor, will make a 45-day circumnavigation of the South American continent. The Gripsholm will leave New York Jan. 18 on its 13,850-mile itinerary.

FREIGHTER, ANYONE? Standard Fruit and Steamship Company's modern banana ships plying between Berth 160, Wilmington, and Puerto Bolivar, Ecuador, now offer passenger service at $475 per person—double rooms with shower. Your ship is your hotel throughout the voyage.

THE CUNARD liner, Carolia, will dock in Long Beach Harbor next Feb. 8, it was announced by Ronoldo G. Morton Jr., cruise director for Cunard, while on a recent visit to the Southland.

GADABOUTS: It would be a nice run down to Del Mar for the opening of the 10-day Southern California Exposition and San Diego County Fair on June 29. It's always a good show!

July 4-8—Semana Nautica (Spanish for nautical pageant) at Santa Barbara, which this year will include underwater competition for skin divers. Other events: Baseball, horsemanship, swimming, sailing, lawn bowling, tennis, even kite flying!

July 2-4—Flagstaff's all-Indian Pow-Wow, with 12,000 Indians from 30 tribes taking part. Parades at 11 a.m., afternoon programs at 1 o'clock, evening show at 8:30.

FIREWORKS will light the sky on Casino Point, Avalon, Catalina Island, on Saturday night, June 30; Tuesday night, the eve of July 4, and the following Saturday night, July 7. July 4 celebrants there also will dance in the Casino Ballroom to Eddie Howard's band.

Planning a Trip

Vacation planning at its best is offered in colorful new 1962 editions of two publications by Rand McNally & Co. (P.O. Box 7600, Chicago 80).

"Vacation Guide" ($1.95), a perennial favorite with tourists, covers 60 major vacation areas in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The Guide's usefulness is further increased this year by its updated, easy-to-read maps.

"Campground Guide: A Family Camping Directory" ($2.95) offers 200 pages of complete camping information covering the United States and Mexico and features a new 44-page section of full-color maps locating 7,000 campgrounds.

newspaper and social customs.

The signs are erected, and the trees and facades and atmosphere preserved, under the watchful eye of Washington's Fine Arts Commission, without whose approval absolutely nothing can be changed.

Hardly anything ever is. Gas lamps still illuminate the streets and housefronts, their tops carefully removed so they flicker fittingly. Nothing would be less surprising than to see a horsedrawn coach clop down "N" St., as it might have in the 18th Century when Washington's only accommodations for congressmen were in Georgetown's Union Hotel.

"N" Street, probably the most fashionable in the tiny area, still has its original cobbled streets and frame houses, which are required to be painted regularly. Some of the loveliest of Georgetown's famed walled gardens are here also, the objects of annual pilgrimages.

Still surviving—and thriving—also are some of the last of the neighborhood groceries, as well as quaint shops of odd descriptions — saddleries, fabric stores and the like.

TOURISTS are about the last things Georgetowners want (only small sightseeing buses are permitted on the streets). It took effort tantamount to moving heaven and earth to get a hotel in Georgetown, but that's exactly what opened last month with the somewhat grudging approval of the Fine Arts Commission.

Knowing that only a unique place would satisfy the stern powers that be, Chicago entrepreneur Julius Epstein is unabashedly calling his Georgetown Inn "the most luxurious in the country." It has floor butlers like a European hotel, the help is liveried in colonial costumes.

He's the Luckiest!

Bryan Russell's finest hour to date was when Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris met him at a Florida airport.

BRYAN RUSSELL isn't called the luckiest 9-year-old in town because he's been in 30 shows in three years, but because he was in one movie — namely "Safe at Home"—with Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris.

"Safe At Home" is playing now throughout Southern California. Bryan stars as the young little leaguer whose proud boast that his dad knows Mantle and Maris leads him to run away to the Yankees and Maris and Mantle for help.

Bryan, a wiry, crinkly little fellow with wavy hair, freckles and two pushed-out front teeth, spent ten days in Florida to make "Safe At Home."

Guess who met him at the airport? Yup, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris.

THAT WAS Bryan's finest hour. He's been crazy about baseball since he's been old enough to know about the game. He plays second and shortstop and treasures the uniform, glove and ball the Mantle-Maris combine gave him.

Bryan's thumbnail comments: "Mantle always has a smile. Roger Maris usually goes around with a frown. He's more serious, but he's real nice. Mickey Mantle gave me his glove one day and Roger Maris gave his to my understudy.

"Ralph Houk — you might think he was kind of tough but he fools you."

Bryan made his entrance into show business in an unusual way. His mother and father were appearing in the opera "Madame Butterfly" in Tokyo. Bryan, then three years old, was scheduled to play the baby.

The extras, dressed in Oriental costumes, frightened him. The next day he contracted the mumps. When he was better he was brought to the opera house for his first role. In his mind, he blamed the extras for his attack of sickness and he screamed in fright when he was placed on stage.

A DUMMY was used until Bryan was talked out of his fear.

Later, at 6, playing on Hollywood streets, he was spotted by a casting director of the "Lassie" TV series.

As Bryan says, "Lassie" led to "Lawman" and "Lawman" led to "Troubleshooters" and "Troubleshooters" led to "Bus Stop . . ."

In three years, Bryan appeared in five movies and 25 TV shows. Currently, two films of his will appear, "How The West Was Won" and "Brothers Grimm." Bryan has just signed for another featured role as the brother in "Bye Bye Birdie."

Bryan is relaxed, besides baseball his hobbies are collecting bottle caps and baseball cards. He wants to be an architect and engineer and actor. He likes to ice skate, swim, ride horse back. He lives with his mother and sister, Jeanne, a movie gal in her own right. Jeanne, 11, plays the taunting Margaret in "Dennis the Menace."

Bryan can be seen on the set or at a Beverly Hills school walking around in his baseball cap with a ball glove tucked in his jacket—autographed by Mantle and Maris.

He's the luckiest boy in any town.

Seattle's Fair Is Photogenic

Flame-topped Space Needle is seen here through graceful curves of the Seattle World's Fair monorail setup.

By Irving Desfor

AMERICA'S MOST photoscenic attraction of 1962 is the Seattle World's Fair. We would guess that more people will bring more cameras and shoot more pictures there in its six-month season than in any similar area in the world for a similar period.

Plan in advance to shoot a comprehensive picture story of the occasion. As with any off-beat vacation trip, make this a personal photo "assignment" and prepare a preliminary script or check list of important highlights to be included.

Certainly no photo fan is going to miss the fair's tallest attraction — the flame-topped Space Needle. Just below the flaming jet of natural gas is an observation deck, making it the high point for picture taking on the grounds.

PERHAPS EVEN a better vantage point for an overall view is the northeast elevator going up and down from the Needle. It has glass walls and the vertical motion of the elevator can easily be stopped with a speed of 1/100 second and a firm grip on the camera.

A Photo Information Center near the base of the Needle and just across from the monorail station where people arrive from downtown Seattle is a handy meeting place or starting point for camera fans.

Movie fans may take the Sky Ride for a fast-moving view of the fair.

Near the fair's center, and certain to be one of its most photographed subjects, is a magnificent fountain with streams arching to a height of 100 feet. At night, colored lights add to the effect. For effective after-dark pictures of this water display, an exposure of 1/5 second at f/2 with Kodachrome Type A film is suggested. Or time exposures, with a tripod to steady the camera, can start with two seconds at f/5.

COUNTLESS opportunities for taking pictures indoors make it advisable to bring flashbulbs or a good light meter to gauge available light exposures correctly.

The best panoramic view of the entire fair area can be taken from a little city park about 100 blocks from the fair entrance. As a bonus, towering Mt. Ranier and the Seattle watefront are included in the same picture.

POPULAR BOOKLET with amateur photographers, "Clicking With Color," is available again in a revised edition that includes data on Kodachrome II film and the newest flash bulbs. Simply written, the booklet contains rules, charts and illustrations for shooting color pictures. It's a substitute for having an old pro standing by to advise. Kodak dealers have it (50 cents).

LONG BEACH Camera Club will install officers and present trophies at a dinner at 7 p. m. Wednesday in Jones' Dining Room, 126 E. 5th St. Lowell Weeks will present a program.

Aid for Lawns

How often do you feed your lawn? Monthly? Bimonthly? Or just whenever you get around to it. The California Association of Nurserymen claims that indifferent lawn care results in indifferent lawns and that feeding should be a regular process — just like watering and cutting (or are you indifferent about that, too?).

Feed once a month and your lawn will respond with a continuous even growth of green.

Brilliant Color for Summer

By Martha Hurley

Plumed cockscomb flowers resemble ostrich feathers, brilliant in colorful shades of red, yellow and rose.

IN JULY, often the sun seems to hide itself. On such a date, when the skies are leaden, you may glimpse a corner of a garden or a patio sparkling with brilliant color, shimmering in the heat of the mid-summer day. The color feast, you will find, is a bed of cockscomb.

The beloved, old-fashioned cockscomb has been greatly improved by plant hybridists. Botanically, it is Celosia. The plants add splendor to mid-summer and autumn gardens, blooming as they do continuously from July until frost.

The name, "cockscomb," applies to the huge flower heads in their resemblance to the form of a rooster's comb. The radiantly colored flower crests or long graceful flowering plumes are much in demand for flower arrangements. The vivid rich colorings of red, gold, yellow, rust and rose stand up in the heat and the plants thrive in hot weather.

The plants blend well in borders with marigolds and zinnias. For gentle contrast, tone them down with a border of soft grey "Dusty Miller."

THERE ARE three types of cockscomb. The crested, the feathered or plumed and the dwarf compact varieties.

Celosia plumosa bears plumes like ostrich feathers in great profusion on two-foot high plants. The foliage is as lovely as the flower. "Flaming Fire" has brilliant scarlet plumes waving over bronze-maroon foliage. The plumes stay in flower for weeks. "Golden Fleece" has long-stemmed, shimmering golden plumes above green leaves. The sturdy, well branched, upstanding plants are ideal for backgrounds. They grow well, most anywhere, from the desert to cool mountains.

Celosia "Toreador," a very popular variety and an All-America bronze medal winner is a stunner, an intense, bright scarlet with plush-like crests, 6 to 9 inches across. The foliage is light green. Plants grow 20 inches high, spread often to 2½ feet. They require plenty of growing space. For handsome contrast, plant "Toreador" with white petunias.

"Crestata" or crested dwarf Celosia has great velvety plumed heads 12 inches high, spreading out to a foot. Crested "Gilbert" is a soft rose shade growing 24 inches tall. "Jewel Box," a new variety, this year, is a real dwarf. For low beds, edging borders or window boxes, the plants make a beautiful showing. Enormous thick velvet crests almost hide the compact foliage of the uniformly dwarf eight-inch plants.

BESIDES BEING effective and colorful in garden beds, the plants are spectacular as potted plants and in arrangements or dried for winter bouquets.

These new cockscomb plants have three requirements. They need a rich, loamy soil, plenty of water and full sunlight.

Seeds may be started indoors in fertilized peat pots, then set into the warm ground outdoors.

Easier still, get plants from your nursery, both small bedding plants and larger potted or canned, well-established plants.

Cockscomb flowers last a long time, both in the garden and in arrangements. You can enjoy their beauty in winter bouquets, if you dry the flower crests and plumes as you do "Everlasting" flowers.

Early fall is a good time to begin harvesting the great flower crests and plumes for drying. Cut them close to the ground. Pick off all foliage. Shake out the seeds and hang the plants by their stems in a cool shady place to dry.

—Photos by W. Atlee Burpee

Water Wisely in Hot Weather

Watering flowers such as coreopsis (above) growing in the ground and shrubs in pots takes varied technique.

By Joe Littlefield

WATERING flowers in ground requires a different technique from watering plants in pots or other kinds of containers. Plants in ground have unlimited soil area that requires additional water. Container plants space for water is very limited.

That is why watering potted plants correctly is a critical factor in their growth during the hot weather. Many home gardeners turn the hose on strong, fill pots once and consider that watering. It is no wonder clay pot plants need daily waterings, yet plants don't thrive.

Gardeners should use one-fourth water pressure and fill the pots three or four times after water drains through the pots.

Watering this way gives plants a thorough drink and eliminates frequency of watering.

When to water is determined by types of containers and prevailing weather conditions. There are three types of containers. Clay pots are affected by weather conditions. If the weather is hot, the dry heat draws moisture quickly through porous clay pot, from the moist soil within. Naturally, plants are watered more often than those in composition pots or redwood tubs. Plants in wood containers are watered much less often because the soil stays moist much longer.

DURING THE hot part of summer you'll help azaleas and other potted plants to grow better by dunking them where practicable in a tub of water. Water in tub should be several inches higher than the tops of immersed pots. When bubbling stops—which means plant's roots have absorbed all the moisture they can hold—take them out. When well drained, put them back where they were in the patio or lath house.

You've done two helpful things dunking pots thusly. First, you've leached possible salts buildup in the soil. Next, you've also double checked to make sure plant root balls are thoroughly soaked.

A good time to fertilize or apply a soil conditioner to potted plants is either after a good drink of water, or after a dunking.

THERE ARE many kinds of plants grown in containers. Azaleas do exceptionally well, and may be grown two to three years in same size containers. Camellias, citrus, loquat, Trinidad flame bush, bottle brush, and many others are grown in containers, some in natural bush form, others trained to grow flat (espalliered) on a lathe frame.

Soil mixture should be two parts of organic mulch material and three parts of soil, excepting for azaleas. Use pre-moistened peat moss, unless your nurseryman at time of purchase tells you the azalea was grown in a different mixture.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Plant annual bedding plants for late summer and fall color.

By Dorothy Jonson

I think of June as the month for mildew; the time when it seems to be at its worst.

It is partly to guard against mildew that I frequently recommend the use of agricultural sulphur in the soil of your rose bed, during the spring.

Right now, however, your method of defending your garden against mildew is to follow a regular spraying program and for this I like to recommend a two - purpose rose spray . . . one that combines nicotine and copper. Such a spray can be used with safety every ten days or two weeks, since it is not harsh enough to leave dangerous residue. Still, it is sufficiently potent to keep down the thrip and aphis population at the same time that it checks mildew. Insect life moving over the body of the plants inevitably spreads mildew and other fungus diseases such as rust and black spot. Copper sprays have been tested and proven effective for use in warm, dry climates.

Lawns watered deeply and less frequently are happiest. If compaction prevents water penetration, use a corer.

Use containers of yellow marguerite for a quick show of color in your garden.

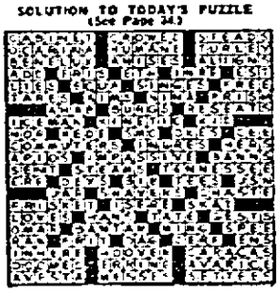

Figure on feeding chrysanthemums with liquid fish about every third week. Include fuchsias and begonias in this schedule, too.

Snails are year-round visitors in our gardens and should be greeted with bait or pellets. You can simply scatter the latter.

Begonia Society

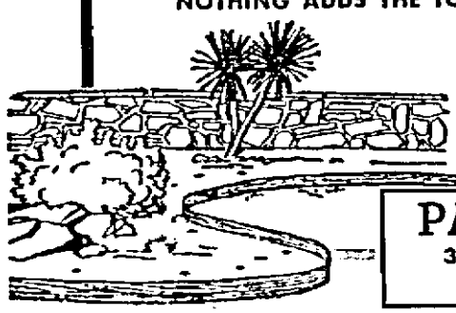

Color slides of gardens and flowers will be shown and a talk on tuberous begonias will be given at a meeting of North Long Beach branch, American Begonia Society, at 6:30 p. m. Friday in the banquet room of Community Savings & Loan Association, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Plant table and potluck supper are planned.

In sympathetic style that has drawn attention to his work, Robert Kasser portrays Sophia Loren and her pet.

Spare-Time Artist

By Vera Williams

THERE'S A TOUCH of something "different" about the home of Robert L. Kasser, 3832 Radnor Ave., a furniture salesman. Unusual furniture, you'd say offhand, but you'd be wrong. It's pictures.

Kasser has a houseful of them. He painted and drew them himself, and he has gained considerable attention by his efforts.

Sophia Loren, a Siamese cat in her arms; Pier Angeli, in a red beret, and an Italian girl with great hoop earrings were done in pastels.

CHARCOAL studies include a little girl, lying in her father's arms, apparently watching television; a mother and child; a serious clown; an old man with a pipe.

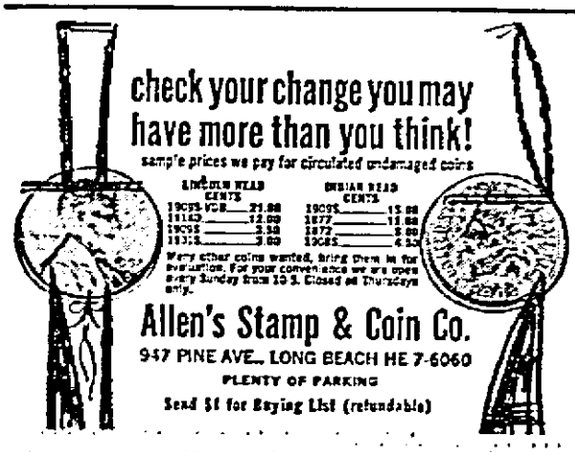

"Almost everyone paints smiling clowns," says Kasser. "I decided to do one who is not smiling."

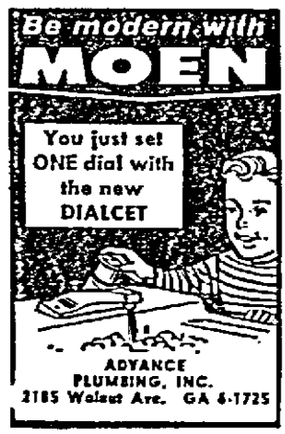

Visitors usually are struck by an unusual portrayal of mother and child. The child obviously is retarded. The mother holds it tenderly.

"That's mother love," says the 27-year-old artist.

"Sherry and Boots" is the title of this study by the Long Beach artist who does his work in his spare time.

VIRGIL HECKELMANN
Everything's New

NEW, wine-colored wall-to-wall carpeting which looks good enough to drink. . . . A handsome new decorating job inside and out, with the accent on modern off-white tints. . . . Smart modern abstracts hung on the walls. . . . An interesting new menu. . . . And a new staff trained in the secrets of gracious professional service.

Those are some of the ingredients of one of Long Beach's newest restaurants—Heck's on Willow Street at Magnolia Ave. Owned by Virgil Heckelmann, who tagged it with his own nickname, Heck's has quickly taken its place as one of the city's best restaurants, thanks to its excellent food and service policies. Heckelmann, former owner of Ricarts, is an experienced and skilled restaurateur who knows how to entrance diner-outers by serving them choice eastern beef which is a marvel of juiciness and tenderness. Prominent on his menu is a variety of charcoal-broiled steak delights (priced from $3.25 to $4.75) including a chef's special dinner steak, top sirloin, New York cut and filet mignon. Among the other house specialties are scrumptious cuts of roast prime rib au jus, with an appealing flavor that cannot be duplicated in any home kitchen, and a tremendous steak and lobster tail combination which has become one of the most sought-after items served. It includes a large 10-ounce whole lobster tail and a fine charcoal-broiled 10-ounce New York cut steak. Other entrees include charcoal-broiled halibut ($2.50), southern fried chicken, lobster or shrimp Newburg, grenadine of beef and beef tenderloin Stroganoff. All are served with assorted chilled relishes, soup du jour or tossed green salad, choice of potato style and beverage.

Heck's (formerly Crow's) also serves large complete luncheons, including the finest seafoods, steaks and other appetizing items.

TA-RA-RA-BOOM-DE-AY!

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

That's What Hollywood Needs

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — What Hollywood needs, says Lee Marvin, is a return to old-fashioned ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay!—and no one can deny he's the fastest draw with a zip-it-up gun since Humphrey Bogart.

Marvin stars 10 p. m. today (Sunday) in the adaption of an H. G. Wells' story, "The Country of the Blind," on channel 4.

Marvin has popped off about everything from some of the "insipid" plots television gave him as Lieutenant Ballinger on "M Squad" to what he thinks of certain actors and actresses, to Hollywood's lack of interest in merchandising movies once they are complete.

He arrived in Hollywood in 1951 when television started to drain all the colorful life out of the gay old town, and he laments: "I'm sorry I missed all the madness and the fun."

But he can't be accused of not trying to keep them from taking in the sidewalks at 9 p. m. He's a fellow who wants to keep the home fireworks burning.

OTHER SATURDAY NIGHT, he hosted a party for the touring Old Vic company and it was a swinger. "It started at midnight and it was mad," he tells it. "I finally collapsed and went to bed at 9:30 a. m. But the last of the guests didn't leave until 2:30 Sunday afternoon. There was none of the old, 'And what do you think about Frailty, thy name is woman?' Everybody lived it up, and I bet some of those Englishmen still have hang-overs."

The television treadmill—on which Lee does most of his work—keeps people so busy they don't have time to be themselves. It hasn't cramped the style of Lee Marvin, ex-Marine night raider, who is a character and admits it.

It's surprising, in a way, because he's one of the best actors in the business today. An "actor's actor," they call him, but he's better than that. Audiences don't usually dig actor's actors, but they dig Marvin, who says acting gives him an "exhiliarating feeling."

He was in a series of movies before television pinned a star on him, but the biggest movie impact of his career just came as the year's meanest heavy in "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance." What John Ford saw in his performance—a rugged, prematurely grey man, big enough to stand up to John Wayne—just won him another role with Ford and Wayne. The two of them will be toe-to-toe again this summer in a James Michener South Sea story.

"I HAVEN'T READ the script, yet," grins Marvin, "but it's a comedy about a couple of fellows who fight it out once a year."

About Ford, his new idol, he's as outspoken as on any subject you'd like to discuss. "He gives you 15 ways to play a scene," Lee tells it, "and if you go his way he's happy. But his directions are so light they are earthshaking. Like telling me one day:

"This is the first time I've filmed a stage coach holdup, so you're going to have to help me."

Subjects come and go because Lee Marvin likes to ramble. But his key lines you don't ever forget. Like why certain stars demand such high salaries: "They are expensive," snaps Marvin, "because they fail so often."

About men in space he says: "Maybe the Pilgrims will go to the moon instead of Massachusetts this time;" about criticism, "Everybody is a greater second guesser than a first guesser."

He will even give you a comment when you wonder if Richard Burton will marry Liz Taylor. "Why?" asks the obstreperous Lee Marvin.

LEE MARVIN AND MIRIAM COLON star in a drama about a Colombian miner who discovers a hidden valley inhabited by a race of eyeless people. The drama, an adaption of an H. G. Wells' story, airs 10 p.m. today (Sunday), channel 4.

Magazine Blasts Award to Minow

NEW YORK (AP)—"Broadcasting" magazine says the George Foster Peabody Radio and Television awards should be abolished because of an award to Newton N. Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Minow once called television a "vast wasteland."

The trade magazine is considered to often reflect the views and interests of the broadcasting industry.

The publication's lead editorial was headed, "Time to Bury the Peabody." It said the Peabody awards committee "defiled its purpose and defamed those it sought to honor last week by bestowing a special award upon the chairman of the FCC."

Shakespeare

A documentary special about William Shakespeare will be offered by NBC-TV next season in honor of the 400th anniversary of the bard's birth.

Air Mental-Health Drama Wednesday
'THE FIRST DAY'

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—"We're 12 minutes over," said Gordon Duff, the producer.

The way he said it was as calm as an old top hand can be in the wild and woolly world that is television. Except that—just how calm can you remain, with 12 extra minutes jutting out of an hour?

It's got to be lopped off, and in the lopping comes the hurting.

"When you cut a play, you hurt the author, the actors, the director, the . . . but we're all well aware that the clock is inexorable," said Duff. "We've got an hour. We're 12 minutes over it. You can't go ask the sponsor for an additional half hour.

"You can't cut Margaret Leighton's part. She's the star, and she's all over the play. And neither can you cut Ralph Bellamy, the special guest. What you do, finally, is you cut out some grace notes—the ornamentation, some of the smaller things in the flow of the piece."

• • • •

THE PIECE at hand was the last of the five original dramas that Duff has produced this season for the "Westinghouse Presents" series on the CBS network. It is "The First Day," by Roger O. Hirson, directed by Tom Donovan, and it's coming on Wednesday night (channel 2 at 10 o'clock) pre-empting "Armstrong Circle Theater."

Miss Leighton, who is starring on Broadway in the award-winning "The Night of the Iguana," will portray in the TV vehicle, a school-teacher attempting readjustment after being discharged from a mental hospital.

The time problem that Duff was discussing is one of many a producer ponders in the days before taping a play. In the case of cutting, the author, producer and director get together and decide how to do it. Do they ever break out in a titanic quarrel? No, says Duff. Although they'd like to have an hour and a half, they all realize it's got to be done in an hour and that's that.

• • • •

THE PLAY is taped as if it is being put on live. The taping is done in three days, an act a day.

"This one was remarkably easy to cast," Duff said. "There was plenty of enthusiasm. In doing a string of specials like this, you had to take the pro's, the guys who could deliver. And it's hard to vary in a series like this. You have to stick with a tried and true formula.

"Five different writers have come to me and said, 'Let's do the aftermath of the H-bomb'. You can't do that in a studio. You might do it in a weekly show. With 54 shows a year, you can experiment. Here, we're trying to do originals and it's much more difficult.

"The boys who write originals always want to do something new and fresh. They're trying to do the big things rather than the dramatic things. Take a topic like the Freedom Riders. I think the public affairs department can do this so much better.

• • • •

"OR TAKE the crew member of the Enola Gay who had trouble. How much do we really know about it? Or the U2 pilot, Francis Gary Powers. I don't know how much we know about his case—or don't know.

"A drama like 'Victoria Regina,' which won the big Emmy award, is comparatively easy to do. It has run on Broadway, and all over. It's polished with the years. Actors approach it with a reverence — whereas they approach originals with wariness."

Duff believes the TV audience reacts best to the small play that is intimately concerned with a person's life and is not too involved in plot.

"Audience taste is the same as in Greek times — they want a story they can identify with and empathize with," he said.

MARGARET LEIGHTON (left) stars as a schoolteacher discharged from a mental hospital during "The First Day" at 10 p.m. Wednesday, channel 2. Ralph Bellamy portrays her father and Nancy Wickwire is her sister.

THE LATE Fiorello La Guardia, the "Little Flower" reform mayor of New York City, will be the subject of "Biography" at 7 p. m. Saturday, channel 4, a series premiere.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

June Foray is a girl who goes around talking to herself—and gets paid for it.

On NBC's Sunday "Bullwinkle" TV show, for example, she's Rocky the Squirrel and Natasha.

The hero squirrel and villainess Natasha frequently are involved in verbal tilts but June never has the bushy-tail sounding like the sinistress.

On the same show, she's also Nell Fenwick in the "Dudley Du-Right of the Mounties" segment.

She supplies the feminine voices for CBS's "The Alvin Show" and many of the falsetto tones for ABC's "Calvin and the Colonel."

For Walt Disney, she's Grandma Duck and Witch Hazel. She has been, in fact, about 150 "voice-overs" and each character has been a little "different."

HER FAVORITE VOICES are those that she does on commercials.

"I get paid more money in residuals (repeats)," she said. "And they're always doing something different with commercials."

The real June Foray, a petite, 4-feet, 11-inch-tall, 95-pound doll, smiled engagingly.

"I had quite a challenge with one commercial last year," she said. "I did an empty peanut-butter jar."

So how does an empty peanut-butter jar sound—old, blase, young, vigorous?

"I tried it halfway between a straight voice and a Tallulah (Bankhead)," said June. "They seemed to like it."

Another which the sponsors "liked" was the radio voice June used to sexily plug a fertilizer. You know the one:

"So-and-so is the word for fertilizer."

The advertisement comes across like an invitation from the world's most glamorous girl to a midnight rendezvous for two, you and Miss Sexy.

And anybody with common sense knows that midnight is a poor time to fertilize your lawn.

FOR THE SEXY VOICE, June used low, breathy tones.

Low tones, according to June, are necessary to transmit glamour over the radio.

"Marilyn Monroe, who has a real high voice, would come over flat on radio," she said.

On television, except for a few rare exceptions, June has been seen and not heard.

"I'm little," she said. "There aren't many seeing parts for little girls."

It's the TV audience's visual loss. The small package comes in a pretty container.

BUT JUNE, who made her radio debut when she was six years old and has been working steadily since she was twelve, has found that there can be recognition even for the unseen.

A doctor recently gave her a prescription for a sore throat. During the course of his examination, he learned why June felt it was so urgent the throat should be healed quickly.

When the doctor left, he told June:

"I'm going to be a big man in my house when they find out I treated Rocky and Natasha."

June, with her cartoon voices, has "treated" millions of children. The knowledge of the pleasure she's given them is worth more than her residual payments.

"They may not stop me at Hollywood and Vine to ask for my autograph," she added, "but I'm the star in my own neighborhood."

What has happened to "Tic Tac Bowl" which used to be on channel 5 every day at 11 a.m.?

Mrs. J. Murphy, Long Beach

It struck out when the outside packager failed to deliver the programs on schedule, according to KTLA officials.

• • • •

Set the alarm for the whole family at 8:10 a.m. Saturday so we wouldn't miss our art lesson on channel 2. What happened? We have really enjoyed John Gnagy series.

Mrs. B. W. Ward, Long Beach

Artist John Gnagy was painted out of the picture one Saturday because his New York office failed to deliver the film. KNXT officials said the New York liaison man flew to Hawaii and the Hollywood liaison man didn't realize he hadn't received the film because he was home sick or sick at home.

• • • •

What happened to Tommy Rettig of "Lassie"?

Rena Smith, Long Beach

He's married, has three children and currently is looking for a stage role.

• • • •

The petition signed by school children in favor of keeping "National Velvet" on the air has been forwarded to NBC.

What a shocking situation to cancel this program because of ratings when broadcasts on Sunday reached almost 12 million homes.

Clara Logan, president National Assn. for Better Radio and Television

I'm sending you two more petitions, Mrs. Logan. Please see the following two letters.

• • • •

I hope these names (126 of them) will help "National Velvet" to stay on television.

I am nine years old and my friends and I really like it.

Diana Lunt, Long Beach

Our organization, "Scupy Sales and Friends," has collected in the past few days the signatures of 76 people who are joining Scupy in his campaign to stop students from dropping out of high school.

We hope that this small gesture will indicate to you and others that many people, Scupy fans or not, are willing to join Scupy in fighting a serious problem such as this.

Scupy himself is really interested in the welfare of today's youth.

Karen Heffman and Dianne MacLagen, Long Beach

You're right about Scupy, but you're wrong about the 76 names. There are only 75 signatures. No one wanted to sign the space you had numbered 13.

Court Award

The Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge has named ABC-TV's "Day in Court" for a George Washington honor medal award. An accompanying citation commends the program for "pointing up citizens' rights under our constitution."

'Fair Exchange'

An hour situation comedy series, "Fair Exchange," will be aired by CBS-TV next season.

The series will star Eddie Foy Jr. and deal with the year-long exchange visits of teen-age daughters between an American and a British family.

The new Metrecal™ chocolate wafer: a temptation you need not resist

Now you can enjoy chocolate wafers without sacrificing the calorie control essential to weight reduction. Metrecal chocolate wafers can be used—not as an indulgence—but, in proper quantities, as the basis of a diet that helps you lose weight. The delicious chocolate flavor is achieved while maintaining the nutritional completeness and appetite satisfaction of Metrecal in other forms.

1. Metrecal chocolate wafers contain all essential nutrients including the requisite unsaturated fats, the protection of complete protein and, of course, the necessary vitamins and minerals.

2. Metrecal helps prevent hunger: Appetite satisfaction can depend less on the amount of food you eat than on the types and combinations of nutrients. Metrecal chocolate wafers supply the energy and appetite satisfaction an active person needs while on a diet.

3. Metrecal permits precise control of calories; no guesswork: Each wafer contains 25 calories. Nine make a satisfying 225-calorie meal with the same nutritional completeness as an 8-ounce serving of Metrecal liquid. Whether you enjoy liquid, wafers, or the two in combination, Metrecal puts you in control of your diet.

4. Metrecal offers proved safety and effectiveness: Extensive clinical tests show that the Metrecal 900-calorie daily diet can result in gratifying weight loss beginning in less than one week.

Remember, your physician is your best counsel on weight control.

LOOK WHERE 80¢ WILL TAKE YOU

THIS SUMMER, when you board your plane at Chicago for Rome, why not stop off at such exotic Caribbean and South American spots as Aruba, Caracas and Paramaribo?

The cost to you: only 80 cents more.

Are you booked on a New York to New Delhi trip? You'll be able to take in Moscow at no extra charge. If you buy a ticket from Los Angeles or San Francisco to Buenos Aires, the airline will throw in a free trip to New York.

The reason for this little-known bounty on the part of the airlines is their membership in a world-wide association that regulates air fares. If you fly the approved routes of member companies—and this includes carriers behind the Iron Curtain, too—you can take advantage of these special combined rates.

A Los Angeles couple had been looking forward for months to a South American trip. A few days before they were to leave, an invitation arrived to a favorite nephew's wedding in New York. The woman phoned her travel agent, regretfully cancelled her South American trip in favor of a ticket to New York. "We just can't afford both trips," she explained.

"But you can," the agent told her. "The tickets from Los Angeles to Buenos Aires let you travel by way of New York at no extra fare. All you'll have to pay is a few dollars federal tax."

The side trips on the Chicago-Rome run make up what is one of the most dramatic examples of these bonus stopovers. The extra 80 cents can take you as far south as Venezuela, as far north as Scotland.

From Chicago you would fly to New York, then board a plane to Caracas, Venezuela. Next you would hop to Curacao, the Dutch island in the Caribbean, then to Port of Spain in Trinidad, Georgetown in British Guiana, and Paramaribo in Surinam.

European Highlights

You would next wing across the Atlantic, with optional stops at Lisbon and Madrid before reaching Rome. On the return trip you would be able to visit many cities in Europe, including Paris and London or Vienna and Amsterdam, with Scotland the final stopover.

This particular routing was devised by Rudy Tjerdeema, a tariff specialist for KLM Royal Dutch Airlines. Now he is busy digging out new possibilities with VIASA, the Venezuelan airline.

The bonus on the New York-New Delhi flight is worked on a "back-door" air route opened several years ago by the Russians and Indians via Tashkent, U.S.S.R. Tariff experts, looking for connection possibilities, have come up with a comprehensive circle route that allows stopovers in Scandinavia, the Soviet Union, Africa, and the Middle East, along with many points in continental Europe.

Not to be outdone by the spectacular offerings of the airlines, the railroads have what they call "diverse routings."

A husband and wife, for example, will pay $200.81, including tax, for round-trip family-plan coach tickets between Chicago and San Francisco. A regular routing of 4,522 miles will take them to Omaha, Cheyenne and Ogden.

But if they have time to spare and the curiosity of the traveler, they can be routed over a trip covering 6,441 miles for only $19.36 more. This would give them stopovers at Denver, Salt Lake City, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, and San Diego on the way west, and they could touch Seattle and St. Paul on the way back.

For only a few extra dollars they convert a straight trip into a scenic tour of some of the nation's top tourist attractions, with visits to Rocky Mountain National Park, the Grand Canyon, the Mexican border, Yosemite National Park and the Pacific Northwest.

How can you find out the stopovers and bonus mileages you're entitled to? Next time you plan a trip, be sure to ask your travel agent or the representative of your airline or railroad: "How many cities am I allowed to visit between here and my destination?"

His answer may open up to you the wonders of the world—free or for a few extra dollars. —DAVID COLLAN

Free stopover in Moscow lets you visit famed St. Basil's Cathedral in Red Square.

Thousands of extra miles can be yours at little or no additional cost

Are you headed for Rome this summer? You can also take in Dublin and Lourdes—as well as a peek behind the Iron Curtain at Prague—at no extra cost. An ordinary rail trip to the West Coast can mean sidetrips at very little additional cost to the Grand Canyon and Denver. An airline ticket from Los Angeles to Buenos Aires entitles you to a free transcontinental trip to New York—for just a few dollars federal tax. How is this done? It's all in the regular schedules—but hidden.

Rome's main drag, Via Veneto, is where you'll see the rest of the world stroll by.

In Naples five months ago the world's best-known mobster died, leaving behind a web of intrigue that is still being unraveled. Here, with Luciano's own snapshots (right), PARADE tells this story for the first time.

Luciano poses with last mistress, Adriana Rizzo.

Adriana took this shot of Lucky, U.S. visitor Pat Ryan.

the last days of

by JACK ANDERSON

NAPLES, ITALY.

ON THE BRISK AFTERNOON of January 26, 1962, Charles "Lucky" Luciano, last of the flamboyant old ganglords, sagged to the pavement outside the Capodichino air terminal here. Only seconds earlier the tough, 65-year-old gangster had seemed in the pink of health. Now he was dead of a heart attack.

This is the story of his last days.

Lucky Luciano belonged to the reckless decade of Prohibition, when mobsters thumbed their noses at the law and basked in the garish limelight of the Roaring Twenties. He climbed from the gutters of Brooklyn to become the unchallenged ruler of the underworld. Ugly and cruel-looking, he was yet strangely attractive to women, had many mistresses over the years. The heart attack that killed him ended an era—but left a riddle behind. What were the curious and sinister goings-on that had come to a sudden halt with Lucky's death?

From Italian police, who trailed him and tapped his phone in the last months of his life, from U.S. narcotics agents who studied his every move, PARADE has pieced together the bizarre tale of Luciano's end. It is a mysterious story, filled with questions that may never be answered—and with contradictions.

What was on Luciano's mind as his life, unknown to him, was nearing its end? Two things were paramount: a movie and a dope ring.

The movie was to have been the story of Luciano's life, and the old mobster, who had a touch of the ham in him, wanted very much to see it made. The dope ring, according to U.S. Treasury agents, was a new world wide conspiracy which Lucky was trying to establish. In the last months of his life Luciano shuttled between these two concerns, surrounded wherever he went by strange, shadowy, mysterious figures.

Putting the Luciano story on film had been the idea of a man named Charles Duke, an acquaintance of Lucky's who had Hollywood connections. He sold the idea to Luciano, then brought in a producer, Martin Gosch, to write the script and produce the film.

The deal fell through in the end, but not for lack of material. Luciano's life was rich and colorful enough for half a dozen movies. He started in the underworld at the age of 9, rose to be kingpin of New York rackets until a rising young prosecutor named Thomas E. Dewey convicted him of organizing compulsory prostitution.

Ten Years in Jail

Luciano went to Dannemora prison for a 30 to-50 year stretch and Dewey went on to be governor. Only ten years later, the doors that had clanged shut behind the mobster were dramatically opened by none other than Dewey. The condition: that Lucky return to his native Italy and never set foot on U.S. soil again.

He came to Naples, took an apartment overlooking the soft blue bay, resumed his fast, luxurious living. He kept his hands in the American rackets and took his share of the profits through couriers. Federal agents regarded him as the mastermind of the international dope traffic. From his table in the California cafe here, Lucky Luciano could still fix almost anything.

He had begun to show his age when I talked to him here two years ago. His features had blurred, his black hair was turning a distinguished gray. Even his brown eyes, once hard as agate, were disarmingly gentle behind rimless glasses. He spent much of his time betting on the ponies, liked to sign autographs for tourists.

In this life of smug semi-retirement the idea of a film biography appealed strongly to Luciano, and at first he and Gosch got along well. The deal was fitting as smoothly as one of Luciano's silk shirts. Then in December 1960—13 months before Lucky was to die—the New York underworld got word of what the exiled mobster was up to. One day a man named Thomas Eboli, known in gangland circles as Tommy Ryan, arrived with a message from New York's latest gang boss, Anthony Strollo, known as Tony Bender.

Luciano's old associates argued that they had built up a multi-million-dollar, worldwide business, which had to be protected from the glare of publicity. An authorized film of Luciano's life, rattling old skeletons and stirring up new notoriety, might give new impetus to the drive against organized crime. The gang wanted the movie stopped.

Lucky reluctantly assented, but Gosch was less easily put off. He tore up the old script and wrote a new one. Then he did a selling job on Luciano. The old mobster approved the script as revised.

Italian beach scene: Adriana, Lucky and unknown companion.

LUCKY LUCIANO

But no amount of revision would satisfy the New Yorkers. Pat Ryan, Tommy's brother, hurried to Naples a week before Luciano's death to state the message in more emphatic terms: Tony Bender wanted the movie killed. Ryan was to bring back the original copy of the new script, with Lucky's initials on each page, to show Luciano agreed.

Phone Call from Madrid

Ryan and Lucky had a long talk at the Trans-Atlantico Restaurant here on January 17, after which Lucky wrote Gosch and told him the movie was off. The producer phoned from Madrid, demanded a hearing. Luciano told him to come and bring the script with him. Ryan, he intimated, would be waiting for it. Luciano promised to meet Gosch's plane. The place: Capodichino Airport. 4 p.m., January 26, 1962.

While all this was going on, Luciano had been giving an increasing amount of attention to the second of his main concerns, narcotics—and so had the police of three countries. This part of the final chapter of Lucky's life opened in May 1961, eight months before he was to die. It began with the arrival at Luciano's Naples apartment of Henry and Theresa Rubino, a strange and brassy couple from Miami. They were go-betweens for Luciano, but had no direct connection with the narcotics racket. Henry, a fleshy, flashy showoff, and Theresa, a fading brunette who liked outsize diamonds and purple suede shoes, were in Italy ostensibly to buy a restaurant. Luciano, who was believed to own pieces of other restaurants, would be their adviser and silent partner.

The Rubinos visited the Naples night spots and restaurants with Luciano and his new, young, pigeon-plump mistress, Adriana Rizzo. They stayed a month, then went back to Miami—supposedly to sell their restaurant there. They remained all summer and through part of the fall. On August 30, Lucky wrote Rubino a letter.

"Dear Henry," it began. "I have received the letters and photographs, and want to tell you how happy I was to have news of you, and I thank you for what you did at the cemetery. Henry, there is really nothing that I want. Only when you are ready to come here again, give my regards to Tony B., Pat R. and Tommy. Best regards to Theresa and you."

Luciano signed the letter, "Your friend, Charlie," as he was called by his intimates. Police suspected the letter was a code message to Rubino but couldn't crack it. Rubino later was to admit to police that the names in the letter referred to gang boss Tony Bender and his couriers, Pat and Tommy Ryan. But Rubino would say no more, except that he had placed a wreath on the grave of Luciano's mother.

Meanwhile, in America, a seemingly unrelated sequence of events was unrolling. Three men who had been arrested in a narcotics conspiracy jumped bail in New York and skipped the country. They were Vincent Mauro, Frank Caruso, and Salvatore Maneri. Keeping one step ahead of police, the trio went to Nassau, where they soaked up sunshine and scattered dollars like green confetti.

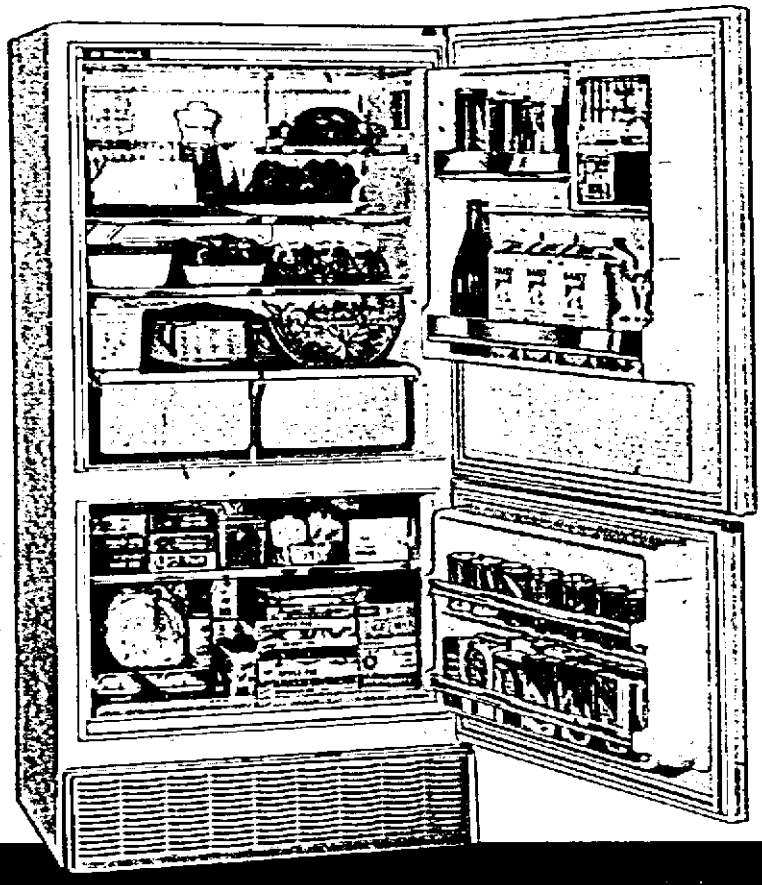

Three Canadian girls on vacation noticed their lavish behavior. When the girls got back to Toronto they saw photos of the fugitives in a newspaper, tipped off the Canadian Mounted Police. But Mauro, Maneri and Caruso, traveling on phony Canadian passports, stayed ahead of the law. In rapid succession they visited the Bahamas, Jamaica, Caracas, London, Nice, and finally Spain. There investigators lost their trail.

The trio stayed successfully out of sight until November 1961, when a chance uncovered them —and shed new light on their roles. It began when the Rubinos left Miami, turned up in Luciano's company in Naples. They stayed a week—until, police say, they got a phone call from Barcelona, Spain. The next day they hurried there, met three men. Police of Spain, Italy and the U.S., who had been trailing the Rubinos, discovered they had been led to Mauro, Caruso and Maneri.

Parties and Sightseeing

Not knowing yet what was up, however, investigators sat tight. The Rubinos stayed in Barcelona a few days, then flew back to Italy and Luciano. There they embarked on a gay whirl of parties with Lucky and Adriana. Rubino and Lucky carried on oblique telephone conversations, which puzzled police were sure contained coded messages.

A lurch, a gasp and—"Martin, Martin, Martin"

At Lucky's funeral are (circle, r.) his brother Bartolo and (l.) Dr. Giuseppe Dosi, head of Italian Interpol.

At Christmas time, with Lucky's death now a scant month away, the four went to Taormina, the famous Sicilian beach resort. They behaved like innocent tourists, sightseeing around Mount Etna by day, night-clubbing in hot spots at night—mostly at a club called La Giarra, owned by Francesco Scimone.

After a long holiday, the four returned to Naples. The Rubinos, however, took off almost immediately for Spain. And it now became apparent that their Sicilian trip had had a secret purpose, for accompanying them was their genial host of Taormina, Francesco Scimone. The three immediately went into a huddle with the three fugitives, Mauro, Caruso and Maneri, in Madrid's Palace Hotel.

On this furtive trip to Madrid, Theresa Rubino also bought a wedding anniversary card for her husband. She scribbled on it endearing words about "all the wonderful things we have shared and the secrets we have. My sweetheart, I worship you. Your Big Nose." Secrets indeed!

Watching and listening police in both Italy and Spain were now convinced something big was afoot. They decided it was time to move in, picked up Lucky for questioning. By a strange chance, it was the same day Lucky had arranged to meet Gosch at the airport to discuss the movie deal: January 26. Neatly, inexorably, like a master dramatist, Fate was drawing the two threads of Lucky's life together.

At his questioning Luciano explained to the police that all the mysterious comings and goings between Naples and Madrid were perfectly innocent. They concerned the movie, not narcotics at all. To prove his point Luciano invited police to accompany him to the airport to meet Gosch. An English-speaking officer, Cesare Resta, was sent.

The Luck Runs Out

Resta and Luciano were in the airport waiting room when Gosch's plane taxied in, just after 4 p.m. Luciano, immaculate as ever, wore sharply-creased gray flannel slacks and a blue sports coat.

Lucky introduced Gosch to Resta, started to lead them to his car. Then it happened. Just outside the terminal, a few steps from the car, Lucky suddenly staggered. He clutched Gosch. "Martin, Martin, Martin," he gasped. He sagged limply into Gosch's arms.

The airport doctor was quickly summoned. He put a stethoscope to Lucky's chest, looked up and said simply: "This man is dead." A green canvas sheet was pulled over the body until the hearse arrived. It was just after 5 p.m.

The news spread fast. Headlines flashed all over the world. Police moved quickly to pick up those who had spent time in the dead mobster's company before they could disappear.

Mauro, Maneri and Caruso were nabbed in Madrid. In Mauro's pockets was $11,730 and the key to a safe deposit box which contained $43,759 more. The three fugitives were shipped back to the U.S., and recently were given five-year sentences for bail jumping.

A Mysterious Disappearance

The Rubinos were also picked up and questioned, but they were finally released. Ryan stayed in Italy for Lucky's funeral, then slipped silently away. Tony Bender, as of this writing, has mysteriously vanished. As for the lady in the case, mistress Adriana had shown an interest in the handsome Pat Ryan even before Lucky's death.

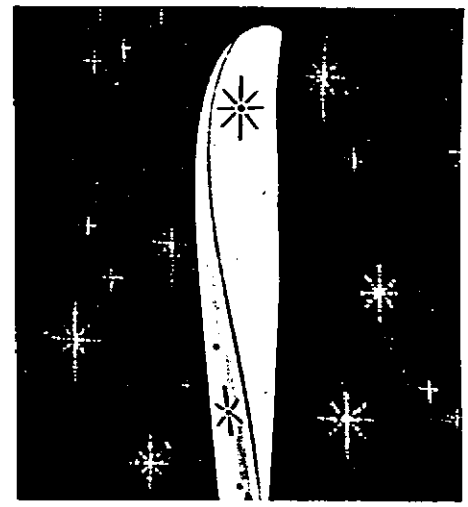

From all the evidence they could muster, investigators were convinced that a worldwide narcotics ring had been in the making. Lucky was to direct it, and the three phony Canadians were to play important roles. All the comings and going between Italy and Spain, the furtive messages and coded phone calls, had been for the purpose of passing money and "business" secrets.

Lucky's death, coming so unexpectedly, stymied the whole fantastic operation, for the time being at least. As for "The Lucky Luciano Story," Gosch still has his script, may try to go ahead with the movie. It will be interesting to see if any further pressures are exercised to stop it.

As for Lucky, the last time I talked to him before his death, he spoke longingly of returning to New York, the Big City, the scene of his underworld triumphs. He got his wish in February 1962. Luciano's body was shipped to New York and placed in a $30,000 family vault in St. John's Cemetery. His brothers, Bartolo and Joseph, removed their hats in the gathering dusk as the coffin was placed in the tomb. But no words were spoken.

A stained glass window in the crypt depicted a saint. To make conversation after the ceremony, a visitor asked Bartolo in a hushed voice what saint it was.

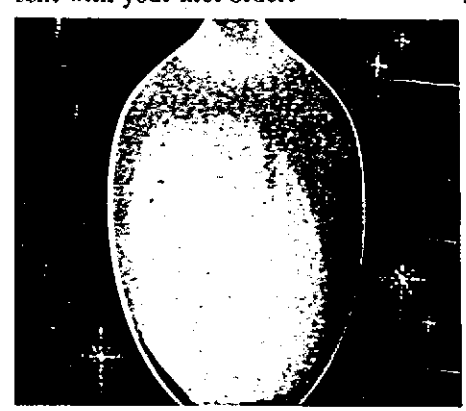

"I don't know," replied Bartolo. "I don't have much to do with saints." ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL
INTELLIGENCE REPORT

WIFE WANTED. Girls who want to marry a millionaire will be interested in a young man, 25, tall, blond and handsome, whose mother recently advertised to find him a wife. In the German newspaper Die Welt the mother described her son as follows: "A millionaire's son and his sole heir, a student, 5 feet 11 inches tall, healthy, good slim figure, with all good attributes, spiritually active, likes sports and music and is well brought up...My future daughter-in-law must be able to manage a large household with a personal maid, cook, second cook, housekeeper, laundress, second maid, butler, second butler, third butler, silver butler, chauffeur and gardener. Necessary in his wife-to-be are good health, faultless past, fascinating femininity, bookkeeping ability, sense of family responsibility and a talent for becoming co-owner of a large company...Money is absolutely unimportant but it would be nice if his wife could play the violin."

CAR BUYERS. British auto editors are advising prospective car buyers to rent a new car for a week and to test drive it themselves before purchasing the same model. Car rental proprietors report the idea is spreading to the U.S.

Paul Newman shoots pool in The Hustler. Will family groups replace the traditional crowd of sharks?

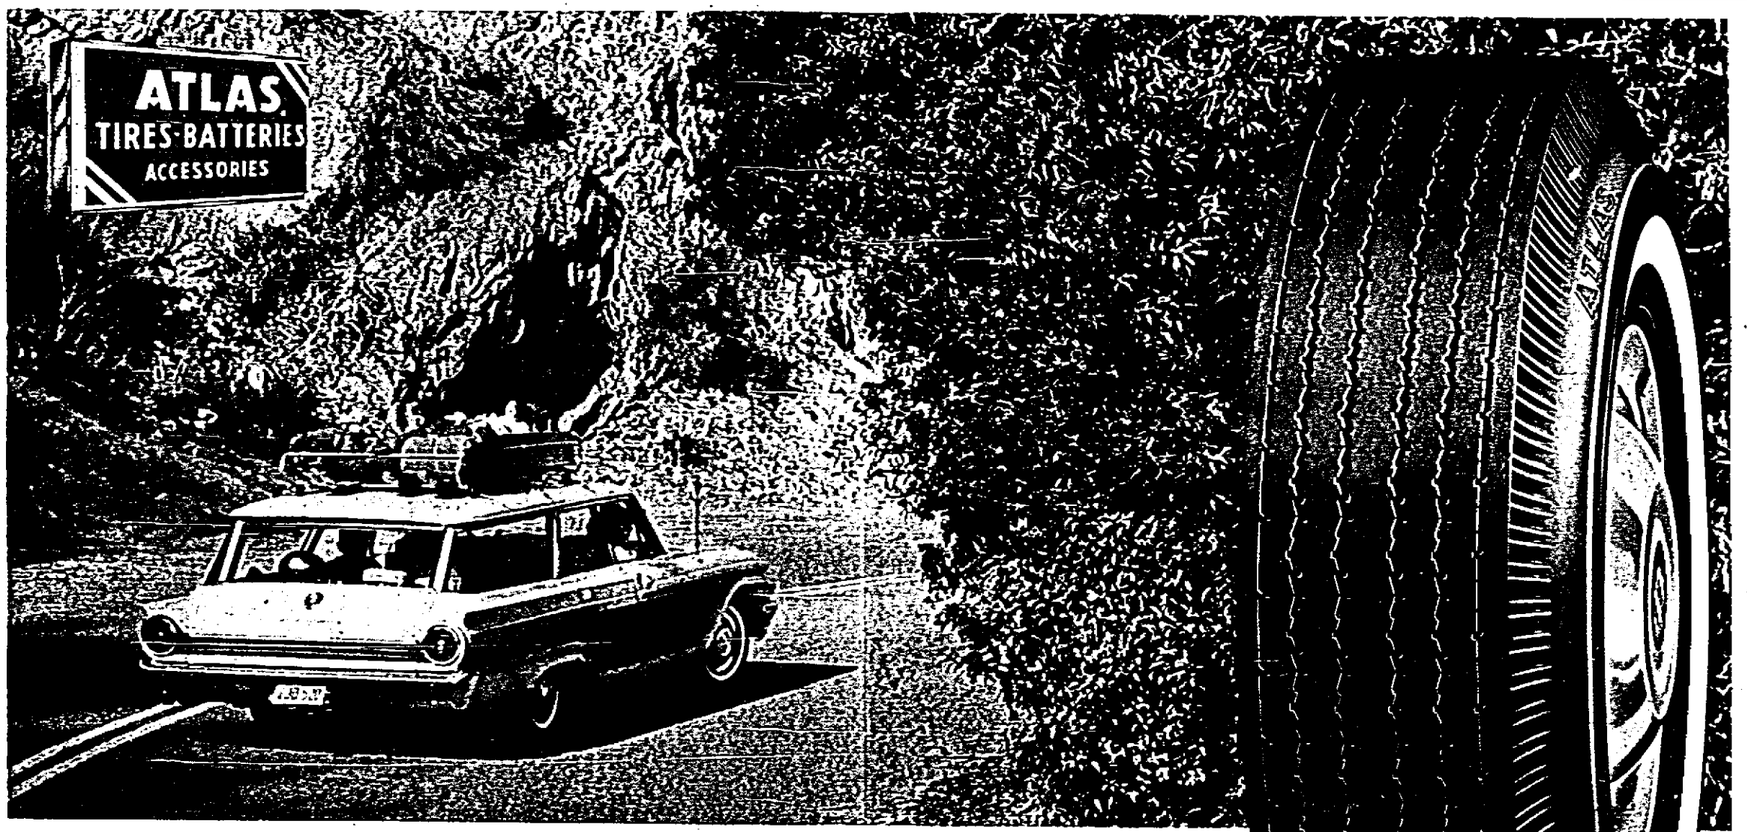

FEMALE POOL SHARKS. A campaign is under way by manufacturers of pool tables to popularize the game for women. The result is that modern pool halls are springing up throughout the country, designed to attract wives and their husbands as well as the youngsters. The plan is to equip bowling alleys with pool tables, keep pool sharks and loiterers out by charging $2.00 an hour for billiards, turn pool into a family recreation.

SOCIAL DYNAMITE. One of the major teenage crime problems of the day involves the young, unemployed Negro who has dropped out of school. In Washington, D.C., St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, New York and other cities to which southern Negroes have migrated in recent years, this problem has become -- in the words of Arthur J. Goldberg, Secretary of Labor -- "potentially the most dangerous social condition in America today." Because these young Negroes, frequently unskilled and uneducated, can find no jobs, they often turn to crime. Says Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard and an authority on education: "The building up of a mass of unemployed and frustrated Negro youth in congested areas of a city is a social phenomenon that may be compared to the piling up of inflammable material in an empty building in a city block."

WHY WIVES WORK. What is responsible for the influx of wives into the labor market? Sociologists attribute it to home conveniences which afford the wife more spare time. The U.S. Department of Labor, however, says the electronic age has absolutely nothing to do with the increase in working wives. The major reason most married women work is necessity. They work to support themselves, their children, or their husbands, or to contribute to the payment of the family bills. In 1950 there were 8,500,000 working wives in the U.S. In 1960 the number increased to 12,500,000. In 1970 the figure should jump to 20,000,000.

MARRIAGE MACHINE. Dr. Eric Riss, head of the Scientific Introduction Service, a New York marriage agency which uses an electronic cupid, claims: "Of the 500 marriages we have arranged this way since 1956 we have had just one divorce. The divorce rate for the ordinary marriage in America is one in four. However, we don't guarantee anything." The electronic match-making works this way: A male client is given a battery of tests, the information from which is coded and fed into a computer. Within the computer is information stored on the demands and interests of 3,000 women clients. The machine eventually sorts out the women who have the most in common with the prospective groom.

WHO SMOKES? More than 60 million Americans over the age of 18 smoke. Do smokers have any personality traits in common? Researchers in a study of 2,360 male subjects offer three major premises: (1) Extroverts are heavier smokers than introverts; (2) The more emotionally unstable a man is, the heavier he smokes; (3) People with rigid or puritanical personalities smoke the least.

Three new ways to serve tuna

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

MADE IN A LOAF, shaped into croquettes or served in tiny balls as an appetizer, this tuna mixture is a delight—easy to prepare and just the thing for adding variety to hot-weather meals. Plan a family dinner, using this loaf. Begin with chilled canned vichyssoise with a sprinkling of fresh cut chives. Serve the loaf hot, with instant mashed potatoes, frozen asparagus and a leafy green salad. End with berries and cream. With the croquettes as the main attraction, begin with ice cold juice. Serve tomato sauce with the croquettes. Add crisped frozen French-fried potatoes, green beans, cucumber salad. For dessert, melon wedges. Or, serve the loaf for a company lunch, garnished as shown. Add hot rolls and green peas. Have ice cream and cookies for dessert, and coffee or tea.

Crusty Tuna Trio

2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. each) tuna
1½ cups soft bread cubes
¼ cup chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ cup evaporated milk
Packaged corn flake crumbs

Drain oil from tuna into mixing bowl. Add bread cubes to oil; blend well. Mix in onion, salt, pepper, mayonnaise and lemon juice. Flake tuna; add. For appetizers, shape into 1" balls; for croquettes, shape into 1½" x 4" ovals; for loaf, shape as desired or use small loaf pan. Dip balls or croquettes in evaporated milk; sprinkle with crumbs. Brush loaf with evaporated milk; sprinkle with crumbs. Place on foil lined baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 10 minutes for appetizers; 20 minutes for croquettes; 30 minutes for loaf. Makes five dozen appetizers, six croquettes or one loaf.

The meat of a Sunkist Orange gives you lots more health than vitamin C

Something always gets left out of frozen orange juice —the meat. Yet nature hid health builders all through the fresh Sunkist Orange—some in the juice, the rest in the rich meat, such as protopectins* and bio-flavonoids. When you can get all the natural vitamin C plus 50 other nutrients, why settle for less? Eat whole fresh Sunkist Oranges —drink whole fresh orange juice.

DEAN RUSK

THE QUIET AMERICAN

WASHINGTON, D.C.

WHEN PRESIDENT KENNEDY named Dean Rusk to be his Secretary of State, diplomats arched their eyebrows, politicians gasped with astonishment, newsmen scurried for facts. Of all the men mentioned for the post, second most important in the land, the subdued, scholarly Georgian was the least known. True, he had served the public for 11 years in high positions, had participated in policy decisions that affected the nation's destiny. Yet he was a stranger to the American people and an enigma to the rest of the world. Not even the President had met Rusk until four days before announcing his appointment.

After 18 months on the diplomatic high wire, Rusk has demonstrated sureness of foot—if shyness of the limelight. He has earned the deep respect of diplomats, politicians, and newsmen alike. Yet he remains the quiet American, the most modest of statesmen, who prefers to make history behind the scenes.

Rusk simply isn't the type who produces anecdotes. There is nothing dynamic nor dramatic about him. He has a round, genial face, a few freckles like a shake of nutmeg on his balding head. He is a lithe six-feet-one, with legs too long to fit comfortably under a conference table. Although his mind races at double speed, he moves at an easy pace. He is steady, reasonable, unruffled. "Like Ol' Man River," says an aid, "he is deep and just keeps rolling along."

Rusk has never been heard to raise his voice, yet he speaks with a quiet authority that compels others to listen. Of a dozen personal secretaries, aids and advisers canvassed by PARADE, all agreed: "I have never seen him angry."

But his wife Virginia confides: "Only small things ever irritate Dean—petty annoyances, say, like taking a short cut that turns out to be the longest way around." Then he may show his impatience by puffing more quickly on a cigarette (he is a heavy smoker) or quickening his slightly limping step (he has a trick knee from an old basketball injury). But the surest sign he is upset, says Mrs. Rusk, is a sudden silence.

DAVID DEAN RUSK, urbane man of the world, came from a one-horse farm in Cherokee County, Ga. His older brother, Parks Rusk, now president of the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce, recalls: "Dean was born impressive. He weighed 10½ pounds. He also seemed to be born mature. He was always the leader with a crowd of other kids tagging around after him. He was a merry little fellow, yet serious and studious. He read all his first grade books before entering school and skipped the first grade entirely. He passed the second grade tests, except for spelling the word 'girl' g-a-l."

The Rusk parents, stern Presbyterians, called all their children by their second names. Thus, little David was always known as Dean, and neighborhood kids sometimes would shout "Dean, Dean, butterbean, stuck his head in gasoline." Years later, after he became faculty dean at Mills College for women in Oakland, Calif., students delighted in calling him Dean Dean. For dignity's sake, he tried going back to David D. Rusk, but finally abandoned the idea.

As a stand-out student at Atlanta Boys' High and Davidson (N.C.) College, Rusk won a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University, England, after declaring on his application that he wanted to pursue the cause of world peace. Yet he was a commander of R.O.T.C. both in high school and college, later kept up his summer training as a reserve officer. Asked to explain the paradox, young Rusk replied: "Look at our eagle. In one claw it clutches an arrow. In the other, it clutches an olive branch."

Rusk met his future wife, Virginia Foisie, in one of his classes at Mills College—an International Relations course. After a few classes, Miss Foisie found herself increasingly interested in both the subject and the teacher.

Rusk hired her to do research, which brought them together after class. Then, because a teacher-student relationship was frowned upon, they began dating secretly. Example: They would go on breakfast-picnics early in the morning, an unlikely hour for romance. Inevitably, their hand-holding was whispered around the campus, particularly after Virginia's father came to San Francisco and started sending her flowers and gifts. Says Virginia Rusk: "Dean was broke, but he got the credit for a dashing courtship."

THEY WERE MARRIED on June 19, 1937, now have three children: David, 21 (recently married), Richard, 16, and Margaret, 13. Adds Mrs. Rusk: "The pressures on my husband and the demands on his time are tremendous. Yet somehow he manages to make time for the children. The other evening, Dick wanted to play chess. Dean was absorbed with the Laotian crisis and had two speeches to write. But he took time out for a chess game.

"Another time he had promised Dick and a friend to drive them to a fishing camp in the West Virginia mountains. They were supposed to start at noon, but at 8 p.m. he was still at the State Department. They had given up hope when Dean arrived home. He drove them to their camp anyway, although he didn't get home until nearly two in the morning."

Rusk also offers to give daughter Margaret a lift to school in his long, sleek limousine. But she always turns him down unless she is late, then insists on being dropped off two blocks away. She won't take a chance on being kidded by the other pupils over her luxurious transportation.

Rusk runs the State Department with clockwork precision and chart-like organization. An enormous flow of papers passes over his desk, yet it is usually uncluttered except for the document he is working on. Everything is channeled and compartmentalized down to the private "worry list" in his desk drawer.

At staff meetings, he presents problems, listens to the responses, asks perceptive questions. Then he retires to his office to ponder the solutions by himself. He keeps out of abstract arguments even at White House meetings. He speaks his piece, but seldom participates in the discussion.

Although he always seems relaxed, Rusk has few relaxations. On the way home from a conference, he may play a few hands of bridge on the plane. At the recent Geneva parley, he startled aids by pausing for bridge in the middle of the negotiations. "This is the first time," he remarked, "that I have played bridge on land since I became Secretary."

Rusk also plays a little golf, goes fishing occasionally with his son. Not long ago he went bowling with a State Department team. It is unlikely he will go again, because it turned into a production, involving security agents, reporters and photographers. He sometimes takes a transistor radio with him to the State Department, so he can listen to baseball broadcasts.

A silent man himself, Rusk believes wholeheartedly in silent diplomacy. He will go down in State Department history as the Silent Secretary—and one of the most effective of the cold war.

—J. A.

HOLLYWOOD.

AT THE STUDIO CLUB HERE, a branch of the Y.W.C.A. where screen-struck girls pay $21.50 a week for room and board, two young actresses were recently discussing the dire local unemployment situation.

Complained one, a pert little redhead from Nebraska, "I've had one week's work, and that in television." Said the other, "Let's face it, honey. There are two main ways of getting a break in this town. One is to team up with the right guy, and the other is to get yourself born to the right parents."

One girl on whom Fate worked the second method is Jane Fonda, daughter of Henry Fonda, millionaire stage and screen star, and his second wife, the late Frances Seymour Brokaw. Having taken advantage of her inheritance and background—"contacts can get you there," she says, "but they can't keep you there"—Jane Fonda at 24 has starred in four films (Tall Story, Walk on the Wild Side, The Chapman Report, Period of Adjustment), one Broadway play (There Was a Little Girl), and in stock. She now earns $50,000 and up per film, is under long term contract to director Joshua Logan, and is in demand by producers everywhere.

In addition to a famous father, Jane possesses a long-faced, blue-eyed photogenic beauty, a curvaceous, high-breasted figure—36-21-35, a nimble, lissome body—5 feet 7½ inches, 112 pounds, and a sharp, authoritative mind—I.Q. 132.

Moreover, she has the respect and admiration of her colleagues and the love of a young Greek director, Andreas Voutsinas, currently her inseparable fiancé and acting coach.

Despite all this—career, money, and love—Jane Fonda is not a particularly happy young woman.

She's Learning

For the past three years she has been alternating between two psychoanalysts, one in New York and one in Los Angeles, "because I want to be better adjusted than I am. Some people think," she declares, "that if you're in analysis, it's because you're crazy. But for me it's just a matter of understanding more about myself. If you want to lead a full life, and this is particularly important for an actress, then you have to learn about yourself.

"One thing with me, for example, is that I never could express my hostility as a child. I didn't know how. But there's a lot of hostility in me, and as a child it never came out, and my relationships were always pleasant with people. Analysis has taught me that you should know who to love and who to hate and who you just plain like, and it's important to know the difference. Because then you learn to love, to really love some people, really hate some people, and just become passive about others. Maybe if I weren't an actress, I wouldn't have this need to bring out certain things inside me. But I am an actress, and I have this need to search within me and find out and make myself a more complete woman and better actress.

"You ask why did I want to become an actress when my father did everything possible to discourage me—simply because I'm an exhibitionist, I guess. I want to express my feelings and thoughts.

"Being Henry Fonda's daughter helped me because if my name had been Jones it would've taken me much longer to have gotten a start in the business, and originally that was a psychological handicap. But it made me work harder to over-compensate for my success. And now I work well and function well."

From the above it should be apparent that Jane Fonda is primarily a mental creature, complex, inquiring and perceptive. To anyone who knows her father, she is unmistakably his daughter, both physically and mentally. The truth about Henry Fonda, of course, is that he is completely unlike the all-American, down-to-earth, Lincolnesque fellow he portrays on the screen. He is a comfort-loving, cerebral, reflective, studious, introspective and deliberate actor who has had four wives and will probably take a fifth. He has been known to argue with writers and directors for days demanding a deeper delineation of his stage characterizations. In the production of 12 Angry Men, he spent four hours shopping for precisely the exact seersucker suit a junior architect would wear in New York on a hot day.

Same Perfectionist

His daughter Jane boasts this same perfectionist instinct. Having worked as a cover girl and fashion model for a year before she tried acting, she knows her face is too long, so she insists upon the most careful makeup to give it an illusion of width. Says her make-up man, "If you're going to change anything on her, she always demands the reason. She wants to know exactly what is what." Jane Fonda was raised in Brentwood, an exclusive Los Angeles suburb, in a beautiful, hilltop mansion, tastefully furnished in early American by her mother, Frances Brokaw Fonda, a society matron. As a child she enjoyed the companionship of an older stepsister, Pamela, and a younger brother, Peter. She was sent to the Brentwood Town and Country School. Later when the Fondas moved east so that her dad could play the lead in Mister Roberts, she was sent to Emma Willard, a plush boarding school in Troy, N.Y.

Her mother, an alert, nervous, charming woman with periodic flights into euphoria, committed suicide when Jane was 12. Eventually the girl was looked after by both her maternal grandmother and Fonda's third wife, Susan Blanchard, Oscar Hammerstein's stepdaughter.

The third Mrs. Fonda was only 25 when she married Fonda, but Jane says, "She was a marvelous woman. She tried to bring me and my brother up well. She was very young herself, and I often think of the sacrifices she must have made for us. By the time my father married for the fourth time, I was already too old for it to make much difference to me. I had gone beyond the point of needing a mother."

After Emma Willard, Jane Fonda spent two years at Vassar, then left to study painting in Paris. Presently, like many rich, well-bred girls, she returned to New York where she took a fling at modeling, which taught her discipline.

A few years ago while her father was working in Hollywood, she flew out west to visit him, stayed in a Malibu cottage next to one rented by Lee Strasberg, head of the Actor's Studio and Marilyn Monroe's dramatic coach. She and Lee's daughter, actress Susan Strasberg, spent afternoons lolling on the beach, discussing acting. Jane had done some stage work in school, had played in summer stock with her father for a lark—"but he always emphasized the hardships of the profession."

That fall when Jane returned to New York, she enrolled at the Actor's Studio, shared a room with Susan Stein, daughter of Jules Stein, head of Music Corporation of America, applied herself to her studies with intense diligence.

Andreas Voutsinas, then a Strasberg assistant, says, "The thing about Jane is that she is in the process of finding herself, because basically she is extremely shy and does not want to be exposed, and for such a girl it's not easy. You say she sounds highly opinionated, and perhaps she is. But it's all part of her defense. People approach her with resentment, because she is Henry Fonda's daughter and she was born with a silver spoon in her mouth, so she has to define things very clearly and say what she feels and where she stands. Children of celebrities are always on the defensive."

A Los Angeles psychiatrist who has treated the offspring of many celebrities says, "The daughter of a famous actor who becomes an actress is inviting unhappiness for three reasons: (1) Acting is a dangerous profession for a girl because whatever role she plays she has to play it at least in part with the unconscious. This brings to the fore all her deep, inner conflicts; (2) It is dangerous to become a famous actress. A girl kills herself to become famous, then kills herself trying to remain famous ;(3) The child of a celebrity always has to fight people and public opinion. She has to prove over and over again that her success is based on merit, not pull."

In Jane Fonda's case her first big break was given to her by director Josh Logan, one of her father's best friends. He cast her in a play and then a film with Tony Perkins, Tall Story. Both were flops, but Jane proved she could act, and was subsequently signed for three more films.

Having just finished the movie version of Tennessee Williams' Period of Adjustment, she is now in Greece working on another MGM film after which she returns to the New York stage to star with Brad Dillman in The Fun Couple. The Broadway play will be directed by her fiancé Andreas Voutsinas. Says a friend, "If the play's a hit, they'll probably get married. If it's not, it'll be another experience for Jane. She's now in the process of acquiring hundreds of them!" ■

BY JOE CONTI

EDITOR'S NOTE: Joe Conti, 37, of Marion, Illinois, began his show business career in Detroit as a child radio singer. He then moved on to Hollywood as a boy actor where he worked with John Garfield. In Hollywood he made four movies, then entered the Army. After his Army discharge, he began his nightclub career and played in one Chicago supper club for nine years. Conti is currently appearing in the Windy City's Playboy Club and keeping the customers happy with jokes like these:

Two tourists were looking at Niagara Falls—and one exclaimed, "What a sight!" The other, naturally a Texan, replied, "Heck, where I come from we got plumbers can fix that."

These days they're making great strides in medicine—frozen Band-aids for cold cuts . . . and they have a new tranquilizer now called Damitol. It doesn't really relax you—it just makes you enjoy feeling tense.

I bought my wife a sports car, and she discovered it had three speeds—fast, very fast, and good morning, Judge.

You can't buy friends—but you sure can rent them!

George Washington, the Father of our Country, said while crossing the Delaware, "Row faster, men—we only got the boat for an hour."

Ponce de Leon, in search of the Fountain of Youth, once said, "If you want to look young, hang out with old people."

In school, I took up space. I was in the third grade for two terms—Roosevelt's and Truman's. My father used to walk to school with me. He had to—he was in my grade.

I thought so much of my father that I named my boy after him. We call him "Dad."

I tell everyone I'm happily married, but that's like saying I've got a wonderful disease. And although I've only been married once, I speak of the little woman as my first wife—it keeps her on her toes.

I bought a home. Nothing ostentatious. Our furniture is early Halloween. It has indirect lighting—there's a chop suey restaurant across the street. Our bathroom caught on fire—we're lucky it didn't reach the house. I went to the real estate agent and said, "I wanna talk to you about our roof." He said, "What about it?" I replied, "I want one."

Conrad Hilton is a shrewd businessman who is always attuned to the times. He heard about the booming divorce mill in Las Vegas and plans to build a hotel where about-to-be divorcees can establish residence. It'll be called the Jiltin'-Hilton.

John Glenn has really become the national hero of the hour. In fact, so many people are calling Glenn "Mr. Nice Guy" that I hear Perry Como is getting cranky.

People don't seem to know what the word "gratitude" means any more. Did you hear about the woman who went up to a man and said, "Are you the gentleman who saved my boy from drowning when he fell through the ice?" And when the man proudly answered, "Yes," the irate mother asked, "Well, where are his mittens?"

A woman with more money than brains decided to buy some antiques. The antique dealer started off by showing her a beautiful vase. He held it up and exclaimed: "This vase is over 2,000 years old."

"Don't kid me, mister," snapped the wealthy matron. "It's only 1962 now!"

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

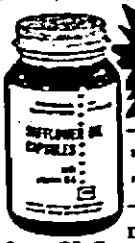

Michael Wilding, Elizabeth Taylor's second husband, was asked by a newsman recently if actors were different from other human beings. "Without a doubt," Wilding declared. "You can pick out actors by the glazed look that comes into their eyes when the conversation wanders away from themselves." ■
